THE NEW DEAL

SPEAKER RAINEY POINTS TO RAINBOW
 Speaker Henry T. Rainey of the house of representatives appeared before the general conference of the Tanagers' Council of America and made a remarkable declaration. He said that before President Roosevelt took office "the country had taken the longest step toward communism than any nation had ever taken except Russia." Continuing his address, he said: "We have started on the road to recovery. Confidence is coming back to the farmers, and business all over the country is raising wage scales. Unemployment is beginning to slacken and we are going to see some rainbows in the sky."

Speaker Rainey, for many years, has represented one of the great agricultural districts of Illinois. He has ever been close to the farmer. He compared the measure empowering the president to expand currency, coin silver and revalue the gold dollar The Three Guns.

In closing he said "the nation had told the president: You are the general here are three 16-inch guns. Shoot one if you must and shoot them all if you are compelled to do so, but meet this unfair industrial war they have been waging against us."

He reviewed all that happened since the inauguration. President Roosevelt is using or will use his three 16-inch guns. In their making by congress and the president, the American people witnessed the most remarkable program of constructive legislation in history.

Incidentally, there will be no summer capital. President Roosevelt will not go to the Black Hills. He will spend his time in Washington and Hyde Park, N. Y., during the blazing period of the year. He has been on the job two months. He will continue to sit on the lid.

There will be no power behind the throne—"but the backing of the American nation."

HUGE SAVINGS PREDICTED BY SEN. REDDIT
 Sen. John Reddit of Lufkin is in the picture. He is said to be a close student of finance, taxation and the economic conditions. He has estimated that the state appropriations for the next two years will show a saving of 12 million dollars on the past biennium expenditures.

Senator Reddit is a member of the finance committee. He based his estimate on the figures of three appropriations bills decided on and the senate figures for the educational appropriations bill. In his calculation the senator from Lufkin took the senate figures for the educational bill for $10,062,649. According to the capitol correspondents, this figure is somewhat higher than that figure in the house bill and probably will be reduced.

This is a prediction made by a capitol correspondent: "In all probability a compromise between the house and senate bills will be made, increasing the educational savings."

"It was a maxim of Thomas Jefferson's that a people the least governed are the best governed, and it was one of the tenets of his gospel of democracy that the cost of government should be kept within the income and that low taxation touching all concerned was the best form of taxation.

There are many critics of lawmaking or governing bodies. To be a critic, devoted entirely to the work of criticism, is easy work.

Yes, praise should be given lawmakers who kill bad bills—and there are a lot of bad bills introduced—as well as praise for the enactment of wise measures and keeping the cost of government within the reach of the pockets of the people of Texas.

ANOTHER HEADLINE AND PROSPERITY FOREWORD

New York and Chicago are in the picture, speaking of stock exchanges and prices. On May 10 stocks and wheat hit the highest prices in a year and a half and cotton prices hiked to the best levels since last September. This in addition: "The bond market and other staple products also joined the upward procession." A forcible reminder that the new deal administration has at least driven fear from the hearts of men and that the mass mind is changing from pessimism to optimism. Let us hope that there will be a continuance without another gambling craze capturing the minds of men and women.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

F. A. MILLER, publisher of the South Bend (Indiana), Tribune, says:

THAT the time for a parent to gain control of a child is in babyhood.

On that control in babyhood depends in large measure the success of a child's future.

The utmost wisdom on the part of the parent is required in a child's growing years if its adult life is to be all it should be.

Parents who neglect early training of their children are repaid in sorrow.

A child is not responsible for its presence in the world and unless parents accept and appreciate their responsibility they should not hope for good results.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

CALIFORNIA, Washington and Oregon lead the parade of the states in the frequency of earthquakes. The other states show from one to twenty disturbances recorded against them, with the exception of North Dakota, which has not yet been marked on the earthquake map. According to N. H. Heck, chief seismologist of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, the major U. S. earthquake occurred at New Madrid, Mo., in 1811.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The Republican party wants to know how thoroughly it has been Hooverized.

Growings and grumblings attend the efforts of the ex-president's friends to hold control of the organization and retain party leadership, but those who protest can get around the fact that Hoover still stands before the world as the titular leader of the G. O. P. and that there is no other outstanding leader in the party to whom they can turn.

Although the idea of Hoover's renomination and election now seems at least as fantastic as similar ideas about Al Smith after 1928, the strong Republican anti-Hoover element is convinced that the erstwhile chief executive's friends are building toward that objective. Dissension in the ranks has been increased by the recent organization of the "Republican Federal Associates," a campaign group dominated entirely by cabinet members and assistant cabinet members of the Hoover administration.

Just why this body should have been set up alongside the Republican national committee and the Republican congressional campaign committees is not clear unless the aim was to retain influence and control within the party for Hoover and this particular group of ex-office holders. Resentment against it comes chiefly from members of Congress and old-line national committeemen, who are not conspicuous by their absence from its directorate.

The Hoover group still has its hands on the national committee through Chairman Everett Sanders, John Callan O'Loughlin, a veteran newspaperman who has become assistant to Sanders and is expected to direct a propaganda barrage against the Democrats, is a close friend of former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, chief leader of the Hoover group.

Mills and former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown of Ohio are at the head of the new organization.

The anti-Hoover element is strong, but it lacks cohesion thus far and it has no national party figure to set off against Hoover. Since the death of Calvin Coolidge there has been a sad dearth of republican possibilities for the presidential nomination of 1936. The Democrats made such a cleanup of Congress and the governorships that those fields are narrow and relatively barren. Mills is no popular figure, although the only Hoover cabinet member who preserves any particular political prestige. Neither is David A. Reed, the able senator from Pennsylvania—a state to which the G. O. P. doesn't go for its candidates. It is hard to imagine the nomination of House Minority Leader Bert Snell, Congressman Jimmy Wadsworth of New York, a "white hope" in the eyes of some anti-Hoover leaders, has a long way to go.

Famed Fullback Will Get Tryout On Yankee Farm

By United Press

AUSTIN.—When big Ernest Koy unpacks his bludgeon on some New York Yankee baseball farm he will start crasing the big question mark hung on him by admirers and sports writers.

Undoubtedly Koy is one of the greatest football players of all time at the University of Texas, sufficiently so to win the acclaim of his coach as the best fullback he had ever seen.

But can Koy equal that reputation in baseball? Can he repeat in the steps of other fledglings of Coach "Uncle Billy" Dish who have made the grade, such as Bib Falk, former White Sox star, and Pinky Higgins, promising Philadelphia Athletic third baseman?

When Koy hits, he slams the ball hard and far, a pass-ward with the Yankees. His batting average this year when officially compiled is certain to be well above the .300 mark, although his hitting was off form early in the season.

Koy is rated an excellent fielder and has a powerful arm. Despite his bulk, around 200 pounds, he is fast on the bases and has caused no end of worry to Southwest conference catchers with his base-stealing ability.

Some critics maintain that Koy is muscle-bound from football, handicapping his freedom of movement in baseball and injuring his playing form. That remains to be seen, others maintain, pointing out some of the greatest baseball players of all time have been prematurely counted out because of their batting style, notably the famous Al Simmons.

Koy hails from Sealy, a town of 2,000. The son of a former world's champion bronco rider, the 23-year-old Texas star got his first dose of baseball on the sandlots.

His play at the University of Texas in his sophomore year attracted wide attention and brought him offers of professional contracts. During summers he played with sandlot teams, adding to his reputation. This year Koy made what is probably his weakest showing with Texas university. That showing however was sufficient to land him an all-conference berth in center field.

Maggots Eating Up Berry Crop

By United Press

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Maggots are reported eating the greater part of Pennsylvania's huckleberry crop, threatening one of the state's most unusual industries.

The huckleberries, or blueberries, grow wild in a zone of 100,000 acres, on the northeastern mountains of the state. They grow on cut-over, or burned-over, timber land, without cultivation or control.

Late in June, entire families migrate to the berry fields and harvest the crop, which averages 2,000,000 quarts annually.

The berries are collected nightly by dealers, who transport them to metropolitan districts.

The nature of the industry makes control of the destructive maggot difficult. In Maine, where the blueberry crop is grown commercially, calcium arsenate is used to dust the fields. But in Pennsylvania, few are interested in developing the crop.

Eagle Scout Stuart Painter who was instructor in San Angelo and San Antonio last summer, as well as our own summer camp, is being recalled for service again in the Concho Valley Council camp this spring to instruct in Indian Lore and silversmithing.

Camp-o-Ral Big Success
The Camp-o-Ral held in Brownwood last week was a success in every detail, according to Scout officials. Hundreds of people saw the night program put on by various troops.

An exhibit was housed in a large three-pole tent. Scout leaders were so enthusiastic about the Camp-o-Ral that it is hoped now to make it an annual affair.

Camp Billy Gibbons
We would like to remind every Scout and Scoutmaster about the summer camp which starts July 11. Much interest is being shown on the part of all boys and it looks as though we will have a record breaker in attendance this year. A great many of the Scouts are making plans now, getting their boxes ready to house their paraphernalia that they want to carry to camp.

Scouters Meet
Scouters from San Saba, Lometa, Goldsboro, Lampasas, and Richmond Springs met at Lometa last Tuesday night for a general meeting of the southern district. All Scouters who attended the Scout leaders' training court in Lampasas and San Saba were awarded their certificates. The meeting was held in the form of a supper and was followed by a camp fire program.

DARLING FOOL

MONNIE O'DARE is going around with MISS ANSTICE COREY, an old friend of the O'Dares to try to forget DICK CARDIGAN. Dan's parents want him to marry wealthy SANDRA LAWRENCE, who, while pretending to be Monnie's friend, has been trying to win him from her. Dan has been going to parties including his mother, sister and Sandra. When Monnie received a cool letter from Dan she decided to accept Miss Corey's invitation to go to Europe as her companion.

Monnie does not know that Dan has been in the theater trying just after her train left. The night before sailing she and Miss Corey go to the theater in New York. A handsome stranger offers them his car in the rain.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII

AS Miss Anstice said afterward, Arthur Mackenzie, who was the tall man of the theater adventure, was "such a perfect gentleman." Miss Anstice had been a bit disturbed after she and Monnie had arrived at the hotel to realize they had driven across town "with a perfect stranger." And such terrible things happened in New York! But it had been the rain and the worry of getting her plum-colored wrap spotted which had plunged Miss Anstice into this daring.

And, after all, nothing had happened. Mr. Mackenzie, quietly assured, had told the chauffeur to drop them at the Splendobil and take him on to a place that sounded to Monnie like "The Fire-Bly." She had read only that evening in the newspaper of a new night club of that name.

Cleverly, deftly Mr. Mackenzie had elicited from Miss Anstice the fact they were sailing on the morrow. He had smilingly wished them a pleasant voyage. Monnie, sitting demurely in one corner of the huge car, had caught a flash in the man's dark eyes when Miss Anstice mentioned the name of the boat. Their first trip? But how delightful! He wished he might have the—the pleasure of showing Miss Corey and Miss O'Dare his favorite haunts in Paris. They would love Paris, he said. In a quiet, assured voice that seemed to brook no contradiction.

The car slid under the dripping awning of the Splendobil and Mr. Mackenzie forestalled the action of the chauffeur in helping the ladies to alight. A tall, imposing figure in his gleaming black and white, he stood there. But it had been a real pleasure, he was assuring them. He had been charmed. He gave Monnie's slim gloved hand a quick pressure. Her fingers tingled afterward.

"Have you got all your things in order?" Miss Anstice was nervous. They would have to be up early, she told Monnie. One of her pet horrors was the thought of missing a train or a boat. "I shan't sleep a wink," she prophesied. But later Monnie heard her deep and quiet breathing as she herself lay wide-eyed, listening to the rain on the windows.

The city lay below them, an only partially somnolent boat. The hum of traffic, of taxicabs skidding along the gleaming pavements, the hasty screech of brakes reached her ears. Why had she liked Arthur Mackenzie quickly, on sight she wondered? Was it because he reminded her of Charles? He wasn't the least bit like him, really. Why, he must be! But he was nice. There was something definitely attractive about this assured man of the world.

"He's the sort who gets what he wants, always," thought the girl shrewdly. It must be wonderful to go about with a man like that, to be petted, taken care of as if you were a valuable piece of porcelain.

FOR the first time since her decision to go with Miss Corey had taken form, Monnie was honestly glad.

"Maybe I can free myself from this obsession about Dan," she thought, dropping off. There had been days when she was certain she had conquered the wild, ungovernable anguish. But then a chance look, a word, a quoted line of verse, would set the old pain throbbing again. Well, she would put half a world between them and perhaps that would help.

They had an early breakfast and were ready a full hour before the time appointed, their bags strapped and waiting.

"The clerk says he's sending up some mail," Miss Anstice announced, turning away from the telephone. Monnie's heart gave a wild leap. A letter—the long-awaited letter might be among them! But there was only a bon voyage note from Kay and another from Charles Eustace. She had to throttle her disappointment. She had been hoping against hope that Dan might send her one little line to take with her to all those strange places.

"Any news?" Miss Anstice looked up from her checkbook. "No news!" Monnie smiled valiantly to hide the hurt.

She stood on the deck a little later, watching late comers board the ship. Miss Anstice was in her cabin but she had sent Monnie out "to see the excitement. A slim wand of a girl in a coat of hunter's green, her amber eyes stary above the collar of deep brown fur, she drew many eyes. Porters struggled with trunks on the dock, leisurely men with briefcases strolled aboard. There was one bridal party, youthful and distinguished, dressed with careless elegance, making farewells. She girl had a long, pale, aristocratic face. She was wrapped astutely in black caracul topped by a veil of silver fox. Monnie could hear her slow drawl.

"My dear, we'll see you in Biarritz next month. Don't look at Ronnie—those drinks last night were poisonous—"

Somewhat, Monnie thought, this girl didn't fit the picture of the happy bride. She looked cool, disdainful, far from radiant.

"Good morning, Miss O'Dare."

MONNIE wheeled, surprised to hear her name spoken in this milieu. There, watching her with an expression of faint amusement on his weather-beaten face, was her good Samaritan of the night before, Arthur Mackenzie.

"Oh, how do you do! You're seeing some one off?"

He shook his head, enjoying the amusement. "No, I'm sailing. Discovered I had some urgent business in Spain and thought I might as well make this boat. It's my favorite."

The girl in the silver fox glanced their way and Mackenzie bowed to her ironically. Her glance included Monnie and she said something in a low tone to her companion. There was a

Hitler Gives Farm Union Recognition

BERLIN.—Hitler is looking up the "forgotten man" in the rural districts—the farm hand.

Through political differences of opinion and a certain independence of thought, the farm hand remained at odds with the Republican governments, although cooperation of all workers' organizations was sought by the post-war regime. The farm hand organized, but remained on the outside because he refused to be swallowed up in the trade unions. His resistance has brought recognition from the new government.

Hitler has fully as difficult a task in fulfilling his promises to the farmer as Roosevelt has, but, like Roosevelt, he is making an earnest beginning. One of the first gestures toward the farm was the recognition of the "Farm Hands' Union," which has existed since 1919, but which was unimportant, due to its conflict with the trade unions. Now, with Hitler's promise to do something for the "forgotten man on the farm," the Union may become an important factor in any relief measures which affect the farm hand, the small tenant farmer and the small landholder.

The Union was founded by a farm hand returned from the front—Johannes Wolf. As far back as 1911, Wolf had the idea of a farmers' union, including laborers, small landholders and tenants. His ideal was an organization including both employers and employees. He realized this ideal in a small way when the first group, comprising all who belonged to the "profession of the farm" was founded in Brunswick in 1919.

Court To Rule On New Oil Orders

By United Press
FORT WORTH—Fairness of the state's present production order for the East Texas oil field, allowing an output of approximately 750,000 barrels daily, will be examined by a three-judge federal court here, May 25.

All attacks filed by operators since the order went into effect are to be heard by the tribunal, composed of Judges J. C. Hutcheson Jr., James C. Wilson, and Randolph Bryant.

State railroad commissioners who drafted the order believe the present allowable will stand the test of court fire. It was drafted along legal lines drawn by a federal court in the last major litigation over validity of the state's oil curb.

Operators, however, are not satisfied with the order. Many believe that the huge output, credited with causing the recent debacle of East Texas crude prices, is robbing the field of its pressure.

Already pumps are being ordered for many wells. Nearly the entire field will go on the beam unless the state's allowable is lowered, according to current predictions.

Among the attacks on the current order are those of the Hunt Production company of Tyler, and Rowan & Nichols, independent operators of Fort Worth. The former seeks an injunction against perpetuating orders of the commission. The latter claims the order is unfair and discriminatory.

The three-judge tribunal will hear all formal complaints this week. An immediate ruling, however, is doubtful.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

It doesn't matter whether you're a beaming parent or indulgent relative or merely an innocent on-looker. Commencement programs guarantee a thrill to any and all.

Every swish of the black or grey gown signifies death to past mistakes, grim determination for future success.

Death to the little things of life, hope for the bigger.

Farewell to scenes grown dear through association, goodbye to friends met, loved, and lost.

A putting away of memory books and pep squads and petty differences—a brave greeting to college? university? home? office?

And so Bon Voyage to the graduating classes of Ranger Junior College and High School. A toast to you, with a clear sky and a smooth sea, and true compass.

Just when we thought we knew where opposition to the Peace project would arise, everything turned upside down, plunged into our midst, did a tail-spin, and we suddenly discovered it was not Germany but France, who is going to be difficult.

Germany smiles easily, and agrees that all heavy war material should be destroyed. America and Great Britain and Italy chant a wise, "So may it be" and sit back confidently expecting France to offer a quick second to the motion.

But France ponders a moment too long, and makes a complete right-about-face with suggestions that arms be turned to the League of Nations for protection against possible invaders.

Balancing Budget To Be a Problem For June Brides

By United Press
FORT WORTH.—June brides will find a lot of budget problems when they unwrap and arrange their wedding gifts in hundreds of new homes next month.

The word "inflation," forgotten in the rush of parties and wedding preparations, will have a new significance. The "new deal" has brought an advance of at least one-third in grocery costs, while the dollar and pay check remained behind. Therein lies the budget problem.

A list of groceries any family might buy, comparing present prices with those a year ago, follows:

	Year ago	Today
10 lb. flour	$.37	2.45
45-lb. sack flour	.40	.85
5-lb. can shortening	.30	.40
15 lb. pint beans	.25	.70
10 lb. fancy dry salt pork	.40	.95
4-lb. picnic ham	.24	.26
2 lbs. sliced bacon	.21	.42
10-lb. pork roast	.50	.70
8 lbs. yard steak	.54	1.04
2 eggs medium	.15	.17
Carton of matches	.10	.19
8 loaves of bread	.28	.48
Totals	$1.69	$7.90

The quality of groceries might vary, but the comparison of actual grocery lists reveals the rising costs of food. But the comparative table tells but half the story.

Grocery costs dropped like a plummet about the first of this year. Prices chafed 22 per cent lower than January, 1932, and 34 per cent beneath prices in the same period of 1930.

At the same time pay checks slumped proportionately. Very rare was the payroll that did not suffer a 10 per cent reduction in the total sum.

Then came inflation and rising prices. But pay checks lagged behind except in a few notable cases.

In such a situation, balancing the budget will be a major problem for the June bride. It is not her problem alone. Merchants are beginning to wonder if there will be a consumption market under the new schedule.

"Never again such a Bargain"

NO NEVER AGAIN!

Any time you let a ridiculously low price or big promise induce you to buy some packaged product which you have never used or even heard about, you run the risk of disappointment.

Even though you are told the product is "just as good" as the one you like and always ask for, it pays to be careful. Many unfamiliar packages urged upon you today contain cheap merchandise!

Not all manufacturers are guilty of producing it. The blame rests on a few, who, in an over-ambitious attempt to make your dollars buy more quantity, have sacrificed quality in their goods.

But in spite of today's bewildering array of "would-be" bargains, it is still easy to buy wisely and get your money's worth.

Now, as always, you'll find the real bargains among the brands you know—by your experience, through their advertising, or by the reputation of their makers. Many manufacturers of these dependable brands have recently announced worthwhile price reductions—honest reductions based on lower manufacturing costs, not on lower quality.
