It has been running for years and had that in mind, Eastland is as much to flood control as Galveston.

RELIEF BILLS SLOWED UP IN THE HOUSE

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 7.—Relief for taxpayers from penalties and interest on delinquent taxes slowed up in the Texas legislature today when the house disagreed sharply with features of the senate relief bill. The house first extended the time in which payment may be made to escape penalties from Dec. 31, 1932, to Jan. 31, 1933. At noon recess it was undecided whether the house will make the relief bill apply to municipal taxes, exclude them or leave it to the governing bodies of the cities to determine.

Doctor Says He Knows Reason For Paul Bern Death

By United Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Sept. 7.—Paul Bern's personal physician today offered to explain the mysterious death of the film producer, something the silver-haired Jean Harlow could not do during a day climaxed, it was said, by her hysterical attempt to fling herself from an upper floor balcony. Meanwhile a police official disclosed reports of a second suicide note, more intimate and enlightening than the first. John Gilbert, an attendant at the wedding of Bern and the movie star, also revealed that he had prevented an earlier attempt by Bern to kill himself.

'Adam and Eve' Are Content

Two years of Adam and Eve existence on a tiny equatorial isle have strengthened the determination of Dr. Frederick Ritter and Frau Hilde Koerwin, of Berlin, to live their lives away from civilization.

The entertainment features took up the entire time of the Ranger Rotary club meeting today with W. N. McDonald and Harry Weidman in charge of the program. Miss Kathleen Maxwell of Strawn, a graduate in expression at C. I. A., was presented. She delivered two excellent readings which were very entertaining. They were received by the members of the club with much applause. The Naturaline Gasoline String quartet then rendered several numbers which were considered the best entertainment to be presented at the club in some time. The quartet is composed of John "Chick" Usery, Walter Burks, W. H. Ross and W. L. Watson. W. C. Hickey made an announcement about the meeting of the Northwest Texas District Medical Association of Texas, which is to be held in Ranger on Tuesday of next week. He urged that the Rotarians aid in entertaining the doctors who attend.

"CAP" WILLIAMSON FALLS IN THE CITY OF THE ALAMO

Senator W. A. Williamson of the Alamo district is among the politically slain. He is one of the veteran lawmakers of the big dome. He saw long service in the house. He was promoted to the senate. He was ever an active and vigilant lawmaker. He fought the political battles of the Alamo as well as legislative battles. He was very close to the lamented John Tobin, for years the political czar of Bexar county. Mayor C. M. Chambers was the successor of Tobin and the senator trained along with the new political czar of the Alamo City. Then came an organization known as the people's party, and the people's party has been hammering Chambers' organization to pieces ever since. Senator Williamson will be missed. His face will not appear in the picture of the new legislature. Ernest Fellbaum won the senatorial prize. He pushed Williamson on the outside of the political breastworks. There are four counties in the district. Fellbaum carried all four which gave him a majority in the district of 1343 over the house of Williamson. It was war against the ins, and the ins in this and other districts furnish many of the casualties of the political primary battles the state over. In politics there is a Waterloo for every leader. All that is necessary for him to carry his pitcher to the well, regardless of the political storm warning. This is what happened to the Alamo veteran. He saw the sign on the wall, but he failed to interpret them.

FARMERS OF WEST GO ON STRIKE

Farmers of Iowa and Nebraska have launched a new agricultural movement. They have banded together. They are not going to send their farm staples to the market. They are going to do their level best to keep their neighbor farmers from sending farm staples to the market. They say an injury to one is the concern of all. They have adopted the old organized labor slogan, "All for one and one for all." They are picketing the highways and the by-ways as well as the country lanes. This is something new in farm life. As a protective measure it resembles the weapon used by the units of organized labor in manufacturing cities and towns and in the mining regions. If the cotton growers of the South and the Southwest were to organize along the American Federation of Labor line, they would be able to keep the acreage planters within bounds and have a large voice in the fixing of the price of the staples. They are not organized along the lines mentioned and never will be. In this new civilization home consumption of cotton goods as well as home manufacture of cotton goods will be one of the great solutions of the problems, but the day must come when the supply will be kept within the demands. What Texas needs is a hundred textile factories where there is one today and woolen and mohair mills to consume a large share of the annual clip taken from the hides of the sheep and goat. Tanneries and shoemaking factories would help some. Indeed, it would pave the way for the leading manufacturing states of the sisterhood.

AMBASSADOR MELLON A PROPHET OF PROSPERITY

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, who was for 11 years secretary of the treasury, is said to be firmly convinced that the upward movement in the commodity and security market is sound and will be sustained. He is concluding governmental business in the city of Washington and will sail for the other side early in September. He would not be quoted publicly or interviewed on the subject, but from sources close to the head of the Mellon family in America, it was said he believed the present movement in stock and commodity prices represents an inevitable swing of the pendulum "correcting a downward trend that could not continue because values were below the cost of production." Thousands said it before the coming of the head of the family of Mellon to this country, but a man who represents a billion dollars and who served as secretary of the American treasury for 11 years and is American ambassador to the greatest empire history has known, is ever given an international audience instead of a local audience. Why shouldn't this pendulum swing into directions of a return to moral prosperity. This has been the record of history and is the cold logic of cycles of prosperity to be followed by cycles of depression.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS RESOLUTE

Veterans of foreign wars, assembled in national convention in the city of Sacramento, adopted a resolution that condemned the president of the United States for using the army "to rout and maim a pitiful and defenseless crowd of ragged and unarmed bonusers." It recited that the United States presented to the world a movement against the use of gas and then ordered gas used against women, children, veterans and men, "unarmed and defenseless, weakened by hunger and unemployment." There are times when wise men in high place are guilty of fool plays. Veterans of foreign war are resentful and veterans of all the wars, including the World war, are more than resentful. This is presidential election year and all men are equal at the ballot box.

ANOTHER PAIR OF CROONERS ON THE BRINK

Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Vallee were married July 6, 1931. Now their confidential attorney advises the American world that the crooner and his movie bride had experienced matrimonial difficulties and are nearing the parting of matrimonial ways. What's wrong with the crooner marriages? What's wrong with the movie tie-ups? Are the matrimonial hitches made mostly for advertising purposes to be followed by divorce court settlements for publicity purposes? Is marriage a failure in the crooner world? Is it a joke in the movie world?

GEORGIA FARMERS SELL THEIR TOBACCO CROP

Georgia farmers received $807,981 for 7,243,110 pounds of tobacco sold at auction on state markets. Georgia tobacco brought an average price per pound of 11.16 cents. Average per pound to date this year was 10.90 cents compared with 7.47 for the same date last year. Tobacco is an American staple. Georgia growers are hopeful. They see better prices next year.

The Reprieve!

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

Rain having made football out of the question for the past few days we have little to write on the subject, but there is a golf tournament coming up in Ranger that might be of interest to members of the Ranger Country club, as they are the only ones entitled to enter, though there should be lots of people in the galleries when the finals are played.

But before we take up the question of golf, we might mention that while it was raining yesterday we got into a discussion with Gus as to the best method of keeping track of a football game. We both agreed that it was quite a task to keep track of the plays in a football game and though a play-by-play account of a game might not be printed it was almost essential to keep one in order to give an accurate account of any rallies that might lead to a touchdown, because one could never tell when a touchdown was coming up.

So we worked out a system that we thought might be of valuable assistance, though it would take none of the discomforts of a sports-writer encounters in keeping notes on a game. Try it yourself sometime. You may not think that a football game is very fast but try to write down each play, who carried the ball, which way he went through or around the line or who threw the pass, who caught it and how much he gained. Then try to get all that down, along with the name of the man who made the tackle and see how little time there is left between plays. You would be surprised to see how fast the plays are ticked off.

And you have no time to become enthused, because if you do you lose part of the play and part of your story. It's quite a task and one that requires as much work as any assignment one could cover. However we think the Gus-Bill system might make matters a little easier.

But to get back to that golf tournament. A (Red) Neill, president of the Ranger Country club is all enthused, and most of the members are showing similar enthusiasm. The qualifying rounds are to be played some time this week with the finals next week, sometime before Friday night, Sept. 16. The qualifying rounds and finals may be played at any time to suit the convenience of those paired together. This system was worked out in order that the golf might not interfere with business or business interfere with golf, according to which you think is the most important.

Five flights are expected to be made up, launched, inaugurated or whatever it is one does to a flight. Anyway, there will be five flights of eight players each. Eight players in a flight instead of 16, as is customary in most golf tournaments, because the personnel could best be divided into flights of eight each and make the competition more even. In other words the first eight men on the golf ladder would come nearer playing the same class of golf than would the first 16 and so on down the ladder.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON - A bill which will interest a flock of people if enough of them hear about it is the Costigan-La Guardia bill which would authorize a credit of up to $500 to the unemployed head of any American household, repayable in 10 years at a rate of interest rising from 1 per cent to 4 per cent.

The idea is to give all good, loyal American families, temporarily out of luck, the privilege of borrowing a little from the government to tide them over with the necessities of life, such as the banks and railroads are able to borrow public funds through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The scheme is both a relief and "regulatory" measure. It is argued that the stimulation of purchases by consumers, who have been deprived of the ability to buy even necessities would help meet the serious causative factor of reduced purchasing power and might even lead the way back to prosperity.

Much More to Be Heard
INTRODUCED just before the close of the last session of Congress the Costigan-La Guardia bill received only a brief and almost unnoticed hearing. Inasmuch as all authorities agree that the unemployed will experience the toughest of all their depression winters in 1932-33 and as Senator Costigan of Colorado and Congressman La Guardia of New York, much more is sure to be heard about it after Congress reconvenes in December.

The railroad labor unions thus far have been the strongest group to champion the proposal. Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the Railroad Labor Executives' Association, had most to do with drafting the plan, with advice from various economists, lawyers and bankers.

A "United States Exchange Corporation" would be set up with a million dollar fund of $2,000,000. Instead of cash the borrowers would be given credit certificates up to $500 for individual support plus $100 for each dependent but not more than $1500.

Producers and distributors of the necessities of life would be licensed to accept the certificates and cash them with the U. S. E. C. if they agreed to accept them at face value.

Good Only for Necessities
THEY could be cashed by the borrower only for necessities and an attempt would be made to determine which necessities could contribute most to increased employment if their purchase were stimulated. The credits would be repayable beginning with the renewed employment of the borrower, who would agree to pay in 10 per cent of his salary until the loan was paid off.

Richberg suggests that 7,000,000 heads of families might borrow an average of $400 apiece to buy necessities for six months. Such an increase in the nation's purchasing power, he says, might create something like $50,000,000,000 or $50,000,000,000 worth of business within a year, since money once started keeps turning over and the amount of business resulting from a new expenditure can be regarded as multiplying from 10 to 30 times the amount.

"Not Charity or Dole"
"THIS isn't charity or a dole," Richberg explains. "We would only finance a new purchasing power, reaching the masses and giving us nation-wide insurance against privation next winter. New employees would be required in stores, railroads, factories and various production enterprises to the extent of hundreds of thousands to satisfy the demand that would be created."

"Credit normally used to increase production should now be used to increase purchasing power. Loans to banks, railroads and insurance companies may delay bankruptcies and receiverships, but they won't increase employment or purchasing power. A considerable amount might be defaulted because of death, evasion and other reasons. But relief costs are getting to be enormous anyway. And we probably would be turning the tide of the depression."

Morton Valley To Have Church

Following a revival meeting held recently in the Morton Valley community by the Rev. W. L. Massee, assisted by his son, Jasper C. Massee, a church, to be known as the Tabernacle Baptist Church of Morton Valley, was organized with the Rev. W. L. Massee as pastor. The organization was perfected with 44 members. The membership has since grown to 59, however.

The church adopted the J. M. Pendleton Church manual as a statement of faith and has planned an active campaign of work. G. J. Finley is the only deacon named so far, but a complete board is to be selected. A Bible school was organized and will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Massee, assisted by his son.

The following program has been announced for this coming Sunday:
10:00 a. m. - Bible school study of the third chapter of John, verses 1 to 21.
11:00 a. m. - Sermon by the pastor, Subject, "Present Confidences Inspired by Past Experiences." Scripture text First Samuel, 17-37 verses.
3:00 p. m. - Singing and a sermon to be delivered by some one yet to be named.
7:00 p. m. - Young people's Bible study conducted by Jasper C. Massee.
8:00 p. m. - Preaching service, by the pastor, Subject, "Great Perils to the Soul."

for LOVE or MONEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Mona Townsend, beautiful young widow, inherits her husband's millions with the provision that she must not remarry. Her marriage, arranged by her husband's lawyer, who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce. Mona, in love with her husband's nephew, Barry Townsend, agreed to the marriage when she thought Barry was lost to her.

She employs Lottie Carr, a fashion model, as her secretary-companion and they set out for South America, where Barry and Steve Sacarelli are partners in a diamond mine. Mona's father, Bud, works at the mine. Mona hopes for a reconciliation with Barry. She also feels Barry is entitled to a share of his uncle's fortune and wants to find a way to arrange this legally.

Learning that Barry and Steve are on vacation at Holiday Island, the girls leave their boat at Port of Spain. There they meet Bud who takes them to Holiday Island. Barry and Steve are cordial but their greeting lacks warmth. Mona wishes she had not come. Barry does not ask for explanations and she cannot make them.

Miss Gracie, middle-aged spinster, comes from Fort of Spain to serve as chaperon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIII
For all Lottie's arful planning, dinner at Holiday House that evening was singularly unromantic. There were no lovely gowns and there was no lingering over a candle-lit table, no strolling in the moonlight. It proved to be the first evening since the girls' arrival that no one dressed for dinner.

Their departure from Granada was delayed, the carpenters taking a great deal of time to decide finally that they could not begin work on the hangar for at least a week. The motor boat left the harbor two hours later than they had planned. Said, the native boy, was at the wheel while Barry and Steve spent most of the trip in rather disgruntled discussion.

When they arrived at the house they found the table on the veranda still set for dinner, the flowers drooping under the electric light and fireflies gathering on the terrace. The food in the kitchen had long since cooled and lost its flavor-omeness.

"I sent the maids home for the night," Miss Gracie said, unperturbed. "There seemed to be no knowing when you'd come. I thought you might have dined at Granada."

"Well, we can't lure those carpenters here for a week yet," Steve announced. "I was going to buy this girl a pair of monkeys to take back to New York."

Back to New York! Mona felt her heart throb sharply, her cheeks suddenly grow cold. Steve and Barry were thinking then of their departure!

"Don't buy those monkeys yet a while," Barry said hastily and Mona sighed, reassured. "We're not going to let Mona and Lottie get away for a long time. They haven't seen half the sights yet."

"Well, they've seen what many a girl in Port of Spain would give her eye teeth to see anyhow," Miss Gracie interposed comfortably.

"What's that, Miss Gracie?" The older woman's fat face crinkled in a smile and her kind eyes were hidden for a moment.

"This house," she nodded vehemently. "Barry and Steve are popular young men, you know. When they come to our house—"

"Did you ever know a girl named Celeste?" asked Mona idly.

Barry and Steve glanced at each other and burst out laughing.

"Let Lottie tell you that one, Barry. I can't do it justice."

They listened to Lottie's diverting version of the affair on the boat but when she related the gift of Barry's portrait to Celeste the men became instantly sober.

"Great heavens, that practically constitutes an engagement!" Steve exclaimed.

"But she was honest, anyhow. She insisted Barry hadn't paid much attention to her," retorted Lottie.

Steve rose. "Yes, that's honest, only a little too mild. You might as well say a man pays no attention to a mosquito buzzing around him 24 hours of the day."

"I think I'll say good night," Mona decided, rising. "I'm tired, hot and have a headache."

"Anyhow we had a fine trip," Lottie announced, as she rose to follow her friend. "Well, good night!"

As the two girls mounted the stairs Lottie said quietly, "At least Barry doesn't want us to hurry away."

"Oh, I don't know!" Mona's voice was weary. "He could hardly have said less. Steve practically put us aboard the Miranda."

"He didn't mean it that way," maintained Lottie. "He really did promise to get me some monkeys and I told him to wait until we were read to leave."

In her flowing negligee Mona stood before the mirror, brush in hand, her bronze hair floating over her shoulders. For a moment neither girl spoke. The brush piled evenly with long, deft strokes. "She's a great one," was Lottie's thought. "Her heart is breaking but she doesn't forget the 40 strokes—or is it 50 or 100?"

It was, as a matter of fact, 150 that night. The brush was replaced in the dresser drawer. Mona moved from chair to closet hanging this way and smoothing out that, taking out fresh garments for the next day.

Seated on the bed, Lottie swung one foot reflectively and watched her.

"Maybe we'd better go soon, Lottie," Mona remarked presently in a low voice.

"Before you've talked about the will or anything to Barry?"

Mona spread both hands wide. "How can I? I might possibly say something to Steve but neither

And Mrs. Modern knows what she is talking about, for she does her cooking electrically and wouldn't change for the world.

She knows, for example, that she can prepare just the same delicious meals that her mother and grandmother before her did without the hours and hours of hard, hot work that they were forced to contend with.

She knows, too, that it doesn't cost any more than other ways of cooking; that she saves time and energy, and that she gets better results the electric way.

"Neither one has recognized your marriage," finished Lottie, rising. "Well, I'm ready to go if you say so, Mona, but my advice is to get into actual lists. Tomorrow, I'll correct Steve and take him some place. That will leave you and Barry alone so you can talk to him. Tell him why you came. Tell him you love him. You do, don't you? He can't do anything more than call you a forward hussy and after that you'll know where you stand! Tell him you're the fourth wealthiest woman in New York now and want to hand over some of your gold. Ask him how it can be done—"

"He won't tell me if he knows—and I don't think he does, Mona argued.

Lottie came a step nearer. "Barry will never let you get that far," she went on. "When you tell him you love him he'll either stop you and say everything is a. l. or else he'll leave you sitting right where you are! I think tomorrow at tea time would be a good time—"

"I see you have it all planned," Mona said acidly. Then her manner changed. She took Lottie by the shoulders. "You are darling, Lottie! You are!"

"Anyhow I mean well," mimicked Lottie, her face close to Mona's own.

"You should be," Mona added, kissing her. "I never will trust blonde—or brunets either. Only I can't do all that, Lottie, if Barry doesn't speak to me soon it's all over. We'll go back home and think of something else to do but I can't speak to Barry about—"

"I understand," Lottie agreed soberly. "Well, good night. Go to sleep."

"Oh, I'll sleep," Mona promised.

But she did not sleep. Lottie ceased moving about in the next room, long after lights had ceased to shine through the lattice-work at the top of the door leading into the hallway and she heard the water in the bathtub hold Mona lay wide-eyed and heart sick.

She sat up in her huge bed, intent on the amazing stillness of the tropic night. The fragrance of honeysuckle and jasmine floated through the wide windows which enclosed the stars. The fringe of trees beyond were carved in jade, lashed in white moonlight.

Mona arose and went to the window, drew in great breaths of the sweetened air. Far below, the beach lay white in the moonlight. The sea murmured. She could hear the waves roll in, hesitate, churn, then spill into whispering foam.

She could hear the tide gather the lost wave back, gather, roll in again. Otherwise the night was so still that she could hear the beating of her own heart.

"I believe I'll go down there for a walk," Mona decided presently. "Perhaps I can think there a little more easily. Perhaps I'll be able to make up my mind whether to do," she paused uncertainly. "There is, of course, only one thing to do—and that is go home!"

Swiftly and quietly she tossed off her pajamas, dressed in a white shirt, soft yellow sweater and rubber-soled shoes. She knew it would be cool on the beach.

The door opened gently and the stairs, fortunately, made no sound beneath her feet. She crept across the wide hall to the door which each night she had learned was left wide open. There were no prowlers to fear on Holiday!

Beneath the stars on the terrace Mona stood for an instant, considering the stillness which held the house in its grip. Then she looked seaward. Far away toward the Grenadines a necklace of yellow lights was flung out on the water. The portlights of the motor boat bobbed in the harbor.

As she moved down the pathway the flamboyant trees flicked her face gently with their fragrance. It did not occur to Mona to be afraid. She gained the sand. Ah, here she could really think! Was it safe to lie on the sand at night or any other time? Of course it was safe! Why not? Anyhow, it was delightful. Mona stretched her slender legs along the shell of rock where the shadows played, her hands beneath her head. This was comfort. This was peace.

Silence and stillness. All of a sudden Mona felt rather than heard a sound. Someone was near her! She sat upright, tense and alert. It had been foolish to come. Foolhardy and silly beyond words. Who was making that sound? A bird perhaps or the wind?

A shadow separated itself suddenly from a clump of trees and moved toward her. The girl started to scream and found she could not.

Dr. C. C. Craig will favor the organization by giving a talk on "Teeth and the Proper Care," followed with a discussion offered by Dr. Walter Jackson, who has chosen as his subject, "Care of Children."

Lobbyists Racket Exposed in Film

Time honored customs in congress such as the basing of recalcitrant newcomers, the senate ceremony accompanying the swearing in of a new lawmaker, and a hundred and one little details unknown to the general public come to the screen in "The Washington Masquerade," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's dramatic story of national politics coming Thursday to the Arcadia theatre, Ranger.

In addition, inside details of the "lobbyist racket" showing how outside influences constantly seek to sway opinions of lawmakers, how women and other bait are used to trap them, and how lobbyist work are shown in this unusual drama in which Lionel Barrymore heads an elaborate cast.

Samuel G. Blythe, noted writer of American political life, is responsible for many of these subtle details. Blythe collaborated with John Meehan on the story, adapted from Henry Bernstein's play, "The Clay," and versed in the lore of "inside" Washington from many years in the heart of things there, provided unique authentic information.

The famous author of "Who's Who and Why," "The Kind Makers" and other works on politics has been confident and confessor to national political leaders from the days of Mark Hanna on.

Barrymore, who scored one of his greatest stage successes as the political leader in the original Bernstein play, repeats his role in the modernized screen version. How a woman is lured by the lobbyist gang to tempt him from his duty, how he falls in love with her and how, finally realizing the way he has been duped, he upsets the tables of the outside interests, forms the background for a spectacular romance of the national capital.

Last of Demonstration Dinners By Methodist Church Women

The Women's Missionary society of the Methodist church through their committees hosted the last of the series of demonstration dinners, they have been sponsoring for the benefit of the W. M. S. treasury, with that of last night.

One long table, set in the Sunday school classroom, was centered with bouquets and flowers and laid for the entire party of hostesses and guests.

Hostesses for Tuesday night were Mrs. L. A. Cook, Mrs. W. C. Marlow, and Mrs. T. E. Cook. Assistants were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Michaels, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Winkelman, Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Gates, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Haley; City Manager W. C. Marlow.

Chairman of the evening's arrangements were Mrs. Ed Graham and Mrs. Frank Crowell.

The demonstration dinners have afforded a unique and pleasing means of securing funds for the treasury of the Women's Missionary society.

The success of the project is due to the general chairman, who has had charge of all dinners, Mrs. Frank Crowell, acting president of the W. M. S., and Mrs. Ed Graham, E. H. Jones, assisted by Mmes. H. O. Satterwhite and John Miller.

Seven dinners in all were given in the series and following each a health lesson and demonstration in cookery was given by the lecturer.

The dinners have not only been the means of some financial return, but have afforded an opportunity for a social phase in the work of the W. M. S. that has been very pleasing.

Knights of Pythias Postpones Degree Work

Ten members only attended the meeting of the Knights of Pythias, Tuesday night, and the degree work proposed was postponed to next Tuesday night when second degree work will be given to C. A. Timmons and Pitzer.

The meeting resolved itself into a social one, and an informal game of "42" enjoyed by those attending.

Home Makers Class Will Be Entertained

The officers of the Home Makers class cancelled their meeting for Tuesday afternoon on account of the storm, and in lieu, the president of the class, Mrs. William Sheriffs, held a telephone committee meeting advising with the officers and members of the class.

It is announced that the pastor of the Baptist church and his wife, Mrs. and Mrs. O. B. Darby, will entertain the class members and their husbands at the parsonage on Friday evening of this week at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Sheriffs appointed as committee on arrangements Mrs. L. V. Simmonds, social chairman, and Capt. No. 1, Mrs. C. T. Lucas.

A delightful evening is anticipated.

Eastland Regrettably

At the brilliant ball given by the golf association of the Thunder club on Monday night in their clubhouse ballroom, drew an immense crowd from the surrounding country.

Wonderful music from an 11-piece orchestra was furnished for the evening's pleasure.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

Whether or not any organization of corporation has the right to ask a man what are his preferences in a presidential election and to state same on a piece of paper, confidentially of course, remains a matter of good taste.

But it hardly seems fair to any nominee to induce the influence of the public in their voting voice by stating what a straw vote indicates.

It would be very much like a woman club that would issue a paper asking its members to cross out the woman up for president, and leave the other name on the sheet they desire for this office.

Such a thing in woman's club so far has not been heard to date, and is unknown.

But nowadays communications are distributed from coast to coast in conducting a nation-wide poll, in advance of the November election, in order-days, get an accurate cross section of public opinion, on the trend of the vote for incoming high officials of the United States.

These are distributed throughout every state, congressional district and county.

In direct influencing of votes is a matter for a person to decide the ethics thereof, for himself or herself.

That such a forecast made known just before election time, will indirectly influence the vote of vacillating persons, is a foregone conclusion. For there are thousands of people, who will charge their opinions easily and vote for what they think will be the winning side, perfectly irrespective of what should be their fundamental reason, for the choice of their vote.

Politics are becoming so every-day, that it seems no longer the great honor—to secure the election—in high places, in our United States, that it once used to be.

The days when the good old Democratic party stood pat, and voted the straight ticket, and the Republican took a similar stand, and fought for their ticket through thick and thin, are in the discard, with lots of other things that once spelled for the good of our country.

When woman entered politics, it was hoped that the atmosphere would be cleared, and her womanly influence would help this fast developing situation, of vote bribery, coercion, and subtle intrigue.

Whether or not she has had time to do much in this direction, is still surmise. Man has been voting the United States "was such," and woman's privilege to vote is still rather an innovation.

Ranger High School Notes

JEWEL JUDD, Editor

School Opens With Much Enthusiasm Among Students

Ranger high school opened today with much enthusiasm among the students and teachers for the coming school term. The clang of lockers and noise of the students sounded through the halls again today, making it seem impossible that for three months the high school had been all peace and quiet.

We are looking forward to this being one of the greatest years in the history of R. H. S.

Welcome to Faculty

We, the students of R. H. S., extend our welcome to the new members of the faculty and hope that the year will be both pleasant and profitable to like them.

BEANS TASTE LIKE STEAK.

By Dated Press.

BELMONT, Mass.—Tasmanian beans, three to five feet long and weighing 10 to 15 pounds, are being cultivated here by Coy Orsdel. The bean, when sliced and cooked, tastes like veal steak. In Tasmania, Orsdel said, the plant blossoms twice. It is scheduled for presentation at the Columbia Theatre today and Thursday.

The touching and tender narrative of a young girl, born under dire omens of illegitimacy, has appealed to the heart of several generations of American readers, and is still being sold in quantities that make "best sellers" fade in comparison. Conservative estimates place the total over thirty millions have read Mrs. Holmes' classic and it was published, and the universal appeal of the story is certain to keep it alive long after the so-called popular writers of today have been forgotten.

The vitality of the story, and the place that it occupies as a staple of this country's fiction, can best be appreciated by the fact that the demand for R. from the leading mail order houses considerably surpasses that of any work of fiction. "Lena Rivers" popularity exceeds that of any other Mrs. Holmes' novels such as "Edith Lytle's Secret," "Darkness and Daylight," and "Tempest and Sunshine"—each of which has numbered millions of readers.

Charlotte Henry, 17-year-old actress of the stage and screen, creates the name role in "Lena Rivers" and is said to present a portrayal that is a masterpiece of natural realistic characterization.

Mrs. Henry is the young girl who leaped to prominence as a 14-year-old actress in the stage version of "Courage," repeating her success in the film version opposite Leon Janney.
