"AMERICA" AT WICHITA THEATRE

SPECTACULAR PRODUCTION GIVEN LAST EVENING BY LOCAL TALENT.

WAS COMPLETE SUCCESS

Attendance Was Large and Much Enthusiasm Was Manifested by the Audience.

The crowning event in the history of the Young Women's Christian Association was inaugurated last night at the opera house in the way of one of the most unique and pleasing entertainments given our people by local talent in some time.

The affair was heralded as "America," a spectacular production, under the direction of Madam Hartzell, and to say that universal satisfaction was given in the rendition would be but voicing the sentiments of the large crowd gathered to witness the production.

The opening overture, "William Tell," by Prof. Katz's Orchestra, was well up to the standard of this popular orchestra's rendition. This as well as the numerous other selections rendered throughout the performance was heartily enjoyed by the hearers.

"Fairland," the first number of the scenic production was a beautiful portrayal of the "fairland."

The Floral Drill by twenty-four misses, led by Misses Orth, Crabtree, Stokes and Self was the feature drill of the evening and so well were the different figures executed that it called forth rounds of applause.

One of the most unique and laughable drills was that of the "Newsboys" led by William Ward and Ivy Lowrey. The costuming of this drill was characteristic of the real newsies of the street and was heartily applauded.

The baritone solo, "Barber, Shop Chord," by Mr. Claude Wood, was another pleasing musical number.

The Indian Song, "Princess Minnehaha" by twenty-four well costumed Indian maids, and Chief Kickapoo and his braves was another of the spectacular successes of the evening and was only contrasted by the "Puritans on their way to church" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

The fancy drill by the M. W. A. degree team showed that Capt. O. B. McConnell had one of the best drilled teams in this part of the State, as the callisthenics of the manual were each almost perfectly executed and brought forth the applause of the audience.

The Spanish Court Scene portrayed the return of Columbus to Spain after his first voyage to America, and was well received.

A vocal selection, by Mr. J. W. Bradley was an added feature and the audience approved Mr. Bradley's use of Irish dialect, as well as his excellent voice.

A pleasing tableaux was the "Court of Cupid" in which P. P. Lankford, Jr., had the title role and was ably assisted by the Grecian girls in graceful poses.

The clarinet solo by Mr. Lawler proved an entertaining event and without exception his hearers pronounced it excellent.

The song by Mr. Wm. Weiss and the Grecian girls was well rendered.

SENATOR BAILEY STATES POSITION

ANNOUNCES THAT HE FAVORS LOCAL OPTION SYSTEM AS IT EXISTS.

REPLIES TO A LETTER

Attitude Quite Different from That Assumed in the Campaign of 1887.

By Associated Press. Belton, Texas, March 7.—Senator Bailey, in a letter to Rev. W. M. Williams, a prominent minister of this place, announces that he favors the present local option system. The letter is in reply to a question from Rev. Williams as to his attitude on the prohibition question.

In 1887 Senator Bailey was a strong advocate of statewide prohibition and it was not known that he had changed his views in the matter until his strenuous campaign against Hon. Cone Johnson for delegate to the Denver convention in 1898, and in fact there has since that time existed a doubt on the part of some of his supporters as to his having deserted the cause of prohibition.

Interest in Pool Match.

When the grand jury assembled in the court room Judge Swayne told the members that as the Fat Stock Show would open next Monday, and as a number of matters demand immediate attention, he had called them back a week earlier than they had expected to convene.

"Since your adjournment a very disgraceful thing has happened in Fort Worth," Judge Swayne said. "I refer to the riots of last Monday night, when a mob of boys and men attacked a place of business in Fort Worth and after forcing it to close its doors assaulted and maltreated negro citizens entirely innocent of any wrong doing."

"All citizens of the state, whether white or black, are entitled to the protection of the laws, and I charge you upon your oaths as grand jurors to investigate this matter exactly as you would if white persons had been assaulted under similar circumstances."

"I have no sympathy with the white man who opened a negro picture show on Main street, nor with the men who rent their buildings for such purposes," Judge Swayne said. "The opening of such a show in the principal business section, and in a section devoted entirely to white stores and white business houses is against public policy in a community which has such a large proportion of negro population.

"But the negroes who attended the show were not to blame, and the attacks upon innocent negroes was an outrage that should be atoned if possible. If it is true that officers stood by without attempting to quell the riot, and even encouraged the members of the mob, as has been reported to me, they should be indicted also."

The grand jury immediately retired and took up the consideration of pending business. No riot witnesses appeared Monday, but it is likely that by Wednesday, at least, a number will be summoned.

FORT WORTH POLICE SCORED

Judge Swayne Instructs Grand Jury Regarding Recent Riots There.

Fort Worth, Tex., March 7.—Judge Swayne charged the Seventeen district grand jury Monday to investigate the race riots of last Monday night, and to indict any officers who had encouraged the rioters of stood by without attempting to quell the disturbance, as well as the persons who had assaulted and maltreated innocent negroes, if such can be discovered.

When the grand jury assembled in the court room Judge Swayne told the members that as the Fat Stock Show would open next Monday, and as a number of matters demand immediate attention, he had called them back a week earlier than they had expected to convene.

"Since your adjournment a very disgraceful thing has happened in Fort Worth," Judge Swayne said. RECENT DEVELOPMENTS HAVE CAUSED MUCH SPECULATION AS TO OBJECT,

REASONS ARE NOT GIVEN

One-Fourth of Government Army Will Be Concentrated Along the Border.

By Associated Press.

Washington, March 7.—The intense interest that has been manifested here and elsewhere over the recent order transferring the government troops to the Mexico border, was relieved to a certain extent today when following a cabinet meeting it was announced that the troops had been sent to the Texas and California border of Mexico solely for maneuvers. This explanation, however, does not entirely allay the feeling of suspense as a result of the well-known conditions that exist in Mexico at this time and many are of the opinion that the movement, if no more, is a precautionary one for the purpose of protecting property.

By Associated Press. Washington, March 7.—Within the next five days twenty thousand troops, comprising one-fourth of the United States army, will be concentrated in the Department of Texas and a fleet of war ships will at the same time assemble off the Texas coast. In addition thereto thirty-five hundred coast artillerymen are ordered to gather at Galveston. This action is said to be preparatory to maneuvers on a grand scale, the details of which, however, are not made public at this time.

Quick as a flash orders were issued last night to troops to move to Texas and the report created a tremendous sensation, and all sorts of wild rumors were afloat, for only the President, his Cabinet and the general staff knew of the causes for such action. The order was such as to involve the removal of one-fourth of the fighting force of this country to the border of another nation within five days, which is sufficient to refute the insinuation that the American Army moves only at a snail's pace.

While many rumors are current as to real purpose of the maneuver, it is generally thought that the action was taken on account of the Mexican disorders and the danger of foreign property in Mexico.

That one more ball season is upon us is convincingly demonstrated through the welcome appearance of Reach's Official American League Guide for 1911; being as usual, first in the field and this spring earlier than ever. The 1911 Reach Guide which has been edited for many years by Editor Hebert of "Sporting Life" is always up to the high standard set by the Reach Guide ever since the incumbency of the present editor but it can be justly stated that the 1911 Reach American League Guide is the best of the long Reach series and superior to any similar publication in the world, alike in the matter of text, illustration, quality of paper, binding and all the details that go to make up a handsome as well as readable book—in short the American League Official Guide for 1911 is in all respects a first-class hand book for the National game and a decided credit to the American League and to the publishers, the Reach Company of Philadelphia. ### JACK JOHNSON MAY GO TO ROCK PILE is Arrested Second Time for Speeding Automobile at San Francisco.

San Francisco, March 7.—Training quarters for Champion Jack Johnson may be the city jail on account of his arrest for fast automobile driving. A warrant was sworn out for his arrest this afternoon by Patrolman William Geniar on a second charge of speeding and Geniar immediately began a still hunt for the "Big Smoke." While the officer hot-footed to Johnson's quarters at the beach, Jack emulated the Jack Rabbit and slipped into Chief of Police Seymour's private office.

"That patrolman is persecuting me," complained the champion. But Seymour showed such a lack of sympathy that Johnson left the officer to surrender himself. Johnson was convicted last week for speeding and was fined $10 or ten days in jail. He appealed and at that time Police Judge Weller warned him that the next offense meant the rock pile.

I love my little upper berth, So snug, so warm and cozy, I love the car roof motion, for It starts me feeling dozy, Although I've berth marks on my crown, I love my upper berth marked down.—From the Poems of a Pullman Piker in Chicago Tribune.

Louis Agassiz, the naturalist, spent the evening of the day he married in his laboratory as usual. He retired after his newly found wife was in the realm of dreams, bringing to his bedroom two very choice specimens of the snake family which he had been studying and was, still engrossed in. Forced to part with them for the night he looked about for a suitable place to leave them, and finally laid hold of his wife's stockings as a convenient receptacle.

The next morning when Mr. Agassiz rose, she cried "Louis, there's a snake in my stocking! What shall I do?" "A snake?" yelled Agassiz, now fully aroused. "One snake? Heavens, where's the other one? I put two in there."—Ladies Home Journal.

An Irish conductor and a German motorman were making a "run" together on a suburban line, and as the conductor was collecting the fare one of the passengers discovered that he had forgotten his pocketbook and was without a cent. The conductor informed him that he either had to pay his fare or get off the car, and gave the signal to stop. The motorman became somewhat confused at this, as the next station was about a mile distant, and after stopping the car walked back to the conductor and asked: "Vot ist der matter? Ist der something broke?" The conductor answered, "Yes, one of the passengers."—New York World.

"Sir," said the sleek-looking agent, approaching the desk of the meek, meek-looking man and opening one of those folding thingamajigs showing styles of bindings. "I believe I can interest you in this massive set of books containing the speeches of the world's greatest orators. Seventy volumes, one dollar down and one dollar a month until the price, six hundred and eighty dollars, has been paid. This set of books gives you the most celebrated speeches of the greatest talkers the world has ever known and—"

"Let me see the index," said the meek man.

The agent handed it to him and he looked through it carefully and methodically, running his finger along the list of names.

Reaching the end he handed the index back to the agent and said: "It isn't what you claim it is. I happen to know the greatest talker in the world, and you haven't her in the index."—Ladies Home Journal.

Little Billie had been at the bottom of his class in spelling for a long time, when one afternoon he returned home radiant, exclaiming:

"Mom, I got ahead of the next fellow today, and I am not at the foot any more."

He was warmly caressed and commended, and after a minute's reflection he added:

"Gee, but he is a bum speller."—New York World.

The old family physician being away on a much-needed vacation his practice was intrusted to his son, a recent medical graduate. When the old man returned the youngster told him, among other things, that he had cured Miss Ferguson, an aged and wealthy spinster, of her chronic indigestion.

proud of you; but Miss Ferguson's indigestion is what put you through college."—Ladies Home Journal.

David Belasco, gentle and kindly in his relations with men, cannot resist occasionally in making caustic comment on the arrogance of some actors.

The playwright was arranging for a scene in one of his famous productions. A question arose as to the proper placing of a crescent moon, which Belasco insisted must be in an absolutely correct position.

"Let's call in Mrs. Carter," suggested the bewildered author who was seated in the body of the house.

"Mrs. Carter!" cried Belasco, "what does she know about the moon? She's a star."—Holland's Magazine.

"I know that a male is not so highly regarded as a rule," the old Colonel remarked, with a dreamy light in his eyes, "but I never see one without feeling a throb of gratitude for a certain army noble that must have gone to the happy feeding trough long ago."

The young folks, scenting a story, eagerly drew nearer.

"Yes," the Colonel continued, "if it hadn't been for that noble, I would probably have fallen at Seven Pines."

"Do tell us, Colonel!" someone urged, unnecessarily.

"It was just before the battle," the Colonel continued musingly. "I was passing near that noble, and he kicked me over a tent and broke both legs, an arm and four ribs."

"And you feel gratitude for that?"

"Yes. You see, the lieutenant-colonel who took command in my place was instantly killed in the fight. I shall never get over my kindly feeling for that noble."—Exchange.

A country woman and her little boy were visiting in the city, and while seeing the sights of the place the mother's eye was attracted by showy display of stuffed animals in a taxidermist's shop window.

"Let's go in here and see what we can get for you, Willie," said the mother.

"Sure, Ma, and—"

His eye fell upon a sign, over the shop door, which read: "Let us tan your hides."

"Oh, no, Ma, let's don't go in there. I get 'nuff of that at home," he cried excitedly, and they passed up the taxidermist's shop.—National Monthly.

They were pulling off an amateur production of some book play up at Gilmanton Iron Works, New Hampshire. A young chap that had recently graduated from the farm to the position of drug clerk was making his first appearance on the stage. His part was that of an orderly to a Union Army officer. He had one line to speak:

"A gentleman waits below by the name of Solomon Isaacs."

He had rehearsed this line for a month; he had spoken it in the store during dull hours; he had spoken it in the privacy of his room; he had consulted with everybody else in the cast as to the proper inflection and emphasis to give the line, and everybody had given him some different style of delivery.

By the time the night of the production came around he had thirty different ways of delivering the line and was not sure yet which one he should use. He was made up and dressed at six thirty, although he was not on until the third act. All through the show he was wandering around, up back stage and in dark corners, saying this line over and over:

As the time for his entrance drew nearer he grew more and more nervous, and more and more undecided which version of his line to use. Finally his cue came, and tremblingly he strode to the stage and in a weak and trembling falsetto said:

"Smilax."—New York Telegraph.

WOMAN SHOULD BE HUSBAND'S HELPMATE

Such is the View of Mrs. Champ Clark, Wife of the Next Speaker of the House.

Washington, March 7.—Although she believes that women should be allowed to vote if they wish to, there are few of the "new woman" characteristics in Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the speaker-elect. In an interview today Mrs. Clark gave an insight into the political success of her husband.

"A woman should be a helpmate for her husband," she said, "if she would reap the full rewards of married life. My husband and I have always strived mutually to help one another, but I do not believe in any wife helping her husband to the extent of being a door-mat."

Mrs. Clark proudly confesses to having won prizes at the Pike County fair in Missouri for bread baking and darning. She says labor is dignified for any woman in the land, regardless of her rank.

"If I had my way," Mrs. Clark continued, "every woman would have a husband and children. There is nothing sweeter or grander than wifehood and motherhood."

"American women are more appreciative and grasp opportunities more readily than any women in the world. But in my opinion, woman should have the opportunity to be queen of the home, first of all."

Mrs. Clark said that when she was first married she was afraid that her husband, engulfed in politics would gradually grow away from her.

"So I made it a point," she said, "always to be ready to go with him when he wanted me to. In this way he never found out that he could do without me. This very often is the secret of happy married people."

Nearly Smothered.

Chandler, N. C.—Mrs. Augusta Lomax, of this place, writes: "I had smothering spells every day, so bad that I expected death at any time. I could not sit up in bed. I suffered from womanly troubles. My nerves were unstrung. I had almost given up all hope of ever being better. I tried Cardui, and it did me more good than anything I had ever taken. I am better now than I ever expected to be." Thousands of ladies have written similar letters, telling of the merits of Cardui. It relieved their headache, backache and misery, just as it will relieve yours, if you will let it. Try it.

Two news items appearing simultaneously in the February press of the State announce with force the greatness of Texas and the wonderful diversification of our natural endowments. One dispatch from the southern part of the State tells of the strawberries being shipped by the carload to northern markets and the other of trains that are snowbound in the panhandle. Harvesting berry crops and running snow plows on the same day is a novel experience that few States can boast. Nature in creating Texas gave us an abundance of everything and our mineral deposits, agricultural possibilities and industrial opportunities are as diversified, staple and inviting as our climate.

Texas has the largest families of any State in the Union, the average size of the Texas family being 5.25 and the size of the average family in the United States is 4.75.

THAT COTTON MILL IS THE BIG IDEA—HELP MAKE IT A REALITY.

No loyal citizen of Wichita Falls should stay away from the mass meeting tomorrow night. That cotton mill proposition is about the biggest and best thing ever presented to the citizens of this city.

At first glance and without taking the time or the trouble to figure out just what effect the success of State-wide prohibition will have on the political career of Senator Bailey, it would seem as if the Statewidlers really had by far the best of the contest so far. Two-thirds or three-fourths of the counties of the State have already voted for local option, and are now what is termed "dry" territory, and were it not for the fact that Baileyism is as much an issue as is State-wide prohibition in the contest it is reasonable to suppose that these "dry" or local option counties would also vote for Statewide prohibition. But Senator Bailey has gone on record as against Statewide prohibition. Some of his political enemies even go so far as to allege that he was forced to take that stand to preserve his political life, and it may be possible he will expect his pro friends to endorse his stand on that matter. The question is: Will they do it? With present lights before us it looks now as if they are willing to follow his lead it matters not in what direction, and if at any time during the progress of the Statewide contest Senator Bailey should become convinced that the success of Statewide prohibition would mean his elimination from Texas politics, and should appeal to his friends to come to his rescue, in the face of recent events, how many of them will be able to resist an appeal? Or, if things, politically, should so shape themselves as to make it morally certain that the success of Statewide prohibition meant that some of the many able pro leaders would succeed Senator Bailey before the legislature in 1912, could his ardent friend and staunch supporter, Col. Tom Hill, campaign manager of the Statewidlers, resist to what to him no doubt would appear as a great calamity, the temptation to avert it, knowing that it is easily in his power to do so? These are questions that Statewidlers should have thought seriously about before organizing for the fight, and if they did not then, they will be called upon to both think and act before the time comes to vote on July 32nd.

The total number of poll tax receipts issued to citizens of Texas up to February 1, 1911 were 587,364, an increase over last year of $2,012. The poll tax receipts for Wichita county issued up to February 1, 1911 were 2446, as against 2405 for the year before. Wilbarger county has 1873 for this year, as against 1765 last year; Clay county 2489 as against 2473 last year. Archer county 1028 as against 892 last year. Of the $2,012 gain over the poll tax receipts for the year 1910, 15,331 of the increase was in the poll tax receipts issued in the five counties of Dallas, Tarrant, Harris, Galveston and Bexar. With the exemptions, and over the estimated vote of the State, as made by the Dallas News will be $75,000 as against $15,000 in 1910.

While there may have been some difference of opinion relative to the adoption of a commission form of government, all citizens of Wichita Falls are agreed that we ought to land a cotton mill. Harmony and enthusiasm will characterize the mass meeting tomorrow night.

The dispatches state that one-fourth of the entire United States army has been ordered to move on Texas. Hadn't Governor Colquhoun better call out the Rangers?

There is at least one difference between Senator Bailey's and Secretary Ballinger's resignation—the latter stuck.

DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE AND THE TARIFF.

President Taft is entitled to all the credit that naturally accrues to his administration for the application of Democratic doctrine to the tariff situation. Not one word just censure has been passed on the Canadian reciprocity measure, except from those who know that a freer trade and wider markets will serve to reduce and regulate the unfair advantages the protective tariff has given them over the consumer. The treaty opens to producers of both countries greater trade opportunities than they have heretofore enjoyed, and at the same time there must come a reduction in the price of necessary commodities. This is one of the fruits of the recent election. Had the people remained sullenly silent and inactive, the Republican party would have continued along its course of service to the protected interests. President Taft's policy would have remained unchanged. It had started badly. And it grew worse as it proceeded. Its chief evils, up to the time of the recent election, were as follows:

First. A few days subsequent to the inauguration President Taft said: "Uncle Joe is not a bad sort. I feel sometimes that he has been misunderstood. I like him, and am pleased to have him visit the White House."

Second. Cannon and Aldrich, frequent visitors at the White House.

Third. The passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, increasing tariff duties despite a distinctly implied pledge by the Republican party of a reduction in the tariff schedule.

Fourth. President Taft's swing around the country to defend the tariff measure as "the best ever adopted by the Republican Congress."

Fifth. The exonerations of Ballinger and the dismissal of Gifford Pinchot.

Sixth. The denial of patronage to the Republican Progressives because of their refusal to be bound over to the Cannon-Aldrich combination.

Seventh. The President's alliance with the worst element of the Republican party, from Norman E. Mack's National Monthly for March.

NOMINATION AND ELECTION OF SENATORS BY PEOPLE.

The basic principle of the Federal Constitution is representative government. The real purpose of the fathers in providing that the several States should have equal representation in the United States was to preserve their autonomy.

The election of Senators by the State Legislatures is a mere incident to the plan of government adopted by our Constitutional Fathers. The nomination and election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people is not intended to change the representation of the States in the Senate, or to change the representative character of our Government. It is only and simply to provide a new plan for the election of Senators which will be in entire harmony with the originally conceived scheme of government, and will in no respect be in discord with it.

How can the form of selection seriously affect constitutional principles? I do not believe that amendments to the fundamental law of the land should be suggested or made except for the very weightiest of reasons. It was not conceived during the constitutional debates that a situation would arise in our political history, when the selection of a United States Senator would be made either by the manipulation of political machines, or by the corrupt and extravagant use of money. Americans were then secure in the belief that men who would elect others to the United States Senate, or who would aspire to seat in that body, would be actuated by the highest of motives, and always above any suspicion of venality. We know that some of the States have selected men for the United States Senate who have not represented the will of their constituents. Too often they have reached the goal of their ambition by the aid of political machinery, or by the corrupt use of money, when they would not have had the courage to announce their candidacies before the election or submit their ambitions to a vote of the people. This situation, in its present proportions, I dare say, was not even contemplated by the fathers—Alicia Pomerene in March National Monthly.

A healthy crank is as much of a nuisance as any other kind of a crank.

Tribute is Paid to Senator Owen

—By John Temple Graves

Washington, March 5.—The last filibuster of a filibustering senate was its most striking and dramatic.

The last lone stand of Owen of Oklahoma, held the senate in terror and alarm. Rising like a lone Indian upon the plains of uncertainty with a chin as firm as a rock and with an eye as keen as a hawk's, he held a whip hand over eighty-nine senators for seventy-five minutes and threatened for a time to let the gavel fall upon his as the last utterances of the Sixty-first senate.

Owen was ostensibly fighting for Arizona and the Arizona constitution. New Mexico's constitution had been received and its reactionary provisions were acceptable to the president and to the republican majority and New Mexico was about to be admitted alone.

Owen took the floor to fight for Arizona under a constitution that was progressive and vital that it contained the initiative, the referendum and the recall.

He planted himself upon the proposition from which the entire senate failed to move him.

First, that the two great forces fighting for supremacy in this government were the forces of progress and popular sovereignty represented by the Arizona constitution, and the reactionary influences of interest and ultra conservatism represented by New Mexico. Upon this ground he felt he was justified in detaining the senate to the last moment of protest in behalf of the people of the great government in which he believed.

His second ground was the re-admission of the proposition which he had thundered for the last five days upon the floor that the Sixty-first congress since the November elections had not been representatives of the people's will.

Incidentally, but with perfect frankness, Senator Owen declared the senate majority was about to admit New Mexico because it would add two Republican senators to the list and he refused to see Arizona excluded because its admission would bring in two Democratic senators.

Planted upon these two positions, the fiery senator was absolutely immovable to all the influences that could be brought around him.

Senators were in terror over the fate of individual bills. Other senators were in terror over the fate at the last moment, of certain important remnants of the appropriation bills and there were one or two who cherished the faint hope that at the last hour some lingering reaction toward reciprocity might bring that matter to a successful conclusion and save the senate and the people the terrors of an extra session.

Grave and dignified senators swarmed around the desk of Owen of Oklahoma. Senator Carter of Montana, came and pleaded, but the Oklahoma man only shook his head and went on. Mr. Gore, Owen's blind colleague, came and was turned aside. Bacon came to no avail. Senator Stone was refused; the venerable and beloved Hernando Money, made the last personal appeal he has ever to make in the senate, but the stern young senator turned from each of them and tranquilly continued his argument for Arizona.

Then finally the vice-president of the senate himself stepped down from the chair of the senate, and leaving Smoot in his place, went over to plead with Owen to relinquish his position of advantage and give way to other business. Even to the vice-president the Oklahoma man turned a smiling face but an absolutely obdurate ear and went coolly on.

A message came from the president of the United States then in the marble of the capitol, offering that if Senator Owen would come to the president, a sincere effort would be made to reach agreement on the Arizona matter. At this Owen shook his head with emphasis, snapped his black eyes and refused to enter into any conference looking to a compromise of Arizona's life. There was never so dramatic a filibuster seen upon the floor of the senate of a filibuster upon which was leveled such wealth and personal and political influence, all in vain.

Finally Senator Owen, in his own good time, agreed that if the senate would vote there and then for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico upon equal terms, he would surrender the floor. This was accomplished at 11:30. The vote was adverse to the proposition by 43 to 35 refusing both states and Owen gained his point of winning an equal consideration for Arizona. The last filibuster of the Sixty-first senate was clearly indicated to the floor and to the galleries that the young senator from Oklahoma must be reckoned with in deliberations of the Sixty-second congress.

And then, at 11:30, by whose authority the press galleries did not learn, the clocks of the Senate were turned back just twenty-seven minutes. Under the constitution the time for congress to expire is 12 noon. Therefore it would seem that all action taken for the last twenty-five minutes of the Senate's actual session is of questionable constitutional right. At least it raises the question for discussion.

Senator Owen's additional motive for the striking filibuster, it is said, was his fixed intention to force an extra session in order that the democratic party might enact the legislation to which they had been caused by the people.

It is significant that the last party expression on the floor of the senate was an intense assertion of progressive democracy by the senator from Oklahoma. It was a declaration in favor of the initiative, the referendum and the recall and for the substitution of the Oregon plan as amplified in the Arizona platform.

It was the announcement of the new democracy which is just as new to that party as insurgency is new to the republican party. It is notable that Owen's chief supporters in his dramatic stand were La Follette of Wisconsin, and Beveridge, of Indiana.

This fact makes all the more striking the startling statement which ran through the capitol hall an hour after adjournment that Bailey, of Texas, had wired his resignation as senator to the Governor of Texas and had requested the vice-president just before adjournment to announce that he had done this thing.

Bailey came into the senate while the vote was being taken under Owen's consent for the joint admission of Arizona and New Mexico and expressed his profound regret that he had not been in his seat to protest before the vote was allowed. He declared emphatically that he would vote "No" to the proposition. It is said now that the basis of Bailey's resignation was his unwillingness to stand for the type of democracy enunciated by the senator from Oklahoma.

Whatever the outcome, it is from a democratic standpoint rather a sinister close to the Sixty-first Senate that so sharp and fierce an antagonism should have been aroused in its closing hours between two brilliant representatives of the two divisions of the democratic party.

At the Theaters

The Blue Mouse at the Wichita.

This widely discussed Blue Mouse comedy which appears at the Wichita Theatre March 9 has had good runs in Vienna, London, Paris, New York and Chicago. The company playing here March 9 is the same which played San Antonio, Dallas, Houston, Austin and all the principal cities South and the comedy will be presented here with all the special scenery and effects used in the cities. Miss Gertrude Hitz, who is being starred in the title role was especially selected by the Shuberts for the part of The Blue Mouse on account of her pleasing personality and ability in portraying parts where cleverness and action is essential.

The company throughout is excellent and a fine performance is assured. The Temple Daily Telegram says: "The Blue Mouse, one of Clyde Fitch's latest comedies of errors was the attraction at the Exchange Theatre last evening and in spite of the inclement weather played to a full house. The Blue Mouse slips from one laughable predicament to another so rapidly that one hardly has time to catch one's breath between the climaxes. From the rise of the curtain to the last fall, there is not a dull moment. It is a battle of wit from beginning to end and one in which in the end all are confounded. The Blue Mouse is decidedly the best attraction seen here this season."

"Night Riders in Kentucky and Tennessee" will be the feature at the Colonial Theatre tomorrow and Thursday nights, when the thrilling story of the dimmy swamps and Reelfoot Lake and the Black Patch district will be presented.

Hood and Brown Co., who own and control the Night Rider Pictures have been on Reelfoot Lake, Tenn., in the heart of the night rider district and also in the famous "Black Patch" of Kentucky and are familiar with the terrorizing methods used by "The Men Who Rode by Night." They were members of one of the posses who assisted in running down this lawless and desperate band of men, who have kept their communities in a reign of terror for years. These pictures are realistic portrayals of actual scenes just as they happened there. Hood & Brown Co., will present the organization of the Night Riders, showing the captain and leader of the band the many crimes they have committed including the whipping of men who refused to obey their warnings the burning of houses, the destruction of property, etc; the planning and plotting of the murder of Captain Quentin T. Rankin and Col. Robert Z. Taylor, two prominent attorneys of Trenton, Tenn. The above is only a lurid synopsis of this sensational production. An interesting feature throughout the program by Messrs Hood & Brown, who are familiar with the Night Rider situation.

"How Hopper was Sidetracked." Opening last night at the Ruby for the three performances was "How Hopper was Sidetracked," a comedy drama, produced by Benton's Comedians. It was produced in the usual good manner that this company has made its reputation on. The play is very pleasing having a good laugh with each speech. A handsome center table was given away last night and another present will be given away tonight and each night this week.

S. S. CONVENTION NOT TO BE PICNIC

Circular Says Visitors Should Do Sightseeing After Convention Hours.

Special to The Times.
Fort Worth, March 7.—That the state officials in charge of the convention of the Texas Sunday School Association, opening in Fort Worth Thursday, mean to devote every possible moment to the actual business of the convention is indicated in the instructions to delegates being sent out over the state.

"Delegates should always be in their seats before the beginning of each convention session," reads the instructions. "Between times they should spend much time in the exhibit room and see the great display of good things of our publishing houses. Come prepared to buy some good books and supplies.

"Do not go sightseeing during convention hours. If you should be called away from the convention, do not wear your badge during the hours of the convention sessions.

"Stay over Tuesday and spend that day enjoying the great city.

"This is not a Sunday school picnic or an excursion. It is the King's business."

Saturday night of the convention has been designated as the time for the missionary mass meeting, when the big auditorium of the First Methodist Church, which will be used as the convention hall, will be decorated with flags of the nation and address, on "The New Crusade for the World's Conquest" will be made by the international leader, Dr. William A. Brown and Dr. H. M. Hamill, who visited the Orient three years ago and organized the Korean Sunday School Association.

During the convention, evangelistic meetings will be held in stores and shops by some of the more prominent evangelists attending the convention. Evangelist John E. Green will be among them.

A. W. Grant, chairman of the banquet committee for the coming Sunday school convention, is searching for a building large enough to hold the banquet at which it is expected 1,900 Sunday school workers will sit down.

On a former occasion the old skating rink at Third and Commerce streets was used for the purpose but this since has been torn down. The Fat Stock Show plans prevent securing the Coliseum and no other place has yet been found.

Arrangements were made Monday to look over the building on Houston street formerly occupied by the Post-Office. The building is being offered by Commissioner George Mulkey.

Maricle Coal Company have moved back to their old office on Wall St. For all kinds of good coal and feed phone 437. 244-1tc

Nothing seemed to help me, until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. Although I had been afflicted with womanly weaknesses for seven years, Cardui helped me more than anything else ever did. It is surely the best tonic for women on earth."

Weakness is woman's greatest trouble. Cardui is woman's greatest medicine, because it overcomes that weakness and brings back strength. In the past 50 years, Cardui helped over a million women. Try it for your troubles today.

THE SWINE ON THE FLOWER!
Ah me! I saw a huge and loathsome sty, wherein a drove of wallowing swine were barred, Whose banquet shocked the nostril and the eye; Then spoke a voice, "Behold the source of lard!" I fled, and saw a field that seemed at first One glittering mass of scum pure and white. With dewy buds 'mid dark green foliage nursed; And, as I lingered o'er the lovely sight, The summer breeze, that cooled that Southern scene, Whispered, "Behold the source of COTTOLENE!"

Spokane Tries New Plan.
Spokane, Wash., Mar. 7.—Spokane is holding its first election today under the new charter recently adopted by popular vote. The new charter is modeled rather closely after that recently adopted by Grand Junction, Colorado, though in its main features it follows the general plan of commission government in force in many cities in the west and south. The present mayor and city council will be supplanted by a board of five commissioners. There are nearly 100 candidates for the commissionerships, among them being the present mayor and a number of other city officials.

The average woman's idea of economy is to have her husband spend less money.

more than once the fundamental fact today in politics is the profound indignation of the voters against the political power of the special interests. As citizens we are beginning to see that if we are to govern ourselves in the future with less dictation from the special interests than we have had in the past, the machinery of government must be so adjusted as to make it easier for the popular will to produce results. It must be made easier for the people to secure continuously the honest enforcement of their will than it is for the business and political bosses to secure continuously the defeat of the popular will in their own interest. We cannot always work along under a political organization such that unbearable abuses are the only stimulants strong enough to make the people demand and get their rights. Good government in spurts is not good enough. What we need is machinery under which the hardest work will always have to be done by the men who are trying to defeat the popular will, and not by the men who are trying to get it enforced.

"The demand for better things is working out in many State legislatures through the passage of progressive laws for popular government. Under these laws, which are by no means revolutionary, the people will take better control of their own affairs. There is no movement in politics today more vital than this, and it is for this reason that the organization of the National Progressive Republican League was a thoroughly good thing.

"In the field of National politics the situation is less clear. Here the central question about which men are thinking concerns the Presidential nominations. Public mention of it by responsible public men is not heard, but much quiet work is being done, and the lines are already taking shape.

"This is, of course, the formative time. Therefore I see every reason why the public discussion of this matter is in order now, while there still remains a chance for the general body of the voters in each party to influence the result. The longer we wait, the nearer the conventions, and the less likelihood that the will of the people prevail against political maneuvering and the dictation of the bosses. Many a National convention does no more than ratify a nomination safely secured by methods we all know, months before the delegates assemble. The time to strike is when the iron is hot and can still be shaped.

"I am a Republican, and as such I am interested in the success of the Republican party as an instrument for securing the public welfare. In common with all other Republicans, I am deeply interested (and rightly so) in the next Presidential nomination, but I differ from some others in being willing to speak out. The public interest is not apt to suffer from plain speaking. Thus far, however, I conform cheerfully to the prevailing custom, and express no opinion as to who the Republican nominee will be, or who he ought to be.

"But if we keep silent over it we should also keep up a lively thinking. For this at least is sure: The Republican party cannot afford to risk its chance of victory in 1912 merely upon the hope of Democratic blunders. Time was when that was reasonably safe. Today it is a dependence distinctly less reliable than in the past. Also we need a larger issue.

"In 1912 the nominee himself will be more than half the platform. It is obvious, therefore, that the Republican candidate should be selected with peculiar care, and that he must have certain indispensable qualifications.

"First, he must have wisdom, courage, and genuine devotion to the welfare of the people.

"Second, he must be a progressive, and stand for popular government.

"Third, he must be a leader, whom the voters will follow with enthusiasm.

"Fourth, he must offer the party he is to lead a fair chance to win.

"These requirements are not unreasonable. No man not a reactionary can object to the simple standard they contain. And no man whatever can doubt that unless the next Republican National Convention nominates a man who meets this test, the party is sure to suffer. For in these days the independent voters are increasing by leaps and bounds.

"Party ties sit more lightly on the voter today than for many years, and that is well. In the last election many a Republican was beaten by the refusal of his fellow Republicans to support him rather than by the opposition of the Democrats. The political unrest of today is merely a sign of political independence, and political independence holds the promise of free institutions.

"There are, I believe, many men who feel as I do. I am a Republican, but I am an American first. I am a Republican, but I reserve the right to vote for what I believe. I would rather be right than be 'regular.'

"The man who always votes a straight ticket has destroyed his own political effectiveness. He has simply counted himself out. The vote of the always-regular Republican simply cancels the vote of the always-regular Democrats. In effect the two are paired, and neither has an influence on the final result.

"The hide-bound regular must swallow what is set before him. Down it must go, though it choke him. Dislikes and misgivings alike give way at the crack of the party whip. Therefore he has nothing to say as to platforms or candidates. The men the political leaders never fear to lose are the men these same leaders need make no effort to retain. When party platforms are drawn up, no changes need be made to meet the rock-ribbed regular's views, for he will vote the ticket anyhow. When elections are held, the rubber-stamp voter on the one side is offset by the rubber-stamp voter on the other side, and the issue is decided by the men who vote their convictions where they find them. The men who count are the men with independence enough to weigh platforms, judge candidates, and act on what they find.

"Regularity in a party is often compared and confused with loyalty in an army. They are not the same. In war the privates in an army are under the command of their officers in a free government, on the contrary, the officers are under the command of the rank and file. We privates in the army of progress are beginning to understand this great fact, which some of the old leaders yet find it hard to realize.

"The man who boasts of his unshakable regularity is boasting of his unshakable inefficiency. He is proud that he does not count. The men who will not follow the leaders when they go wrong are the men who keep the leaders right. The men who will not follow the party when it goes wrong are the men who keep the party right.

"Whatever is right and vital in the Republican party today is progressive. Whatever is not progressive is dying or dead. When any part of a living body dies, 'cut it off and cast it from thee,' or the death of the whole will follow. The Republican party cannot live half dead and half alive. It cannot continue half reactionary and half progressive. There has been doubt as to the issue. There is less today. We shall live, if we free ourselves from the gangrene of blind devotion to things that have gone by.

"As a nation we are passing out of political leading-strings of the special interests into the full development of political maturity. The sign of our advance from childhood into manhood is the progressive movement.

Typewriters
ALL THE WRITING ALWAYS IN SIGHT
(The biggest order ever placed by any firm or corporation for typewriters for their own use) because their own mechanical experts, sitting as a jury, said it was unquestionably the best.

They examined all competing makes, tested them under every condition of stress and strain, and voted unanimously in favor of the L. C. Smith & Bros. The Duponts thus rendered you an invaluable service. Lacking mechanical experts of your own you can safely rely upon the decision of these five engineers, at the height of their calling, who were willing to stake their professional reputation on the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter.

Many large concerns have already been gulped by this expert opinion and have standardized, as the Duponts did, with the typewriter that stood the test. There could be no test more thorough, or more unbiased decisions.

Or in San Antonio.
The Mexican revolution does not seem to be rotting much faster than the 20th office in Houston.

Happy Escape.
Congress will meet in extra session. But it is thought the prohibition election in Texas will be held notwithstanding the probable absence of Texas congressmen.

An Optimist.
The outlook for Texas crops is better than ever before at this season, and the political situation is going to clear up about midsummer.

Sans Old Nag.
The morning Jake Wolters (est. 1873) seems to be as adept at riding the local political fence under the new management as under the old.

The Truth.
At this distance it looks as if all the senators who oppose direct elections are senators who couldn't be elected directly.

These Misses.
From the senate gallery in Washington the people missed Senator Bailey for a long time the best people of Texas have been compelled to disapprove of his performances.

Wanted—One Deluge.
A great old game, that of politics. The worst of it is that the tax payer—that is, the people have to pay the freight, and as a result the people are long suffering and kind.

Mexico as Job.
At another time the news that Mexican rebels, or even bandits, had captured Palomas, a customs port of entry, would have caused intense excitement on both sides of the Ijas.

95 a Throw.
Texas reaches from snow to summer, from snow to strawberries, from icebergs to ice cream, from skates to juleps.

The Price of Peace.
Diaz dejes that he has made overtures for peace to the insurgents. If the president of the sister republic could get the insurgents backed against a wall he would give them a peace talk that in their individual cases would be extremely effective.

And Not Getting Shot.
Congressman Slayden says that American soldiers of fortune are constantly violating neutrality laws in Central America.

The Recall.
Some of the members of the Texas legislature are said to be getting hoarse. There is a suspicion that some of them would be welcomed at home not so much for their public services as for the guaranty that they would be less active.

Cold Shoulder.
Texas cattlemen do not want the reciprocity resolution to pass because it threatens to make beef cheaper in this country.

Better—Eschewing.
Bryan has eschewed "The Prince of Peace" and has written another lecture, "The Fruit of the Tree."

Tourist business in Mexico is at a standstill because of the revolution. This will cause great hardship among the beggars at every station and point of interest in the republic.
