Evacuation Of Bonus Army's Started Today

RIPINGS

By GUS
I finally found out how Cat Dowdy got his name. So often he goes fishing comes in with a story about some cat striking at a fly and hooked. He came in with the old racket yesterday giving me a deck credit for catching channel cat. As evidence that he had been fishing, Dowdy was holding a golf ball he claimed was fourth. Those two can back the most wonderful fish I've ever heard, but they come in and out a sander something. I never see eating fish.

Lost in Andes

Grave fears are held for Charles J. Robinson, pilot (above), and eight others aboard the Pan-American-Grace air liner thought to have been forced down by a storm on a flight over the Andes from Santiago to Buenos Aires. Robinson and the other two members of the crew were Americans; the passengers all South American. Rescue planes found no trace of the lost ship.

FUNERAL FOR J. M. GHOLSON HELD TODAY

One of the most impressive and at the same time most far reaching funeral services ever held in Ranger, because it affected practically every resident of Ranger and every former resident of the town, was conducted at the First Methodist church of Ranger this afternoon when last rites for John M. Gholson were held.

The Passing On of John M. Gholson (An Editorial)

In life, the people of Ranger had learned to look upon John Gholson as an institution. Little did they think nor do they now realize how much his presence will be missed in the community and how unlikely it is that someone will step into his rank as the town's first citizen.

Eastland County Should Support Hon. O. C. Funderburk

The ability of Judge Funderburk was recognized by the Governor of Texas when he was appointed to fill out an unexpired term as Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals, Eleventh Judicial district.

Attorneys and others who are familiar with Judge Funderburk's work know that he is considered among the best in reviewing and briefing cases. In his private practice before his appointment to his present position, he was a member of one of the leading law firms of the county and his duties were especially the study of rulings of the higher courts and the application of them to the cases under immediate consideration.

Now Judge Funderburk is making his first campaign before the people for the office he now holds by appointment. There has been none and should be no mud-slinging in the campaign for such an office. There are no aspersions whatever to be cast toward his opponent.

Judge Funderburk gave up a private practice to accept the appointment for an unexpired term. His record in the office stands without criticism. He has been faithful to the trust placed in him. In all fairness and equity Judge Funderburk should receive every vote in Eastland county and a majority of the votes in the remainder of the district and be placed in the office for a full term in his own right.

FIGURES FOR FARMERS AND LIVESTOCK

State Auditor Moore Lynn in his report shows the disbursements for the development and conservation of natural resources were for the year 1920 approximately $773,220 and for the year 1930 approximately $1,813,887, an increase of $1,076,667. Bear in mind this group includes the agricultural experiment stations and forestry service under the direction of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, the department of agriculture, the livestock sanitary commission, the game and fish and oyster commission, and the state reclamation department and the board of water engineers.

A reminder that the farmers and livestock producers of Texas as well as the truck growers and orchardists of Texas are largely responsible for these departments of government. Why shouldn't they be given protection? Texas is the greatest of agricultural states. Texas is the greater producer of wool and mohair. Texas leads in sheep and goats. Texas takes high rank as a swine producing state. Texas is famous for its orchards and gardens. It is famous for its production of vegetables of all kinds. It is destined to be one of the greatest citrus producing states in the union. Really, the appropriations made are pitifully small. They are made for vast industries which like the Forgotten Man had been given grudgingly assistance in years ago.

A modern commonwealth must have highways of the best. A modern commonwealth must have a university and colleges and public schools of the best. Texans, to their credit be it said, have been building highways and they have been giving support to the cause of education.

Hammer time in the ears of the ballyhoosers that 90 per cent of the cost of government is due to increases in yearly expenditures for highways and education, and only 10 per cent of the increase is divided among the various other governmental functions.

Texas has a population over the 6,000,000 mark, and Texas, or Texans, are not going to take the back track. They should demand responsible government. They should demand honest and efficient government. They should demand an economical expenditures of public money and the way to continue down the broad open highway is to kick advocates of proxy government in the ribs and out of the picture on primary election day. On that day the ballot will be the thing, and on that day the representatives of the Jeffersonian-Cleveland gospel of government should be renominated for governor by a huge majority of the Texas electorate. His name? Ross S. Sterling.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

H. R. YOUNG, Advertising Director of the Columbus (O.) Dispatch, says:

"To my notion a well known newspaper publisher has made a correct diagnosis of why business conditions are what they are today. He says, 'The minds of too many men are confused. There are too many leaders standing still, arguing, apparently waiting for some one to produce a magic formula which will restore conditions to a sound basis.'"

"In every previous depression it was the survival of the fittest and so it will be today. I have before me quite a list of outstanding manufacturers, department stores and national advertisers who reported greatly decreased earnings in 1931 as compared to 1930 and these were all outstanding advertisers during 1931."

"These advertisers who will survive the present depression will be those who continue their persistent, persuasive publicity through the newspapers which are read by all classes."

"Arthur Brisbane says, 'The newspaper is a wholesale voice—a relection of the individual voices and individual conversations of the people. It is the mirror of the world.'"

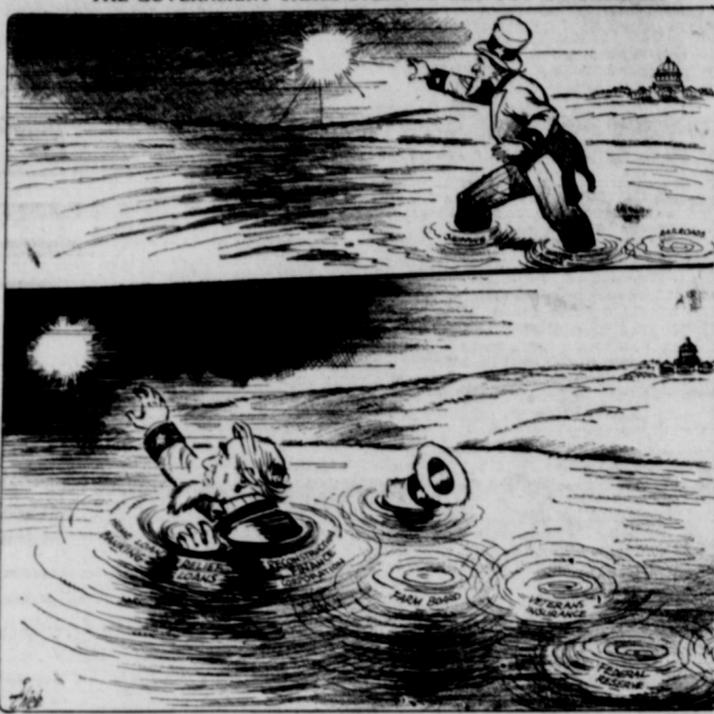

"You must have what people want; you must offer it at the right price, particularly in these days, and you must let people know you have it."

"You must make people see your advertisement, then you must make them read it, understand it and believe it and last you must make them want what you have to sell."

"Just ask D. F. Kelley, head of the Fair Store at Chicago if newspaper advertising pays."

"And you ask Kenneth Collins of the Macy Company and also the president of the Houghton & Dutton Company of Boston about the thousands that responded to a recent sale."

Dominions Sit With England At Ottawa Session

By United Press.

MONTREAL, July 21—Imperial conference, which opens at Ottawa today, with plenipotentiaries from Great Britain and British dominions, sitting as equal members of one commonwealth of nations owing allegiance to a common throne, is assembled for economic discussions.

Political topics arise by implications only, but it is well to remember that the conferees are all politicians. Or perhaps with men like Baldwin, Neville Chamberlain, Ramsden, Lord Halifax, J. H. Thomas, and Cunliffe-Lister representing Great Britain, and either prime minister, or right-hand colleague, representing other dominions, the word statement would be preferable.

Wide Agenda. While agenda for the conference is wide and varied the two main purposes are to establish freer trade conditions between various sections of empire and if possible to agree upon stabilization of currencies or credits to facilitate the same process.

Faced by increasing hostile tariffs throughout the world and hampered by almost equally high tariffs between various dominions and between each of them and England in varying degrees, the empire is endeavoring to lower barriers against its own external trade in the hope partly of excluding the foreigner from the empire market and partly, by this means of bargaining down the foreign barriers to empire goods.

The difficulty heretofore has been Britain's adherence to theoretical free trade for 36 years. Canada has been extending trade preferences to the mother country. Other dominions more recently have followed suit. But Britain had nothing to offer in return and on her part, argued that while doing so she was not doing it for the benefit of the empire but for the benefit of the British goods still not compete.

Protective Tariff. Now, however, the scene is changed. Britain has protective tariff from which, temporarily, dominion goods are excluded. But unless some satisfactory deal is made at this conference the implication is that British duties will apply against Canadian goods and vice versa.

Unfortunately Britain is still free trade on foodstuffs and these comprise the greater part of the things which the dominions want to export to England. It is very doubtful in agent for effecting the popular national government in Britain could successfully enforce a tariff on foreign wheat for instance even with dominions' products entering free.

Whatever happens, it is quite certain that the disposition on all sides is to look at the larger aspect and to work for the wider and ultimate profit even at expense of local and temporary losses.

Currency Problem. The currency question even is more difficult. Parity with the pound is being earnestly advocated in many quarters and the Canadian agricultural west, heavily indebted in agent for effecting the popular national government in Britain could successfully enforce a tariff on foreign wheat for instance even with dominions' products entering free.

After one notable opening session, all the meetings of the conference will be private.

Political Follies of 1932

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—You can get rid of Congress for awhile, but there are congressional investigations in progress all the year around. The congressional investigation is one of our most valuable institutions, which is one reason why it is so badly abused.

A couple of dozen of them either are about to begin or are still in progress. Some of the holdovers seem to have been little more than mere excuses for junkets, but the present Congress has been very cautious about that sort of thing and between caution and campaign work there won't be much of it this summer.

One is that about to be conducted into the loans of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by a committee of five senators headed by Senator James Couzens of Michigan. The R. F. C. has been instructed to submit full information about all its loans.

"Bail Out Bankers" THE R. F. C. investigation, however, is not expected to be either elaborate or sensational. The Senate didn't even appropriate any money for expenses. What has been hitting the upper house particularly has been the recent reported loan of $10,000,000 to Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank & Trust Company of Chicago, and the Missouri Pacific railroad loan, of which $7,000,000, according to a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was used to "bail out the bankers."

The House, free from administration control and in the hands of the Democrats, has been getting in a few investigatory licks of its own. It will work with the Senate in a joint inquiry into the procedure of the income tax division, fulfilling a long-time hope of both Couzens and Speaker John N. Garner, who have persistently charged irregularities in

OTHER investigations ordered by the present Senate include those of air and ocean mail contracts, the prices of wheat, meat and sugar, the effect of deflation of foreign currency values on American imports, Department of Justice operations in Cleveland and rents in the District of Columbia.

The House will investigate holding companies, federal competition with private business, postoffice construction projects, overlapping federal, state and municipal taxation and the silver situation.

Is Still "Mayor" After 12 Years Places Origin Of U. S. Indians

By United Press.

ASTORIA, Ore.—Once a Roman, always a Roman; once a mayor, always a mayor. So reasons Francis Clay Harley, former mayor of Astoria, who still clings to the title, although it has been more than a dozen years since last he set foot in this city.

City officials are occasionally reminded of Harley, especially around the first of each month. They have come to expect the usual flood of bills for sundry wants from all over the country, addressed to the "Hon. Francis C. Harley, Mayor of Astoria."

Recently, J. C. Ten Brook, present mayor, received an urgent request from a Washington, D. C. hotel for $200—contracted by the irresponsible Harley during a brief visit.

More recently, however, Astorians were surprised to find in out pictures of the jovial and picturesque ex-official in characteristic poses, appropriately captioned, "The Famous Mayor of Astoria, Ore."

Although press dispatches failed to mention the fact, Harley was very much in the picture at the recent national political conventions. The picture he presented was himself as chairman of the National Liberal Alliance Movement. A Chicago photographer sent him a bill for this service, but received a reply that the ostensible Mr. Harley was no longer connected with this city's administration.

One glance at the two vice presidential candidates shows that the old game of cowboy and Indian is about to be revived.

the Treasury's handling of tax refunds and other matters.

Two Campaign Probes

EACH branch will have its own committee investigating campaign expenditures, with most drawbacks, if any, provided by the Senate group headed by R. B. Howell of Nebraska. The senators have $25,000 with which to investigate, the representatives only $10,000. No large slush funds are likely to be uncovered.

The Senate investigation of the Federal Farm Board has begun at last, with McNary of Oregon and Norris of Nebraska in charge. The committee in charge of that, which will give special attention to marketing operations and the question how the board may best be utilized if continued, expects to make a report in December when Congress meets again.

Inquiry into the stock market, which brought some sensational revelations of "rigging" three or four months ago, has largely been completed and Chairman Norbeck of the Senate committee on banking and currency is now trying to get any relevant evidence he can from the Treasury, the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Federal Trade Commission. This committee also expects to propose remedial legislation at the next session.

List is Limited OTHER investigations ordered by the present Senate include those of air and ocean mail contracts, the prices of wheat, meat and sugar, the effect of deflation of foreign currency values on American imports, Department of Justice operations in Cleveland and rents in the District of Columbia.

The House will investigate holding companies, federal competition with private business, postoffice construction projects, overlapping federal, state and municipal taxation and the silver situation.

Another good thing about the depression is the strange absence of postcards saying "Having a fine time. Wish you were here."

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

What with getting things ready for gathering and printing election returns next Saturday night—and probably into the morning hours of the following Sunday—reading proof, going on good will tours and whatnot, we have found no time to get our column written for several days, so we are taking the time we had planned to use going to Eastland on a last mission before the polls open to dash off a few paragraphs. We will have to put our Eastland trip off until sometime Thursday.

And, incidentally, this is being written on Wednesday afternoon because we fear we will have little time for columns and such like on Thursday.

As the ballot is exceedingly long this year, especially in the races for congressmen at large, and in some of the county races, it will take the election judges a long time to tabulate the returns and get them in. There is little chance of getting all the returns from the rural boxes, though they will not have as many votes to count as will the judges of the city boxes in the county.

Therefore, be it resolved that everyone cast their vote as early as possible in order that the judges may get their work started as early as possible and allow them to get the votes counted, tabulated or whatever it is they have to do to decide who is leading who in each race.

If everyone would vote early it would be a big help and the judges, otherwise, as one columnist said "the election clerks will not be able to finish the counting before the August run-off primary." We were under the impression that no votes were counted until after the polls closed, but if the counting starts earlier than that it would be a big help to vote early and not too often.

Anyways, we are going forward with plans for gathering and tabulating the election returns and will endeavor to secure as complete records as possible, with the assistance of Dr. H. B. Tanner of Eastland, who is representing the Texas Election Bureau, and Milton Lawrence, who is going to try to establish a record by getting in all the returns on all the county officers sometime Saturday night.

We have had some forms printed to use in gathering the returns and will get the results of the combined labor of all who help out as early as possible.

Everyone was rejoicing Wednesday because of the nice rain that fell over the county. Eastland and Ranger both got good showers, both of which were needed badly by those who are raising gardens.

This has been one year—so far—when rain has fallen whenever it began to be needed and sometimes when it wasn't particularly dry. If the gardeners and farmers cannot raise good crops this year there probably will not be a better opportunity, as far as moisture is concerned, in many years. Two weeks has been about as long as any drought has lasted.

A big, red wasp has been hovering around us, keeping us from attending strictly to business. Between engagements we have managed to write an average of about three lines. We have worn out one copy of the Breckenridge American, one Ranger Times, and one Cisco News trying to kill him, without result.

That is a hazard we seldom encounter while writing. Usually it is limited to one or two of those persistent flies that light on an ear, only to come back immediately when chased away. We prefer the flies. Though they are a nuisance they do not cause as much commotion as a wasp.

Speaking of the wasp hovering around reminds us that a famous comedian admits that it was a slip of the tongue that made him coin one of his famous wise cracks when he said that "Prosperity is Hoovering around the corner."

THE EMPEROR PENGUIN, of the ANTARCTIC SPENDS ITS LIFE WITHOUT TOUCHING LAND.

JOHN HOWARD PAYNE, AUTHOR OF "HOME, SWEET HOME," WAS REJECTED IN MARRIAGE BY MARY HARDEN BECAUSE HE HAD NO HOME TO OFFER HER.

KATY GERBEN, ANEBRASKA HOLSTEIN COW, GAVE 166,456 POUNDS OF MILK IN HER LIFETIME OF 21 YEARS.

THE EMPEROR PENGUIN, when not swimming in the water for food, is content to spend its time on solid ice. Even nesting takes place on ice, the solitary egg of each pair of penguins being incubated between the legs of the parents. The egg, as it is laid, is transferred to the back of the mother's feet, covered with the soft feathers of the abdomen. If the father the mother insists on helping her neighbors raise their offspring.

THE VOTERS OF JUSTICE

PRECINCT No. 2: It would have been a joy to have been able to have visited your homes, to solicit your support for justice of the peace, but physical condition would not permit me to do that. Therefore I am writing this as a personal appeal to solicit your support for justice of the peace.

I do not consider anyone under an obligation to support me, but I am under many obligations to many good friends for the kindnesses shown me in the past. I have not said an unkind word about any of my opponents, nor do I have any ill feeling towards any of them. Am requesting you return me to the office for another term, for the reason that I believe I can make you a satisfactory officer, in the future as I have in the past.

Thanking you again for any support that you may see fit to render me.

Yours truly, J. N. McPATTER, Candidate for Justice of the Peace. (Political Advertisement)

Filipino Laborers Leaving Hawaii

By United Press. MANILA, P. I.—Filipino laborers from Hawaii and the mainland of the United States are returning in increasing numbers. The largest number to return on a single vessel totaled 400. Hawaii was described by the arrivals as a laborers' paradise during good times but at present is the worst place for Filipinos due to prevailing depression.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

for LOVE or MONEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY Mona Moran who supports her mother, invalid father, little sister, Kitty, and ne'er-do-well brother, Bud, determines to marry for wealth and position. She is receptionist for a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires. Mona's friend, Lottie Carr, fashion model at Pilgrim's exclusive shop, thinks Mona is foolish to work in an office when she could have a job as a model or go on the stage. Formerly Mona was employed at Pilgrim's. She prefers the office because she considers it a sounder route to advancement. As she is leaving the Third avenue flat one morning Mona's brother surprises her with the announcement that Steve Sacarelli, her childhood sweetheart, grandson of the coal and ice dealer, has returned home. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

Steve drew the low-slung car along the curb skillfully.

Mona made her way down the three flights of dreary stairs. The Morans lived as high above the street as the house afforded, so that Kitty would get better air. As Mona dodged empty milk bottles and stepped over garbage cans into the gasoline laden street her heart was beating tumultuously. Steve Sacarelli back! Back from where—and for what? She remembered Steve so well though in the three years of his absence the neighborhood, rife with other gossip, had discarded him. The girl smiled a little forlornly. The sight of him would soon revive much of the old gossip. Gossip about Steve and about Mona, too. Mona had been Minnie then. Steve was the grandson of Tony, the coal and ice man around on Third avenue. Olive-skinned, subtle of expression and intent, lean, imbued with charm and graciousness. Minnie had been spindle-shank-ed—or so Bud had called her—freckled, carrot-topped. In an excusable flash of thought Mona wondered what Steve would think of her now. Three years ago Steve and Mona had been inseparable. Perhaps it was puppy love, perhaps it was the opposition of their elders, or it may have been just for the fun of hearing Mrs. Casey discourse on "that Moran girl" and seeing Mrs. Callahan turn up her nose when Tony's Steve passed by. Perhaps it was something deeper. With the pounding of her heart Mona felt a sudden exasperation. She had aspirations above—well, above Tony's boy! Her father had rather liked Steve when, in his invalid's chair set close by the steps, the boy stopped beside him, bringing him an orange or a banana, cheerfully filched from the Greek's stand. But Mona's mother, less simple than Dad, knew what the neighbors would say. They hadn't breathed on the edge of their seats watching Rudolph Valentino make love for nothing! Steve's eyes and grace were too reminiscent of compromising scenes in the movies to be trusted. It amused Mona to recall that once she had been thrilled by Steve. Steve Sacarelli, the bad boy of the 60's, later a helper in his grandfather's business, and then a taxi driver! Taxi driving was a respected occupation in their neighborhood. It paid good money and a man was his own boss. However, the neighbors suspected Steve. Too many of these taxi chauffeurs were gangsters. And suddenly, swooping down on Minnie as she returned from the shop one evening, Steve had drawn his cab near the curb, talked a moment and then disappeared. There were accounts of a jewel robbery in the newspapers next day. Steve vanished. No one ever had seen him again. Nobody even heard of him except Tony who relayed the word to Steve's mother, unable either to read or write. Tony, the ice and coal man, coming up from his cellar like a protesting gnome, insisted that the boy was "okay." Away, yes, but okay. Steve sent much money home to them through a lawyer. For the sophisticates that settled it Steve was in prison, "taking the rap" for someone higher up who was sending money to Tony until Steve could get out and take care of the family. Then, like other highly colored stories afloat in drab neighborhoods, it ran itself out. Mona never spoke of Steve. Nor had she believed him a gangster. Steve's last bantering chat with her just before his cab careened around the corner and out of sight Mona now understood to have been a farewell. Steve had planned then to go away. The three years that followed had changed Mona but her feeling toward Steve had not changed. She believed in him, was fond of him. Now Steve was back. What would that mean to her? What would it mean to him, perhaps, if he came back expecting to find Mona as she had been three years before? Little drives on hot nights in his battered old car. Trips to Coney. Dancing on an excursion, regarded it admiringly, then whispered with mock secrecy. "I'm not up this early. I'm up this late! Haven't been to bed yet." With the gesture of a detective flashing his badge, Steve pulled back his topcoat. He was wearing evening attire which to Mona's practiced eye spelled perfection. Well, high life—or whatever the clothes implied—was certainly becoming to Steve. Whatever had brought it about sat easily on his conscience, too. Never had she seen him so sure of himself, so world wise. If Steve had consorted with crooks they must certainly be gentlemen. "I'll take you down to your office," Steve suggested after the first excitement of their meeting disappeared. Mona climbed into the seat and Steve jumping in beside her. He started the car with a low, almost imperceptible purr. "Where have you been, Steve?" she asked without parley as they threaded the elevated posts on Third avenue. "You weren't—you weren't—" "In jail!" He turned and regarded her profile seriously. "No! And nothing like it, Min! You know—well, maybe I was mixed (Continued on page 4)

Philippine Island Population Grows

By United Press

MANILA, P. I.—The population of the Philippines today is estimated at 44,890,000, according to health figures. This period covers approximately the period of American occupation.

When Spain relinquished her sovereignty in the island in 1898, the population represented a rate of increase of $3.61 a year for 10,000 population in the 324 years of Spanish domination. When Spain first occupied the islands in 1565, the population was roughly 2,000,000. In 1924, the year when the first census under American regime was taken, the population decreased to 7,633,426. This fall was attributed to the epidemic of cholera which swept the islands, the previous year.

Are you happy? It takes so much to make some people happy. Happiness is just a state of mind, and can be achieved through a mental process as perfectly as any other process. It is not a matter of wealth, but of the state of one's mind, and in determining upon these qualities, happiness is not affected by extraneous conditions.

Boy and Girl's World Club
A delightful instance of the gathering of members of the Boy and Girl's World Club, held by their director, Miss Fred L. Drango, for making the effort of attending the meeting, coming through a dreary, rainstorm, for that purpose, by having a delicious lunch of ice cream, at the club. The session was opened with some "Prayer—The Flag—We Love"—their official patriotic hymn, and the program was conducted by Madge Hearn, presiding in the absence of the president, Miss Mildred Beckman.

as gas gets staler - gas gets weaker

Do you know what happens when gas gets stale? It loses power! As staleness increases, the more volatile parts of gas evaporate. A chemical change takes place when gas is stored. And power decreases! Sluggish pick-up. It is more apt to foul valves and carburetor—because stale gas becomes stiffer as it grows older. Stale gas knocks more, too—particularly on hills.

The whole petroleum industry has long known these facts. And for the past several years, Gulf has been developing a system that assures you of getting FRESH gasoline! How? ...

First, by giving you the best gasoline that can be made—by so refining this gas that the elements that cause rapid deterioration of gasoline are eliminated. Hence, Gulf gas stays FRESH longer.

Second, by taking this FRESH-MADE, PEAK-POWERED gas and rushing it to you in a hurry.

From the moment it is made, Gulf gas never gets a chance to get stale. The whole Gulf organization has been geared up to high speed. Huge Gulf refineries have been placed in many sections of the country—so that a stream of FRESH-MADE gas can be kept flowing into every one of the 45,000 Gulf filling stations. A vast fleet of fast trucks spreads FRESH gas to Gulf stations every day in the year! ... Get FRESH gas—packed with power. Get Gulf. Use it exclusively. Your motor will be cleaner. Quieter. Faster.
