A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LOVE NOT THE WORLD: Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.—1 John 2: 15.

OLD TIMERS AND THEIR PLAIN LIVING

Federal Judge Robert L. Williams of Oklahoma is a former governor, a wise old jurist, and he began to hoe his own row early in the pioneer life of the Southwest. A Muskogee news dispatch reads that Judge Boggs, as his intimate friends call him, "thinks the farmer could work a bit harder." Believe it or not, as Ripley says, the Judge remembers when the Confederate soldiers came back to Alabama after the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. A fourth of them, as the judge told it, had an arm or a leg off, but they went on working in the fields and would have "shot anyone suggesting they needed charity." All of which reminded the distinguished jurist "they are distributing Red Cross flour to the poor now; those old timers knew little about flour; they used corn, and the WOMEN KNEW HOW TO COOK THEN." A federal judgeship is a life job. A federal judge cannot be removed except for cause. He is as free as the air he breathes. He is not compelled to go before the people every four years as a primary contender for judicial place. He does not have to appeal to his fellow citizens for their ballots on election day. He does not have to put the bridle on his tongue. If he is a practical politician he realizes that honey is a better fly catcher than vinegar. All of which calls for fair play and an editorial reminder that there are just as fine women cooks under the skies of the Southwest today as at any period in American history. Furthermore they represent the new and not the older generation. Judge Williams should travel about a bit. Maybe farmers could work harder, but there are carping critics in this land of ours who insist that the jurists of today are not overworked and are reasonably well paid for their services.

WOMEN OF SWEDEN GIVEN THEIR RIGHTS

This is a fast moving world, and the World war had a vast deal to do with making sweeping changes in the nations of the earth, as well as giving the ballot to women. Now Swedish women employed in governmental enterprises have won a battle. Their government has decreed they are to be accorded equal rights with men in every way in earning positions of authority or prominence. President-elect Roosevelt is having troubles of his own. Mrs. Frances Perkins of New York is one of the outstanding women economists and welfare workers of the period. She leads all her sisters as a thinker-worker in the labor world as a champion of social justice. Her friends and admirers are asking that she shall be appointed secretary of labor in the Roosevelt cabinet. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and 95 per cent of the leaders of that great organization of wage workers have petitioned the president-elect to name for the place Daniel J. Tobin, who is said to be one of the best qualified men for a cabinet position in the organized labor camp. American federationists are said to have backed Roosevelt and Garner almost to a man. President Hoover, when he named his department of labor head, tossed aside the recommendations of President Green and his followers. He picked a Virginian, a thorough going republican politician, for the post. Now what will the successor of the great engineer do about it when he gets down to the work of cabinet building?

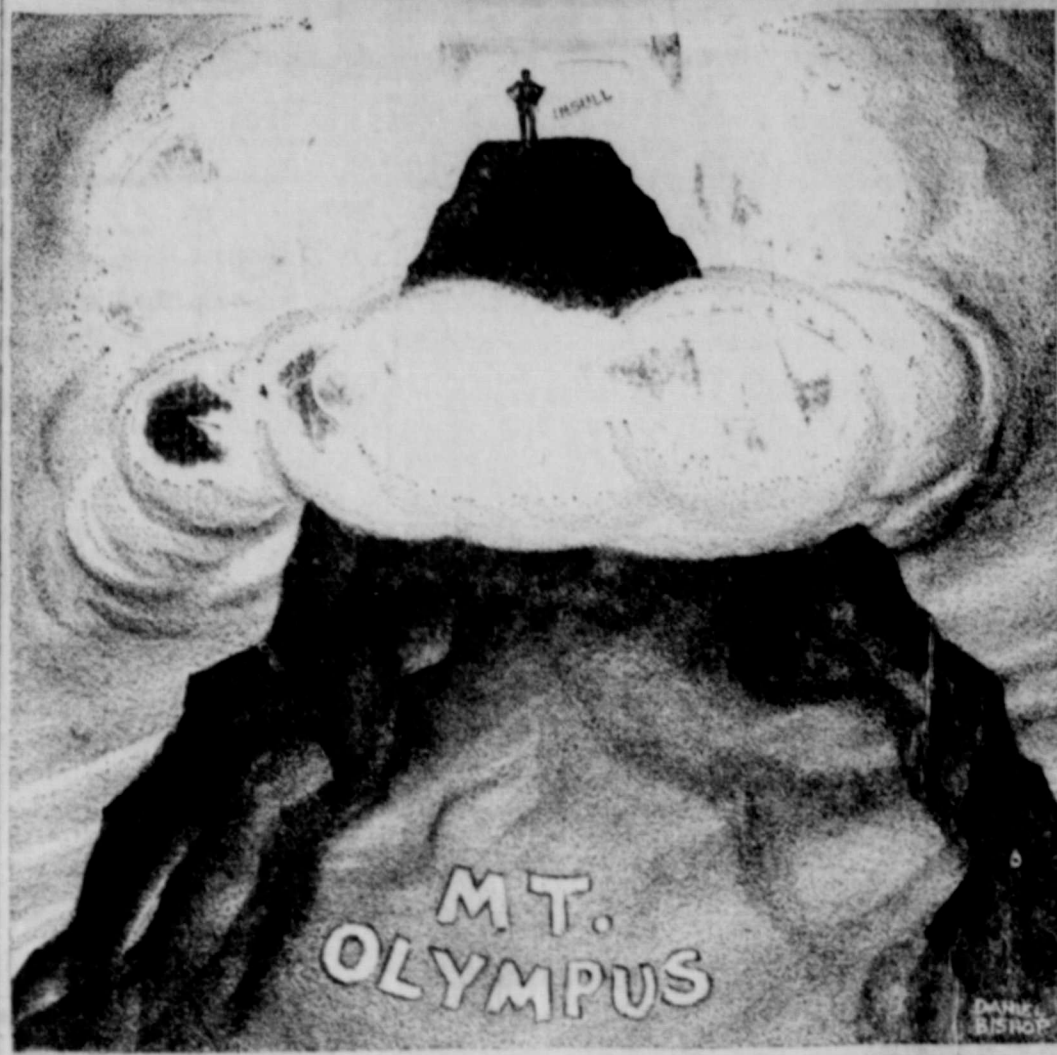

FLOWERS FOR THE TEXAS COW AND HEN

According to the public relations representative of Progressive Texans, Inc., few people realize the value of the annual butter and egg production of the United States is worth more than twice as much as the entire wheat crop. Of even greater importance is the fact that instead of being a seasonal source of revenue, available once a year, it is an all around cash crop. In 1930 the farm value of the wheat crop was $566,000,000; of butter $608,000,000 and of eggs $789,000,000. Some day Texas will lead as the most important of the dairying states as well as the state that is large largest producer of eggs.

INDIANA LAWMAKERS BLAZE THE WAY

Texas lawmakers are coming in. Indiana is a very important American commonwealth. Indiana's tax bill for 1933 will be reduced $42,000,000 by the new law limiting the rate to $1.50 a hundred, excepting emergencies. No matter what the local rate is, the state share is fixed at 15 cents on each $100 or a total of about $7,500,000. Indiana taxpayers have asserted that, with economy and efficiency, public affairs can be carried on with a maximum tax of $1.50. Statistics of the Indiana state board of tax commissioners show that for 1933 a rate of $1.50 or less will prevail in 420 of the 1560 taxing bodies of Indiana. The other 1170 units, through the action of adjustment boards, will collect at a higher rate. Hoosiers are determined to cut to the bone. Why not Texans?

THE NEW GREEK GOD

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Economy preached morning, noon and night, month after month, by a lot of more or less prominent people through big city newspapers, magazines and the radio, has done much to make America Economy-minded.

These radical economy talks have helped to paralyze business, increase unemployment and keep commodity prices down. It has done much to cut down the buying power of the people to a lower average than for many years.

Advocating the cutting of wages, taking benefits away from disabled war veterans, a drive for a wholesale discharge of government, state, county and city workers and the crippling of our schools by unwise economy will just add to the unemployed and still further cut the buying power of our people.

Employment for the unemployed, better prices and markets for our agricultural and manufactured products can be increased only through increasing the buying power of our people and not cutting it down, as only through the buying and selling of more goods and products at better prices can we again have a prosperous country.

Clara Bow Makes Comeback In "Call Her Savage" At Arcadia

The rising curtain at the Arcadia theatre today will reveal a new Clara Bow. Not the "It Girl of the Screen," or "That Red Head," or "That Collegiate Hooch," or "The Brooklyn," or even "The Living Symbol of the Jazz Age." Her new film is "Call Her Savage," the Fox production of Tiffany Thayer's novel of the same name.

Well over a year has elapsed since the famous Bow personality has been seen on the screen, a year of refreshing rest and study during which time the famous star stored up the needed energy and vital forces which she is said to release in full flood during the unfolding of this stirring romantic drama.

In the main, the loveliness of features and expressions that has endeared Miss Bow to the public remains, but to replace the boy-densite and mad-cap flapper ways that marked her earlier screen portrayals she is reported to possess a new self-control, a poise and dignity that marks that picture as the first triumph of her maturing art.

The plot of the picture relates, briefly, the dramatic struggle of and impulsive girl to control the half-savage temper which is her fiery birthright, and thereby find the one true love she craves.

From a Texas ranch, where she grew up in the wild ways of the open, Clara is expelled to a Chicago finishing school by her wealthy but exasperated father. Her growing intimacy with a handsome half-breed, portrayed by Gilbert Roland, is given as the reason by her stern parent, but in reality his action comes as an admission of weakness on his part to control his headstrong daughter.

In Chicago, she enters adventure after adventure until an unwise marriage leads her to the brink of complete wreckage.

The desperation following her disillusionment leads her, of and nearly a year, in a mad gamble with money and men. This period of her stormy career is rudely broken into by the shock of a wire from Texas informing her that her mother, played by Estelle Taylor, is dying. Back on the ranch, amid the familiar surroundings of her girlhood, is revealed her mother's indiscretion responsible for the fiery temperament which causes men and women to "Call Her Savage."

A man should marry the girl who chooses him, says a Northwestern university professor. We'd like to see him get out of it!

ARCADIA GRABS NEW BOW FILM FOR FIRST OIL BELT SHOWING

Clara Bow, back again on the screen, possesses an entirely new personality in the latest role of "Call Her Savage." Fox production based on the novel by Tiffany Thayer.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

From the dazed expressions and half-drawn conversations I met in town this morning I am convinced that the holidays are really over, work begun again, and everyone paying for celebration with after-the-fun headaches. No, we don't feel like we did last year...

He was born 147 years ago today and developed into a sober, industrious scholar, famed for his German grammar of four volumes completed in 1819. And children love him, love him because Jakob Ludwig Grimm has given to them, in collaboration with his brother, such perfect tales as "Hansel and Gretel, Rumpelstiltskin, The Goose-Girl, Tom Thumb" and other stories clever and lovely enough to keep little eyes bulging and little mouths gaping until the wee sma' hours. And while we read the "live happily ever afterwards" yams we forget all about the fact that the man was a professor in Berlin and was one among the seven who protested against the abolition of the constitution by the king of Hanover in 1837, and was banished for a brief time. Double lives, these two brothers lead. As double as yours and mine... only openly so.

The latest rage is appalling. It may be an old heathen custom to kill one's grandfather when he reaches such an age, but there is no reason why the practice of family murder should become so popular in the land of the free and home of the brave. Too many dads are suddenly going mad and waving dangerous weapons around their heads. Too many mammas are found dead by a self-inflicted bullet following the murder of their entire brood by themselves. And too many youngsters are taking playful aim at their indulgent parents... and suddenly forgetting the rules of the game. That's another thing wrong with America. What to do about it? Well, that's still another thing.

As for that question, it would take a mental contortionist to know what to do about anything, with all the helpful suggestions we modern souls are giving. The crooner wails "Let's put out the lights and go to sleep"; the anti-ary "More beer, no more money"; the dentist calmly tugs away at his victim's molar and beams, "Just a little wider, please"; while "doo doo" whistles together and placidly awaits the next nervous breakdown. We need something new and brutally certain... the suspense is killing the nation.

Suspense? It's all been taken out of the latest pictures apparently. "33 is laying bare the secrets and ideals of life on the screen and it looks like the age of frankness is on us. One gets used to anything, if one is a good adjuster. One even learns to like anything, if one has no high degree of taste. Our various boards of censors are all on a vacation and the public is getting what it has been crying for. We are all properly shocked but eating it up. We don't approve but our presence proves we love it. And so the argument goes on. Give us something sweet and subtle and clever; give us a laugh; give us something above our own sordid lives. We want amusement... not life, yes?

Now that fellow knows me. We met across bouillon cups and olives but the soup was cold. It happened 2 months, 12 days ago. I see him at least twice a week (oh yeah!) and he never speaks to me. I wonder why? and since my first futile attempts at friendliness I never bother to notice him, either. We might have been friends, if we had not been speaking acquaintances. Futility attempts? I wouldn't say just that! Where was our charming young lady at the stroke of 8 last evening? With whom and why? Well anyway it worked!

Did you ever hear, "You Forgot Your Gloves"? Well, he left his pipe!

TYLER, Texas.—W. H. Goodwin, oil operator here, received a hat woven of native pine straws as a holiday gift from his grandfather, J. T. Goodwin, Haynesville, La. The hand-woven chapeau required two spools of black thread, making the total cost 10 cents.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Ad.)

Stealing Increases Among Juveniles

WASHINGTON.—Stealing brought a larger proportion of American boys before juvenile courts in the past year than in any previous 12 months, the children's bureau of the labor department stated today. But the findings of the bureau were not all against the youngsters of America. It was pointed out that in the past year an 8 per cent decrease in "general misbehavior" took place. This classification includes truancy, mischief and un-governableness. If parents want junior to be a good boy, the bureau advises against "finding fault, and laying blame" and advocates developing affection and companionship.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE B. JACKSON

Is it because we are so seldom seeing the bald or white-tailed eagle...

So far as a number of people are concerned the bald eagle looks pretty good...

It should have been natural and evidently was for our forefather to adopt the bald eagle as the national emblem...

The bald eagle has an enormous spread of wing, and this means that our emblem, translated, shows that the coin of the realm will lift us over difficulties...

The bald eagle feeds largely on fish, which it is said to obtain by strategy, watching until some lesser bird or fish hawk has taken a fish...

And why not? Through pages of history we learn that honors go to the strong, wrested from the weak, and that self-protection is the first law of nature...

This shows the coming instinct, and certainly the nameless and wandering humanity of our country respect the homing instinct...

For any country that becomes so disorganized that it has no homes, is no longer a country, but a nomadic desert of depredation...

What better emblem for our country than this could be adopted? Surely we are a young nation as compared with others...

We wish the eagle renewed strength in this new year and hope it will arrest our repatriation fund from the foreign countries' beaks...

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sheila Shyne, 18, whose parents were well known vaudeville actors, is in New York looking for work.

Myrt, a vaudeville performer also out of work, lives there, too. Over the breakfast table one morning Sheila confides to Myrt...

Ma Lowell interrupts them to announce that a telephone call has come for Sheila.

At about the same time two wealthy young men, Trevor Lane and Dick Stanley, are discussing plans for the party Lane is to give that night.

Sheila walked across 49th street to Broadway and ran lightly up the stairs to Joe Paris' place.

There was an elevator - if one cared to wait for it. Sheila could delay to buy flowers from a street peddler but now a minute was too much to waste on the likes of breath savers such as elevators.

To be sure the job in prospect wasn't such - filling in for Daisy. But it was a job nevertheless.

Sheila breathed more easily. She had one day, hardly that, in which to memorize the routine. Brady would be sure to make it more interesting when he saw her in the office. She could dance all around Daisy.

In the practice room she found Timmy, his hands wandering over the keyboard, blind eyes fastened on the ceiling, ears cocked for Sheila's footsteps.

Sheila was not working in thinking. Joe Paris did not know her. He had heard her sing and when the time came that she could be useful he would know where to find her.

Upstairs in Joe's shop everyone was busy. There was a long counter behind which a girl answered incessant calls from the telephone and took care of visitors.

Sheila, ever entranced though it was all so familiar, loved the lilt of melody, the jangling discordant sounds. She loved the raucous voices, the sight of sleek-hipped, busy dance arrangers moving briskly here and there.

Sheila had often been at Joe's to see Blind Timmy Timmy working there and drew a fair salary, though whether from the kindness of Joe or from actual work she did not know.

At the counter the blond, smartly-groomed girl looked up from the telephone long enough to inquire of Sheila what business had brought her hither.

Sheila hesitated. "Will - can - Blind Timmy play for me?" she asked. She knew that it did Timmy no harm to be asked for particularly. More than that, Timmy would be helpful at such a time.

Brady could scowl and rant, but the nodding of Timmy's head as he listened for the click of her tiny feet was Sheila's barometer.

Sheila stood on the floor waiting. It was time to be back at work again, even though her dream had been the time or a specialty in a museum show.

There was a happy couple for you in the stage world! Roscoe and Daisy. One said Roscoe and Daisy as if the names had grown together, were syllables of the same name.

Sheila had tossed off her coat and stood in the little, wet skin and feltly white blouse, hardly a practice costume but doomed to impress the managers who would not have lifted an eyebrow had she arrived in plaid pajamas, so hard-core were they to unusual costumes and feminine charms.

At the counter the blond, smartly-groomed girl looked up from the telephone long enough to inquire of Sheila what business had brought her hither.

Sheila hesitated. "Will - can - Blind Timmy play for me?" she asked. She knew that it did Timmy no harm to be asked for particularly.

CONSERVATIVE speeds may suit you to a T. You may never want to drive faster than 40-miles-an-hour...

But whether you speed or not, the oil you use should be the 100-mile-an-hour oil—GULF SUPREME! And here's why...

The oil that can win out under the terrific punishment of 100-miles-an-hour is a better, safer oil! It's good at high speeds—and doubly good at lesser speeds!

It gives you more protection against wear. It gives you extra richness. Extra stamina. Extra lubrication!

And here's proof that Gulf Supreme can take super-punishment... It successfully lubricated a motor running WARNING! ... OIL that isn't good at high speeds, isn't good enough at ANY speed!

Times Appreciate News Items

Anyone having news items at any time are asked to call 224 between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m., or 66SW after 6 p. m.

Ranger residents having out-of-town visitors are especially invited to call the society desk and give names of guests to be listed in the personal column.

Church Membership Enthused Over Plans for New Brick Church. Following an hour of interesting and well directed Bible study under the arrangement of the pastor, D. W. Nichol, held at the Church of Christ Monday afternoon, the remainder of the lesson period was spent in general discussion of the new brick church which is soon to be enjoyed by the members.

It has taken the full co-operation of each individual in the church and this worthy project is going forward with rapid progress.

Opening Cooking Demonstration Is Attended By Good Audience. Mr. Devitt evidently has established himself quite well in Ranger, and is recognized for his pleasing manner at all times, and especially during his cooking demonstrations, according to the attendance at the opening demonstration held on second floor at Montgomery Ward's store Tuesday afternoon.

The number of hours spent in a kitchen with the other daily routine sometimes proves an unpleasant feature. If this should be the case in a single Ranger home, your troubles may easily be cast aside, by preparing a delicious meal with a Windsor cooker.

Yesterday afternoon this capable demonstrator prepared deliciously tender chops, beans, potatoes, and custard in a surprising short time. To think of an entire meal cooked with one burner and the food flavor retained and fuel saved, seems somewhat like that of a fairy tale, but nevertheless true.

Friday afternoon at the same hour as Tuesday's demonstration, the hour will be recognized as that of a "recipe party" and all ladies present are asked to remember to bring notebooks and pencils.

Each afternoon a well cooked chicken is given away together with other foods. Those receiving gifts at the opening session included Mrs. R. M. Duncan, Mrs. C. C. Coulson, Mrs. Clara Mae Weaver, Mrs. C. G. King, and Mrs. J. A. Wilson.

Especially are those invited who already have invested and are now enjoying the use of these fine cookers.

Mr. Barham, Mr. Devitt and courteous associates invite you to attend.

Edwin George Gives Talk on "Thrift" at P. T. A. Edwin George Jr., associate of the Commercial State bank, was the principal speaker on the program Tuesday, when the Young Parent-Teacher association met at 3:40 for the entertainment feature presented under the direction of the leader, Mrs. B. S. Dudley.

Mr. George chose as his subject, "Thrift," which he delivered in a manner most pleasing and impressive.

The remainder of the program hour was filled with musical numbers furnished by Elec Lopez, who sang two Spanish selections, and Etta Marie Choate and Daisy Woods, playing piano solos.

The customary business session was opened and presided over by the P. T. A. president, Mrs. F. E. Jacobs.

Circles Meet for Combined Program. Circles Nos. 1 and 2 of the Women's Missionary society of the First Baptist church met at the church Monday afternoon in a joint Bible study, given with Mrs. Lee Mitchell leader.

After the lesson was brought to a close the director asked for reports from all officers and committee and various phrases of the work for 1933 were interestingly discussed.

Next Monday afternoon Circle No. 1 will meet with Miss Ringold hostess while Mrs. G. W. Thomas will entertain members of Circle No. 2.

Delightful Program Fills Junior New Era Club Hour. Perhaps the most delightful and best carried out program of the entire study season complimented members of the Junior New Era club Monday evening in the green room of the Gholson hotel, when Misses Sue Dean and Betty Davenport presented a program and pleasing personnel in a program on France.

Those giving well received talks on the chosen subjects, Dr. Harry A. Logsdon, Miss Gladys Brown, teacher of correct speech, and Miss Sue Dean.

Before the program drew to a close Miss Maxine Henderson sang two French songs, with the piano accompaniment played by Miss Marguerite Adamson. Miss Emily Dreinhofer, president, presided over the short business session, at which time the date and hostesses were announced for the next meeting.

This program was attended by a large group of members and honorary guests.

"Home" Supplies Subject For W. M. U. Meeting. The program for the Women's Missionary union of the Central Baptist church was given at the church Monday afternoon with "Home" supplying the subject for the hour, attended by a goodly number of members.

Opening hymn, "O Think of the Home Over There," prefaced the devotional read by Mrs. Sarah Scriven.

Mrs. H. H. Stephens added to the program to a large degree when she offered a talk on "Making the Home Better for 1933."

Mrs. George Rogers, who is a noted reader and composer, selected for her reading, "Home," by Edgar A. Guest.

A vocal duet, "I Can See the Light of Home," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Frank Hicklin and Mrs. George Rogers.

The program was concluded with a prayer said by Mrs. Brink.

Mrs. Hagaman to Lead 1920 Club Program. Thursday afternoon, members of the 1920 club will meet in the green room of the Gholson hotel for the first rendition of the new year's study course.

This study on "Modern Russia" will be led by Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, and members are asked to attend.

Cornell Coach Is Proud of One Star. ITHACA, N. Y.—Cornell's basketball team has a real star in Lou Hatkoff, veteran forward.

Coach Howard B. Ortner said Hatkoff is one of the greatest players he ever handled.

This is Hatkoff's third year with the Big Red's varsity quintet. His effective blocking and accurate shooting and passing has lent considerable strength to the team.

Before playing with Cornell, Hatkoff was a star of the Albany, N. Y., high school five.

He also is one of the mainstays of Cornell's baseball team. He led his teammates in batting last season.
