PRESIDENT HOOVER AND HIS AMAZING FLIPFLOP

President Hoover is a slow traveler. Four years ago Alfred E. Smith declared that the 18th amendment was a colossal failure and that its revision as well as the revision of the Volstead act would be only a matter of time.

Now all these bolters from the democratic states did their level best to crucify National Chairman John J. Raskob. They hammered him unmercifully. They branded him as a republican wet in the holy atmosphere of the synagogue of Jefferson.

President Hoover has made his speech of acceptance. He jumped far in advance of the platform declaration of his Chicago convention. He swallowed the Raskob plan of state control of the liquor problem with the federal government as the police power to see that there should be no invasion by wet states of the dry commonwealths by wet states of the dry commonwealths of the sisterhood.

"EACH STATE SHALL BE GIVEN THE RIGHT TO DEAL WITH THE PROBLEM AS IT MAY DETERMINE BUT SUBJECT TO ABSOLUTE GUARANTEES IN THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES TO PROTECT THESE STATES FROM INTERFERENCE AND INVASION BY ITS NEIGHBORS, AND THAT IN NO PART OF THE UNITED STATES SHALL THERE BE A RETURN OF THE SALOON SYSTEM WITH ITS INEVITABLE POLITICAL AND SOCIAL CORRUPTION AND ITS ORGANIZED INTERFERENCE WITH OTHER STATES."

This was the state's rights plan of solution advocated by the democratic standard-bearer four years ago. This is the home rule plan that John J. Raskob, the predecessor of James A. Farley, advocated. This is practically the plan of the Chicago platform plank which has as interpreters Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Nance Garner, ever ardent and loyal champions of the rights of the state to settle its own problems as guaranteed by the makers of the federal constitution and remain wet or dry as the majority of the electorate of a commonwealth shall declare at the ballot box.

Now where will the democrats go who bolted the ticket four years ago because they said that Herbert Hoover was the patron saint of prohibition and its noblest champion under American skies? On which the battle for the constitution of the fathers for a government of all the people, and their sacred interests, for the destruction or uprooting of special privileges to the few at the expense of the many under the flag of Jefferson carried in this campaign by a distinguished statesman of New York and another distinguished leader of the people who was born and reared and has fought his battles not under the skies of Texas but as a national lawmaker in the federal halls of legislature.

PUMPING FACTS INTO THE PEOPLE

It is a matter of record that since Ross Sterling took charge of the state highway department in 1927 there has been built in Texas 9432 miles of all types of roads. It is said that the way the calculator proxy arrived at his $100,000,000 canard is to multiply the total miles of road built in the last six years by the present day cost of construction per mile, and deduct that amount from the total money received for the department in the six years. He knows, and if he doesn't know he should be told, and everyone else knows, that the present cost of construction is about 50 per cent less than it was six years ago.

State Auditor Moore Lynn's report shows the average cost of concrete pavement in 1925 and 1926 to have been $2.54 per square yard while the present average cost is $1.19 per square yard. Think of the insult to the intelligence of the people of Texas to attempt to cram such political rot down their throats. Publicity is the thing the state over, newspaper publicity, and it should be the sacred duty of the sons of the fourth estate under Southwestern skies to place before the people all the real facts and figures taken from the record of highway building during two years of proxy government and nearly six years of constitutional government. Pass it along the line. Distribute printer ink literature. Smash the smoke-screens and the mirages which obscure the vision of the uninformed or misinformed or those who have been led astray by the flimsiest political harangues ever broadcast from the stump in Texas.

This Is What They Mean by Good Round Dollars

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

"Only recently we came across your interesting article in the Ranger Times," writes the National School of Pressure Cooking of Eau Claire, Wis., from the Chicago office, "about the rusting of tin cans, and the possibility of the water used in canning as being the cause."

"We are wondering if any of the vegetables that caused rusting had been sprayed with something to prevent disease and to discourage insects? If these vegetables were sprayed, would it be possible for you to obtain information about the composition of the sprays used? If you can, we will appreciate the favor very much."

We took that last sentence to mean that if we can find the information about the sprays and not if we can vegetables, so we asked Roy Jameson about the city water and Ben Whitehouse about the use of sprays on the vegetables that we wanted.

Mr. Whitehouse said that in his opinion the hard water of Ranger made it necessary for the vegetables to be cooked longer than when soft water is used and the fact that the soft-water directions were used in many instances was the cause of the rust. As he expressed it, vegetables cooked in hard water had to be cooked longer in order to expell all the air from the cans. When all air is not expelled, iron oxide forms, causing the rust on the tops of the cans.

This information was relayed along to the N. S. O. P. C. and it is hoped that it will be of some benefit to them. Much someone else is having trouble with the canned beans rusting on them.

The Breckenridge bowlers defeated Ranger Monday night, but not without a struggle. The Ranger team led in the first and second games, but was far outclassed in the third, losing to Breckenridge by a score of 2,198 to 2,172.

One foul was the cause of part of Ranger's grief in the last game, which was lost by a score of 482 to 379, the only game in which the Ranger bowlers scored less than 725.

Pearl Cox was high man for Ranger and third high for the match, lacking but five points of equaling the score made by J. Brewster, and lacking, but three points of equaling the score of H. C. Grushaw. The three high scores were 487, 485 and 482.

The fourth annual invitation golf tournament of the Thurber club will be held at Thurber on Sept. 3, 4 and 5 this year.

An elaborate program has been worked out with closing play of the qualifying rounds of 18-hole medal play being played on Sept. 2. A driving contest will be held at No. 1 tee at 5 o'clock and a dinner and Calcutta pool will be held in the clubrooms at 8 o'clock.

On Sunday 18-hole match play will start in all flights. Monday the semi-finals will be played in the morning, as will the consolation in all flights. Finals start at 2 p. m., Monday, Sept. 5, with a presentation of prizes at 5:30. A dance will be held Monday night at 9 o'clock.

Trophies and prizes to be awarded are for low medal qualifying round, winner of each flight, runner-up in each flight, winner of each consolation flight and winner of the driving contest.

Former champions of the Thurber club invitation tournament are: 1929, C. V. Lyman, Breckenridge; Lonnie King, Eastland, runner-up; 1930, Bob Scott, Colorado, winner, and James Phillips, Ranger, runner-up; 1931, J. S. Barnett, Eastland, winner, and Richard Snider, Dublin, runner-up.

Ralph Wynne of Thurber is chairman of the tournament and all information concerning the event may be obtained from him.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

CONCERT AUDIENCES of the 18th century were a severe trial for the performing artists. Conversations kept up right through the best concerts, and silence warnings were liberally scattered through the programs, with special requests that the "ladies be governed by a becoming silence and decorum." Egg and vegetable throwing was common, and the fear of having a ruined dress kept many a true music lover at home.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

DAVID GIBSON, publisher of the Lorain (Ohio) Journal and Mansfield (Ohio) Journal, says: "Did you ever stop to think that the true basis of prosperity in every community is the home?"

"In the past we have believed that business must prosper before the home would prosper—we have been putting the economic cart before the horse; for sooner or later, directly or indirectly, everything that exists is for the home.

"In these American cities, even the smaller ones, within the past 12 years we have been building elaborate commercial structures that are in a large per cent vacant, and monumental public edifices that are now a tax burden to citizens of reduced incomes.

"All the while these same cities have been 50 per cent underhoused—that is, below a decent standard—often 12 persons sleeping in a single room and frequently two families within the same space separated by an improvised partition or curtain. This is what a banker friend of mine calls the inharmonious distribution of expenditure.

"These blighted areas in which too large a percentage of our populations are forced to live are the basic cause of crime; for we cannot expect a child to grow up in such an environment and control its conduct. It is the cause of crime in the same sense that bad social sanitation was once the cause of typhoid fever and which today is a medical curiosity.

"All this to say nothing of the fact that people who live in miserable physical surroundings have no incentive to buy the comforts and niceties of life from the stores, and the store is just one economic step away from manufacturing industry where jobs, plus wages, equal purchasing power.

"The flow of capital in these cities must be reversed from commercial and monumental public structures to home building if they are to maintain their populations and restore their prosperity.

"It is well to remember in our business-community life that he who standeth in the light of his neighbors' prosperity maketh his own poverty."

The future growth of any city depends upon a program for developing a continuous, adequate improvement in business.

Death Halted Manoel's Work On His Books

By United Press.

LONDON. Historians and bibliophiles hope someone will carry on the valuable literary research in which the late ex-king of Portugal was engaged when he died.

Manoel, whose library at Fulwell Park, Twickenham, contained what is said to be the greatest private collection of Portuguese literature and documents in existence, was writing a history of Portuguese literature at his death.

The story of Portugal's great 15th and 16th century exploits overseas in which famous navigators and explorers who wrested a rich and vast empire out of distant lands and blazed new trade routes around the world, is told more completely in ex-king Manoel's old books and manuscripts than anywhere else.

Manoel's survey of Portuguese literature is drawn from these rare books and is in the form of an elaborate catalogue with many reproductions of the original text.

Several of the most magnificent books in his library were printed in the 15th century. Two are in Hebrew, and appeared in 1489. The only book known to have been printed in Portugal at an earlier date is a single copy in the British Museum. Another 15th century book is the perpetual almanack (1496) of Abraham Zacuto, the astronomer and mathematician whom Vasco da Gamma consulted before he set off on his pioneer journey to India.

The first book known to have been printed in the Portuguese language also is in the library. It is Ludolpho of Saxony's "Life of Christ" in four volumes, which appeared in 1495.

What ex-king Manoel described as "the first Baedeker" is one of the most interesting volumes. It is a "Summario" of Lisbon for 1554. There is also a volume of commercial regulations printed at Lisbon about 1539, notable chiefly for its illustrations of animals (among them the squirrel and the Pekinese dog, unknown in Portugal at that time).

Abilene Post To Have Two-Day Rodeo and Races

Special Correspondent.

ABILENE, Texas.—Plans have been mapped and dates are set for the annual American Legion rodeo and race meet—slated this year as a two-day celebration. The dates will be Sept. 5 and 6, the first day Labor Day, and the place will be the West Texas fair grounds.

Featuring two complete days of horse racing, rodeos, dances, minstrels and barbecues, the affair is being scheduled as one of the biggest of its kind ever held here, the committee pointed out. Approximately $1,500 in prizes are to be given away in the horse racing and rodeo events, and the best performers and horses are to be asked to take part in the attractions.

Legion officials are planning still more forms of entertainment for the host of people expected in Abilene for these two days. They will be announced through the press at a later date.

Breck Bowlers Win Third From Ranger Monday

The Breckenridge bowling team took the third match of the three that was played to date. The score Monday night was closer than on the two previous meetings of the two teams, being 2,198 for Breckenridge to 2,172 for Ranger.

Ranger was in the lead during the first two games of the match, but lost the third game by a large margin, due partly to fouls, and lost the match.

Individual scores were as follows:

W. C. Blackmond said today that the city health officer and the city water department were alert at all times to see that the water furnished to the city of Ranger was as pure as was humanly possible to make it in order that the health of the citizens might be protected.

Tests of the city water are made regularly each month, one sample being taken from the pump station and several samples being taken from various parts of the city. This monthly analysis of the water has always showed it to be 100 per cent pure. The reports of the chemists are on file in the office of the city secretary in the city hall and may be seen at any time by anyone who wishes to see for himself what the analysis of the city water shows.

Mr. Blackmond said today that in the seven years he had been connected with the city water department no case of typhoid fever had ever been traced to the city water and that as soon as a case was reported a check-up was made immediately to see if the city water was not up to standard.

"The TINIES" sign soon was complete. Said Scouty, "Gee, it looks real neat. It makes me feel we own that house. Come on, let's go inside."

And then the painter monkey said: "That's what my sign means. Go ahead!"

Wee Duncy promptly entered. "Say! It's wonderful," he cried. "And he was right. The grass house was a real attractive place because small windows let the sun shine in to spread a bit of cheer."

"Small piles of grass were on the floor and Windy said, 'What are they for?' Another answered, 'They are beds. We all will sleep right here.'"

"ERE we retire, though, let's look 'round the town and see what can be found. We've never been to Monkey Land. The sights all will be new."

"I'm sure the monk we rescued will stay with us till we've had our fill. Why I can think of nothing that I'd really rather do."

So, out they started to explore the place they'd never seen before. The little monkey went along and chattered merrily.

They came upon a peanut. The monkey shouted "I see a nut. I even have some peanuts as you lads can plainly see."

The peddler then heard the monkey say, "We'll take some, gladly pay. I'm very fond of peanuts. Give each lad a nut."

They promptly sat down on the ground. Peanuts falling passed around. Said Windy, "We all will go home as we are through."

And so they ate and ate, because the peanuts were great. And then they yawned, all so tired they couldn't peep.

They piled up grass upon beds so they could rest weary heads. It wasn't long until they all were fast asleep. (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service Co., Inc.) (Duncy takes a strange in the next story.)

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—All the Washington correspondents are reminded that a presidential campaign is in progress because the mimeographs of the publicity machines of the Republican and Democratic parties are limbering up and increasing production with such accelerated gusto.

We are all aware of it anyway, of course, but any old word likes to turn over on its back and rest for a moment occasionally, forgetting the immediate exigencies and trying to pretend that this is just an ordinary summer in which no more than the customary amount of effort and celebration, if any, is necessary.

As Chairman Jim Farley of the Democratic National Committee well says: "The opening of a campaign such as we are about entering is always a period of more or less confusion of thought, as well as of action."

Apples Both Ways VERY profound observation, that! It applies to the correspondents as well as the politicians. But not to the party press agents, who work week in and week out, wading in with ever-increasing vigor after the party conventions.

And those are the fellows who keep the messenger boys pouring into each correspondent's office, courting post-haste the latest wisecrack at the other party as conceived by the press agent and sponsored by some one of the party pundits.

It must be admitted that most Washington correspondents religiously make use of this mimeographed material, solemnly quoting it as something of more or less importance.

It's Still Baloney! BUT, as Al Smith would say, no matter how you slice it, it's still baloney. Most of it is the sort of baloney that any self-respecting picknicker would promptly toss to the chipmunks and the PARIS--Black crepe and slinky handkerchief linen make a smart outfit in the opinion of smart Molyneux who has created an ensemble with the dress and the black tulle with the light touches of white the handkerchief linen.

He also has made a lovely for the Viscountess of Hesse which consists of a long tulle printed crepe and a skirt and of plum colored silk. A black collar trims the coat.
Some of the new models the Worth is designing now for lovely Behum Aga Khan also some extent, the general trend his ideas for his next collection is shown next month. One of these is a dark blue silk serge and tulle with a bolero in matt crepe with a touch of dark blue wide cuffs. A very tiny beret completes the costume.
When it comes to bags and purses, the newest ones seem somewhat smaller and more restrained in design that we been seeing in a long time. It antelope leads as the finest, subtle fabric for smart after-usage, and simple white bag also seen. When monograms are used, they are small and they should be rather small very discreet.

Wallpaper Was Daily Newspapers

DETROIT--Under the stress of economic conditions, Mr. and Mrs. Barton Cecil used the wall and sections of a Detroit newspaper for wallpaper.
To prevent them from continuously reading the ads, the Cecils pasted the sheets on the wall upside down, relieving the sameness by sticking on pictures from the rotogravure sections here and there.

Speaking of Wooden Kimonos

All spruced up for a high dive, Miss Billy Johnson of Hoquiam, Wash., is just a chip off the old block for her pond lily model bathing suit is made entirely of wood. Billy displayed the novel suit at the inventors' congress in Portland, Ore. It is fashioned from spruce veneer-one-eighth of an inch thick, peeled from the log as a large roll of paper would be unrolled. Just the kind of suit the girls pine for.
