MAGSTAFF BILL URGED AT MEETING Texas Legislature Passes Davis Pipe Line Bill

ABOUT THIS AND THAT

The Texas legislature, apparently following a precedent that has not been in previous sessions, has regretted the reason they have enrolled into session and have been quibbling over trivial side issues that to our thinking do nothing but delay passage of any set of laws.
We heard a remark this morning that more than 15 per cent of the people were interested in anything the legislature does. Nearly everyone reads about it, but we doubt if but a comparatively small number is vitally interested.
However, the administration bill also known as the Wagstaff bill, has been voted down and the whole thing is about where it was before a session started. The trouble is time seemed to be over the mission to enforce and provide protection orders. Some of the members thought that Governor Sterling could pick capable men but at a good handshaker and back-slider could be elected to the office whether he had any qualifications or not. We do not know whether they were offering themselves as examples of the truth of an assertion or not.

First Pictures of the Lindberghs in Far North

Here are the first pictures of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh in the far north on their perilous flight to the Orient. Above you see the famous commander of the Atlantic standing on the port of his fleet mono plane at Churchill, on the western edge of Hudson Bay. Fascinated natives are assisting him prepare for the westward take-off while others watch from shore. Below is a close-up of Lindy and Anne climbing into their big plane. The pictures were flown to the United States.

SECOND MONDAY DRAWS RECORD ATTENDANCE

Ranger's Second Monday went off with big success today. According to J. E. Ames, ground manager, approximately 350 were present, and all of them brought stock, goats, sheep and hogs. One noticeable feature of the occasion was the better stock, especially mules and horses at the lot.
The hitching rack, and by the way the only one in Ranger, was lined from 9:30 a. m. to press time with mules and horses, both work mules and saddle horses.

RANGER WINS MATCH FROM PHIL-PE-CO CLUB

IS FIRST OIL RELIEF BILL OF SESSION

Action of House Makes the Passage Final As Senate Voted It.

AUSTIN, Aug. 10.—The Texas legislature today finally passed the first oil relief bill of the special session. The action came in the house which concurred by a vote of 112 to 20 in senate amendment to the Davis pipe line bill.
The action made passage of the bill final.
As approved, the bill required common carriers to take oil and gas ratably from wells and to make connections for wells asking them.
They are forbidden under severe penalty to accept oil which the railroad commission holds is produced in violation of its orders.
Representative Bailey W. Hardy of Breckenridge, sponsoring the senate amendment, in the house, told his fellow lawmakers that he believed the bill with its requirement of ratably taking would secure a healthy form of production.

COMPANY I HAS TEAR GAS ATTACK

By DOY A. LAWSON,
Corporal Company Clerk

On Aug. 6, Company I, 142nd Infantry, was put through its first tear gas attack without masks. The chemical warfare company of the regulars at Fort Sam Houston were in charge. (Everyone shed tears without embarrassment).
This probably does not sound experienced to anyone who has not experienced it but nevertheless it requires a lot of nerve to go through a gas attack of any kind. The Third Battalion, 142nd Infantry, executed this maneuver together and not a man in Company I failed to do exactly as he was commanded.
On the afternoon of Aug. 7, Company I went on formal guard mount. This is one of the most difficult formations of the entire camp. The company was highly commended for their efficiency in this maneuver. The property of the entire regiment was entrusted to them for 24 hours. The guard was called out to quell a riot between two companies, and as the marines would say, "the situation was well in hand" in a very short time.
There has been a rumor here that this camp would last for 30 days but there has not been any word to that effect. Governor Ross Sterling will review the bill before the session on a worse basis than at present.

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED TO URGE PASSAGE

Unanimously To Request Action.

At a joint meeting of the directors of the Ranger Chamber of it was voted unanimously to appoint a committee of three members to draft a telegram to members of the Texas senate urging that they do everything possible to have the Wagstaff bill reconsidered and defeat the Rawlings bill, offered to the senate as a substitute.

airport crowds," Sergeant Montana explained, "I decided to go horseback riding for a thrill. The horse they gave me was a high jumper.
He saw a fence and insisted on jumping it."
"I wasn't used to horseback flying and when the horse went up and over, I went over and landed here. Hereafter I'll stick to planes or carry a parachute."

Texas Cotton Crop Estimates Based On July Reports

AUSTIN, Aug. 10.—F. H. Whitaker, cotton statistician for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, said today the estimates of a 5-180,000 bale cotton crop in Texas was based on reports indicating the crop is 75 per cent of normal and will yield 155 pounds per acre.
The total yield was estimated from the area in cultivation July 1, less the 10-year average abandonment.
He said the condition figure of 75 per cent of normal is the highest reported in Texas since 1920, when the condition was near 77 per cent of normal. He said prospects are for a crop of from 81 to 85 per cent of the record 1926 production.

THEODORE DREISER GOES TO COURT. A common complaint for years against motion pictures has been: "They changed the story." In many cases the change made little or no difference. In others, the spirit, motivation, and meaning of a well-known novel, short story or play, was upset.

Theodore Dreiser, pugnacious author of some note and merit, sold to Paramount-Public screen rights on "An American Tragedy." The lengthy book was published several years ago with a gust of cheering about the Great American novel.

However, Dreiser holds his pride of authorship, and now is complaining that Paramount-Public has lost the spirit and motivation of his story in changing it to fit the mechanics of the screen. Recently he was refused a federal injunction to prohibit showing the screen version.

All this is water on the wheel of publicity. When "An American Tragedy" shows in here (no doubt it will) some will see it for entertainment, and more because it is the center of a controversy.

It is with no little surprise that this generation hears that the widespread study of the child and of intelligent parenthood had an impetus on the very eve of the '90s, for one does not usually associate with the women's clubs of that time so practical an interest.

Teachers, even in the '90s, were required to take courses in child study and found them helpful in managing their classes. Nevertheless, it seemed unnecessary in those days that parents should have scientific learning.

Today child training is a science. There are many opportunities for child study under trained direction, and more and more parents are seeing the wisdom of depending upon knowledge rather than upon instinct in rearing children.

The children of "trained parents" are said to be more self-reliant, better able to make their own decisions than those of the untrained. They are said to have enterprise and initiative and to be working better toward the limit of their capacity.

CRACKS IN THE DOME. BY RODNEY DUTCHER. WASHINGTON.—There is some question whether the present tariff has been discredited, justifiably or otherwise, in the minds of most people. But there is plenty of hot weather humor in the way the Republican and Democratic publicity machines use the issue to larrup each other day by day.

There is something more than faintly funny in the mere idea of trying to get us all steamed up about the tariff in this sweltering season. But the mixture of piety, bombast, heavy sarcasm, triumphant brag, self-righteousness and affected superciliousness which these boys throw into their daily bias hits all the varieties of comedy from the amusing to the utterly ridiculous.

Senator Oliver Cunningham of Abilene is taking an interest in the water-power question. He foresees that it will be an issue in the next state political campaign, and a certain issue in the national campaign.

the world. Our marriage was a mistake from the start. You can't make a marriage without love.

He turned, frantic, back to her room. She had left everything—her rings, her jewels, every trinket he had given her.

The girl walked for hours, shivering in the wind. She wore the oxford suit which remained from her wardrobe of the winter before.

She went by subway to Pennsylvania Station and there she took a train to a small city in Jersey.

She slept uneasily that night in the strange, narrow bed. Gone were the down comforts, the linen sheets, the bizarre tiled bath where hot water rushed from gilded spigots.

On a day two weeks after Van's death Clive opened the door of their suite with his latch key. He expected to find Liane stretched out on the couch with a book.

It was all right, he assured himself. She must have decided to go for a walk. She would be back directly. Through the door of the closet he could see her frocks hanging, fragile stuffs fragrant with the scent she always used.

When the doctor, summoned by Clive, arrived she had collapsed. "Just nerves," the genial man announced. He thought he was used to the vagaries of the idle society woman.

Clive held her hands, stroking them as though she had been a child. "Don't talk about it unless you'd rather," he said.

He frowned. "That's all over now, forget it." "No, it isn't. It was just as wicked as if I'd done it. I was bad, clean through. The nuns at the convent used to tell us that intent to sin is just as bad as the sin itself."

PARIS STYLES

United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS. At an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist is a title that may as well be applied to the Parisian milliner today as to the doctor of such portions of our anatomy. In the roadway of fashion the hat that has blocked traffic is the one that concerns the eye, ear, nose and throat. And not content with this, she has extended its influence further to cause a complete dress revolution.

Dipping over one eye, exposing one ear while completely covering the other, casting a shadow upon the nose at just the right angle, and sweeping a graceful plume across the throat—is the very special way in which the new hat rests upon a proud head and reveals the youthful curve of a white neck.

Opinions vary as to the life-time this little model will enjoy, but be it long or short, one thing is certain—while it does live it will live happily. There is not a person who has seen it who does not acclaim with admiration, "Cute!" "Darling!" "Adorable!" whether it is fitted to her particular style of beauty or not.

The power of suggestion is great and even though we push the thought of Eugénie hat for back in our minds, little fingerless lace mittens inevitably come to the fore and clasp the hands of a silk and lace parasol! Sleeves that puff at the elbow come in another unconscious thought wave while back of it we feel a mist of lace in rows and rows around a full soft skirt that gathers up and up toward the back.

DEEP PLOWING SUCCESS
SEMINOLE.—The best crops I have on my deep plowed land," A. G. Lawyer, living nine miles south of Loop, told R. F. McFarland, county agent, Sawyer first plowed 70 acres in the spring of 1930 at depths of from nine to 18 inches. The increased yield so pleased the farmer that he decided to plow an additional 70 acres during the winter.

Pretty Home Setting
is a Feature of Ceremony.
Before an altar in artistic arrangement of roses, golden glo and masses of other mid-summer blossoms, interwoven with long runners of fern flanked on either side with Boston ferns and other potted plants, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Miss Mildred Clemmer, charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Clemmer, became the bride of Jerry Lindsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey of Weatherford. The lovely ring ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents with the Rev. D. W. Nishek, pastor of the Church of Christ, officiating.

The bridesmaid, Miss Nevaie Brawder of Weatherford, niece of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. She was frocked in a model of light blue with eggshell accessories.

The bride was never more lovely in a navy blue ensemble trimmed in touches of fresh pink. The attractive bridal attire was offset with a shoulder corsage of "sweet-heart roses" and "forget-me-nots" with matching accessories of blending tones.

The groom was attended by Buren Clemmer, youngest brother of the bride, acting as best man.

The young couple is numbered among Ranger's most popular younger set, both having made Ranger their home for a number of years. Mr. Lindsey is an employe of the Galsion Hotel Barber shop and has acquired many friends through his delightful personality. If you like to make the most of salads during mid-summer, the custom of serving them "family style" has many advantages. Each member of the group to be served can make up his own combination to please his taste and you can introduce a wide variety of vegetables into your meals.

In summer salads, use a preponderance of crisp salad greens, and select the other foods with regard to the needs of the menu and the taste of the family and guests. In addition of an unusual green, a combination of the ordinary lettuce and greens will do much to add interest to the old standby.

In serving these family-style salads, make them as colorful and as varied as possible. Use your silver or your fancy pottery, china or glass serving dishes no matter what shape they may be.

Arranging the Dish
Arrange the vegetables in neat rows or in separate piles using the rims to mark the division lines. For instance, in the center of a large, round, fat dish place a mound of cottage cheese. From this, build out like the spokes of a wheel, four or five lines of shredded leaf lettuce; between each place place piles of stewed okra and put a border of sliced cucumbers around the whole. The dressing may be blended with the lettuce or served separately.

Another excellent combination is a platter of shredded cabbage, sliced okra, cucumber fingers and tomato halves.

Several very palatable salad combinations may be selected on an arrangement of a mound of bean sprouts arranged by a border of head lettuce leaves—the leaves holding mounds of best marbles and cubes of avocado, in alternating rotation.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Seedless white grapes, cereal, cooked with dates, cream, oven toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Main dish macaroni salad, brown bread and butter sandwiches, honey ball melon filled with mint sherbet, milk, tea.
DINNER: Shoulder of veal braised with vegetables, salad of shredded cabbage-okra-cucumber and tomato, blueberry bread pudding, milk, coffee.

French artichokes arranged with French endive, curly escarole and sliced tomatoes are excellent served with mayonnaise.

Other Suggestions
A main dish combination that is very satisfactory uses cold cooked steak, cubed and flaked fish on a bed of chickory.

For a macaroni salad combine cooked macaroni with mayonnaise and arrange it in the center of a deep platter. Sprinkle with grated hard cheese and surround with a border of quartered tomatoes, shredded green pepper and diced celery. Stuffed green or ripe olives may be added if wanted.

A salad of stuffed hard cooked eggs, spinach mounds, celery and alternating slices of cucumber and onions allows each person to make the choice that satisfies his own appetite and taste.

You can, of course, use any combination of vegetable you may have at hand. It's a good idea when possible to choose vegetables of contrasting color and arrange them with this in mind.
