primary. Due to these heavy marketings of lambs, the prospect is for a smaller number of Texas lambs to be available as feeders this fall. The condition of sheep on July 1 is reported at 87 per cent of normal, compared with 87 per cent on June 1; 88 per cent a year ago; and 89.8 per cent the five-year average.

At a recent bankers' meeting, the general opinion was that the future of the United States is still rosy. What a whale of a difference a few millions make.

Geo. L. Davenport

Successful candidate in first primary for County Judge.

Range Conditions In State Are Good

The outlook for summer range feed is very good in Texas, and stock water is plentiful through the Northwest and West Central districts, and much of South Texas. Rainfall through the Panhandle of Texas was general during the latter part of June, and local rains elsewhere were beneficial. Most of the Edward's Plateau region received heavy rains the latter part of June, and the first few days of July, and sheep ranges are very good.

The condition of ranges on July 1 at 85 per cent of normal is 3 points above a year ago, but is 1 point below the five-year average. Ranges show a 1 point decline since June 1—the improvement in the Northwest (Panhandle) being offset by the poorer conditions reported in the South and East districts. Since the first of July however, rains have fallen over much of the South district. Feed crops are very good over most of the state, with prospects for a crop fully as large as a year ago.

Cattle are in good condition, and many are in marketable flesh.

There has been some improvement in the local demand for cattle during the past month. The condition of cattle on July 1 is reported at 86 per cent of normal, compared with 80 per cent on June 1; 87 per cent a year ago; and 88.0 per cent the five-year average. Early calves are making good growth, and the crop is much better than last year.

There has been practically no change in the reported sheep condition during the month. Sheep are in very good flesh, and shipments have been unusually heavy during June. However, marketings fell off for a few days following the heavy rains through the sheep country. A larger than usual percentage of the lambs were dropped early this year, and the movement to market has been exceptionally heavy dur-

WHERE GASOLINE MONEY GOES

State Auditor Moore Lynn's bulletin on comparative state expenditures is captioned "Increase in Cost of Texas State Government," but Sterling has well said that the term "cost of government" is in reality a misnomer when it is applied to the expenditures of the highway department. In considering these expenditures, amounting to $7,052,605 in 1930, it is very important to bear in mind that $35,442,883 of this amount was for permanent improvements in the form of state highways. Yes, get it straight, Motor vehicle owners and drivers are paying for these highways. They are getting away from the old cattle trails. They are giving the people of all sections a system of highways which in time, if the political demagogues are choked off, will not only be the pride of the people of Texas but the vast swarms of tourists that come from other states and nations.

Who would go back to the ox cart period of history? Who would go back to the stage coach? Who would go back to the poney express wagon? Who would go back to the life and the living of a dead civilization?

Texas has a state auditor who has made a record which bristles with accurate facts and figures in his reports.

Judge W. R. Ely, chairman of the state highway commission, is a man of the highest personal integrity, a man of intelligence as well as vision, and a man who believes that public office is a public trust. He may make mistakes like all men make mistakes but he is clean and courageous and high-minded and efficient. He has given the lie direct to the charge that the highway funds of Texas have been misappropriated or diverted from the original purpose of this fund after the creation of the highway commission, and when this man from the west, this public servant who has never dodged an issue or been dragged into the courts of the states, gives the lie to an accusation he smiles and he waits a rejoinder.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN LEADS ALL THE REST

Charlie Chaplin is the richest taxpayer in the movie world. He possesses taxable stocks and bonds valued at $7,687,570 and cash and solvent credit totaling $295,600. Charlie is frugal. His automobile is worth only $770. Well, perhaps he has a memory. He came out of the stumps of Whitechapel where a crust is a meal. He fought his way to the top. Greta Garbo has a car listed at $220 while Gloria Swanson has a harp worth $350. It appears, speaking of salaries, they are cutting to the bone in the magic city of Hollywood. Will Rogers continues a top-notch and he has more ways of making money than any movie actor in the American world. Never overlook the fact that he contributes an interesting page for the edification and education and exhilaration of the readers of many newspapers.

INDIANA REPEALERS ARE BUSY

Indiana legislative repealers by a house vote of 55 to 53 tossed aside the state bone-dry law, said to be the most drastic under the American sun. Other measures will follow. One will legalize medicinal liquor and place a tax upon the same. Hoosier appears to have turned a flip-flop on the banks of the Wabash.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Sangre De Cristo (Blood of Christ) is the picturesque name of the rugged mountain range that shadows the horizon of Pueblo, Colo., a city that impressed me with its unusual combination of industrial, agricultural, and recreational pursuits, making the most of its location, sandwiched in between the peaked mountains and the rolling plains of "Colorful Colorado."

I was fortunate in having as my guide in this progressive city Mr. W. N. Clark, president of Southern Colorado Power company, a director of the Chamber of Commerce, where he serves as chairman of the New Industries committee, and a director of the Colorado association, one of the most far-reaching and successful promotional organizations in the world. Driving out through the industrial section of the city toward the towering stacks of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, an immense industry which normally employs about 5000 men, we passed a broom factory whose products, made from broom corn grown in the southeastern part of the state, go to all parts of the country; a packing plant that is one of the largest of its kind west of Chicago; a brick and tile works; and other industrial plants that are contributing to the steady growth of Pueblo.

Re-crossing town to visit the beautiful residential sections, we passed over the viaduct of the new Arkansas River—or rather the new channel of the old Arkansas. Following a flood 11 years ago, the citizens of Pueblo, with government permission, promoted a unique engineering feat which completely changed the location of the river, supplying adequate flood protection so that there can never again be a repetition of their flood experience.

From the residential section, where lovely wide streets are lined with beautiful homes, we passed into the agricultural districts. Here, in neat green patches are flourishing truck gardens, doubled in value by irrigation pumped from underflow water, and furnishing a prosperous occupation for thousands of people.

Never out of sight of the mountains, we turned back toward them at last and went up over a splendid road into the glorious coolness and fragrance of the San Isabel National Forests, one of the country's popular play-grounds in the heart of the mountains. Pueblo is the gateway to this beautiful vacation park where great throngs of tourists visit every year, and only a short 45 minute drive from one of the most fascinating mountain roads I have ever traversed.

Pueblo abounds in sunshine, cordial people who combine east with west, and most abundant facilities for both livelihood and happiness.

Japan Is Best Fitted To Rule In Manchuria

By HENRY T. RUSSELL, United Press Staff Correspondent. LONDON.—Somebody must control Manchuria, and Japan is best fitted for the job, according to George A. Hartland, conservative member of parliament for Norwich, a student of Far Eastern affairs since he visited the Far East, as long ago as 1908.

"As far back as 1908," he said, "one could almost feel the difference in control when traveling from Russia under the czars into Japanese spheres of control. I can still remember scenes at the railway stations en route. In Russia, pandemonium, so to speak, reigned everywhere. Officials rushed here and there, getting in and out of trains. Passengers got in cars, then hurriedly stepped out, obviously uncertain as to the destination of the train they had been told to enter."

"What a difference," he continued, "to see the small but efficient Japanese officials direct their people quickly, quietly and in perfect harmony. The difference in system was obvious. One did not have to consult signboards to find out whether one was in one country or another."

Manchuria cannot remain alone, he added. "She can be independent, if you like, but always must be under someone's protection. I believe the best thing for Manchuria is to be under a sort of well ordered civilized peaceful Japanese protection and I think other powers should not object if the Japanese give Manchuria a reasonably open door policy for the world."

Political Follies of 1932

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer. WASHINGTON.—If Mrs. Hattie Caraway wins the Democratic senatorial primaries in Arkansas on Aug. 9 she will become, since primaries are always equivalent to election down there, the first woman ever elected to the United States Senate for a full term.

The precedent of masculinity in the upper house will then have been smashed completely. There seems to be a very fair chance that Mrs. Caraway will do just that, because six men have entered the race against her and they are going to split up the vote. It almost seems as if all the unemployed male politicians of Arkansas had suddenly decided that the lady would be very easy meat when she came up for re-election and acted accordingly.

But, although it is likely enough that one man might have defeated the widow of the late Senator Thaddeus M. Caraway, it is less likely that six men will be able to beat her. She has a strong nucleus of voters among those who idolized her late husband and those who will vote for her either because she is a woman or because she is the incumbent.

Sort of "Honorary" Senator

BEING a senator has been a sort of honorary affair for Mrs. Caraway up to date. She was appointed by a gallant governor and the state organization agreed to back her thereafter in the special election to fill out her husband's term, which expires next March. She had a couple of opponents then, but won overwhelmingly.

She flabbergasted the politicians of the state when she suddenly declared as a candidate for re-election to the next six-year term.

It had been a graceful gesture to make her a senator for just a little while, but the theory was that she would merely sit back and draw her salary. Political ambition was the last thing that anyone would have attributed to the demure, retiring Hattie Caraway.

Faithful in attendance and attention, she came to feel that she was adequate for the job and that she liked it.

As a senator Mrs. Caraway has been a sad and lonely widow but has demonstrated plenty of good sense.

AN UNSOPHISTICATED, simple woman, she has voted independent, has disregarded the leadership of Senator Joe Robinson, who is as much a political boss as anyone in Arkansas, has stood off the lobby lists—male and female—who sought to use her and capitalize her as the first female senator and has voted in sympathy with the masses of people in her state.

"Kingfish" Her Friend HER seat was next to that ebullient friend of the people, Kingfish Huey Long of Louisiana. One day Huey bounced into her office and announced: "You've done a good work. I like you. I'm going to help you." So he went and made a Senate speech in high praise of Mrs. Caraway, asking the people of Arkansas to re-elect her for the "sake of the common people."

He cited her record as showing votes for the progressive measures, for farm relief, for oil and lumber tariffs, dwelling especially on her votes for high taxes on the rich.

"The independence that has been shown by that lady is a remarkable credit and will stand forever as a landmark to the womanhood of the nation," said Long.

Mrs. Caraway hasn't made any speeches in the Senate, but Arkansas is being flooded with copies of Long's speeches. Her office here is a hive of activity while she campaigns by radio and in person in the state.

The Other Candidates NEITHER Robinson or the state organization appears to be identified with any of the seven senatorial candidates, but Long, since his hot attacks on the Senate majority leader, has become something of a hero with the anti-Robinson element in Arkansas. His speech is likely to be a lot of help.

The other candidates are former Senator W. F. Kirby, defeated by Caraway years ago; ex-Governor Charles H. Brough, National Committee member Vincent M. Myles, former American Legion Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, M. M. Martin, a Little Rock attorney, and former Sheriff W. G. Hutton, running as a wet. Reports indicate that the vote is likely to be widely split and that there is not yet one man expected to run well ahead of the rest.

Reduction Is Made On Firestone Tires

Mr. Morton of the Texas Service station, Ranger, announced today a special reduction of 20 per cent on Firestone tires for three days this week-end.

An allowance will be made on your old tires in this special sale, which is being made on tax-free tires. The sale has been announced because of the fact that the station overstocked on tax-free tires just before the tax became effective and now they are to reduce their stock by offering the lowest prices in years.

Airways Beats Its Own Record NEW YORK.—American Airways, Inc., transport subsidiary of The Aviation corporation, surpassed all its previous records for mileage, passengers and air mail poundage during June, it has been announced by LaMotte T. Cohn, president.

During June 1,000,820 miles were flown; 9,093 revenue passengers and 153,361 pounds of mail carried, an increase of 49.9 per cent in miles, 80.4 in passengers, and 16.9 in mail poundage over June, 1931.

"Air line operators have created an insistent public demand for air service by steadily improving their facilities, by speeding up their planes, and by maintaining rates which are attractive," said Cohn, "and their endeavors have succeeded in making air transportation one of the few projects which has steadily improved during a period when all other forms of transportation have shown a marked decrease."

Some people just never can be satisfied. When a wire dispatch told gold ballstones the size of golf balls falling in Kansas, one man wanted to know whether it meant the new or old size.

God has made something man can never imitate, a human being. Think of the wonderful mechanism of the body...

There is nothing more beautiful to contemplate than a perfectly formed beautiful and brain-balanced body.

The reflection of this love of physical beauty, is evidenced in the modern day, by the countless athletic regimens...

This is merely an expression of worship of beauty. The human race is justly entitled to this form of worship.

The example was set as in the days of Eden. We are told God created all things first...

Painters have depicted the beautiful form of Eve and the manly form of Adam...

And so it is natural that we would worship beauty in human form, because beauty is divine, when it is real beauty...

Bud's hand was already on the door. He opened it narrowly and said, "Obey."

BUD MORAN slid through the door of Buck Harkins' private office at the Halycon Club. He closed the door softly and leaned against it, his eyes traveling quickly over the room.

Buck, wearing full evening dress, bent over a cigarette-scarred desk, his round face perspiring beneath the hanging electric light.

"Well, Kid," he said at length. "How's tricks?"

Buck's expert eye surveyed Bud for a brief instant, noting the boy's perturbation. "What's wrong, Kid? Somebody take your stick of candy?"

Bud threw out his hands with a gesture of irritation. "I seen my sister out front, Buck."

"Sister?" Buck Harkins' voice dropped to a purr. "Well, lots of folks' sisters are out front tonight, Kid. We're doing a fine business. Fine! What's wrong with that, Kid?"

AGAIN Bud made the gesture of futility. The older man motioned him to a chair and with a sudden slump the boy sat down.

"Lots of sisters out there, Kid," he purred again. "Such pretty girls!"

BUCK HARKINS was not the man's real name, Bud knew. Once long ago Buck had taken a "tap" for a gangster higher up and the title had descended to his shoulders.

"Suppose she did see you!" Buck waddled back to his seat and began tapping the desk speculatively. "What could happen? The worst she could do was ask why you were spending money in a sucker's joint."

"She saw me come in here," Bud told him. "Till her you came to complain about your bill. Plenty do!" Harkins smiled faintly.

"What's that? . . . I don't mean for several hours or over night. Put on to cook in cold water and bring to a boil, then boil ten minutes and remove scum as it rises. Simmer until tender. Cool in the water in which it was cooked. Remove to a large plate or platter."

Bud rose and went to the opening for a moment. "Look, Buck," he said as the music suddenly stopped. "There's my sister, the girl in green. Red-headed. You can't miss her. She's gone to that table just beyond that post. There."

The pride in Bud's voice brought the other to his side. Buck Harkins was interested in pretty girls. He applied his eye diligently and drew in his breath with a low whistle.

"Whew! Classy dame. Just the kind of a get-up we like to see in this place. They dress up the act, Kid." He turned a loopy, crafty smile on Bud, his lids lowering slowly.

The perturbation mingling with pride in Bud's face was real. "Suppose she did see you!" Buck waddled back to his seat and began tapping the desk speculatively.

"What could happen? The worst she could do was ask why you were spending money in a sucker's joint."

"She saw me come in here," Bud told him. "Till her you came to complain about your bill. Plenty do!" Harkins smiled faintly.

maybe; I mean yes, positively. . . . Not for 20 minutes? . . . Okay." "Chile doesn't want you for 20 minutes. He's letting out a dame. Blond Annie is 'od to double cross him."

"I heard so," Bud replied crossly. Their eyes met. "Well, don't find out by experience, Kid."

"Okay." Buck went back to his figuring, breathing loudly, wetting the tip of his pencil between moist red lips. His manner was awkward, clumsy but his figures were sure. Bud, watching, knew the inadvisability of trying to put anything over on such a power.

AT last the line of figures seemed to satisfy. Buck folded it, jerked open a small drawer before him and laid the sheet carefully inside. Then he wiped his forehead as though a difficult job had been completed and pressed a button at the side of his desk.

A waiter appeared promptly. "Ginger ale," Buck said. He looked at Bud. "Have some, Kid? No? Make it one. Jake, or wait! Make it two—one glass."

"Now kid," Buck went on impressively. "Don't get sure. You ain't drinking when you string along with this outfit, see? We ain't drinkers and we ain't killers." Perhaps he thought of Blond Annie for he added hastily, "Not you 'n me, anyway."

"And I ain't a chauffeur, Buck. I'm a waiter."

British Speed On the Cinders FOLLOWING quickly the warning of Mel Sheppard, U. S. Olympic winner at London in 1928, to "watch Great Britain in the middle-distance events," comes word from London that England's strength for the coming games at Los Angeles will be concentrated entirely on the track events.

Mr. Milton Brunner, this column's observer in England, writes that "Great Britain, by the very composition of its team, has given up hope of taking from the United States the all-around championship record, but the belief exists that several British runners will come away with Olympic titles."

Nineteen competitors sailed on the Empress of Britain July 12, writes Mr. Brunner. They landed in Canada, spending a few days in the dominion before proceeding west to Los Angeles.

Title Meet Disappointing THE British Olympic Association left the composition of the team very much to the Amateur Athletic Association, which holds a great athletic meet every year in London. From the standpoint of winners, this year's meet was a disappointment, in that none of the British athletes reached Olympic standards in the field events. For that reason, and also for reasons of economy, it was decided to send no competitors in those events. British strength will be confined to track events.

The ace of the English sprinting team, according to Mr. Brunner, is F. P. Reid, gallant Brit Scot from the Atlanta Club. Reid did 100 yards in 9.9 seconds, beating E. L. Page of the Blackheath Harriers and S. C. Fuller of the Great Yarmouth Athletic Club by inches. He also won the 200-meter assignment by defeating Page again, and S. E. Englishart of the York Harriers, over the turning in 22 seconds. Reid, Page,

"Don't want to handle any car." "Beh!" The older man patted Bud's arm almost soothingly. "You ain't going to handle a car. You're all right, Kid. If you do what we tell you, you're all right. Even if they get you they can't hang anything on you. Trust me. Now here—" he drew his chair closer.

"You're all wet on that stuff about your sister, Kid. You stay where you are. Suppose she did see you—what of it? Tell her—what do you want to tell her, Kid?"

"She thinks I've got a job in Fordham."

"Tell her the boss sent you down with a note for me," Buck considered briefly. "Take $20 home to your mother every Saturday. That'll fix her—makes you a steady guy, good to your family. You sleep there, eat there and stick around when we don't want you. Kid your sister along—"

"I borrowed a quarter from her today," Bud said, grinning. "Fine! Pay her back Saturday. Make them think you are on the up and up. A boy's sister is a good friend if he gets in a jam. Family stuff. That's goes down deep with a jury."

IF Bud's eyebrows heightened, Buck went on coolly. "Don't let on that you seen her tonight. If she says anything act innocent and surprised. Show her this receipt and stop worrying."

The waiter returned with a tray, a bottle of ginger ale, a glass and a huge sandwich. "Chef say geeve you okay, sair."

"There was a silence. Buck Harkins looked at his watch and spoke softly. "Twenty minutes is up, Kid. Chile's waiting. You'll beat your red-headed sister home."

Bud picked up his hat with alacrity. "And give Tony this, Kid."

Bud's hand was already on the door. He had opened it narrowly. "Okay."

Alone Buck Harkins returned to survey the dance floor. The orchestra was shimmering into a melody and the floor was filling with couples. The lights, changing color, slid over white tables, gay gowns, austere dinner coats.

"How they dance!" Buck shrugged. There was no flattery in his tone. His beady eyes darted among the throng, searching out this or that habitue. Again he saw Mona. Her green gown, her red-dish gold hair, gleaming against the black shoulder of her partner. Who was the man?

It was no one Buck had ever seen before. Wait—! they were turning. The man's face was thrown into relief against the wall. Red, yellow, orange lights filtered over them. Buck chuckled suddenly and slapped the wall with a pudgy hand.

"I'm a son of a gun!" he announced and went back to his desk. As he finished the sandwich, Buck thought rapidly, still chuckling. "Why, that was Steve Saccarelli!"

"Let's see, what had he been hearing about Steve? What did they have on that baby, anyhow? Almost immediately Luck remembered."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Writer

WHAT homemaker among us who does not happily welcome any suggestion that saves time in the preparation and serving of meals? A little careful planning makes it possible to assure most women of many leisure hours.

Meat loaves and cold cuts can be prepared to do duty for two or more meals and they are available in pleasing variety. Corned beef, beef and calves' tongue, cold roast, Canadian bacon, California ham, "regular" ham as well as baked and jellied meat loaves and cold sliced roasts make delicious meats for summer days.

The care of meals after cooking is of prime importance if they are to remain attractive to the last morsel. In the first place they must be kept very cold in order to preserve them perfectly. Then they must be kept cold and firm. Cut in slices to serve.

Beef and calves' tongue can be bought salted or fresh. The salted or 'pickled' tongue is always freshened before cooking. Let beef's tongue stand in water over night to freshen; four or five hours should be enough for calves'.

Cover the fresh or freshened tongue with cold water and cook slowly until tender. Salt is added to fresh tongue, 2-4 teaspoon to a pound of meat, after the tongue has cooked about one hour. Let cook in water in which it was cooked and remove skin and roots.

Serve sliced cold in a hot cream sauce with broiled tomatoes.

Entries for the 1500-meter races are J. F. Cornes of Oxford University Athletic Club and R. H. Thomas of the Royal Air Force. Cornes did his mile in the A. A. A. contest in four minutes 14.5 seconds. "T. E. Evenson of the Salford Harriers did the two-mile steeplechase in the A. A. A. games in 19 minutes 13.4 seconds, a championship record. He and G. W. In determining the team of 5000-meter runners, the winning time in the three-mile qualifying race was 14 minutes 23.4 seconds."

Automobile Faster Than Golf Ball

By United Press.
DETROIT—A motor car speeding 120 miles an hour moves faster than a golf ball in flight, even if the ball is driven by a Gene Sarazen.

A group of motor magicians proved this to Sarazen, 1932 British and American Open champion, here recently with a series of tests.

The question of the relative speeds of golf balls and motor cars came up when Sarazen dropped into the offices of Col. J. G. Vincent, vice president of the Packard Motor company, for a chat. Sarazen contended his drives moved faster than a motor car.

Vincent defended the automobile. They agreed to make the tests.

The test was repeated four times. Each time the car beat the ball by approximately four-tenths of a second. Engineer with stop watches, who timed the tests, said the ball traveled approximately 120 miles an hour for 100 yards. It slowed up, however, they said, to 100 miles an hour before it landed.

Honor Popular Visitor With Smart Bridge Affair.

Summer garden flowers intermingled with lacy greenery were arranged in graceful effects in low baskets and bowls throughout the rooms to carry out a green and gold color motif last evening when Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Smith most graciously entertained with a smartly appointed bridge affair, at their home, Wilson and Summit streets, naming as honoree of the hour Mrs. C. T. Hinton of Gilmer, who has been the pleasant house guest of friends and relatives this month. The popular honoree will be well remembered in Ranger as the former Miss Nell Tibbels, accomplished musician.

Tables for games of bridge were strikingly dressed in two tones of the selected color note, completing the tints of harmonizing gold and green. As the last game drew to a close Miss Frances Alderson of Dallas, niece of the host and hostess, was awarded a lovely set of silhouettes for high score, with Mrs. E. K. Smith making low score.

High score for the gentlemen was won by Mr. V. O. Denny, who was presented a novel and pretty leather pillow; low score prize, a lotus cigarette case, with Mrs. V. V. Cooper Jr. The honoree was the delightful recipient of a set of heat-proof dishes, one of the newest features in glassware.

At daintily appointed quartette tables which were re-appointed and covered, each guest was served with an ice course of fruited punch with confections.

Those enjoying the colorful affair and the Smiths' splendid hospitality were Messrs. and Meses Sam Gamble, C. B. Pruet, O. V. Denny, V. L. Cooper Jr., E. K. Smith, Fred Dreinhofer, Leslie Hagaman, R. Large Attendance Hears Inspirational Bible Lesson at W. M. S.

The largest attendance of the entire summer meetings enjoyed the inspirational Bible lesson given by Mrs. Gid J. Bryan Monday afternoon at Women's Missionary society, of the First Methodist church. The entire hour was devoted to the lesson discussion given in the able and impressive manner of the leader in charge.

Mrs. Bryan chose as her subject "The Life and Character of Joseph," which truly developed into a lesson of unusual interest.

Time was given to the announcement made for next Monday's study, which will be observed in the regular monthly business meeting together with the course program. An interesting note will feature the program at this time when Mrs. Walter Harwell will present the Monthly Missionary News which is looked forward to at the close of each month of study.

The society has made many accomplishments during the year and have for the future a program of inspiring plans.

One of the most successful occasions to have been given by its members of the society was that the plate luncheon served downtown last Saturday. The ladies charge began serving at 11:30 and served until late in the afternoon.
