

Cotton Acreage Law Test Case Before Court

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

Last Sunday night the pastors of Ranger started a movement that promises to prove popular with both ministers and the laity of the city.

Each of the six Protestant churches delivered a sermon from the pulpit of some brother preacher, addressing the congregation of some other church than his own. This practice is to be repeated every two months until each pastor has preached from the pulpit of all the churches in the city.

Rev. Gid J. Bryan, pastor of the First Methodist church, preached from the First Baptist church, and the Rev. W. H. Thomas of the First Baptist church appeared before the First Christian congregation.

Rev. H. H. Stephens of the Central Baptist church addressed the members of the First Methodist church, Rev. D. W. Nichol of the Church of Christ talked before the Presbyterian congregation; Rev. L. B. Gray of the Presbyterian church delivered his sermon at the Central Baptist church, and Rev. H. B. Johnson of the First Christian church filled the pulpit at the Church of Christ.

This procedure is to be repeated in two months and in this way the congregation of each church will be able to hear the pastor of each church in the city before the year is over. Both the pastors and the members of the church are enthusiastic over the arrangement.

Several days ago we ran an article in which a paper came where in Minnesota, telling about some "fly-by-night" advertising promoters who, by working about three hours in the town, had left with a large profit on so-called advertising that was of no benefit to anyone, except the promoters of the scheme.

J. E. Lewis, vice president and general manager of the Texas Electric Service company, thought so well of the article that he clipped it from our paper and sent it around to several of the men in his company with the following comment:

"This article is absolutely right and I want you to read this over and pass it on to the next person you know, above and beyond that, and tell those birds about their round asking for business. Find out where they do business and who is vouching for them and what becomes of the money before you give them any."

The main objection to these advertising schemes that are foisted in the public at times is that they use absolutely no advertising value, the money spent on them is wasted, all the money goes to some tinquent who is preying on an unsuspecting public and who takes one-tenth of the money is ever left in town. Outside of that and the fact that it is classed as a "sin" racket, the scheme is so good because it provides money for the one working it up. However, if the merchant wants to take donations toward the support of anyone, they might do much better by giving the money to someone in their home city, because that is where the money is needed.

As this is a presidential election year and all state and county offices will be filled by the voters in several important amendments to the constitution will be offered for consideration, everyone who can possibly do so should use their poll taxes in order to give a voice in the government of their state, the nation and the world.

Speaking of the Weather--

by Charles Fitzhugh Tolman of the U.S. Weather Bureau
WRITTEN EXCLUSIVELY FOR NEWS SERVICE
How Far Upward Does the Air Extend? That's One Thing Science Still Is Unable to Establish Definitely.

Although nearly the whole surface of the globe, including both poles, has now been reached by explorers, there are still three terrestrial regions in which a great level of exploring remains to be done. One of these is the interior of the globe, another the bottom of the ocean, and a third the upper levels of the atmosphere.

The greatest distance any human being has yet been able to reach in three or a half mile above the earth's surface is less than 10 miles, and was less than eight miles before Professor Piccard made his remarkable ascent last May.

The atmosphere is, however, supposed to extend upward some 70,000 miles—nobody knows just how far. Through the greater part of its vertical extent it contains very little matter.

Air, like all gases, is highly compressible. The lowest part of the atmosphere, pressed down from above, is relatively dense.

With increased altitude the density falls off so rapidly that at a height of three and a half miles the air is only about half as dense as at sea level. Above about five miles it is too rare for breathing; hence aerial travelers who go higher must carry a supply of oxygen with them.

At the 50-mile level the atmosphere is, according to calculation, less than one 75-thousandth as dense as at sea level, and at the 300-mile level, about one two-millionth as dense.

This is a pretty good vacuum, though far better are produced now in certain industrial operations. Even at an altitude of 2000 miles a well-known English authority, Dr. J. H. Jeans, calculates that there are still something like 300,000 molecules at atmospheric pressure per cubic centimeter as compared with 30,000,000,000,000,000 in the same volume of air near the earth's surface.

At the top of the stratosphere, the thermometer reads 60 to 70 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, in middle latitudes, and much lower over the equatorial regions. In the stratosphere there is no such vertical change in temperature as that, for example, of the troposphere, where temperature measurements have been made.

It was promptly objected by the state and Judge Howard Soukman ruled the question out so that Lewkowitz had no opportunity to hint more broadly at what he meant.

Lewkowitz's question was long and involved but in effect was: "If you sit in this trial as a juror and evidence is produced casting a reasonable amount of suspicion on someone else, would you acquit this defendant?"

Power In Advertising

Did you ever stop to think that a newspaper as an advertising medium possesses many outstanding advantages?

Newspaper advertising reaches nearly everyone every day; almost everyone reads a newspaper. It is the only publication immediately associated with the life of a community.

The newspaper is the most eagerly sought piece of literature going into the home. It has more intimacy than any other factor in one's daily contact.

Newspaper advertising produces immediate action; speed distinguishes a newspaper's birth, life and function.

Newspaper advertising tells us where to buy; it never lets a prospect get caught. It insures consumer's goodwill; long sales efforts are not required to sell the consumer on a product advertised in newspapers.

Newspaper advertising is timely and permits the advertiser to tie his copy up with current news events. It enables the advertiser to enter any specific area and secure the amount of coverage that he needs.

Newspaper advertising is flexible; a campaign can be started overnight and can be stopped at a moment's notice.

Newspaper copy can be written to give a complete sales presentation of the product, or it can be written with the idea of trade name establishment.

A newspaper is the closest point of contact to the actual sale of merchandise; the only thing that will approach it is a counter display or a window display.

People of the United States pay one million dollars a day to get their newspaper.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 WASHINGTON.—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is generally expected to save certain threatened banks, railroads and other corporations whose collapse would be likely to plunge the country deeper into depression.

Whether by causing a release of frozen credits and hoarded funds, it will actually give the general situation the fillip required to place the bottom of the slump definitely behind it is a matter of debate between the optimists and the pessimists. There seems to be a real chance that it may.

Throwing the government into business as it never was before, the administration and Congress have adopted the most drastic of several measures yet used to meet the crisis. Although designed for both its psychological and material effect as were the $100,000,000 tax reduction, the moratorium and the Hoover-sponsored National Credit Corporation—none of which halted, even if they retarded, the downward trend—it has greater possibilities than any of them.

It is called a two-billion dollar corporation because it will have $200,000,000 from the treasury for emergency loans to banks, railroads, insurance companies and other corporations and may raise $1,500,000,000 more for the same purpose by issuing its own bonds or securities.

Many banks, Congress found, were not in a position to liquidate their holdings or take care of their depositors. Last year 229 banks failed, with deposits of $1,734,096,190 on which it is believed the average depositor's loss will be about 30 per cent. Surviving banks threatened by frozen assets may now turn to the corporation for loans.

The corporation will thus serve as a place of refuge and, in a sense, as a guarantee of deposits. The fact that it has stop-gap money available is expected to give the business and credit structure, as well as depositors, the confidence and a sturdy nerve. No one expects that the whole of the two billions will ever be borrowed, but the measure's sponsors think it should peg the deflation process and end most of the uncertainty about how much worse things may get in certain directions.

RAILROADS have had serious difficulty in financing themselves since the security market went tobogganing and their earnings sank under the general business decline. They have $70,000,000 in obligations maturing in the first quarter of this year and in the six months ending with April will have required from $55,000,000 to $115,000,000 above their available cash and receipts in sight. Some roads have been faced with obvious disaster, but now, when they can't get loans from banking channels or the public they can depend on the federal government. The theory is that the new bulwark will inspire confidence in new railroad refinancing so that the roads can get most of the needed money elsewhere.

Insurance companies have had to sell securities at a loss in order to meet unprecedented demands for loans to policyholders and their position will likewise be strengthened, although it has not been as serious as that in which certain banks and railroads have found themselves.

Credit, vitally essential to maintenance of business enterprise, has been dried up and a dominant factor, experts agree, has been fear. "Not the weak fearing the strong, but the strong fearing the weak," according to Governor Eugene Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board. Strong banks fear the effects of failure of weak banks and restrict credit. If that fear can be dispelled by federal support of the weaker banks a return to normal credit operations becomes likely. A strengthened credit structure and increased confidence, it is hoped, will be accompanied by a return to circulation of money now hoarded.

Representative Dewey Young of Wellington has been a prospective candidate for state senator, in case of a decision by Senator Clint C. Small that Small would not offer for re-election, according to capitol corridor comment. It was not believed that Young likely would oppose Senator Small in case the senator seeks another term in the same office.

Former Representative Hill of Shamrock has been regarded as a tentative candidate for the house, should Representative Young offer for the senate.

The next secretary of the highway commission will have, in addition to the heavy load of duties which John F. Wallace, last in the place, carried, numerous new duties as well, according to tentative plans of the commission.

The place was under discussion at this week's highway commission meeting, though finding just the right man for the place likely was to require some time.

The secretary is the shock absorber of the department. He meets and deals with the delegations and the daily run of visitors, and with county people who want to know just what was done and why they didn't get their road.

Nature of the supplemental duties to be laid upon the secretary has not been detailed, and probably not fully decided upon.

Chief Justice C. M. Cureton of supreme court, who was attorney general of Texas when the old Red River boundary litigation with Oklahoma was started, has prepared a certificate to the governor of his disqualification, for that reason, to sit in the Wortman vs. Walker, land commissioner, case on appeal before the final court.

With a heavy volume of state fee criminal cases, and numerous big and little state civil cases in the three district courts of Travis county, the new report of Judge P. A. Martin, Wichita Falls, chairman of a section of the civil judicial council which has compiled statistics of the number of cases tried by each district court in Texas, may serve a purpose. District Judge J. D. Moore of Austin is presiding judge of the third judicial administrative district. As such, he has authority under the administrative district law, of calling any one of the 14 trial judges in the district outside of Austin to the capital city to try any case any time that does not conflict with settings in the other district.

That may help solve the congestion of the dockets due to the volume of state business.

The law applies equally to transfers from any one district to any other as well as to Austin.

Ranger Rotary Club Hears of Gasoline Plants

Harry Wheelon, who had charge of the program of the Ranger Rotary club at the regular weekly meeting today, presented a very interesting and instructive paper on the eastland gasoline industry in Eastland county.

The paper gave some interesting facts and statistics on the eastland gasoline business in this part of the country and brought out the importance of the industry to the county as a whole.

C. E. May, chairman of the citizens' school tax committee, made a report on the progress being made by that committee.

H. C. Anderson, who is hostmaster for the joint banquet of the Ranger Retail Merchants association and the Chamber of Commerce, made a report on the progress that has been made in securing speakers at making arrangements for the banquet of Jan. 28.

John Thurman reported to the members the meeting of the state highway commission at Austin last Monday at which a large delegation from towns along the state highway No. 1 were present to present the petitions for a cut-off between Ranger and Weatherford.

The next meeting of the club will be entertained by a program that is to be furnished by John Thurman, with "The City of Ranger" as a subject.

Ohio Cheerful Over Outlook

CINCINNATI, O.—Optimistic predictions for business during 1932 were made by leading Cincinnati business men in answer to a newspaper questionnaire.

The majority felt that business would gradually be stimulated to greater activity during the year, and that by the end of 1932 the nation would have recovered to a large extent from its economic dilemma.

A summary of the opinions included the following predictions:

General business must balance its budget and adjust itself to present conditions. If this is done, speedy recovery will come during 1932.

Present conditions will not get any worse, and the latter part of 1932 will witness a decided upswing in most lines of business.

Business will not rally until a tariff revision is made. Congress must recognize the facts and busy itself with constructive relief measures.

The tide of affairs is now at a low ebb and 1932 should see progressively improved conditions.

Business men will seek methods to eliminate waste and foolishness, and financial conditions will improve.

Tea, Coffee Bar Worrying Turks

ISTANBUL, Turkey.—Restriction of tea imports for the first three months of the new year, and of coffee below the requirements of the population, is producing an extraordinary situation.

Coffee to the Turk is what beer is to the British workingman, and "vin blanc" to the Frenchman. He drinks at least 20 cups a day.

But there is little or no coffee in Turkey now, so restaurant keepers are giving their patrons dried figs, almonds and raisins, instead.

Tendency Shown To Outdoor Life

HARRISBURG, Pa.—A greater tendency of Pennsylvanians to spend time in "the great outdoors" is noted by officials of the Pennsylvania department of forests and waters, according to Deputy Secretary John W. Keller.

He reported that more than 1,500,000 persons visited the state's 1,500,000 acres of woodland during 1931. Of these, 250,000 were hunters, and 100,000 fishermen, he said.

DENMARK HONORS BRAITING.

STOCKHOLM.—Denmark has honored the memory of the late Hjalmar Branting, Sweden's first socialist premier, and a delegate to the League of Nations, by naming a square in Copenhagen "Hjalmar Branting Place."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

RATIONALIZED WORK IS AID TO INDUSTRIES

GENEVA.—The international labor bureau has completed a world-wide investigation into results obtained by rationalization of industry.

A few of the outstanding points established are:

As a result of the selection of workers, the latter's output has been increased from 16 to 40 per cent.

The training of workers has made it possible for the latter to increase their production from 27 to 200 per cent.

The chain work system has achieved results of from 40 to 260 per cent.

Movement Aids.
 The rationalization of movements has permitted an increase in output from 20 to 700 per cent. Incentive forms of remuneration have produced increased results of 15 to 300 per cent.

Improvement in the material conditions of manufacture has resulted in a 60 per cent increase in production.

As a result of the various rationalization methods, production in Germany from 1925 to 1928 increased from 16 to 100 per cent.

Austria Gets Increase.
 In Austria there was an increase from 27 to 78 per cent.

In the United States, in six years the average output per worker in agriculture, mining, manufacturing and railroads, increased 27 per cent.

In Great Britain the increase in a group of 10 industries from 1924 to 1930 was 11 per cent, while at the same time the number of workers employed decreased 8 per cent. The investigation demonstrated

This column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

To quote from the Dynamo column of the Breckenridge American, "State newspapers of this morning indicate the highway battle flag has been definitely hoisted—and may the best man win."

I don't like the verb "hoisted." I have often been told that it is not a good word. . . that the verb should be "hoist" in all tenses. And the column follows up with a bunch of tripe about the poor road tax payers. . . it's pitiful. And that "much of Texas' choicest scenic beauty would be isolated."

From what?

By the thoughtfulness of Dr. Tanner I was a guest at the banquet of the Eastland County Medical association last evening. And 'twas indeed a sumptuous feed. Unusual though it was, I was given the end seat at the table where I could get a free swing with both elbows, without listening to protesting neighbors. Usually I get a seat right next to some guy who eats with his left hand and we have to take turn about with our respective elbows in the other's ribs.

Those in speaking distance were Dr. Van De Venter, Dr. Graham of Cisco, Dr. Carter and Dr. Shackelford of Ranger. Carter and Shack were each telling the other how he was curing himself on account of being afraid to go to a doctor. Graham was popping off about what a great flute player he used to be. Van De Venter was just plain popping off. I tried to be a good listener.

Thanks to the program committee there were no speeches during the meal with the exception of those little impromptu tet-a-tete conversations that naturally arise at a meeting of that kind.

But I did enjoy the free feed. And seeing Slats Lauderdale.

Maybe a hard-boiled old soak like me oughtn't to let things get under his hide, but I was embarrassed this morning beyond my own ability to explain it. I dropped into the 91st district court and here was a mighty fine looking young man and a lady, apparently his wife, and a beautiful little girl about 4 or 5 years old. And I could see that they had some sort of business there.

You could have knocked me over with a feather when the judge proceeded to open a case and Grady Owen read an indictment to the young fellow. . . and the poor kid didn't even have an attorney there to look wise while he pleaded guilty.

And that little 5-year-old baby was looking all around and smiling at the sheriff and at me. . . of course, she didn't know what it was all about. And it was a duty imposed upon the judge by law to sentence the young man to a term in the penitentiary. It was the sheriff's duty to take him and lock him up. The lady with him must have felt it was her duty to stand by him through thick and thin. Nobody present looked particularly worried nor sad and not a tear was shed. But I thought it was a hell shed of a note and was embarrassed.

This will acknowledge the receipt of a note of thanks from the Missionary Society of the Methodist church for whatever publicity we've given them in the past year. They're welcome. We'll try to do even a better job of it the present year.

Divorce Fees Will Build New Jail
By United Press.
RENO, Nev.—Whether a divorce costs $50 or $500 here, the county law collector enough money from decrees granted during 1931 to contemplate building of a new addition to the courthouse, as well as a new county jail.
A "Bridge of Sighs" to connect the second floor of the court house with the second floor of the proposed new jail would also be constructed.
Jail facilities have been crowded in the old Washoe county jail building, adjoining the courthouse in the rear. Equipment, installed many years ago, is also out of date and in poor condition, it is said.
Court conditions in the main building also are crowded, with additional court rooms and offices for court officials required.
It was thought at first that a new jail might be constructed on top of the present courthouse, but architects disapproved the plan. The building would not support such a heavy addition.

Pellagra Dates Back To Days Of Civil War
By United Press.
WASHINGTON—Knowledge of the existence in the United States of pellagra dates as far back as 1864, the United States Public Service reports.
It was long thought that cases of this dietary deficiency disease first were reported after the turn of the century, but certain studies recently inaugurated by the health service have revealed unique historical evidence concerning pellagra.
In 1864, a physician in New York and another in Massachusetts each reported a case of pellagra. Another New York physician reported cases in 1882 and 1902.
Most reports, however, have come from the South, where Negroes and poor whites, feeding four pounds, 13 ounces, including chiefly on corn pone, poorly cook-

THREE KINDS OF LOVE
KAY | CLEAVER STRAHAN
BEGINS HERE TODAY
Ann and Cecily Fenwick have for years supported themselves, their younger sister, Mary-Frances, and their grandparents known as "Rosalie" and "Grand." Because of this financial responsibility, Ann, who is 28, is unable to marry Phil Ecrody, young lawyer whose office she has been engaged for eight years. Cecily, 22, loves Barry McKeel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name their wedding date for the same reason.
Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl DeArmount, vaudeville actor, and meets him secretly. He tries to persuade her to become his stage partner.
Ann and Phil quarrel when she hears Letty King, who works in Phil's office building, address him with endearments. Ann tries to forget Phil by going around with Kenneth Smith, rich and attentive. Cecily is disturbed when she learns Barry has left town without telling her about it.
Mary-Frances fails in an examination and meets De Armount. Again he urges her to become his stage partner.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVII
"But, Earl," breathed Mary-Frances, "you don't honestly and truly think that I—that we—"
"Think? Say, I do better'n think. I know—see? You've heard the crack, maybe, about opportunity knocking once on the door? Well, it's knocking right now, and it's knocking hard. Offering us fame and fortune on a silver platter. Will you take it? Naw—you want to stick here and go to a lousy camp with a bunch of kid girls—"
"Why, Earl DeArmount! I don't either."
"—and just moulder away, burying your beauty under a bushel and, like you said, misunderstood and drab and all. Well, all I got to say is, snap out of it. Snap out of it—see? I got to be heating it. I've waited around here more'n a month on your account. It's eating into my capital. I can't stick around any longer—see? Snap out of it, Frankie. That's my last word."
"Well—" demurred Mary-Frances.
Earl repeated masterfully, "Snap out of it."
"I was just wondering," said Mary-Frances, "what my family would do when they found out I'd gone."
"Do? Say, listen now, hon. Try and be sensible. In the first place, what can they do? Nothing—absolutely nothing. And from what you tell me I don't know as they'd eve—try to do much. And in the second place, if I start in to get you out of here and away from your family's interference and all, I'll do it—see? Now, listen, hun. After supper tonight you tell your folks that you're going over to stay all night with your chum again—see? And then you put what you'll need in a suitcase and sneak out of the house, and I'll meet you—well, say down about service dispelled theories that pellagra was communicable and due to a bacillus. By experiments with human "guinea pigs" in Mississippi and South Carolina, Goldberger determined that pellagra was entirely of dietary origin. It is most prevalent among the poor dirt farmers of the South, and in years of depression, such as 1907, and again this year, it manifests itself more strongly than usual.
LEIGH, Lancashire, Engl.—A cow slaughtered by a butcher here contained 18 articles, weighing 15½ long tomorrow. Wednesday, sometime, and we'll be left

Earl softened. Earl melted. Earl said, "Sweetie! Honest, I'll have to ask you to excuse me—the way I talked just now. I should of known better. Oh, you little sweeties you! You mean you'll go, straight goods and no fooling, tomorrow?"
Mary-Frances, her chin in her palm, sighed a long sigh and nodded. "As you say, there isn't so much for me to stay here for."
"Little sweet baby! That's what you are. Little sweet baby! But, say, listen, hon—er—there's just one little thing maybe we'd better kind of get straight—see? I wouldn't want you to go into this with your eyes shut nor anything. About Wednesday—being married and all. I thought I kinda explained to you, baby, how I wasn't fixed to get married right off—not for a few months."
"I know," said Mary-Frances. "But, after all, beloved, we're eloping. Eloping and marrying really amount to just the same thing, I think. I'd much rather elope on Wednesday."
Earl puffed his cigar, inhaled deeply, tipped back his head, poked out his lower lip, blew the smoke upwards, and watched it float and waft and vanish into nothing.
"Wednesday," Mary-Frances reminded him, "is the best day of all."
He rubbed his cigar into the ash tray. "Frankie," he said, "if the day ever comes when I don't treat you right—square, see—straight, I hope I get mine. I mean, I won't be the man I think I am, and I hope to get mine. Now, listen, baby, I'm crazy about you—"

FUTURE OF AMERICA DEPENDS ON PROPER CHILD CARE DURING PRESENT DEPRESSION, NOTED HEALTH EXPERT WARNS NATION

They are the men and women of tomorrow—the hope of America. They look to us. In our keeping lies their future. Some day they must carry the burdens of our nation. Will they enter manhood and womanhood strong and virile and well equipped for the great task that lies ahead—or will they face life with the handicap of weakness due to improper or insufficient nutrition and care during childhood? Can we betray their childish trust, their simple faith?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of six daily articles on the proper care and nutrition of children, published by this newspaper in co-operation with the American Child Health Association. This is a grave problem in many families where a dollar must go further now than ever before.

BY AIDA DE ACOSTA BRECKINRIDGE
 American Child Health Association
 Written Especially for NEA Service

Nobody lives to himself these days. Each one of us is more acutely conscious than formerly of our responsibility for our neighbor. This unselfish conscience is one of the really fine things that the so-called depression has produced. We feel our responsibility about children especially.

For 10 years after the present hard times are forgotten, thousands of today's childrer will still be suffering from the depression, unless we protect them now.

Little tots and young boys and girls today are going without clothing and warm rooms and adequate food. The last is most important of all.

There has been awakened among most of us, then, a keener consciousness of the way our neighbors live, and a desire not only to share with others, but so far as we can, to give others the tools which will enable them to do as much for themselves as possible.

The American Child Health Association, therefore, has undertaken, first, to get for fathers and mothers the most graceful and authentic information about feeding children on small budgets; second, to send out that information to families all over the country.

Our initial step was to get the expert opinion of a specialist familiar with the nutrition needs of the growing child. We secured from Dr. Henry C. Sherman of Columbia University, a clear statement to guide those who are advising families on what foods can be safely omitted when funds get lower, and what foods should be retained in the child's diet when a choice must be made of the barest essentials. Familiar with the elements which build bone and muscle best, Dr. Sherman told us in his article on "Emergency Nutrition" when kinds of food should be given normally to the growing child, which foods should be emphasized in an emergency, and which foods should be selected as a last resort.

Dr. Sherman points out that variety is not necessary, provided the child's diet contains the correct building foods. To secure these the food budget may be divided into fifths: One-fifth for milk and milk

Eastland County Federation FWC Opens 1932 Season

The Eastland County Federation of Texas Federation of Women's Clubs met in the community clubhouse, Eastland, Texas, on Saturday, Jan. 16, for an all-day session. Registration presided over by Mrs. J. C. Patterson showed some 65 to 70 in attendance. This was considered a gratifying acceptance of invitation of Better Homes in America committee for Eastland, hostess for the day, to the federation. The inclement weather prevented a larger attendance from surrounding towns, and this was deeply regretted by hostess body. The clubhouse was bright with many bouquets of roses and artistic groups of potted plants arranged by P. L. Parker, florist.

A comfortable temporary dressing room was provided for wraps, and homages for this feature, Mrs. J. L. Cottingham and Miss Overton, appreciated the comfort of customer loaned for the use of guests by Wolfe's. Delightful music throughout the morning recreational hour and luncheon period was provided by Mrs. F. O. Hunter, Miss McCannies, Miss Loraine Taylor and Mrs. A. F. Taylor. During interludes, fine Victrola music was provided by Harner's machine.

The forenoon session was opened informally by the president, Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, who introduced a number of demonstration pastimes modeled on the school of Dr. Jackson of New York. School of Recreation, who conducted classes in Eastland at Connelley hotel short time since. In connection with these activities the president introduced the subject of the home work now so much in vogue for needlewomen, the making of rags and unusual quilts. Several of these were on display, properties of federation women from over the county, and the district chairman, Mrs. W. F. C. Mrs. W. E. Staller, of Eastland, Folk songs were led by Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Grady Pipkin and special numbers introduced by president, were from the music book issued by Better Homes bureau. "Morning Comes Early" and "Paripoints." Mrs. Grady Pipkin gave a charming atmosphere to the quilting features by singing the old song, "Aunt Dina's Quilting Party," joined in the chorus by entire group.

From 12:30 to 1:30 the hostess committee served a delicious luncheon of salads, sandwiches, nut cakes, stuffed olives, wafers and tea with lemon. The tea table was centered with a landscape of willow houses and trees carrying out Better Homes ideas. The silver tea services were provided over by Meses. W. T. Root and E. C. Satterwhite, and the salad trays by Meses. W. E. Staller and P. B. Bittle. Assisting, Meses. C. U. Connelley, McGlamery, A. J. Campbell, Haley, Little, Meses. E. R. Townsend assisted the hostesses in the clubhouse and Mrs. W. F. C. Mrs. W. E. Staller, F. O. Hunter, during luncheon hour. The tea room was most attractive in green garden furniture and colors carried out in other furnishings of flowers and foliage.

After luncheon, informal procedure re-opened by the president, Mrs. Perkins, brought greetings from Mrs. W. K. Jackson, chairman of Eastland County Better Homes committee. The speaker developed the theme of co-operation and stressed the Better Homes teachings, that of one person being dependent in a measure upon another for sympathy, success, happiness, terminating a brief talk introducing Mrs. Perkins, as the

Whoopee Parties Lure Brazilians

By United Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil.—A Brazilian newspaper has opened an editorial bombardment on American movies, declaring that whoopee scenes have turned Brazilian youth from soft drink to the more potent cocktails.

The Jornal do Comercio complains about the younger generation of Brazilians and blames the American movie for influencing them in the wrong way.

The statement is made that the young set has abandoned its tea cups for the cocktail glass. The newspaper condemns parents, whom it charges with accepting a cocktail rather than being termed a "jacaranda," which is Brazilian slang for a relic of the past.

Cecily did not really push him. She took hold of his shoulders and sort of revolved him away from the door, and shoved a little—only a trifle—so that she could have room to open the door and go through it.

The males were clapping down the porch steps. Ann was leaning over the upstairs railing before Grand thought of falling—sinking would be a more pertinent word—with one groan and two pitiful moans to the floor.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA
 Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)
