

LOSERS FEEL MILES BEHIND FLOYD

Governor Rolph Scored for Mooney Decision

GRIPINGS

By GUS
This column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

Since this was a light day for incoming mail, you might be interested in reading a few comments on a few of the 28 requests for free publicity which arrived.

The principle comments I might make is the apparent economic waste. I know that practically every other paper gets the same line of mail as this one and I never see any of those blurbs in print, consequently their writing, printing, mailing and postage is a great waste.

The nearest thing to new I found in the whole layout was a note from Tom Hunter, candidate for governor of Texas, saying that he would speak in Eastland on Monday, May 9. Thinking that probably this announcement is a matter of public interest, it is a pleasure to inform you of his request.

But see here! A Dallas man is getting up an all-expense tour to the Olympic games and wants you to go with him. The trip's not free but he wants it advertised free. Also a coaching school that is being promoted for Mineral Wells. We don't mind that so much because Mineral Wells is our neighbor, even if the boys down there are hucking against the building of the newly designated Ranger-Weatherford road.

And here's a few items of little or no importance written, printed and mailed at government expense. The Recruiting News, a 16-page illustrated publication going regularly to recruiting officers in the field. I see no need whatever of its being sent to this office.

And from the department of commerce a letter saying that census information on the larger cities is available there at 25 cents per copy. Well, what of it? And another franked letter, subject to great length on the subject of "Hardware Distribution in the Gulf Southwest" . . . how thrilling.

A bunch of the cutest little "fillers" you ever did see. Every one of them tells you something about washing your car, or something just about as important.

The Child Health association of New York sent us two letters on the subject of May day and about giving the children plenty of milk after the May day dance. Another association tells us of the wonderful work it is doing for convalescent children in New York and says the kids are improving on milk. Well, us country folks know that. And our folks don't convalesce . . . they are either sick or well and there's no middle ground.

And here's a nice letter from a big firm wanting us to tell its readers about its radio program next week. Spending big money with the radio for advertising is nothing new. Expecting the newspapers to hustle up a bunch of listeners for free. Baloney . . . and Hooley . . . also Whiz Bang.

A firm of auditors in Dallas who told me once that it was unethical for auditors to advertise is sending a booklet about having private audits of public accounts. The booklet contains some nice testimonials about the advantages of private audits and so forth . . . but I guess they think that's ethical, if it's free.

The Texas Oil and Gas Conservation association and the Oklahoma Independent Petroleum Producers have each sent in a column and a half story on their troubles. The Broadway of America is nothing new. President Mackey from El Paso to New York to head the motorcade from New York to San Diego for the convention.

Incidentally the motorcade will have lunch in Ranger on Sunday, May 8, and will tott the sirens in Eastland as the cars pass through immediately afterwards.

And so it goes. Lots of time and effort spent in trying to get something for nothing, most of which publicity attempts are nothing more than subtle advertising propaganda. And they wonder why an editor does not grab at everything that comes his way. Heck . . . we don't have trouble getting things in the paper, our trouble is keeping them out.

CAPTIVE HELD BY DESPERADO IS RELEASED

Officers Lose Trail at Noon But Still Push On In Pursuit.

By DA NROGERS
ADA, Okla., April 22.—Through barbed wire fences, across fields, along lanes and highways, Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd and his bank robber aid, George Birdwell, bent their way today with pursuers just a few minutes behind.

The escape tactics of the notorious bandits was described by Estel Henson, 18-year-old oil filling station attendant, who was their unwilling guide for thirteen hours yesterday.

He was released unharmed early today.

During the search that covered three counties late yesterday that three remained hidden in brush 30 miles northeast of here, Henson said:

"It wasn't fun, but I wasn't mistreated."

At noon today officers admitted their belief that Floyd and Birdwell had escaped. They had a report, however, that the suspects were seen near Calvin, 35 miles northeast of here at 5 a. m.

Two airplanes were held at the airport here subject to call but did not venture to fly in the murky weather.

LEADING BEAR IN MARKET IS QUIZZED TODAY

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Matthew C. Brush, one of the New York stock market's most important traders, today denounced the practice of "closing up" and "closing down" the stock market as the greatest abuse in the manipulation of markets.

Brush was the first genuine bear produced as witness at the senate banking and currency committee stock market investigation. He said without hesitation that in 1929 he had a $15,000,000 "long" interest in the market and in 1930 was 125,000 shares short.

Asked what basis the public acted upon in trading he said it was usually the tip of "Heinie and Grededoor" — two fellows who came over from Greece two months ago.

SENTIMENT IS FOR PARDON MANY CLAIM

Will Begin His Fight Anew Through Channels Not Tried.

The refusal of Governor James Rolph, Jr., of California to pardon Tom Mooney, brought strong comment from individuals, who have long maintained that he was unjustly convicted of the San Francisco bomb outrage of 1917.

Mayor James J. Walker, advocate in Mooney's most recent bid for a pardon, said he would not comment himself until he had read the full statement by the governor.

Theodore Dreiser, the novelist—"Slowly, but surely, this will drive into the consciousness of the multitude in America that law and justice are corporation controlled and directed and that nothing less than a national change will bring equity for anyone."

Bruce Bliven, editor of the New Republic—"California justice disgraced before the eyes of the world. I am confident that neither Governor Rolph nor California has heard the last of this."

Amos Pinchot, New York lawyer—"Rolph's decision against Mooney is one of the most unjust and groundless decisions in the political history of a generation. It was a wicked and cynical frame-up and still is."

Corliss Lamont, professor of sociology, Columbia University and son of Thomas W. Lamont, financier—"I find it hard to believe."

Regers N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberty Union—"Like his predecessors, Governor Rolph passed the buck to conservative anti-labor advisors without facing the decision himself."

SACRAMENTO, Calif., April 22.—Denied a pardon for the fourth time by a California governor, Tom Mooney began anew today his fight for freedom that in 16 years behind bars has brought only disappointment and defeat.

Governor Rolph's refusal to grant the pardon because "no new facts were brought to support the plea" prompted labor leaders to seek his liberation through new lines, possibly a new trial.

In the front lines of the re-organized forces was his 84-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary A. Mooney.

Mrs. Mooney announced an attempt would be made at once to have District Attorney Matthew Brady try Mooney on a single murder indictment in San Francisco superior court in an effort to bring out testimony developed since 1917.

Annals of American jurisprudence hold no parallel to the Mooney-Billings cases. Mooney, an obscure young iron worker who attracted police and public attention by his activities during labor troubles, very nearly was executed.

The intervention of President Wilson on two occasions saved him from the gallows—only to be dealt a living death in San Quentin prison with executive clemency his only hope for freedom.

Mooney came to San Francisco shortly after the 1906 fire. His work as a labor organizer got him into trouble in 1913, when police at Richmond, Calif., arrested him under the name of Charles King during a strike. He was accused of being implicated in placing dynamite caps aboard a railroad off Point San Pablo. After three trials he was acquitted June 19, 1914.

About this time Mooney's co-defendant in the famous bombing trials, Warren K. Billings, was convicted of illegally possessing 60 sticks of dynamite in Sacramento. This conviction ultimately separated the two in their fight for liberty, since Billings was sent to Folsom Prison after the bombing trial as a "two time loser."

After the Richmond trials Mooney became an associate editor of "The Black", a vitriolic labor publication to which he contributed the outpourings of a violent pen. He was assisted in this work by Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, both of whom were deported to Russia in 1918 as anarchists.

On July 22, 1916 San Francisco arranged a gigantic preparedness parade in which service units joined with patriotic organizations to demonstrate the city's strength should war be declared. The parade started from the famous Embarcadero.

HOOVER AS A MAKER OF MIRACLES

"Hoover sounds the funeral dirge for pessimism," is the glaring headline over a Washington dispatch. Then the story that follows lets it be known that the president feels that the great forces of liquidation within the nation have spent themselves, "in fact have gone too far," and "that a half dozen factors today are pointing the way to better times."

Richard Whitney is said to be Wall street's highest authority. President Hoover is the acknowledged leader of the republican party and its Moses of wisdom as well as vision. It is significant that on April 14 public utilities issues swept upward in the securities markets, "leading a recovery in prices through its second successive day."

Following in the wake of this upward flight the president felt an urge from within to sound a "funeral dirge for pessimism." He smote the saffron hued pessimists and prophets of evil tiding both hip and thigh and then turned in for a much needed sleep. Of course, the logic of history is to carry on, to stand flat-footed on the firing line of endeavor, to whistle the ghosts away and thoroughly realize that the adjustment period is on and after the November election the real work of rehabilitation will be launched by those who are able to crack hard problems as hard nuts are cracked before a thorough stabilization of money and commodity values have been brought about by the thinkers of the agricultural, financial, and manufacturing worlds.

SENATOR TOM CONNALLY'S TEXAS CALLERS

Senator Tom Connally is a very busy man. Texans, when they visit Washington call and pay their respects to the junior senator, they tender their congratulations, they pour out their advice, they tell him how he should vote. There is a Texas delegation to the third annual conference of the women's organization for prohibition reform holding forth in Washington. They called upon Tom Connally and Rep. Hatton Summers to urge them to support a referendum on the 18th amendment.

Mrs. Florence Rogers of Dallas is the state chairman of the Texas women who are clamoring for a referendum. Her contention is that the people are entitled to a vote on continuance of prohibition; that if they vote dry then they are sincere "in tolerating conditions as they exist today." Mrs. Rogers reported that "once the women of the Lone Star State realize that we are working for a constructive policy of attainment temperance program new members are constantly enrolling; that as several of our members are on the state democratic committee it is our purpose to prevent, if possible, to send a delegation to the Chicago national convention that is instructed to support a dry plank in the democratic platform."

SPEAKING OF THE LINDBERGH BABY

Hope springeth eternal in the human breast—or words to that effect. This appears to be the latest from the hiding place of the Lindbergh baby: "To the best of our belief, from information furnished us, the child is alive and well." Now who was it that transmitted the information to an ever inquiring and anxious public? Rt. Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock of Norfolk, Va., who has been both pictured and publicized in the American press since the abduction of the little idol of the Lindbergh home.

Regardless of all this, the mystery remains a mystery with a coterie of sharp crooks indulging in riotous living on the $50,000 ransom paid by Dr. Condon, said to be a famous educator in the city of New York. An additional furnace should be built in Hades for the kidnapers. Really, the old Hell would not be punishment to fit the crime.

In the metropolis of the Hawaiian Islands Clarence Darrow is using all his legal ability as a defender to win a verdict of acquittal for the slayers of the chief of the rapists who wrecked the Massey home and beat almost into a pulp the victim of their foul crime. All the beasts are not found among the jungle tribes. They are found in the so-called civilized lands.

PRO AGENTS ARE QUICK SHOOTERS

Dallas citizenry, in city and county, are on the war-path. Two federal pro agents shot a citizen to death and wounded his wife. After the battle it was disclosed that the victims were innocent of all charges of violating the pro law. District Attorney William McCraw, famous as a prosecutor, declared to press reporters that it was nothing short of cold blooded murder. Well, the slayers were arrested and placed under heavy bail bonds. Now the Dallas county grand jury is investigating the case while national Director Woodcock peremptorily refused to suspend the slaying, giving as reason that he had received information that they were guiltless and acted in self defense.

It would be well for an agent of the law, federal or state, to investigate before he shoots. Murder is murder, and the guilty should be punished regardless of station in life or place of responsibility filled.

Tourist trade can enable a city to yield more revenue. It is also one of the best means of introducing the city itself to outsiders. It helps any possible misunderstanding that exists between one place and another.

The wise business man knows that the "magic key" to the city and rural trade is through the advertising pages of local newspapers.

April 30 Last Day Farmers Can Apply For U. S. Financing

While railroads, banks, and big business institutions of the nation are borrowing from the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation in lump sums of as much as $10,000,000 or more, thousands of Texas farmers are as shy of government loans as horses were of automobiles in the late '90's.

As April 30 is the "dead-line" for farmers filing applications for Uncle Sam's reconstruction finance corporation money, it is expected there will be a last minute rush in filing applications with county loan committees. While many farmers who have adopted balanced farming methods do not require credit, there are thousands of other farmers who do need credit but because of misinformation, or lack of information have not applied for loans.

McCamey Man Is Expert Snake Hunter

M'CAMKEY, Texas. — "Hey! Let's go snake huntin'." P. L. Brown has been making short runs to the rocks and hills around McCamey, looking a few rattlers for his indoor zoo. So far he has brought into noisy and restless captivity some 35 snakes, which are drawing interested spectators daily.

Each year he has a habit of going out into the country and bringing in a bunch of them, later to be sent to gardens and institutions over the nation.

Brown is an ardent student of snakes, handles them as cautiously as he would a brood of baby chicks and is especially painstaking with the smallest of the serpents. The little ones can grow fangs over night, he says, which makes it dangerous to have them slipping around.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By FRED BAILEY, United Press Staff Correspondent. "Spitball" Pitchers Nearing End of Their Careers.

The "spitball" pitchers, of which only four remain in the major leagues, this year will be drawing to a close a colorful chapter in the national pastime.

With the passing of the four—Clarence Mitchell of the Giants, Burleigh Grimes of the Cubs, Urban Faber of the White Sox and John Quinn of the Dodgers—the freak delivery will be barred from the major leagues.

The national rules committee at the close of the 1931 season adopted a rule to the effect that pitchers then listed as "spitball" hurlers would be permitted to complete their major league careers as such but that all others would be barred from "doctoring" the ball.

Grimes, Mitchell, Faber and Quinn are the last of more than a score who used the moist delivery in 1931. The youngest of the group, Grimes, is 35 years of age. Quinn at 46 is the oldest pitcher in the majors. Each has pitched for 15 or more years in the majors.

Grimes is the only one of the quartet which baseball men expect to continue in the majors more than another year or two at best, and he has indicated his intention of retiring after the 1933 season.

Club owners, reflecting on the fact that the "spitball" pitchers have remained effective longer than the curve ball throwers, have made timid suggestions for the restoration of this delivery.

Most owners and players, however, have expressed themselves as opposed to the return of the freak delivery in any of its various forms. The "emery ball" used by Eddie Cicotte, and the "mud ball" thrown by Russell Ford before 1920 appear permanently banned.

Catchers particularly have objected to the moist delivery, claiming they could not be certain which direction it would break and because in case of a hurry-up throw their fingers might contact the moist side of the ball and result in a wild throw.

The "freak" delivery of Dave Danforth, who has now drifted to the minors, puzzled baseball players when he was one of the great pitchers in the majors.

He was practically driven out of the major leagues by claims of opposing players that he was "doctoring" the ball. He used with great effectiveness the so-called "sailer." Protest after protest was filed with league presidents and balls he used mounted as evidence, but no adequate explanation was ever given for his "sailer."

Famed Wolf Hunter Will Try Prowess

SAN ANTONIO—Col. Jack Abernathy, now grown older and more partly than the Oklahoma youth who astonished President Roosevelt by catching wolves with his hands, will do his stunt once again.

He has sent to Denver for three timber wolves with which he will make his final wolf-catching appearance here April 23.

Abernathy quit catching wolves after he had saved 1,000 by running them down on horseback, leaping upon them and grasping the wolf jay in his strong hands.

"I am not as limber as I used to be," he said, "but I think there is still one more good wolf hunt left in me."

Abernathy's prowess so impressed President Roosevelt on a hunting trip that the wolf hunter became quite a pal of the sports-loving executive. He was made U. S. marshal in Oklahoma and there added other hair-raising exploits to his list.

Despite his adventures he never was hit by a bullet. One bullet hit theommel of his saddle and the impact on his stomach made him think he was shot, but he was not hurt.

After leaving the marshaling, Abernathy went into the oil business. A narrow escape from death near Bastrop, Texas, when he was caught in a derrick wire rope and dragged to the engine drum, sent him to the hospital for a period.

"God's been taking care of me for some purpose," he mused after this last accident. "I guess he has work for me." So Abernathy took to evangelism. The wolf hunt will be only an intermission.

AS Scouty disappeared from the boat, he said, "I'm afraid I'll be late. I'm afraid I'll be late. I'm afraid I'll be late."

"If anything should happen to me, you'd better get out of here. You'd better get out of here. You'd better get out of here."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Scouty. "You're all wrong. You see, the wind is getting strong and what you heard was just a squeak that came from yonder trees."

"Two great big branches rub up there, and send a strange noise through the air. Just keep your nerve and don't get so excited, if you please."

INSIDE the house brave Scouty dropped down to the floor and then he stopped and shouted, "Hi, there, Duncy! If you're here, lad, answer me."

And then, the next thing that he knew, a voice replied, "Hurrah for you!" And Duncy ran into the room, as happy as could be.

"I knew you'd find me. This is great! And, listen, I can hardly wait to tell you of some skinny men who brought me to this place."

"They caught me and I made a fuss. The truth is, I was anxious to find out what they wanted. Gee, I'm glad you lads gave chase."

"I GUESS those men were scared of you and thought the best thing they could do was lock you in this crazy house," said Scouty, with a smile.

"Let's go outside. Friend Windy's there, with Coppy, in the open air. No doubt they're getting anxious. They've been waiting quite a while."

It wasn't long till everyone decided they would have some fun. Said Scouty, "All those skinny men are near at hand, I know."

"Wait here and I will bring one back." They shortly heard his lasso crack. And then they saw brave Scouty, with a skinny man in tow.

(The skinkies furnish some fun in the next story.)

On Steuart Street, a contingent of Spanish-American war veterans was lined up alongside a little brick saloon awaiting the signal to start.

Suddenly a terrific blast split the air.

Nine of those closest to the blast were killed outright and a tenth was injured fatally. Forty others were badly hurt.

District Attorney Charles L. Fickert took charge of the investigation. The time of the explosion was fixed at 2:06 p. m.

Edward Nolan, an officer of the Machine's union, Israel Weinberg, a taxi driver, Mooney and his wife and Billings were taken into custody.

A waiter, John McDonald, told Fickert of seeing a man with a suitcase leave a taxicab near the saloon at Steuart and Market streets.

Another man strolled out of the saloon, met the one with the suitcase. They walked along. McDonald said, and the suitcase was put at the greatest portion of their advertising money in the newspaper.

McDonald identified Billings as the man with the suitcase and Mooney as his companion.

The grand jury brought murder indictments against the Mooneys, Billings, Weinberg and Nolan.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The Socialist party, which represents your only escape if you can't get yourself to vote for Republicans or Democrats, believes it has a splendid opportunity in this election year because so many persons are dissatisfied with the old system and the old politicians.

The Socialists do not expect to elect a president. They also realize that these times of stress scare many voters into complete conservatism, as in the last British election.

But they hope for a peak Socialist vote in November and expect, at their party convention in Milwaukee beginning May 29, to plan an organization campaign which will include intensive efforts in certain congressional districts of Wisconsin, New York and Pennsylvania, where there is reasonable hope of electing Socialist congressmen.

Thomas Seeks New System. NORMAN THOMAS, outstanding leader of the party, who probably will be its presidential candidate again this year, thinks the capitalist system is dying and that no satisfactory economic plan can be built upon the "wreckage."

"If a wide acceptance of that fact can be gained, he says, there will be more chance for a peaceful, orderly transition to a new system."

"There never has been such a complete sense of the futility of the major parties," Thomas said in an interview here. "And never such an obvious lack of a strong, popular leader—even of a popular stuffed shirt. Hoover will be demagogued to a chorus of faint damns—some not so faint. The nearer Governor Roosevelt comes to nomination the worse he looks. Nobody loves or hates him; they are just taking him."

"I see no chance of a third party to make a last stand for the capitalist system. Roosevelt has enough of the so-called progressives convinced that he is somewhat progressive to aver that he will hold the two major parties fighting without any gesture toward native American radicalism such as we had in 1912."

The season officially opens Memorial day, May 30, when the Seneca Lake Yachting club holds its regatta. Events also are scheduled for July 4, Labor Day, and practically every holiday and Sunday during the summer.

The 100-mile Finger Lake outboard marathon, sponsored by the Seneca Lake club, always has attracted leading outboard drivers, not only from this country, but also from Great Britain and France.

Two world records, established on Seneca Lake, will be marks of drivers this year. The records were set by Marshall Eldridge, of Boston, and Lester Hunter, of Rochester, in class E, division 2.

Probably the most important of the races to be held on Finger Lakes' water will be the Eastern intercollegiate outboard regatta, scheduled for some time in June; the fifth annual Seneca Lake regatta, to be held July 16 and 17; the Central New York Yachting club races, and the annual power boat race on Canandaigua Lake.

Experts Plan Eclipse Study

PASADENA, Calif.—Scientists of the world, trying to find explanations for the eclipse of the sun, are gathering now in record numbers in the United States to observe a phenomenon scheduled for Aug. 31 in eastern Canada and New England.

From Mt. Wilson observatory, here, some of America's foremost astronomers will join one of the largest expeditions ever to gaze upon the sun in its eclipse, and travel to the eastern part of the United States to meet parties from Japan, Russia and England.

Sixteen expeditions will be stationed along the path of the eclipse, extending from Hudson Bay, in northern Canada, across portions of Quebec, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, to the northeastern corner of Massachusetts and Cape Cod.

Among institutions to send expeditions are the following: Mt. Wilson observatory, Royal Observatory of Greenwich, England; University of Virginia, McGill university, University of London, Cambridge university, University of California (Lick observatory), Swarthmore college, Wesleyan university, Dominion observatory of Ottawa, University of Indiana, Kyoto Imperial university of Japan, Astronomical observatory of Pulkova, Russia; Royal Astronomical university of London, Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, and Ohio Wesleyan university.

American observers believe the best location to observe this year's dimming of the sun is on that portion of its path between Conway, N. H., and Fryeburg, Me.

MENUS FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

If you are in the habit of using only lamb chops and leg of lamb, you are missing some economical and delicious meals featuring such inexpensive cuts as the breast and shoulder of lamb.

Breast of lamb with cooked lettuce is a splendid dish for a spring dinner. Lettuce is also plentiful and cheap this year and helps to add variety to luncheon if it is served cooked occasionally.

Breast of Lamb With Lettuce
Two and one-half pounds breast of lamb, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1 small onion, 2 small solid heads lettuce, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 large navel orange, currant jelly.

Separate lamb into pieces for serving and put into a casserole. Add boiling water to cover. Season with salt and add onion peeled but left whole. Cover and cook in a moderate oven for 1-2 hours. Drain from liquid and brown in a hot frying pan. Cut lettuce in slices and cook in boiling salted water for 29 minutes. Keep at simmering point. Place on a hot platter and spread with butter creamed with lemon juice. Put a piece of lamb on each slice of lettuce and on the lamb put a slice of orange which was boiled with the lettuce for its last five minutes of cooking. Cut orange in slices before cooking. On each slice of orange put a tablespoonful of currant jelly and serve.

Any fruit jelly can of course be used if currant is not at hand. Save the broth in which the lamb was cooked for luncheon the following day.

Lamb patties are another inexpensive lamb dish. The breast or shoulder is used for these. Chop meat very fine and make into small flat cakes. Enfold each cake with a strip of thin bacon and broil them under the flame or in a hot frying pan. Serve with potatoes en gratin and carrots in parsley butter. These lamb patties may well take the place of lamb chops in any menu.

Roast Shoulder of Lamb, Milanese
One shoulder of lamb, 1 quart can tomatoes, 1 pound bunch young onions, 1 sweet green pepper, 1 cup hot water, 2 bouillon cubes, 2 cups elbow macaroni, 4 tablespoons grated cheese, salt, paprika.

Put meat on the rack of a roaster and roast in a hot oven for 20 minutes. Then reduce heat and pour over tomatoes which have been rubbed through a sieve and combined with onions finely minced, pepper seeded and chopped very fine and bouillon cube dissolved in hot water. Season with 2 teaspoons salt and 1-2 teaspoon pepper and baste the lamb frequently with the tomato sauce. Roast two hours. In the meantime cook macaroni in boiling salted water. Place meat on a hot platter and pour the tomato sauce over it. Surround with cooked macaroni sprinkled with grated cheese and a dash of paprika.

University Will Make a Survey of Potash Resources

AUSTIN.—As a means of obtaining additional data on the potash resources of West Texas, the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas will make a geological study of the area extending from the Orient line of the Atchison, Topoka & Santa Fe on the south to the Canadian river on the north, a distance of more than 275 miles. In preparation for the survey, C. L. Baker, geologist in the bureau, is now checking reports of oil test well core drills and other data of the geology of University lands that are available in the geological office of that institution in San Angelo. Mr. Baker will investigate large stream basins for the purpose of determining whether or not they indicate potash deposits, the theory being that they are more likely to be found where the land has subsided. This surface search for indications of potash is for the most part opposite that which is practiced by petroleum geologists in looking for structural elevations that may portend the existence of oil, it was explained. The examination of cores obtained from oil tests in various localities of the area that is to be investigated will also form part of Mr. Baker's work. Some of the potash beds discovered in West Texas were made by means of diamond core drilling and using a solution of magnesium chloride for reducing the dissolving of the potash.

Potash deposits have been found in several localities upon lands owned by the university but as yet no steps have been taken to develop and commercialize these underground resources. In Midland county active development of a large deposit is about to be started by a private company, and the construction of the main shaft will be started soon, according to information received here.

Fancy Bars Are Replacing Reno's Gurgling Jugs

By GEORGE D. CRISSEY,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

RENO, Nev.—A revolution in the drinking habits of Renoiters is in progress, a study of new places recently opened to quench the thirst of the divorce colony and the town discloses.

Time was when the average Nevada tilted a jug and let'er gurgle. Or, if in town a brass rail for instep support and a "shot" of corn disposed of all libation urges. Such drinking was considered not only proper, but essential.

But the simple days are no more. Fancy drinks and fancy bars, adding to the confusion of life for bartenders and operators, are in order. Demands for such drinks are increasing as the demand for mixed drinks increases.

Six months ago Reno had many fine bars, but, after all, they were merely bars. No one thought of adding original or fantastic touches. Now the rage is for a lot of atmosphere.

Blazing the trail was the Comstock, a place fixed up like the interior of a deep mine. The main room appears as if it were carved from solid rock. A tunnel is the entrance. Around the walls are various mining relics, including pictures of miners who picked millions from the Comstock Lode. To obtain entrance, you have a card designating you as a "Comstock Miner."

Soon The Town House, dressed up like the interior of an old ranch headquarters, appears. It is finished in timber slabs, with the bark exposed.

Others to spring up included The Camel, a place stressing luxury, with red camels galloping around the walls, and The Cign of the Ship and Bottle—an Old English Tavern, with ropes, anchors, and other such things to add a realistic touch.

LARGEST LIVE OAK TREE.

AUSTIN.—A large tree on a point east of Copano Bay in Aransas county is believed by Dr. B. C. Tharp, University of Texas professor of botany, to be the largest live oak tree in the world. It is eight feet in diameter, 35 feet high and has a spread of nearly 100 feet.

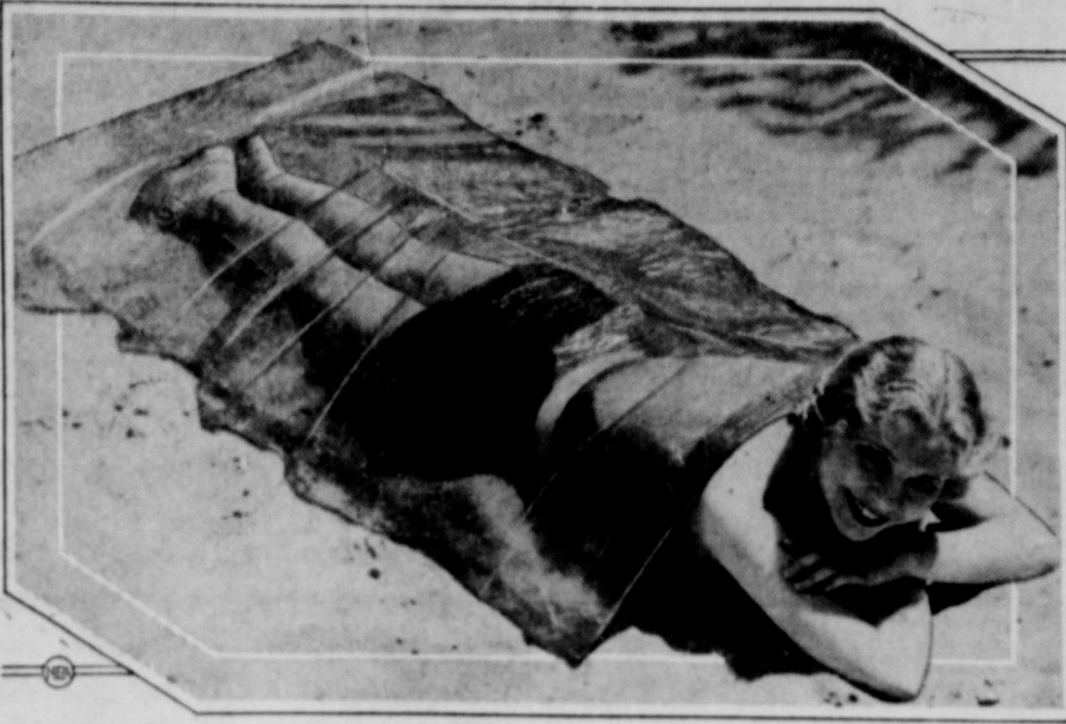

800,000 WOMEN REFORMERS.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—The Women's Prohibition Reform organization now has 800,000 members in 40 states, according to Mrs. Mary E. Ryder of St. Louis, vice chairman of the Missouri group. The aim of the organization is not repeal, but reform, she explained.

It takes a lot of sand to wear this costume, which is 90 per cent cellophane. The other 10 per cent is bathing suit. It's the newest fad at Malibu beach, playspot of the Hollywood film colony. June Clyde is shown in a cellophane wrapper keeping her schoolgirl complexion nice and fresh. Under the cellophane, so they say, the skin receives all benefits of ultra-violet sun days, producing tan without sunburn. Save the surface and you save all!

INDIGESTION

Take a Pinch of Black-Draught After Meals

If bothered with indigestion after meals, try taking a pinch of Black-Draught just after you leave the table. Many people do this to avoid indigestion. Mrs. H. A. Goff writes from Sherman, Texas, to say: "I suffered with indigestion—a full feeling. I would almost lose my breath. My food disagreed with me. I began taking a pinch of Black-Draught after each meal, and I found that was the best way. I soon was relieved of so much gas, and the smothering spells did not come on so bad. I soon began to feel much better. Since then, my health is much improved."

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

ABRAHAM'S GENEROSITY

Text: Gen. 13, 5-15.
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 24.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist
No lesson could be more appropriate for study at the present hour than the story of Abraham's ideal and practice of peace in a distant age. In one section of the globe armies are in conflict, while in another section the representatives of nations, that are armed in militaristic rivalry as never before in history, are met to consider the possibility of promoting peace through disarmament.

One cannot consider this lesson, and then view the world, without realizing how the modern world with its pretense of progress, and its tendency to despise the past, still lags far behind Abraham and other great seers and prophets of the past who had the vision of peace and the daring to practice it.

The story of our lesson presents with much vividness exactly the sort of situation that through the course of history has made for strife between individuals, between families, between communities and between nations. The occasion was a question not only of material interests but of alleged rights.

In a pastoral world the good pastures and the accessible watering places constituted the highest boon. For these, men were ready to fight with their fellows, and despite the family relationship between Lot and Abraham, the herdsmen of the two men were quarreling over the best feeding grounds.

It was in this situation that Abraham rose to the height of that sublime devotion to peace which constitutes him a pioneer and leader, to whom we may look for guidance in our own time.

"Let there be no strife," he said, "between your herdsmen and mine." And the ground of his appeal was equally striking. "For," he said, "we are brethren."

To have expressed all that in sentiment would have been very pleasant; but what would it have been worth if it had been a mere pretense under which Abraham was determined to grab the best for himself?

The real power and worth of Abraham's course lay in the fact that he dared to act in accordance with his inner vision and ideal. He said to Lot, "You make your choice. You go to the right and I will go to the left, or you take the left and I will go to the right." Nothing could have been more magnanimous or more complete in its conciliation.

Lot responded, as many men would, by an utter failure to appreciate that magnanimity. He chose what he considered the best country, leaving Abraham to make the best of what was left.

But how blind Lot was in his eager self-interest, and what dire consequences came from his choice! He chose the way that seemed to make for his own aggrandizement, but it was a way that led him to trouble and disaster. His choice brought upon him the moral destruction of his family and the ruin of his career. On the other hand, Abraham with his temporary sacrifice went onward in the path of upright, noble, and truly not only an earthly heritage, but also a place in the progress and welfare of mankind, and in the permanent fame that the world accords ultimately to its great souls.

Boy in a Red Sweater Saves His Father From Bull
By United Press.
MONTESANO, Wash.—Warren Beckwith, 13, wore a red sweater into a bull pen, bottled and subdued a madly charging bull and saved the life of his father, E. O. Beckwith.

The father was knocked down by the bull when he went into the pen. Warren rushed in, red sweater and all, and grabbed a chain which was attached to rings in the bull's nose. The bull turned on him and he dodged behind a tree. Warren seized the chain once more and snubbed it around a tree as the animal rushed past him.

Phosphorus Kills Many Wild Ducks

By United Press.
WASHINGTON.—It looked as if someone had very poor aim when ducks were found dead near a rifle range at Fort Humphreys, Va.

The U. S. biological survey appeared. Shooting had killed the birds all right. But it wasn't bullets. Phosphorus from rifle grenades discharged at the range had gotten in Pothick creek nearby. The ducks pecked for submerged rice and got phosphorus. That killed them.

Army officers have promised to co-operate in preventing further wildfowl losses but the biological survey may have to frighten the ducks away.

EVERY WOMAN faces this question

"How do I look to other people?" If you have a lovely skin, attractive eyes, and plenty of enthusiasm, you need not worry.

So many women, though, risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This cereal provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B which tones the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Special cooking processes make it finer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Surely this is safer than abusing the system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BOB DUNBAR, heir to a large fortune, shows her attentions but he goes away about putting his administration into words. JACK WARREN, a handsome, tall young man, drives one night and kisses her against her will. Susan hears that Dunbar has gone abroad. Susan goes to a gossip column that Dunbar is to be married. Ernest Heath notices Susan's youth and freshness and wonders why his wife is an outcast to her. Waiting tells her that Bob is back to town.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI
THE leaves turned and it was October again. In another month Susan would be 20. When she was busy she scarcely thought about the passage of time, but occasionally when she was tired or things had gone wrong she began to wonder whether she was drifting. It was all very well to be ambitious but where, after all, could she get with this particular job? She had no special flair for the work. She was faithful at routine but beyond that the business world, as Ray called it, disappointed her. Rose had the right idea, Susan would think as she passed down the aisles of a big department store. Rose had chosen to work in a woman's world. When she reached this stage in her reflections Susan was sometimes conscious of a sense of panic. She must succeed at work because there was nothing else for her! She must repay Aunt Jessie for all she had done. It was only fair. It was well enough for other girls to chat idly of marriage, but that was not for her. Since she could not have the one she wanted, she would not content herself with second best. Susan was passing the glove counter in a State street shop one day at noon hour when she heard someone call her name. The girl on the low stool held out one perfectly manicured hand and said, "Sorry it's the left but you see the other one is busy." Susan saw, the saleswoman was fitting a faultless, fawn-colored glove. Denise Ackroyd regarded her shrewdly and as if on an impulse added, "Do have lunch with me. Won't you?" Susan was too surprised to think of an excuse. The other girl ordered half a dozen pair of the gloves as casually as Susan might have bought a newspaper. The saleswoman's manner was markedly deferential. "There, that's that!" said Denise. "Shopping is a horrid bore, isn't it?" She did not seem to require an answer but chattered on in that high imperious voice. "I suppose you're in a bit of a rush. Do you mind if I stop right here? The tearoom's not bad, really." Not bad! Susan thought it the height of quiet luxury. She slipped into a chair at the candlelighted table feeling uncommonly shabby beside this other girl. Denise threw a silver fork scornfully aside and took her vanity kit from a mammoth snake skin bag. "I look a wreck," she pouted, examining herself in the mirror. Susan seized this opportunity to frankly estimate her rival. It was as her rival she always thought of Denise. The other girl's skin had a clear, gardenia-white texture. Her eyebrows were delicately arched and her whole face wore customarily an expression of careless disdain. All her belongings, the fur, the bag, her wadded little gloves, breathed a scent that was elusive and piquant. Susan thought it was whimsical, she felt sure. SHE felt tongue-tied and wondered why she had come. Why hadn't she thought of an excuse? What did this girl want of her? Determinedly she brought her attention back to what Denise was saying. "So sorry to have broken up the party that day you and Bobby were lunching," she said. Susan pretended not to remember. "Oh, well, then, it doesn't matter!" Denise said sweetly. "I thought there was a chance you might be taking him seriously and that would be bad." "Would it? Why?" Susan's voice was grave. Denise laughed a silvery, little trickle of amusement. "Why? She asks me that." She raised her eyes in mock amazement. "Surely you know his reputation." Susan dipped her spoon into the clear soup and fixed her candid gaze on the other girl. "I know very little about him," she said quietly, "except that he's pleasant and friendly." "Oh, my dear, is that all?" There was the faintest edge in Denise's tone now. "He's charming, that man! He's a lamb but you have to know him through and through as I do to—well, to appreciate him."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD — AN AMERICAN, ON LANDING IN PAGO-PAGO MUST SURRENDER HIS PASSPORT, JUST AS IF HE WERE ENTERING A FOREIGN COUNTRY! ALSO, HE MUST PUT UP $100.00 TO GUARANTEE HIS GOOD BEHAVIOR... THEN, WHEN LEAVING, HE MUST PAY TO HAVE HIS PASSPORT REISSUED! AND ALL THIS TIME HE HAS BEEN ON AMERICAN SOIL. THE WORLD'S SMALLEST ANIMAL... (PLEUROMONAS JACULANS) IS LESS THAN ONE THIRTEEN-THOUSANDTH OF AN INCH IN LENGTH. A TERN, RELEASED AT CAPE HATTERAS, FLEW TO ITS NEST AT BIRD KEY IN THE GULF OF MEXICO, A DISTANCE OF 1,000 MILES.

PLEUROMONAS JACULANS, the world's smallest animal, has a diameter only about one-tenth the diameter of an average human hair. It lives in ditches and pools. If the pool dries up, the tiny animal rolls up into a ball and waits until more water falls, or a wind blows it away to another puddle. Pleuromonas belongs to the group of animals known as protozoa, and has existed almost since the dawn of life. TERNS can reach home from great distances, over land that is absolutely barren of guiding marks. On Bird Key, where great numbers gather during the nesting season, a tern can pick out her own eggs, or chicks, from many thousands of others that look exactly alike. Pulley, Ranger, Texas, is representing the Morris Plan bank of Fort Worth in Eastland county and is prepared to make loans on a very liberal basis. Mr. Pulley has an advertisement in today's paper and invites anyone who is in need of funds to investigate his proposition and says it does not cost a penny to phone him or drop in at 313 South Rusk, Ranger, and investigate. Beaumont Claims Youngest Pilot. BEAUMONT.—Max Leon, 16, a 1931 graduate of the high school here, is believed to be the youngest licensed airplane pilot in Texas. KC BAKING POWDER. SAME PRICE forever 40 years. 25 OUNCES FOR 25¢. MILLIONS OF POUNDS USED BY OUR GOVERNMENT. Fifty and Fit. A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs. At fifty, you can be in your prime. Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years? There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways. This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive. Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

HERE'S WHY: Feel stuffy, drowsy, uncomfortable after eating? Even the simplest foods often cause this unhealthy, unpleasant condition. It is the result of excess acids in the digestive tract and unless checked, frequently leads to more serious disorders—kidney, liver troubles, chronic constipation, rheumatism.

Company's furniture showrooms. Seeing is believing, but just believe me when I tell you about the pretty and colorful display arrangement for the personal purpose of offering party suggestions for the many hostesses who will entertain during the spring and summer months.

New ideas presented at parties can do emphasize charm and artistic taste when nothing else will. For the honorary occasion and bridge party you are planning soon, why not select prizes from the rare variety to be found at this smart home? Haven't you attended a beautiful party, everything stunning and tasty, except the most personal touch of all, the prize. Prizes, chosen from this lovely array of suggestions will be sure to add personal value.

As one enters the Killingsworth-Cox home, a long table decked in bright colors of springtime seems to beckon you closer immediately. There you will find the right gift for every occasion, and especially for bridge functions.

And after all don't you think there is a lot of satisfaction to know you are presenting a gift selected from so smart and up-to-date place? These apparently little things add greatly in stressing that one envied quality charm and individual taste.

National Better Homes Week Begins Monday!

Better Homes Week Should Remind You of Furniture

The furniture need not be expensive but it should be complete. A bed, dresser and chest of drawers may comprise a suite, but rugs, pictures, lamps, mirrors and other so-called "little things" mean the difference between a comforting homelike atmosphere and merely a place to dress and sleep.

We invite the homemakers of this territory to visit our model home setting demonstration during National Better Homes Week.
