Consul Urges Destroyers Be Sent To Nanking

ING THRU KNOTHOLE BILL MAYES

At least one man in this city who does not approve of the present situation and does not approve of our writings to any great extent is necessary to write to the editor. (That rustling sound is the sound of the pen of one of the readers who do not approve of us or what we are writing all hot and bothered about the situation in Shanghai because we are referring to it.)

Reason this man does not approve of our writings to any great extent is that sometimes we jump on him for something and he should do us in like we should do to people are, how important it is to the city and country whether they deserve to have them or not. Let them by making a bunk about them.

Those with whom we have written, have, without exception, been broadminded enough to fall out with us over a matter of a controversy and have fallen out with us over a matter of a controversy and have fallen out with us over a matter of a controversy.

These who want to pay a poll tax should do so as early Sunday morning as possible because if they wait until the night they will have to pay their poll taxes, will have to pay their poll taxes, will have to pay their poll taxes.

All along the road, so Garner has stopped to give him a ride, and getting out and opening his door to help him in the car.

Bill Dorsey, manager of the Paramount hotel, Ranger, opened a modern and up-to-date cafe on North Austin street.

Dr. Blackwell said his plans call for expert instruction in football, basketball and baseball and that he is now negotiating for the services of some of the country's outstanding coaching figures.

U. S. ACTS TO AID CITIZENS IN SHANGHAI

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The United States acted swiftly today to protect American interests in beleaguered China.

It joined with Great Britain in a protest to Japan against Japan's attack on Shanghai.

The navy department ordered the Asiatic fleet to stand ready at Manila for orders, "should they be necessary," to proceed to China and remove American citizens from the danger zone.

Admiral William V. Pratt made it clear that the order to Rear Admiral Taylor, commanding the Asiatic fleet and now at Manila, was to have "every ship in the Asiatic fleet" ready to "offer protection to or evacuation of American citizens."

Pratt's orders to the Asiatic fleet were announced almost simultaneously with the announcement of the state department.

A similar announcement was made, also, by T. L. Cooper, county tax collector, who stated that his office would remain open until 10 o'clock in order that those who have not already done so may obtain car licenses and pay poll taxes.

Alberta Johnson, Ranger, who was found guilty of the murder of Eula May Armstrong by the jury in the 91st district court Friday and given a suspended sentence of three years.

Hon. George L. Davenport before the Senate tried to caution her that the sentence was suspended only on condition of her good behavior during the time and that if she became involved in further trouble she would have to serve the time in the penitentiary.

U. S. Envoy To China

Nelson T. Johnson, above, United States minister to China, is one of the principal figures in the delicate situation arising out of Japan's decision to invade Shanghai.

The United States marines seized nine planeloads of Japanese for firing bullets into the Chinese over the heads of American sentries.

The armistice affected by American and British consuls with the concurrence of the Japanese and Chinese military, was still technically in effect and the consuls were striving to get a better peace, but the sniping on Friday night had left among the combatants a spirit hardly compatible with a truce.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee today described an economic boycott as a step toward war.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Lieut. E. C. Rosendahl of Cleburne, Texas, commander of the Akron, declared before the House naval committee the Akron is the "best rigid aircraft ever constructed."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Secretary of War Hurley today protested to Speaker John Garner against plans of the house appropriations committee to reduce the personnel of the army.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—A full-fledged blizzard, the season's first, plunged temperatures below zero in the middle west today and taxed relief agencies.

FRESH SIGNS OF WAR SEEN IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Jan. 30.—Foreign defense of Shanghai's international settlement increased today as fresh signs of warfare loomed in the great eastern metropolis.

A proclamation Saturday by the Nanking government of a policy of "armed opposition" to the Japanese occupation, coupled with a call to arms by General Chiang Kai-Shek added to the ominous potentialities of the situation.

Shortly before midnight the city was quiet but tense. Japanese snarled under a retreat forced upon them by a Chinese counter-attack and the Chinese themselves were reported massing outside the international settlement to avenge themselves further on the invaders.

The American, British and Italian forces will augment the present forces of foreign troops as protection to the various nationalities represented there.

DR. TANNER AGREES

Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, in answering an editorial which appeared in a recent issue of the Cisco Daily News, gives some of his views that are as apt in Eastland and Ranger as they are in Cisco or in any other part of the country.

"A good market for what is raised in their trade area is a crying need in Eastland and Ranger as well as Cisco," declares Dr. Tanner. "Last year we thought we had something like this started here in Eastland, even got $3,000 paid in the bank in cash to start a marketing association. But the bank closed."

"In addition to what you say about trading out of town there is this fact that is often lost sight of. Every once in a while some real bright (?) talker speaks before the Lions or Rotarians and tells of the evils of buying out of town. Well, this rolls off the men like water off a duck, for when you get right down to brass tacks it is the women who do the buying, and they are discriminating buyers, you may believe."

"If they go into a store and find indifferent clerks and do not find what they want at a proper price, they shop till they find it even if they go out of town to do it."

"It takes an up-to-date merchant to buy what he knows his customers want and then buy it so he can sell at a price to compete with his neighbors, and at the same time train his clerks to be courteous and obliging to all customers, no matter how they are dressed."

"A ready market for everything that is raised in this county is a goal we all ought to strive for and I am pleased to see you present it in such a forceful manner to your readers."

JESSE JONES NAMED ON FEDERAL AID BOARD

President Hoover named Jesse H. Jones of Texas a member of the two billion dollar aid board. He named Harvey C. Couch of Arkansas a member. Senator Joseph T. Robinson is a minority leader in the upper branch. John N. Garner of Texas is the speaker of the house. It is said that in recognition of these two distinguished Southwestern Democrats, Jones and Couch were given winning tickets in the contest for place. Couch is the head of many important public utilities in Arkansas and is said to be largely interested in other industries. Jesse Jones name, is almost a household word in Texas and in the nation as well. Jones and Couch are Democrats. A third Democrat probably will be named in a very short time.

General Charles G. Dawes is the president of the board. Other directors are Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, Secretary Andrew W. Mellon and Paul Bestor, farm loan board commissioner.

Jesse H. Jones is one of the leading bankers of the Southwest. He is owner and publisher of the Houston Chronicle. He is the owner of five hotels in Houston and the tallest office building in the South and has large interests in Dallas, Fort Worth and other Texas cities, as well as in the City of New York. He has been especially active in Democratic politics in state and nation, has held high position in the national councils of the party, and is largely responsible for the coming of the national convention in 1928 to his home city. A native of Tennessee, he came to Texas after his college days were over and has mounted every rung of the ladder under Texas skies. Is Texas in the picture? Well, go ask the people who read the newspapers and do a little thinking as well as a lot of reading.

This column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

Frank Williams, manager of the gas company, was called to the office Saturday morning. He asked me to say that he would appreciate the finder either returning it to him or else coming around and buying the meter at a reasonable discount. It was a brown meter with four fingers and a thumb and by itself it won't do anybody much good unless the finder has his right hand cut off.

Frank and I drove over to Cisco to the bank Saturday morning. Sure was a big gang of folks lined up there paying their poll tax. We didn't see a candidate. Tub Wilson was paying his. I decided that the only way Eastland county folks could be gotten together on anything was to have about five leaders for them to follow and let them all go in different directions.

Everywhere I've been today, people are talking about the possibilities of a war. Genevieve Lyon is scared to death that somebody is going to get her at the Chinese and slip up and kill her little Pekinese dog, Ching. That would be a pity.

Rode from Ranger to Eastland Friday afternoon with Bert McGinnery. We talked about the eccentricities of the human race and the uncertainty of a horse race and about how thankful Bert is he doesn't have to make a political race for his office this year. So many people want so many different things that it's impossible to make campaign promises consistent with themselves. That's bad.

Interesting people I've talked to recently include Jim Deck. One can never tell if Jim is lying or telling the truth. He related to me the story of a drive from Los Angeles to San Francisco and return in a little less than 22 hours. Fair time I call it. Occasionally he'll get started on what a whale of a golfer he used to be. Anybody knowing golf terms as well as he does has certainly played some sport writer. And Jim was once fairly handy with a pair of dice to hear him tell it. Such fiction I never heard before.

It must be getting spring. The kids are flying kites. Their parents should warn them to be careful and not fly them over electric power transmission lines. Several boys are killed each year when using big kites with fine wire or when a string gets wet and the kite drops over an uninsulated wire.

Speaking of spring... I see a man working his garden right now. It won't be long until we'll be getting complaints about neighbors' chickens giving folks trouble. There'll probably be more gardens this year than there have been in many a year before. More sore backs, more blistered hands, more rocks chucked at dogs and chickens... and when the gardens do come in there'll be a surplus of vegetables. Moral: Can them.

And don't forget to get your 1932 license plates on your car before you drive it out. The highway patrol has orders to pick up all cars without them starting Monday, Feb. 1.

And the band played Annie Rooney.

Ranger Junior college offers all the courses ordinarily offered in the first two years of senior colleges, and students who complete two years of work here may enter the junior year of a senior college. Also the work taken here counts toward teachers' certificates on the same basis as that done in the senior colleges. Upon the completion of one year's work in Ranger Junior college, a student is entitled to a state first class two-year high school or four-year elementary certificate, and upon completion of two years of work here, a student is entitled to a state four-year high school or six-year elementary certificate of the first class, provided the work taken includes the prescribed courses in English and education in each case. The six-year elementary certificate may be converted into a state first class permanent elementary certificate after five years of successful teaching.

Two courses which should be of special interest to teachers who wish to build toward higher certificates and to the ladies of Ranger who cannot take full time work are: The Chief American Poets and Verse Writers taught by Mrs. A. Neill on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, 2:30 to 3:30 p. m., and American History taught by Miss Gladys Pinson on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, 3:30 to 4:30 p. m.

Tom Lauderdale, who attended the Texas State College of Mines, and Dean Reimund, who attended the Missouri College of Mines the first semester, are enrolled in Ranger Junior college for the second semester. Others have inquired about work here, and it is expected that a few more will enroll on Monday.

W. E. Gattys, the state college examiner, inspected Ranger Junior college thoroughly on Friday, and he was well pleased with the progress and improvements that have been made since his last visit. He was especially pleased with the enlargement of the library and with the cataloging of books which had been accomplished the past summer and fall, and he was also well pleased with our increase in enrollment this year.

Air Corps Diplomat Transferred to Texas

By United Press.
 SAN ANTONIO—Lieut. Col. Ira Longenecker, known to Washington newspapermen as the "practical diplomat," arrived here January 18 to become new air officer for the Eighth Corps area with headquarters at Fort Houston.

For the past four years he served as press liaison for the army air corps. He entered the World War as a captain of infantry and transferred to the flying service in November, 1917. He is an airplane pilot and aerial observer.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Union labor, as it had lost faith in the stories the economists, bankers and other business sages used to tell, appears to be increasingly bent on informing its members just what is actually happening to them.

It is using its own statisticians and publicists to obtain and distribute the facts and the background of employment, business and financial conditions on the theory that the rank and file workers are both anxious for and in need of such information. The railroad unions for years have published here a four-page weekly newspaper, Labor, edited by former Congressman Ed Keating of Colorado, which covers national affairs from the labor viewpoint as well as actual labor news. That is one reason why you are likely to find a group of railroad men at some remote junction better informed on public questions than any other group of workers.

THROUGH the depression, the American Federation of Labor has issued a small "Monthly Survey of Business" which has attracted increasing attention and has been more and more widely quoted. It describes current situations in simple, intelligible language—the kind in which you know what all the words mean—and occasionally tosses in simple, significant charts and graphs. The January issue contained probably the most 1930 comprehensive yet brief accounts of the various retail conditions, the bond situation and the resultant business restriction that this writer has seen. Also, similar explanations of the federal budget problem and the reparations tangle.

The point is made, which so many people still don't seem to get, that the banks hold about one dollar in ten of deposits and lend the rest at interest. Manufacturers, merchants and farmers depend on borrowings from that money for short periods for costs of doing business and the banks also invest in long term loans on real estate and in bonds and stocks of reliable corporations. The one dollar in ten is normally ample to meet reserves, but if depositors suddenly rush for their funds the whole credit mechanism is upset, banks must sell bonds to get cash—thus depressing bond prices still further, press business men for repayment of loans and avoid new loans in order to keep ready money (liquid assets) on hand. When farm and other commodity prices dropped debtors were less able to repay the banks, security behind credits decreased and bank investments in railroad bonds, real estate and other securities declined in value. The German financial crisis scared everyone, stimulating hoarding and withdrawals. Bond prices shot down, the A. F. of L. chart shows, at the same time, a student about the same rate of speed with which hoarding increased.

CAREFUL estimates, the federation says, shows an average of two dependents for each unemployed worker. It conservatively estimates the unemployed at 5,500,000.

Another excellent example of labor union tendency to inform members is given in a careful survey by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers which undertakes to show the trend of industry away from the old theory of "a fair profit." It quotes, in its monthly journal, bankers, industrialists and economists to show that speculation and the "habit of colossal and easy profits" was a major cause of the recent disaster. It lists various devices—all well known—by which more than a fair return is taken and analyzes them and concludes that business must turn back to the era of fair return on goods and services furnished for productive services or continue in its spiral journey toward speculative attitudes—which means, in the end, ruin.

There is no radicalism in these labor surveys. They are scientific, usually, and well thought out.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

By LEO H. PETERSON, Staff Correspondent.

Robins' Last Ambition

Bob Robins' last ambition was to pitch in a world series. He has been given his unconditional release by the Brooklyn Dodgers and with it went the chance of realizing his last ambition from the time he served so well for 20 years.

Four years ago, one of the most colorful of National League pitchers, told the National Press he would retire after one more season to pitch in a world series. He thought then as if 1931 would be the year for Brooklyn to win the year for the strongest contender for championship honors.

But the Robins proved a big disappointment and finished fourth. Of course, the Cuban may be picked up by some other major league club. He still is good for a few innings of relief pitching.

Robins took part in one world series in 1919 when the Cincinnati Reds won the National League pennant, but he was on his way up and received little chance to play in his career.

Robins came into Major League baseball in 1904 when he was four years later than Lou Gehrig came to the fore as the ace of the Yankees. He won 27 games while losing eight and held his own in an earned run average of 1.55 per nine inning game.

His pitching was a big factor in the Reds' successful drive for second place. Robins stayed with the Reds until the winter of 1929-30 when he was traded to Brooklyn. His work in 1930 put the Robins in the thick of the pennant fight.

Robins was always a colorful figure. He was a fighter to the last ditch. When you saw him walking out on the mound, you knew he was going somewhere. His attitude was such that one expected him to step on the face of anyone who got in his way.

Actually he wouldn't, of course. In common with most of the athletes who are so hard-boiled on the field, Robins was a very amiable fellow in private life and a great favorite with the other players.

While Robins gave the best years of his to the game, baseball was kind to him. He didn't play on a prominent winning team, but he received a healthy salary and walked it away. Two years ago he told a group of baseball writers he could retire from the game at any time and be financially secure for life.

Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, who ring experts once tagged as rusted stock that could roll no longer, has sold himself on the street hardest to sell, Broadway.

The North Dakota battler, who retired only to begin a come-back campaign in the fall of 1929, has won his way into the hearts of New York boxing fans. They are contending him with other greats of the smaller divisions, McGovern, Lavigne, Gans, Leonard and the rest.

When Petrolle put the end to the championship aspirations of Eddie Han, young Polish welterweight at Madison Square Garden, he left the ring about the biggest card outside of the heavyweight class. He had drawn 17,000 persons to see him fight and he didn't disappoint them.

Petrolle has been around longer than he cares to remember, and the boys are wondering what is going to become of the younger generation. His business seems to be baptizing youngsters with fire. Official Wrecker.

Of Ring Careers. A short time before he knocked out Han the Fargo Express had wrecked the aspirations of Billy Townsend. Previous to that he flattened Justo Suarez, the best piece of fighting machinery the Argentine has sent to this country since the war.

He ruined Jackie (Kid) Berg on the come-back trail and thumped Jimmy McLarin. He was beaten by the latter in a return match, however.

But for all of his success, Petrolle never has held a world's championship. The boys say of him "always a challenger, but never a champion."

Today he is rated as the outstanding contender for both the lightweight and welterweight championships of the world. It is regarded as almost certain that he will be matched to meet Tony Cannoneri, the lightweight king, some time this summer.

"My grandfather used to be 110, so maybe I'll reach 100 and get a shot at a title," Petrolle told the press after his knockout victory over Han.

The Fargo Express never has fought for a championship. Each time he met a champion, one or the other would be under, or above, the weight limit so that no title was at stake.

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—Rats literally ate up $250 belonging to a farmer near here. SIX or seven of the A's have been playing basketball during the winter. The other day Connie Mack issued a proclamation calling for a cessation of such activities by his young men. On Aug. 12, 1931, Londos and Dusek (absolutely!) wrestled in Washington again. (The saps!) Londos won. On Nov. 13, 1931, Londos and Dusek (oh, come now, you're spoofing!) wrestled in Philadelphia. Londos won. On Dec. 20, 1931, Londos and Dusek wrestled in Chicago. Londos won. You'd almost think that Mr. Dusek, or somebody, would be convinced about something by this time, wouldn't you?

Olympic Threats
THE new year brings to mind the coming Los Angeles Olympic games and some performances during 1931 by four men in short pants. The four men are Ben Eastman, Vic Williams, George Spitz and Percy Beard. Eastman and Williams tied the 440-yard dash record in 27.25, established by Ted Meredith in 1916. George Spitz set a new world record for the indoor high jump, 6 feet 7 inches, the old record (Harold Osborn's) having been 6 feet 6 1/2 inches. Spitz also jumped 6 feet 7 1/2 inches outdoors, against Osborn's record of 6 feet 5 1/2 inches. Percy Beard broke the world record for the 120-yard high hurdles, making it in 14 1/5 seconds. These young men are going to be hard to stop.

Ripley of the Eighth Corps area stated that the quota was selected from men who had attended camp last year. Blanks were mailed to them direct by the commandant of the Eighth Corps area and were returned by the candidate for admission.

Roy W. Gilbreath, manager of the J. C. Penney company store of Ranger left today for Dallas to attend the annual spring convention of the organization he represents.

The meetings will be held at the Baker hotel and managers from approximately 200 stores covering this section of the country, will be present.

George Mitchell of the personnel department will preside over the convention and other general executives of the company who will conduct sessions will include Earl C. Sams, president; J. C. Penney, chairman of the board; L. A. Martin, of the sales department, as well as representatives of the various buying departments.

The series of conventions totals eight which will cover the entire country.

Before leaving, Mr. Gilbreath said, "Two very important subjects will be thoroughly covered at the meetings this year, first will be the matter of merchandising of products at the new low price levels which have been established during the two years, made possible by the increasing co-operation between manufacturing and distributing organizations."

"The other will be the matter of our relations with the public, which should result in a better understanding between the buying public and the retail stores which they patronize."

Rangerites Attend
Breck Commandery
Several people from Ranger visited in Breckenridge Friday night at the meeting of the Breckenridge Knight Templars, at which Judge W. C. Yeale was scheduled to speak. Due to the sudden illness of his daughter, he was unable to fill his engagement as he had to take her to Dallas.

As Judge Yeale was unable to make the address, a musical program was substituted.

35 Chicago Fire
Companies At
Scene of Blaze

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Thirty-five companies were called out today to fight a serious blaze in the west side industrial district.

The blaze started in a grain elevator and threatened other property in the area. Flames from the elevator could be seen over a wide area.

The firemen were handicapped in fighting the blaze by a low temperature. After a two-hour battle the fire was under control.

One fatality was caused indirectly by the fire when Captain Thomas Conway, 64, died of heart disease as he looked at the alarms coming in at his fire station.

Typhoid Fever Hits
Chicago Low Level

CHICAGO — Typhoid fever struck a new low level in Chicago during 1931, when only 13 deaths were recorded and 97 cases all told, according to the report of Dr. Herman N. Buidesen, Board of Health president.

With population at 3,458,000 persons, the death-rate was .37 per 100,000, the lowest ever reached. From preliminary returns, this is probably the lowest figure of any metropolitan area in the world. Buidesen said. It compares with 124 cases and 20 deaths in 1930, and shows the tremendous improvement since 1891, when almost 20,000 cases and nearly 2,000 deaths were reported in a single year.

BLUE FLAME 2200° AT TIP
YELLOW FLAME 1650° AT TIP
The Color of Your GAS FLAME Means a Lot to Your Pocketbook
Strange as it may seem to some, the color of a gas flame has a direct bearing upon the amount of heat that is being produced.
Laboratory experiments show that burners, regulated to produce clear bluish-purple flames, will produce a heat of 2220 degrees Fahrenheit at the tip. The same burners, regulated to produce yellowish-white flames, will produce only 1650 degrees, or nearly 25 per cent less heat.
This difference in heat value is due to a difference in gas and air mixtures. In the case of the clear bluish-purple flame, the mixture is correctly proportioned to produce 100 per cent combustion. Every bit of the gas is being burned to produce concentrated heat. In the case of the yellowish-white flame, the proportion of air and gas is incorrect, and some of the gas is escaping unburned. As a result, much of the heating value is lost.
It is, therefore of prime importance that heaters be properly regulated to operate with utmost economy. If your burners in stoves or heaters are showing evidence of improper combustion, such as yellow flames, fumes or sputtering noises, phone and tell us about it. We will gladly do what we can to correct the condition without charge.

Court Tests Out Robot Stenographer

By United Press.—MANCHESTER, Eng.—A court stenographer is the newest addition to the growing robot family. The machine consists of a steel tape about a mile long on which every inflection of the voices of the judge, attorneys, clerk, witnesses and defendant is recorded electro-magnetically, to be reproduced later as often as required. The robot stenographer is undergoing tests in a court room here specially wired for the purpose, with microphones at the bench, the witness chair, the counselors' tables and the jury box.

Princess Pat Too Fat For Insurance

By United Press.—SAN FRANCISCO.—Princess Patricia is too fat to obtain life insurance, despite her weight of only 45 pounds. That, at least, is what life insurance actuaries decided when application was made for $20,000 life insurance, and later on a similar application for $5,000 fire insurance. "She's too fat to escape from a burning building," the insurance people said. Princess Patricia is a pedigreed English bulldog owned by Jim Sarsfield and Ned Nestor.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE BY KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ann and Cecily Fenwick have for years supported themselves, their younger sister, Mary-Frances, and their grandparents, known as "Rosalie" and "Grand." Because of this financial responsibility, Ann, who is 28, is unable to marry Phil Escroyd, young lawyer to whom she has been engaged for eight years. Cecily, 22, loves Barry McCoel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name their wedding date for the same reason. Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, believes herself in love with Earl De Armount, vaudeville actor whom she has met without the knowledge of her sisters. He urges her to leave home and become his stage partner. Ann and Phil quarrel when she hears Letty King, who works in Phil's office building, address him with endearments. Ann tries to forget Phil by going about with Kenneth Smith, rich and attractive, but when Smith asks her to marry him she refuses. Mary-Frances agrees to go away with De Armount. They set out in his car. The same day Cecily quarrels with her grandfather. She comes home with news that she and Barry are to be married that evening. Ann discovers Mary-Frances is missing, learns she has eloped with De Armount. Immediately a search is begun. Phil Escroyd comes to help Ann. A nearly frantic until Mary-Frances telephones from the station. She arrives home, explaining she decided to give up a stage career because she was hungry and De Armount refuses to buy her a meal.

Kidnapers Seize Wealthy Man, Demand $50,000 Ransom

Howard A. Woolverton, 56, wealthy manufacturer of South Bend, Ind., was kidnaped by two men as he and Mrs. Woolverton were returning to their home from a movie. Mrs. Woolverton was warned not to report the kidnaping to police and to pay $50,000 ransom to men who would signal her in Chicago Heights, Ill. Woolverton was released after being held captive for 24 hours.

Ann thought, "Dear heavens above! Does Grand think he is performing a marriage ceremony? This is worse than anything he's ever done. This is the sort of thing that can't be endured. It is Phil's fault. He should have gone when I asked him to." "Will you please answer my question, Ann?" "Still, she couldn't stand there and say she did not love Phil. It would be a lie, and it would be letting Phil down in public. "Of course I love Phil," she said. "But—" "But me no buts," said Grand. He evidently was in a moan, humor. No wonder Cecily pushed him over this morning—though she hadn't. What would he do when he went into the house and found Cecily and Barry in the parlor? He was cross with Cecily, anyway. "And to you, Phil," Grand went on, "recalling again the lateness of the hour, goodnight." "Goodnight," said Phil, and bowed a neat bow. Grand and Rosalie crossed the porch to the door. "Sir," said Grand, "I have bidden you goodnight, and stopped and waited. Ann murmured, "You'll have to go. I must go in and help Cecily. Goodnight, Phil. Goodbye." "No," said Phil. "Ann, are you coming?" "Yes, Grand. Goodbye, Phil." "No." "Yes," said Ann. "Goodbye," and thought, "It is silly to say it three times," and went with the old people into the house. (To Be Continued)

"I am not hiding behind trees tonight, Ann." Grand's voice and Rosalie's voice. "Goodnight. Thank you again for a beautiful day. Good-night, Mr. Carmichael—good-night." "But to help me, Phil? They've been so difficult. Just—to help me?" Phil sat immovable until he stood because Rosalie, with Grand's arm about her—or, at least, halfway about her—came up the steps. Grand said, "Ah, Ann? Is that Phil? Ah, Phil. I trust, Ann, that you have not been needlessly worried." "Well," Ann replied shamefully, wickedly, "of course, it is late. After midnight." Rosalie began, "The Carmichaels' clock had stopped, and—" But Grand said, "I beg your pardon, my dear," and turned to Phil. "As my granddaughter says, the hour is late. Very late. May I ask, sir, why you are here at my home, at this late hour, with Ann?" "I am here, Mr. Fenwick," Phil answered, right in Grand's strain, "for the same reason that I have been coming here for years. Because I love Ann and wish to hurry her." "Ah? You wish, again, to marry Ann?" "I have never ceased wishing to marry her." "One moment, if you please, Ann. Do you or do you not love Phil?" Ann thought, "Dear heavens above! Does Grand think he is performing a marriage ceremony? This is worse than anything he's ever done. This is the sort of thing that can't be endured. It is Phil's fault. He should have gone when I asked him to." "Will you please answer my question, Ann?" "Still, she couldn't stand there and say she did not love Phil. It would be a lie, and it would be letting Phil down in public. "Of course I love Phil," she said. "But—" "But me no buts," said Grand. He evidently was in a moan, humor. No wonder Cecily pushed him over this morning—though she hadn't. What would he do when he went into the house and found Cecily and Barry in the parlor? He was cross with Cecily, anyway. "And to you, Phil," Grand went on, "recalling again the lateness of the hour, goodnight." "Goodnight," said Phil, and bowed a neat bow. Grand and Rosalie crossed the porch to the door. "Sir," said Grand, "I have bidden you goodnight, and stopped and waited. Ann murmured, "You'll have to go. I must go in and help Cecily. Goodnight, Phil. Goodbye." "No," said Phil. "Ann, are you coming?" "Yes, Grand. Goodbye, Phil." "No." "Yes," said Ann. "Goodbye," and thought, "It is silly to say it three times," and went with the old people into the house. (To Be Continued)

New Paramount Cafe Presents Latest Decorative Designing.

As one steps into the newly decorated Paramount cafe, under the management of Bill Dorsey, they are immediately aware of the lovely color effect displayed through the artistic and colorfully designed panels adorning the walls, freshly finished in two tones of parchment and sea blue. Those who are eagerly and courteously awaiting your visit to this new cafe make an attractive appearance wearing uniforms of white and trimmed in blue. A graceful pointed fern is arranged in one corner of the spacious shop, presenting a pretty and spring-like setting.
