MAJORITY OF PAPERS FOR BULLINGTON

Editorial support for Bullington, United Press Staff Correspondent. DALLAS, Nov. 7.—Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls, republican candidate for governor, will receive a larger vote than heretofore polled by any of his party's gubernatorial candidates in Texas at the general election Tuesday, if voters follow advice of Texas newspaper editors.

A similar poll made by the United Press during the democratic primary campaign revealed election of Gov. Ross Sterling was urged by majority of editors. Many editors who supported Sterling now advise voting a straight ticket at Tuesday's election but have concentrated their efforts in behalf of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket and have failed to mention Mrs. Ferguson in their editorials.

KEEPING UP DORMITORY PROGRAM

The University of Texas this fall opened its first dormitory for first-year men students. Except for old B Hall, abandoned as living quarters several years ago, the university has never provided housing for men. Half a dozen dormitories erected by religious and fraternal societies and by private endowment, have partially provided housing for women students.

This first dormitory houses 80 of the approximately 2000 freshmen.

Planning the dormitory program, regents estimated that eight or nine buildings and a commons will be required. The rest of the buildings must be financed. The cost of the right kind of dormitories is too high to permit self-financing to pay them out within a reasonable number of years.

The university now has authority, under an existing constitutional provision, to issue bonds and buy them in with money from the permanent fund to provide for construction on the campus. The permanent fund is safeguarded, in that the university pays to itself the interest on the bonds, on maturity out of interest and other available fund revenues.

The regents, fearful lest the present or some future board would be incautious in thus issuing bonds, have caused the legislature to submit a constitutional amendment to revoke and cancel this authority for future improvements.

If the amendment is adopted, it will seriously delay the dormitory program. It also will head off other construction that may be needed, by delaying it for many years. The present building program will for the first time bring the university plant up to present requirements, except for dormitories, wherein it does not catch up.

The pending constitutional amendment is not necessary to the university's welfare. It would be hurtful in respect to the dormitory program. Neither regents nor anyone else can now say but that it might be seriously hurtful in regarding other needed construction in future years.

This amendment should be defeated by friends of the university and friends of higher education throughout Texas.

Football Tickets Are Now on Sale For Game Nov. 11

Tickets for the Ranger-Eastland football game, to be played at Lillard Field, Ranger, on Nov. 11, went on sale Saturday night at the drug stores of Ranger and Eastland.

The admission price for the game has been kept at 50 cents, which includes reserved seats, most of which will be between the two 40-yard lines. A large number of good seats between the 30 and 40 yard lines on both sides of the field will also be available to those who do not purchase their tickets early this week.

It is expected that the advance sale will be large because of the fact that many fans from Eastland and Ranger will visit the game on the holiday and other fans from over this section of the country will be present.

This will be the only game in this section on Friday of the week, though Breckenridge will play at Abilene on the same afternoon.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

F. B. CUNNINGHAM, advertising manager of the Topeka (Kansas) Capital, says:

"Mrs. Housewife, the dictator of the family budget, reads and believes in her daily newspaper.

"Do you realize that today the woman spends 85 per cent or more of the family budget? She recommends how the other 15 per cent will be spent. She buys the furnishings and supplies for the home—her clothes and the children's clothes and needs—her husband's clothes, a goodly portion of them, if you please.

"The daily newspaper is the paper to reach the woman. Recent surveys have shown that women invariably prefer the newspaper. Local and national advertisers who are appealing to women are more and more turning to the daily newspapers—they are actually beginning to place the large bulk of their advertising appropriations in the daily newspapers. Women invariably prefer their daily newspaper because they can find a large selection of advertising to their liking—they find more and authentic feminine news—they can select and buy merchandise advertised almost the same day.

"The daily newspaper fulfills the needs of the average family readers, particularly the women, because she can keep abreast of the times, with world wide happenings, local and state, of this or that woman's organization, the trends of fashion, club woman's news, society news; in short, the daily newspaper is where she meets and rubs shoulders with her neighbor; it's her daily market place, her shoppers' guide in the privacy of her own home. Newspapers therefore provide the most acceptable means of entering the home with Mrs. Housewife in a receptive mood, and, incidentally, the most economical means for any merchant of crying his wares to the masses."

small part in the state's political drama. George Armstrong, candidate for governor of the Jacksonian party, was the most active of those. Tomorrow's election will officially declare Joseph Weldon Bailey Jr. a member of congress. His nomination by the democrats was tantamount to election. He is the son of the late Joseph W. Bailey, noted barometer and for many years United States senator from Texas. His victory in the run-off ended a comeback campaign of J. H. (Cyrene) Davis, once congressman from Texas and aroused foe of Bailey's father.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

This column is used as a feature and should not be construed as representing the editorial views of the paper. The expressions contained in the column are the views of one individual and do not reflect the policy of the paper.

One hundred twenty-one years ago today 800 American militiamen under the direction of William Henry Harrison met 6,000 Indians headed by Chiefs White Loon, Stone Eater, Winnemac and the Prophet on the Tippecanoe river, Indiana. It was a rousing victory for the Americans and a means of bringing Harrison into such prominence that he was made commander of the entire troops of the west. The tricky name "Tippecanoe" was used in the successful campaign which placed him in the white house in 1841 as the ninth president of the United States. . . . before the disturbing days of prohibition. However, speaking of wets and dries, the campaign did include the subject, for it is often called the "log-cabin and hard-cider campaign." One end of Harrison's house at North Bend was an antiquated log cabin, and one campaign biography said that his table, "instead of being covered with exciting wines, is well supplied with the best cider." Humm! We just can't stay off the subject.

This thing we call football, over which so many hats have been thrown away, finger nails bitten, and old men beat over the head by enthusiastic fathers and sweethearts, is not a modern find. It is believed the game was played in some form back in the days when all Europe was in barbarism. It was, however, at the great English schools like Rugby, Harrow and Eton that football was made practical.

Today it is one of the most popular athletic games in the world, and just now it all the rage. . . . even more so than the liquor question, and, incidentally, the election.

Thank heaven, we don't have parties when it comes to sports. It's a case of may the best man win, and traditions and pledges have nothing whatsoever to do with the fight. It might be well for some politicians to take intelligence lessons from the modern ball fan.

It was Browning who wrote "Autumn wins you best by this, its mute appeal to sympathy for its decay." Deary! Deary! Deary! . . . but wait! When the bleak winds sweep from the north and whip away the trees' green robes, leaving only white skeletons of limbs and boughs, it is November. And when hot-dogs and peanuts take the place of ices and lemonade at football games; then it's time for coat collars to go up around reddening ears. . . . and we like it that way. Deary? Deary? Browning surely was not a sportsman.

There is something uncanny about a rainy night. A million tiny feet patter on your window pane, and a thousand urgent voices cry for admittance, and somehow you never are alone when it rains. True, it's blue-time when the clouds hang low, but it's good for the system to feel the grip of thought and concentration every once in a great while. . . . even though such a condition may produce the so-called blues. And think of that other result of wet weather: the proverbial rainbow and its accompany pot of gold. While treasure seekers wade around in bayous looking for elusive cannons and their supposed gold-fillings, why not begin a real search for the end of the many colored arch? A sort of Holy Grail, you know. . . . Eureka, and all that sort of thing.

Stellar Cast In "Smilin' Through"

Norma Shearer's newest photoplay, "Smilin' Through," which will open today at the Lyric theatre, presents the unique phenomena of a star being supported by four other stars.

For appearing with Miss Shearer in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's talking picture version of the renowned Jane Cowd stage success are Frederic March, Leslie Howard, O. P. Heggie and Ralph Forbes, all of whom are stars in their own right.

Both on stage and screen the members of this quartet have individually headed the list of dramatic casts. Collectively they comprise the most brilliant supporting cast with which any star has been surrounded.

"Smilin' Through" marks Frederic March's first appearance with Norma Shearer. He was borrowed from Paramount for this picture in return for the loan of Clark Gable. March is one of the screen's most popular male stars. His list of hits includes "The Royal Family," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Jealousy."

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

Eastland county voters, you are expected to be the standard bearer of the Texas centennial amendment vote election day.

All eyes are turned to you and watching your conduct that will be registered for weal or woe, so far as the state of Texas is concerned, with tomorrow's vote.

Shall it be said that Texas allowed the light of her history, that face shone forth in undimmed glory a century or more, to be obscured and almost extinguished through the act of her own citizens, should they fail to show their appreciation of the bloody sacrifices that made Texas, a sovereign state?

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

40 Million

very nearly has drowned out discussion of most other issues in this most important election—one of the most important in the nation's history. It is for this reason that the greatest vote of all times is expected to be cast. A grand total of 36,409,433 votes were cast for the Republican and Democratic candidates in 1928, with Mr. Hoover receiving 21,352,190 and Alfred E. Smith 15,016,443. President Hoover received 444 electoral votes, breaking tradition by capturing four states in the "solid south," while Smith received out of his large popular vote only 87, representing those of eight states. Registration has increased this year with Democrats showing great gains.

President Hoover has gone before the voters largely on the record of measures sponsored by the administration to temper the wind of the depression and check it, including the mammoth Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the home loan bank system and other agencies created to supply credit to a weakened financial structure. He has asked for a continuance in office to complete this work in several personal appearances before the voters. Pointedly, he has accused Democrats of lack of a program and lack of leadership in the opportunity they had by virtue of control of the House of Representatives.

Hoover Charges
Roosevelt has assailed the Hoover administration up and down the land. He and other Democratic campaigners have charged the president with misrepresentation of the scope of the business debacle, with failure to act promptly and adequately, and with taking credit for relief measures which were the brain children of Democrats and were forced through only by Democratic pressure.

The tariff has returned as an issue with greater force than in two decades, with President Hoover standing squarely on the Hawley-Smoot Act and Democrats clawing at it as largely responsible for the depression and suggesting international negotiations to lower tariff barriers all around. The manufacturer of a steamship and spitting firebrand, into the campaign. Disgruntled farmers heard proposals of all sorts to alleviate their distress.

Prohibition in Background
Prohibition, which dominated both conventions, settled somewhat into the background as the campaign progressed, but only to be revived as a burning issue when Congress re-convenes. Democrats have pledged repeal of the 18th Amendment and modification of the Volstead Act to permit the manufacture of beer and wine. Republicans suggested a modified 18th Amendment leaving the liquor question to the states, with President Hoover in the vanguard in favor of a change.

Speaker of the House John N. Garner, who has taken less part in the campaign than any Vice President candidate in a long while, nevertheless was very much in evidence as a target of Republican attack. President Hoover led the sniping at Garner, charging that recovery would be impossible if measures he had sponsored had become law. Vice President Charles Curtis paraded up and down the country in a vigorous campaign for one of his 72 years, but not on the scale of his 1928 activity. Curtis deserted his party on the prohibition issue, remaining dry.

Candidates anxiously await the issue of tomorrow's polling with the knowledge that this has been a most peculiar political year. Especially hard has it been upon the "ins." Veteran after veteran has been swept from Congress to amass a total of 50 members of House and Senate eliminated by the primaries. Twenty-eight others retired, desiring not to test the issue.

Hard Fights
Many leaders, who successfully withstood assaults in the primaries, face stiff tests in the elections tomorrow. These include Senator James E. Watson, Indiana, Senate Republican leader; Senator Reed Smoot, Rep., Utah.

Flyer Given Ring By Girl Reserves

AMELIA Earhart, "for her courage and dependability," was given a ring when she was made honorary member of the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. recently about 2000 school girls of Westchester and Putnam Counties in New York saw the famous woman flyer become a member of the Junior Y. W. C. A. club in a social evening. Miss Margaret Foster of White Plains presented the ring.

and professional Senator Hiram Bingham, Rep., Connecticut, the Senate's leading champion of beer.

Five Senators and 45 House members went down to defeat in the primaries. The Senate "insurgent" bloc suffered two of the five Senate losses in Senators John J. Blaine, Wisconsin, and Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa. The latter chose to test the issue again in the election tomorrow as an independent. Other Senators defeated were Cameron Morrison, Dem., North Carolina; Samuel Shortridge, Rep., California; and Edgar Broussard, Dem., Louisiana.

Hawley Defeated
Deep inroads were made upon the House leadership. Representative Charles Crisp, Dem., Georgia, sponsor of the billion dollar tax bill, lost in the attempt to go to the Senate. Representative Willis C. Hawley, Rep., Oregon, co-author of the Hawley-Smoot Act, was defeated. Representative John Q. Tilson, formerly Republican leader, retired. Other leaders went down in the melee.

The LaFollette machine suffered its first serious reverse in 30 years in the defeat of Governor Philip LaFollette, son of "Fighting Bob," and of Blaine.

Notable defections from Republican ranks during the campaign were those of Senators George W. Norris, Nebraska, and Hiram Johnson, California.

Minor Candidates
The prevalence of depression psychology probably is responsible for the large number of minor party candidates running for Congress. There are 76 candidates on the Socialist ticket; three Communists; nine Farmer-Labor, all from Minnesota; a dozen Prohibitionists, and 13 who are running on constitutional tickets, which include the Prohibitionist.

Nineteen women are running for Congress this year, two for the Senate, the rest for the House. One of the six women House members, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Dem., Florida, was eliminated in the primaries. Another, Mrs. Edwige Wingo, retired at the end of the term of the Senate; the tall

March 4. Eight Socialists are included among the women candidates.

Since Maine already has elected her three House members, only 432 and the 435 House seats are at stake tomorrow.

"Week-End Murder"

New Feature Serial by Gabrielle E. Forbush, Beginning Wed., Nov. 9

Ever since the day her father brought home to her a wornout typewriter Gabrielle E. Forbush, author of the new serial, "Week-End Murder," has pursued a literary career. At that time she had just turned 12 and, naturally, started at the top. She became editor-in-chief (and the only member of the staff) of a daily newspaper. Four copies were painfully typed daily by the author. This lasted for several weeks. Whether school or vacation intervened she does not now remember but the typewriter remained and was in more or less regular use until she went to Vassar College.

With school days behind, she found herself proudly installed at a desk in the Century company offices and paid to do what she liked best—read newspapers and magazines and clip book reviews to paste in heavy volumes. Soon thereafter she became an assistant editor on "Boy Scout Magazine."

Publicity work for various organizations, a few years as an assistant editor on "Woman's Home Companion," work on New York newspapers, syndicate work, and finally advertising copywriting kept her professional career from becoming monotonous. Even during the strenuous years in charge of the "woman's interest" accounts of a large New York advertising agency she did some writing on the side, but it was mostly personality stories, articles and an occasional fashion or cooking feature. She collaborated with her husband, Arthur R. Forbush, on three books—one on etiquette, one of children's games, and one of crossword puzzles.

Recently Mrs. Forbush has turned again to fiction. "Week-End Murder" is her first full-length detective novel. It is an exciting mystery set against a background that in several minor details suggests the author's own experiences. "Week-End Murder" begins Wednesday, Nov. 9, in this paper.

CALL of the WEST BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

REGIN HERE TODAY STAN BALL accuses ASPER ... ASPER looked at his daughter for a moment while he cast about for a way to tell her. Finally, he plunged in, but immediately hedged. "He took your car and went to the city."

CONTRARY to the expectations of the doctor and to all rules of convalescence, Dona did not suffer a setback, Asper brought her news from the room down the hall, news that he made encouraging and bright. He was sitting on the foot of her bed smiling at her in his rough way when Dona suddenly remembered something.

Junior Missionary Auxiliary. A radio program purporting to come from Japan, was presented by members of the Junior Missionary auxiliary of the Baptist church, which opened in assembly in the church classroom, Saturday morning with a song group, "I Shall Not Be Moved."

Eastland Personal. Mrs. Oscar F. Chastain is now out following a severe illness of several days. Mrs. J. M. Armstrong spent Saturday and Sunday with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Galbraith, at the Llano hotel in Llano.

HER question was answered by a voice from the steps. Dona and Asper turned to see a dusty cowboy standing grinning at them; it was Malloy. "I went after him," Malloy stated briefly. "You did?" Asper showed his surprise. "You knew Stan Ball was not what we thought?" Dona asked slowly.

DONA accepted the ruling with reservations, but she did accept it. She had learned to have a great deal of respect for the tall medical man who served as company doctor. She spent an impatient morning waiting for news from the room down the hall. Asper came in twice but his assurances that Stan was getting on well did not ease Dona's longing to go to him.
