THOMAS B. LOVE AS A PUBLISHER

Thomas B. Love flitted in and then flitted out of the capital. He made an important announcement to the politicians of all types and all shades and all varieties. Thomas B. is a farmer. He owns the Loveridge farm in Dallas county. He has made the discovery that the farmer needs a guide and protector. He is to be the willing sacrifice. He has launched a weekly newspaper. This newspaper is to give all its attention and all its space to the work of redressing the alleged wrongs of the farmer. It must be true, because the former state senator admits it. In addition to redressing the alleged wrongs of the farmer, Editor Love is going to make it possible for every boy and girl in the rural regions, the sons and daughters of tenant farmers, to be provided with all the facilities of obtaining a high school education. Truth is the name of his publication. It goes without saying truth is not to be hidden in the well of the Loveridge farm. It is going to blaze in the darkness like a searchlight in the heavens at midnight. This is the pledge of the gentleman who led the Hoover democrats to glory and prosperity four years ago.

Editor Love has made an important discovery. The little red schoolhouse is doomed. Like the stage coach and the ox-cart, it has passed on to join the Indian, the buffalo, the deer and the antelope and the wild men of the wilderness who are exterminated by rangers, or Jack Ketch, or the six-shooter or the mighty agency of the law. In the future he visions the complete extinction of the little red school house of the early fathers as well as the early mothers. Out of the rural aid funds there are to be high schools in every county open to the boys and girls from the isolated or poverty-stricken districts and a part of the program is to see that the kiddies are given limousine transportation to and fro daily while the open season for obtaining knowledge is on and the instructors are teaching the young ideas how to shoot "Folly as She Flies."

In other words the Golden Age is coming shortly and all the world will be happy and joyful as well as intelligent and patriotic and prosperous. Incidentally Dallas is to be the Athens of the American World and ocean-going ships may land passengers and cargos from the seven seas at the Dallas docks. Dream on, troubled spirit, and let the world go by.

CEMENT INDUSTRY SAVED BY HIGHWAY ACTIVITY
Now it is said that highway construction this year has been the salvation of both labor and the cement industry. There are nine cement plants in the state. Their combined capacity is 10,500,000 barrels or 42,000,000 sacks. In 1929, when general construction was at its peak, Texas cement plants distributed 7,500,000 barrels, which is 75 per cent of their capacity, and 75 per cent of the distribution was in Texas. Then came the crash. Distribution declined in 1930 to 6,500,000 barrels; in 1931 to 5,500,000 barrels, and this year to 4,500,000 barrels. Road work in Texas is responsible for 75 per cent of distribution which already has amounted to 2,500,000 barrels. In other words cement distribution, if it were not for highway work, would be less than 2,000,000 barrels this year and many of the 1200 employes would be laid off. It is said transportation of Texas cement brought the railroad at least $4,000,000 this year. In other words, according to a higher authority, if the state highway department has expended $20,000,000 on road work this year $17,000,000 of it has gone into labor of some kind. It goes without saying that road improvement this winter will be a boon to the unemployed, and the investments in nine cement plants of Texas aggregating 40 to 50 million dollars have been virtually saved to their investors. First and last, for nearly six years the state highway commission of Texas has made a record of efficiency and economy that should appeal to all intelligent and fair-minded people.

BEXAR COUNTY CAST A HEAVY VOTE
San Antonio advices indicate that a total of 39,334 Bexar county voters went to the polls at the run-off primary. This figure exceeds by more than 14,000 the total vote cast at the run-off primary three years ago. Indeed, the total fell only about 4000 short of the aggregate Bexar county vote at the first primary in July. Mrs. Ferguson polled 2870 votes less in the last run-off than she did on July 23. On the other hand, Sterling gained 4016 votes. As usual the Terrels were in the high marks. Railroad Commissioner C. V. Terrell polled the heaviest vote of any one candidate. His total being 27,049. George B. Terrell received the next highest total count, 26,157.

Haskell County Needing Pickers
J. O. Colburn, formerly of Ranger but now of Haskell county, was in Ranger today seeking cotton pickers for farmers living in his community.

Mr. Colburn has 110 acres of cotton on which he said he expected to raise a bale to the acre and many of his neighbors were needing pickers. A price of 45 to 50 cents a hundred is being paid for boll pullers, he said, and many farmers need hands to help gather nuts.

Russia and the Five-Year Plan

An Address By Morris Bendix, Before the Ranger Rotary Club

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

THE WOMEN of the Ubangi tribes of Africa start their lip beauty operation by inserting a small peg through the lips. From time to time the size of the peg is increased until, finally, a disc the size of a large saucer can be worn comfortably. So long as the face away from the face of the wearer are strong, the plates will stand out at right angles to the face, but as a woman grows old and her face muscles weaken, the lip plates hang down.

of foreign experts, one wonders whether the results will prove any greater proportionately than those of the type of labor performed. To the capitalistic observer the great weakness of the Soviet plan appears to be that the vagaries of human nature have not been sufficiently considered and guarded against the development of social-political conditions that would lead to the belief that each individual living under the provisions will be endowed with enough energy and honesty so that no selfish motives will be necessary to induce him to do his share of work.

Joseph Stalin, the Soviet union's man of steel, had given much attention to the failure of the Socialist program. He realized that changes in the industrial program were necessary and outlined a future program embracing six points as follows: Readjustment of wages to make the scale commensurate with the cost of living; the abolition of the half of workers from shifting from one place to another to improve their living conditions. Remedy of the growing labor shortage by attracting more peasants to the cities and to the industrial centers towards mechanization. Improvement of the organization of labor in industry in order to distribute the proper strength among factories and to end irresponsible methods. Development by the working class of its own intelligence of skilled workers such as engineers and technicians. Improvement of the policy toward foreign trade to increase the amount of them to industry. Increase of the interior sources of industry and development of the piece-work system. He further proposed the reversal of the policy from collective business administration, saying that new conditions demand new methods of work and leadership.

Fulfillment of the production plan depends solely on increased and our ability to utilize the existing wealth of opportunities, said Stalin. This is proved by the fact that the large numbers of factories and industries have already expanded their production. Even socialism, wages must be paid according to the work done, and not according to the needs of the worker. In many of our factories the piece-work system has been replaced by the piece-work system. It is a difference between the skilled and unskilled worker and between hard and easy labor, he continued. This causes unskilled workers less interest in raising their qualifications in order to make themselves more valuable. To allow this condition to continue would undermine our industry, wreck our plan of production and stop improvement in the quality of manufactured goods. We must destroy such equal wages. It is unbearable to see the locomotive driver receiving the same wages as the bookkeeper, pay in proportion to the amount of the third policy regarding wages. After the revolution the scale of wages was left to the individual industries and based on the needs of the workers. Under the present five-year plan the piece-work system was installed. Where it could be applied this made it possible for the clever speedy or hard worker to receive pay in proportion to the amount of production. In anticipation of Stalin's recommendations that more peasants and collective farmers should be attracted to industry a government decree had been issued which offered special inducements in the form of privileges to the surplus agricultural labor entering industrial work. Stalin also asserted that he considered it essential to break up the cumbersome which offered special inducements to two hundred factories and places the factories under individual control so that the heads would really know the possibilities and work of their establishments. The individual administration of industries which he advocated represents a complete reversal from the original plans and practices of the Communists. He assured his hear-

Texas May Have Giant Telescope To Study Planets

WORLD
DUSTIN, Sept. 8.—Consummation of plans, which have been in process of formulation for several months, whereby the University of Texas and the University of Chicago will pool their resources for the development of astronomical research, was announced today.

The arrangement has been approved by the Board of Regents of the University of Texas, and by the Board of Trustees of the University of Chicago. The program which has been set upon will be formally presented at the meeting of the International Astronomical Union in Cambridge, Mass., this week and probably be one of the most important announcements of the year in this field of study.

The plans contemplate these important steps: (1) The management of the McDonald Observatory at some point in Texas, and the construction of the present and the structure to be same to cost approximately $1,000,000; (2) the management of the McDonald Observatory, the famous Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago, the same director, Dr. Otto Struve, present director of the McDonald Observatory, his salary as director to be paid by the University of Chicago; the appointment of an assistant director of the McDonald Observatory and other staff members, the salary of approximately $10,000 to be paid by the University of Chicago; cooperation of the two observatories in observational work, the sharing of maintenance, and the ratio of $10,000 a year to the University of Texas, $10,000, plus the cost of study, observations and preparation for publication, by the University of Chicago.

From time to time the McDonald Observatory, a disc the size of a concave lens as the face of a 80 inches aperture which tapers out at right angles to the second largest in the world, surpassed only the 100-inch telescope of the Lick Observatory in California. Describing the equipment, Struve has stated that the new 100-inch telescope will be as powerful as the Wilson 100-inch for the study of faint nebulae and other objects. A number of features will be embodied in the design, he says, which will make it the most important and useful telescope in the world. It will be a special kind of work.

Rangers Fight With Porcupines

By United Press. COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Sam's forest rangers did one Fremont experiment station about Manitou so well that they have to do another one. The area around the experimental station—which grows trees for experimental purposes—is in the mountains. There is a bobcat nor mountain lion area. The porcupines found that porcupine meat is one of the delicacies of mountain and bobcats. When porcupine and feline meet, the porcupine curls up in a ball, quills and waits for the lion, or the lion to leave.

1833 HOW CHICAGO'S WORLD FAIR WILL DISPLAY CENTURY OF PROGRESS 1933

Here is the first and only official sketch of the 1933 world fair—Chicago's "Century of Progress Exposition"—showing the arrangement of buildings as they will appear when the gates are thrown open on Chicago's lake front June 1, 1933. Designated by numbers are: (1) Adler Planetarium; (2) Shedd aquarium; (3) Main exposition entrance; (4) Field museum; (5) Soldier field; (6) Lagoon; and (7) the "Sky Ride."

CHICAGO.—It is a far cry from America's stagecoach and candle-light era of 1833 to today's modern age with its towering skyscrapers, great ocean liners, millions of automobiles and hundreds of other inventions that have revolutionized the progress of civilization, but Chicago's world fair of 1933—a glittering pageant of a "Century of Progress"—will unfold the story of what has happened since that time in a most interesting way.

Twenty million dollars is being spent, 100 famous scientists are devoting their efforts toward arranging the various displays and an army of workmen is erecting huge buildings for this great spectacle which will be opened June 1, 1933, and continue several months. The site covers 800 acres on Chicago's lake front.

"It will be no dry-as-dust scientific exhibition," says Dr. William Allen Pusey, member of the executive board of the National Research Council and one of the trustees of the fair. "It means, rather, the telling in material form of some of the most absorbing stories of man's rise."

From Canal Boats to Air Liners. And there is a real story of human progress to be unfolded. For example, the evolution of transportation will be displayed, step by step, from the primitive stagecoach and canal boats of 1833 to the great Mogul locomotives and fast air liners of today; such exhibits will trace the progress of transportation in the past 100 years.

The rare richness of the story the fair has to tell can be illustrated by looking back at some of the landmarks of 1833. At that time the union was composed of only 24 states, much of the Pacific coast was still an unexplored wilderness, Chicago was little more than a trading post. The age of railway transportation had barely begun; only four years before had the first train run in Pennsylvania, and the longest railroad in the world at that time ran from Charleston, S. C., to Augusta, Ga., a distance of 135 miles.

Tallow candles flickered in the homes, for the kerosene lamp was still a generation in the future. The telegraph, was not to be patented until five years later, Bell's first telephone was 43 years off and Marconi's wireless was an undreamed-of invention that was to come 65 years later.

One Hundred Years of America. The reaper had just been patented, but was not yet in use. Howe's first sewing machine was not to come until 1846. The practical application of electricity generated by Faraday's first crude dynamo in 1831 was still undreamed of, most of the people of America wore homespun clothes in their own homes.

Old Slave Trail Aid To Aliens
By United Press. SANDUSKY, O.—The route which fleeing slaves once used to escape from the United States into Canada now is being used reverse-ly by aliens seeking to enter the United States from Canada. United States border patrolmen state that their chief duty these days is to prevent the transportation of aliens across Lake Erie. They say that the Canadian shore from Amherstburg and Sandwich through the Point Pelee is jacketed and skirted with marshlands just as is the Ohio shore from Marblehead, across Sandusky bay, to Toledo. It was these same sections of shore line which afforded sanctuary for slaves who sought their freedom in Canada. Foreigners apparently are undaunted by the hard times and scarcity of jobs in the United States, patrolmen say, and are willing to take almost any kind of risk to get into this country. Fishermen and rum-runners ply back and forth across the lake under the cover of darkness. And the rum-runners are special centers of attention now that the demand for Canadian liquor in the United States has decreased considerably, they will gladly bring an alien across for a few dollars. West Virginian In Legion Race

Louis A. Johnson, above, Clarkburg, W. Butterflies Cause New Climb Record

By United Press. REDDING, Calif.—George Mason and Earl Hindman, accompanying a party to Lassen peak, decided at the foot of the trail not to climb the peak. When their friends had disappeared up the trail, Hindman and Mason were stirred to excitement by the appearance of a huge black cloud on the mountain top. Concluding that they were witnessing an eruption of the famous peak, they dashed up the mountain in record time. When they arrived at the crater's lip, they learned the source of the cloud mass. They found themselves surrounded so thickly by mountain butterflies that they could not see.

One Close Election Beat Recent Race

By United Press. AUSTIN.—The struggle between a millionaire who lost his fortune and an Austin housewife for the governorship of Texas this year is rivaled but once in Texas history. In 1861, F. R. Lubbock won the chief executive's post by a margin of 124 votes over Edward Clark and T. J. Chambers, according to records here. The total vote was 57,245 in that year, however, as compared to nearly 1,000,000 votes counted in the run-off primary of 1932. Even if Newton hadn't day dreamed under an apple tree, it's very likely that someone would have hit upon the theory of gravity in the last year or so.

THERE'S NO "LIFE" IN STALE GASOLINE

ONLY fresh GAS PACKS FULL POWER!

FRESH-MADE gas packs "life," punch, power. But as staleness increases—power decreases. The "light ends"—the "easy starting" elements—evaporate. Besides that, a chemical change takes place—making gas sluggish, weak and "dead." And the staler the gas, the stickier it is—and the more apt it is to knock. The entire petroleum industry has long sought ways to overcome gas deterioration. Gulf, after years of study, now announces a system that assures you of FRESH, full-powered gasoline! Here's how . . . By making the best possible gasoline and refining out certain complex elements that cause early deterioration. And by rushing this FRESH-MADE, FULL-POWERED gas to you like some perishable food.

Gulf has spotted its huge refineries in many sections of the country—so that every Gulf filling station is close to a source of FRESH-MADE gasoline. Gulf has geared its whole distribution system to high speed. Fast trucks speed FRESH gas to Gulf pumps every day. Get your money's worth—get FULL power. Get FRESH gas—delivered FRESH. Get Gulf—exclusively.

Rice Faces One of Hardest Grid Schedules Now

HOUSTON, Sept. 6.—Although facing one of the toughest schedules on record, Coach Jack Meagher of Rice Institute looked upon his impressive supply of material today and outlined the 1932 football season might very easily be a banner one for the Owls.

When Fall training begins Sept. 10, Meagher will have on hand 55 candidates, 21 of whom won their "R's" last year. With this manpower he believes the Owls will be definitely in the running for the Southwest conference championship, a thing long coveted at Rice.

Meagher will have an assortment of backfield talent that he holds will be second to none in the conference. At fullback, Capt. Tom Driscoll, Houston, will be back on the job. His brother, Vic Driscoll, will have first call at quarterback.

Tom and Vic Driscoll, respectively, will be understudied by Jim McLaughlin, Ranger, and Jim McCullough, Dallas, among others and by Henry Clure, Beaumont, and Joe Neveux, Houston.

Halfback jobs will be taken care of by Lee Hammett, Ranger; Jap Thrasher, Houston; Pat Wallace, Gilmer; Jack Frey, Houston; and Kelly Scott, Marshall, all veterans. Meagher reports a wealth of competent understudies to these first string men.

The Rice head coach admits to a slight tendency toward unbalanced end play. On one wing he will try Ox Hinman, Ranger, shifting him from tackle. Jim McKinnon, Austin; DeWitt Knight, Port Arthur; Randy Strong, Houston and Red Horne, Houston, will try for the other end.

Rice's all-conference center, Odie Narris, Marshall, will again hold the pivot position, with Ed Hander, Waco, next in line for the job. Others available for center duty are Dick Lauterbach, San Antonio, and Tom Dunbar, Palestine.

The teams will be well fortified at tackle with Lou Hassell, Edinburg, voted the most valuable player in 1931, and Fred Lauterbach, San Antonio, Paul Cole, Cisco, and Hal Watson, Dallas are among the others who will see service.

First call for guard will go to Percy Burk, Houston, and Fay Lawton, Dallas, both of whom starred in 1931. Two others adjudged just as good are Hal Michelson, El Campo, and Red Dickey, Houston. Ray Miller, Cisco, also will be available as guard.

The Rice schedule for 1932: Sept. 24.—Texas College of Arts and Industries at Houston. Oct. 1.—Louisiana State University at Houston.

Oct. 5.—Southern Methodist University at Dallas. Oct. 13.—Loyola of New Orleans at Houston. Oct. 22.—University of Texas at Houston.

Oct. 29.—Creighton College of Omaha at Houston. Nov. 5.—University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. Nov. 12.—Texas A. & M. College at College Station.

Nov. 19.—Texas Christian University at Houston. Nov. 26.—Baylor University at Houston.

Negroes Pushing Farm Movement

WATER VALLEY, Miss.—How to get the negro back to the farm will be the principal business before the annual session of the National Rural Religious and Industrial Association, Inc., here Oct. 12.

Dr. J. M. Williamson, negro leader and president of the association, believes his people will thrive best when they are on a "little farm of their own, working for themselves and away from the city."

"The trend of civilization always is back to the farm after an urban movement and now the best place is back on the farm," he said.

His association has for many years been interested in educational, religious and industrial work over the south for negroes.

But the back to the farm movement is not confined to the negroes of the south. Already hundreds of unemployed in the cities of the north among the negroes have applied to this association as to how to return to the land.

Local experiment stations will be established in every county in this section to help the people, teach them how to farm, live at home, protect their premises, and have sanitary surroundings.

More than 500 families from the north already are planning to return to farms, as soon as arrangements can be completed with railroads and land-owners.

At the October meeting, arrangements will be made to have tracts of land cut into small farms, sold to the industrious man on 20-year payments, with help for the first year to start, and to provide good schools, homes, churches and competent supervisors.

Guards Hot Corner For Giants

Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants is thinking seriously of replacing many of his players with new talent for next year, but he plans to hang on to Gilbert English, above, young third baseman. Terry's youngster hasn't hit much thus far, but he is expected to improve. His fielding has been steady. English took over the bag several weeks ago when Johnny Verges, regular, slipped out of the picture.

Babe To Be A Better Athlete Her Coach Says

United Press Staff Correspondent. DALLAS.—Mildred (Babe) Dicksen, 19-year-old girl Olympic record breaker, will be a better athlete next year than this, predicts her coach, Col. W. J. McCombs. He believes she will reach the peak of her track and field career until after her 20th birthday.

"She probably will be at her best next year," says McCombs. "There will be no Olympics, however, and though her performances will be better than this year, there will not be so much glory and renown for her."

McCombs believes the girl will lower her track marks by improving her start. She does not jump the gun or become nervous, but leaves her marks more slowly than most champion runners. Even in the 80-meter Olympic hurdle event at Los Angeles in which she set a new world mark, she reached the first hurdles behind her opponents.

Babe cleared her hurdles by a margin which would make most college track coaches gasp. Instead of skimming the barriers in the traditional manner, she clears them by six or more inches and almost never knocks one down. McCombs, however, is in no hurry to change this.

"If she can break world records this way there is no use in risking injuries by having her run closer to the hurdles," he says. "She's the greatest all-around athlete in the world as she is and doesn't need a great deal of improvement."

Babe's unparalleled feat of winning two Olympic events, the 80-meter hurdles and javelin, and taking second in the high jump, the only other event she was permitted to enter, probably will make little difference in her life as an insurance office clerk here.

That Old Scotch Game

IN the last few years it has become noticeable that the leading exponents of the ancient Scottish pastime of golf in America are not the Scotch. Some of the names of winners of important tournaments have given headline writers permanent headaches.

Looking over the results of a caddie's tournament at the old Belleclair Golf Club at Bayside, L. I., the other day, this correspondent was smitten suddenly by one of the reasons why young men with foreign-sounding names are becoming the lords of the links.

And Who's That Dutchman?

THE tournament was won by a 16-year-old boy named Frank Strafaci, with a score of 145. Next in line was Louis Barbaro, with 146. A glance down the list of 30 or more names of caddies in the tournament disclosed the following monikers:

Frampton, Matuso, Guarieri, Marzolla, Garchio, Petronis, Bukovec, Ciampaglio, Touchinadi, Biscio, Rezier, Calo, Conte, Krenza, Pessala, Pentenero, Pezzella, Testa, Mazzullo, Cappallo, Manzoni and Van Houten.

Two young men in the tournament named McCarthy and Hennessy must have felt a bit lonely.

Another Sarazen?

SUCH names as Matuso, Guarieri, Riccio, Ciampaglio, suggest at once the name of Sarazen, another young man who was a caddy in the metropolitan area some 15 years ago. The full name is Eugenio Saracini, who is, as you probably have guessed, Gene Sarazen.

Among these caddies may be the man who, in 15 years, will rule the links of the world. But by that time, "Strafaci" may have become "Strack" and young "Guarieri" may be known as Mr. "Guard."

Sarazen is the son of Italian immigrants who had been in America only a year before his birth, at Harrison, N. Y.

How He Came Up

FIFTEEN years ago, Sarazen's status was much the same as that of these youngsters. Gene's father, a contractor, had lost a great deal of money on contracts he had entered into before the war which sent prices of materials and wages for labor soaring.

The Saracini family moved to Bridgeport, where for more than a year, Sarazen worked in a munitions factory, nailing up boxes of bullets.

After his day's work, he would go to the Brooklawn golf course and practice until darkness forced him to stop.

Professor Says Nations Pursuing Research Studies

COLUMBUS, O.—Despite the depression, practically every country has been furthering chemical research according to Prof. E. J. Crane of Ohio State university, director of the international science reporting system of the American Chemical Society.

As a result, Prof. Crane declared, of this unchecked progress, and with a bright outlook for prosperity, practically every country finds itself better prepared to compete with world trade.

American industry is now spending more of its income on research than in the prosperity area, a recent report of the National Research council showed. Other countries, it was revealed, have pursued a similar policy of preparedness.

It's American Sport

IT used to be a popular belief that British and Scottish people excelled at golf because of their physical characteristics. The game seemed particularly suited to cold and sunny natures.

Yet, in this country, we find the warm and impulsive Spanish and Italian stock especially successful at the pastime.

Golf places a handicap upon hot temper, yet fiery Latins seem to master it without much trouble. Many of our leading professionals—the Dutras, Espinosa, Turnesas, Jurados, Maneros, etc.—seem to find their Latin temperament no hindrance.

Mrs. John Garner Gives Her Favorite Recipe For Rolls

DALLAS.—Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the democratic vice presidential candidate, recently wrote the Dallas Journal from her home at Uvalde that her favorite recipe is for ice box rolls.

"I am sending you our popular ice box roll recipe," she wrote. "The dough will keep nicely for two or three days."

This is the recipe: 1 cake of yeast 1 cup scalded milk 2-3 cup shortening 1 tablespoon sugar 1 cup mashed potatoes 2 eggs, well beaten 1 teaspoon salt Flour for stiff dough

Dissolve yeast cake in lukewarm milk. Then add sugar and dissolve. Follow with other ingredients, using enough flour to make stiff dough. Place in ice box to chill. One hour before baking make into rolls and let rise. Place in moderately hot oven and make until golden brown.

Won Marathon for His Girl

The water was wet, and very cold, but George Blagden, right, of Memphis, Tenn., didn't mind. He got some very pretty encouragement from a boat that moved alongside of him as he won the Canadian National 15-mile marathon swim and $7500 in first prize money at Toronto. The encouragement was Miss Gladys Lathbury, left, also a swimmer, from Philadelphia. Blagden swam the distance in 7 hours 19 minutes 52 3-5 seconds, almost 25 minutes under the previous record. This picture speaks of romance, but Gladys says there is no wedding in sight.

Secretary of State Will Quit Post After Six Years

AUSTIN.—An alert, gray-haired woman of 53 years, who presided over many historical documents from the dusty oblivion of storage rooms in the state capitol, will retire from the secretary of state's office next January after six years of service.

Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, mother of four sons and a daughter, twice a grandmother, and a business woman, is the only person to hold the secretary of state's position in Texas for six years.

With the vigor of the typical housewife, she set to work cleaning out cubby holes, emptying boxes, and rearranging records when she took office under former Gov. Dan Moody in 1925.

Her "housecleaning" revealed the original Texas declaration of independence fading away in the dusty archives. The document was treated with preservatives and is now on display near the capitol rotunda.

In the basement she found a chair in which Governor Hubbard had sat. This was restored. She found also the article of cessation and the certificate sent the state when Texas women first were given the right to vote under the 19th amendment.

Trance Farmer Gives Sermon

MONROE, La.—The strange "trance" of Charlie Richardson, farmer, have begun to astound the city's most prominent pastors.

When Richardson is seized with the attacks, he lies flat on his back, his body rigid, while with eyes staring heavenward, he begins to preach. Crowds quickly gather, and stand in hushed and respectful silence.

The sermons are delivered in perfect diction. His quotations are numerous and perfectly correct, in minutest detail, according to pastors who have heard him.

These attacks occur sometimes as often as twice a day. Again they do not occur for months at a time.

Whenever they appear, Richardson drops to the sidewalk, or corn field, wherever he is, and preaches for an hour or more, his body rigid all the time. He seems to talk as one "from another sphere," town-folk agree.

When the "spell" is broken, he appears completely exhausted and has little knowledge of what he has said.

Physicians have been able to do little to alleviate his trouble.

"The Washington Masquerade" Has Powerful Appeal

Lionel Barrymore, as a brilliant, domineering leader who rules men, but is in turn ruled by a woman who almost plunges him to ruin, is the unique figure of a unique story in "The Washington Masquerade," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational drama of national politics now being shown at the Arcadia theatre, Ranger, today and Friday.

In striking contrast to his portrayal of "Grand Hotel," is the role of the dominant Jeff Keane, senator and national political power, who, though men are his political tools, is nevertheless the tool of a woman who, employed by the "lobbyist racket," deceives him and rules him by guile until the astounding dramatic climax.

Barrymore probably never had a greater role. In "The Claw," on the stage, he made the role theatrical history. In the screen adaptation, modernized and with authentic inside facts added by Samuel G. Blythe, famous political writer who collaborated with John Meehan, he has a mighty portrayal. In his speech before the senate he even outdoes his famous work in "A Free Soul."

for LOVE or MONEY by H.W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA TOWNSEND, beautiful young widow, inherits her husband's millions with the provision that she must not remarry. Her marriage, arranged by her husband's lawyer who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce.

MONA, in love with her husband's nephew, HARRY TOWNSEND, agreed to the marriage when she thought Harry was lost to her. She employs LOTTIE CARR, a fashion model, as her secretary-companion and they set out for South America, where Harry and STEVE SACCARILLI are partners in a diamond mine. Mona's brother, RED, works at the mine. Mona hopes for a reconciliation with Harry, she also feels Harry is entitled to a share of his uncle's fortune and wants to find a way to arrange this legally.

Learning that Harry and Steve are on vacation at Holiday Island, the girls leave their boat at Port of Spain. There they meet Bud who takes them to Holiday Island. Harry and Steve are cordial but their greeting lacks warmth. Mona wishes she had not come. Harry does not ask for explanations and she cannot make them.

After several days Lottie declares they must take matters into their own hands. She urges Mona to have a frank talk with Harry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIV

IT was Harry's voice that Mona heard. "Oh, my darling, you've come at last!"

Harry was beside her. After all these days and weeks of countless formalities, of coldness almost, he was again the Harry she had learned to love. For a moment Mona did not speak, did not turn her head. She sank against the white linen shoulder, against the arm which enclosed her and sighed.

Then, still without speaking, she raised her hand and pressed it against Harry's face.

"Yes, Harry, I--I'm here!"

They stood in silence. The sands lay white around them. The sea under the white moonlight rippled quietly. The flamboyant trees creaked at hand swayed softly. There seemed no one else in the world except these two.

Mona did not look at Harry. Her head sank lower against his shoulder. She could feel the beating of his heart as tumultuous as her own. "Mona, why did you do it, darling?" he said at last.

"Do what, Harry?" Still she did not look at him. He had caught her hand in his own.

"Do what? Oh, Mona, how could you! Why did you marry my uncle?" The despair in his voice tore her heart.

"Why did you run away?" she countered.

He was miserable and she was adding to his misery. "How could I stay when I knew?"

"Harry!"

He did not speak for a moment but his arm tightened about her.

"Harry! Do you think I married your uncle for his money?"

"It certainly looked that way. You knew I had none. You knew--"

SHE shook her head. The tendrils of her hair touched his cheek.

"How could you think that of me?" Mona demanded. "You hadn't asked me to marry you. You hadn't even said you loved me!"

"But you knew."

"I thought I did! That was why when Mr. Garretson asked me to rush to Twilands and marry Harry Townsend I didn't hesitate! That was the way it all happened. Harry. It didn't occur to me that your uncle's name was Harry, too! It didn't occur to me that I was going to Twilands for any other reason except to marry you!"

"But when Garretson told you it was my uncle--"

"He didn't! We talked it all over without mentioning the man's name. Finally I asked him just as I was going out the door who the man was and he said 'Harry Townsend.'"

"And you thought you were going to Twilands to marry me?" Harry said slowly.

Mona nodded. "Until I was there in the sick room."

"And by that time I was on board the Miranda!"

Harry's head dropped miserably and Mona reached out a hand once more and touched his cheek. "It's not too late now, Harry," she said timidly. "It's not too late. We aren't old yet. And we're here--"

"How can I marry my uncle's wife?" demanded Harry bitterly. "My aunt!" He stared into space.

"Mona, oh, how could you--how could you!"

"Your uncle's widow, Harry," Mona whispered, "but never his wife! I was never that!"

"You mean--"

"I mean I was to consider the marriage for a year. I told you that before. He died before the year ended."

THERE was a silence in which little by little Harry's misery spent itself. Here was Mona, loving him wholeheartedly, the past explained away. She had come to him of her own accord, since she guessed rightly that he would not seek her out.

They would be married tomorrow! They would go to Port of Spain and the consul could perform the ceremony. Was there anything irregular about marrying one's aunt? Steve and Lottie could be the attendants. They could live here always in happiness and peace. Why not?

Mona stirred in Harry's arms. She laughed a little, happily.

"Will you marry me, Mona? Right away?"

"Why do we have to think about that now? Is it enough that we have found each other and understand each other?"

"But I don't understand you, Mona." His voice was hurt, puzzled.

"You said you loved me and now you say you can't marry me! Why?" She did not answer for a moment.

"I have something I must do first, Harry," she said slowly.

"You mean you must go home first?"

She shook her head at this, then slowly nodded. "Maybe. It might be necessary."

"There isn't any reason why you can't marry me, is there?" he asked quickly. "Uncle didn't bind you in any way? He didn't specify that you could never marry me--?"

"Not exactly. He said--"

"Then it's the money!"

She nodded agreement and Harry's expression hardened. "You mean if you marry me you'll forfeit your right to the fortune?"

"If I marry anyone, Harry."

"You mean you love the money and you care for that? It means more than your love for me? Is that what you're trying to say? Tell me you would rather have this money than marry me! Tell me!" He shook her fiercely.

"You don't understand," Mona began. "I do want to marry you some time. But not now!"

"Why not?" His voice was harsh.

"Is it because you want to enjoy your fortune a little longer? Mona, can't you take me as I am with what I have to give you? Isn't that enough?"

"Do you own half the mine, Harry?" she asked deliberately.

HE considered this. "No," he said, "but what has that to do with it? I'm not starving. You wouldn't starve as my wife."

"Do you own Holiday?"

"Part of it. Holiday is figured in with the rest of the property. Steve owns more than half. I thought I explained that. The sale of the Empire clinched things. For a while at least until I'm 30--I'm rather in Steve's stewardship, so to speak. He has more power in any measure than I have but that doesn't mean anything because it's Steve! It isn't as though he'd ever try to do anything I didn't approve."

"If Steve should die tomorrow," Mona said slowly, "the mine would belong--more than half of it and more than half of Holiday--to his heirs. Have you thought of that?"

Harry pressed his face down on her shoulder. He said slowly, "Why think of death now when we can think of each other?"

"You see, Harry, if I don't marry you right off perhaps I can think of a way to help you!"

"So that's your plan?" Harry's voice rose in dismay and disdain. "Do you think I'd let you help me, Mona? Do you think I'd take a cent of that money--?"

"Why not?"

"Because I couldn't! Mona, Mona, forget all this! What do you care for money? We have enough. Do I look so poor? Let the money go to the cat hospital or whatever he wanted it to go to and marry me!"

There was a rustle in the shrubbery close by. Then a shadow flung itself across the sand at their feet and separated from the clump of trees as if torn away by someone's hands.

"So this is where you are, Mona! Why didn't you tell me? I went into your room for some water--my thermos was empty--and couldn't find you. I was worried, still! You know those snakes--oh, Harry! Well, thank goodness, I didn't have the fire department out!"

"Wait Lottie, I'm coming," Mona rose from the sand and walked slowly toward the girl in the pathway.

"Say, I don't want to interrupt anything--" Lottie began uncertainly.

"--We've finished talking," Mona assured her.

"Are you sure there isn't anything more to say?" asked Harry.

"We'll talk it over in the morning, Harry."

"There's nothing to talk over. You can simply say 'yes' or 'no.'"

Lottie interposed cheerfully. "Don't mind me. I'll run ahead."

"Let's wait until tomorrow, Harry, please!"

"Say yes or no, Mona, tonight!"

"Do you mean that?"

He nodded seriously. "I do."

"Then it will have to be no," the girl said slowly. "I'm sorry, Harry."

LOOK SHARP ON "DULL" DAYS!

Our Advertising Manager sends a little shopping-trip to Gentle Readers

You have noticed that on some days there is more advertising in your newspaper than on other days.

Friday, for instance, we carry many messages to help you with your over-Sunday shopping. Certain department stores have their favorite days for advertising certain merchandise.

But--here's the tip--on days when the paper seems "thinnest," you sometimes discover the biggest bargains. It stands to reason that some advertisers prefer to run their announcements on days when the advertising columns are less crowded. And thus by looking sharp on the seemingly dull days you encounter surprises!

In fact, we don't think there's ever a time when one can draw an honest yawn and say "nothing in the paper today."

When it comes to ADVERTISING-NEWS, there's nothing in the paper that one can afford to miss!

IMPORTANT

When you ask for a product by name, as a result of advertising, do not accept a substitute--substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

American Legion
Discusses Many Projects
The Dulin Daniels post of the American Legion, session held on Tuesday night in the Elks clubrooms, conducted by Earl Francis, post commander, was attended by nine members.
Informal discussion of the possibilities of the old White Way park, held the board for a while. This park was formerly in care of the Civic League, which expended several hundred dollars in its upkeep for five or six years, admittedly an eye-sore in Eastland, in its present condition, the park has been the subject of much criticism by the average citizen, who has failed to understand that the property is owned in several small tracts with owners scattered over Texas, New York City, and others in Oklahoma, and all difficult of approach through correspondence on matters pertaining either to purchase or as to leasing of same.
This park is just opposite the depot and is the first thing strangers see when entering the city on alighting from the train.
The Legion voted to put on a Bingo game, their offering for the fair. This committee was appointed to make arrangements with other fair committees for this concession; Ralph C. Crouch, Percy Harris, and Ernest H. Jones. A resolution for publicity in the press was drawn up, which will be published later.
The next meeting of the Legion will be held on Sept. 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunn of Houston Honored With Evening Affair
Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Gunn of Houston, house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Matthews, and daughters, 210 Hunt street, were the honor guests recently at one of the prettiest affairs to have been given during the late summer season, when the Matthews entertained with an evening bridge and dance, given at their lovely brick home, which was made more colorful through the artful arrangement of blossoms effectively used about the rooms.
The entertainment, formerly planned as a garden party and chicken barbecue, at the last minute was transformed into a house party due to the heavy rainstorm which has unpleasantly been encountered throughout the week, changing the society calendar's functions to quite an extent.
Tables were removed into the house for this delightful function where bridge was enjoyed. Later in the evening dancing also added to the diversion of the hour attended by about 20 guests.
Mrs. Gunn is a sister of Mr. Matthews, who with her husband leave today for their Houston home.

Eggplant Italianae
Two small eggplants, 2 hard cooked eggs, 1/2 cup diced cheese, 1 cup tomato sauce.
Pare eggplants and cut in slices. Sprinkle each slice with salt and pile on a plate, one above the other.
Drain and fill with any combination of vegetables at hand. This is an excellent way to use leftover vegetables.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Grapes, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, hot rolls, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Eggplant Italianae, Graham Parker House rolls, apple snow, milk, tea.
DINNER: Roiled and stuffed mutton cutlet, diced new turnips in cream sauce, stuffed apple salad, rice and peach pudding, milk, coffee.

Cutlets With Stuffed Peppers
Four veal cutlets, 1 egg, cracker crumbs, 2 large sweet green peppers, 1/2 cup diced green beans (cooked), 4 tablespoons tiny cooked onions, 1/2 cup diced new carrots (cooked), 1/2 cup diced cooked peas, 4 tablespoons Hollandaise sauce or melted butter.
Steak can be used and cut in neat pieces, each one large enough for a serving, or "cutlets" can be used. Trim meat and roll in crumbs. Dip in egg slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon cold water and roll again in crumbs. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and saute a rich brown on both sides. Reduce heat and cook slowly for 20 minutes. Place on a hot platter and on each cutlet put half a pepper filled with combination of vegetables. Pour the sauce or melted butter over each stuffed pepper and serve at once. After cutting peppers in halves and removing seeds, simmer for eight minutes in boiling salted water.

Other: Cover with a weighted plate and let stand two hours. Sauté in butter and line a shallow baking dish with half the slices; over the eggs sprinkle the cheese and pour over tomato sauce. Cover with remaining eggplant and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven.
To make tomato sauce, cook 1 1/2 cups diced tomatoes with onion, celery leaves, parsley, carrot and three or four cloves. Season with salt and pepper, and when very soft, rub through a strainer. Blend with two tablespoons butter blended with 1/2 tablespoons flour.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS—The maid's-eye view of the hat mode for the moment is something new. It has a beret inspiration, but differs from this long popular piece of head covering in that on the left side it is cut up into a point with the lines leading to it swerving in almost a scroll fashion.
A flower or a pin often is placed in the apex of the V, or again, a narrow piece of ribbon crosses the crown of the head and terminates in a small bow. No hair, or even the lobe of the ear, is visible on the right side of the head, and the left side is not left nearly as exposed as with either the beret or the toque vogue. By means of the swerving line to and away from the point of the V it comes further down over the tip of the left ear.
As for materials, these new bonnets use fabrics almost exclusively, either stitched flat, quilted, or left plain.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

ERIC THE RED
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Harland Frazer... inspired by that marauding Viking chieftain whose vandalism branded him as the "Terror of the North" (975-1000 A. D.).

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?
