PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Yesterday afternoon when we were getting a haircut, V. V. Cooper sat down in the next chair and had his hair cut. He said that we could mark it on the calendar that we would have two more cold spells and freezing weather. The dates, he said, were Easter and April 8. He based his prediction on the fact that it thundered in February, so we were told.

And while we were talking, V. V. Jr. came in and insisted that Bob Love put one hand on his father's head and bear down with all his weight.

"That is the way he did it when we were kids and he cut our hair," he explained. Which brought up the subject of the Sunday morning haircuts we used to get at the hands of our fathers.

It developed that the same tortures and discomforts were suffered here in the early days that we suffered down at Brownwood when we were getting our hair trimmed. The system was simplified itself and served fairly satisfactorily.

Dad would get out the old high chair that was not any longer in use around the dining room table because all of us had outgrown it. He would take the old high chair and get out the family comb and the dressing machine drawers and go to work.

Apparently no great effort was

ALFRED SMITH QUILTS HIS JOB AS AN EDITOR

NEW YORK, March 22.—Following a disagreement with his publisher over editorial policy, Alfred E. Smith has resigned as editor of the New Outlook, it was learned today.

No mention of any disagreement was made in formal announcement of the resignation, which cited "pressure of business obligations" as his reason for withdrawal.

The real reason, however, was disagreement over the magazine's viewpoint toward the national administration, it was learned from sources close to both men. Kitchener, a republican, was understood to have wanted to handle Washington criticism without gloves, which was not in accord with Smith's viewpoint.

Men Are Again On Black Gold Search

DALLAS, March 22.—The men who search for black gold are coming back.

For more than three years the lot of the petroleum geologist has been a sad one. So depressed was the oil industry that striking a gusher became almost as unfortunate for those concerned as getting a dry hole.

But with higher crude prices and promises of stabilization of the marketing end, oil companies are looking ahead of present reserves to the day when new supplies of crude petroleum will be needed.

Too Many Men By Same Name Cause Some Confusion

Jim Fox, who lives on Elm street, is much disturbed because of a similarity of names in connection with the robbery of the armory and the subsequent arrests that were made.

The Jim Fox, who is said by officers to have made a statement in connection with the robbery, is not Jim Fox, son of Thomas M. Fox, formerly with the Texas Company and who has done considerable wrestling around Ranger in the past few years, but is an older man by the same name who is no relative.

INDUSTRY AND LABOR STILL NOT IN ACCORD

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Labor and industry remained far from agreement today as the administration swung into a second day of conferences in its efforts to stave off the threatened automobile strike.

Meanwhile, it was said the white house does not consider the situation hopeless, though admitting both sides appear adamant.

Automobile union leaders from Detroit and Cleveland met with President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and conferred with Recovery Administrator Johnson preparatory to their afternoon meeting with the president.

Already distracted with worry over her husband, who is cruising in the steamer Miatos, in search of a haven from American law, Mrs. Insull collapsed when informed the French consulate would not visa her passport so she could go to Paris as she had planned.

The plane vanished on July 16, 1932, en route from Santiago, Chile, for Buenos Aires.

ANOTHER FAMOUS DECISION BY THE SUPREME COURT

Since the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the launching of his recovery acts, many remarkable laws, federal and state, have been enacted and the court of last resort (a divided court), has made history making decisions. Now another has been passed on to the people. By a vote of five to four the court declared valid a statute enacted by the New York legislature Fixing a Minimum Price For Milk. It was state emergency recovery legislation—this statute of the New York legislature. The court split as it did in the Minnesota moratorium act. Justice Owen J. Roberts, appointed to the bench from Pennsylvania, handed down the decision with Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo forming with Roberts the majority. Justice McReynolds, speaking also for Justices Vandevanter Sutherland and Butler, delivered "an emphatic dissent." Justices Brandeis and Cardozo are democrats. Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Roberts and Stone are republicans. As for the dissenters, Justices McReynolds and Butler are democrats while Sutherland and Vandevanter are republicans.

New York is one of the greatest milk producing commonwealths. Before the enactment of the act whose validity has been sustained milk wars of a destructive nature had taken place in the empire state of the east. Texas milk producers asked for a similar act at the regular session of the legislature. Their proposed measure died in the state senate. Now what will happen next year when a new legislature begins to grind in the month of January?

UTILITY VETOS AND COURT RULING

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson vetoed a bill enacted by the Texas lawmakers for the reason that it amended the wrong public utility statute placed in the books by a former legislature. Now Federal Judge James C. Wilson, appointed to the bench by Woodrow Wilson, has issued a permanent injunction against the city of Plainview restraining it from carrying out a contract for the erection of a municipal light and power plant. The injunction was granted in favor of the Community Power and Light company, holders of bonds of the Texas Utility company which supplies Plainview with electricity. Judge Wilson held that the Community company was not waiving its rights because of financial interests. Another decision that may be passed on to the court of last resort.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT HIGH COURT DECISION

Golfers are reminded that the supreme court of the United States has ruled that "death on a golf course from sunstroke does not constitute accidental death—hence this would not make an insurance company liable under a double indemnity clause for such a death." The plain English of this is that a golf fan should control his high blood pressure movements while wandering around or about the links. If the sun kills him while swinging the clubs, his heirs are not permitted to collect the coin. Business is business.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

KARL E. KILBY, Publisher of the Raton (New Mexico) Range, says:

"Not one of the scores of big firms who use newspaper advertising all over the country would do so if it didn't pay. Naturally then, the question arises HOW DO THEY MAKE IT PAY? The answer is simple and easy:

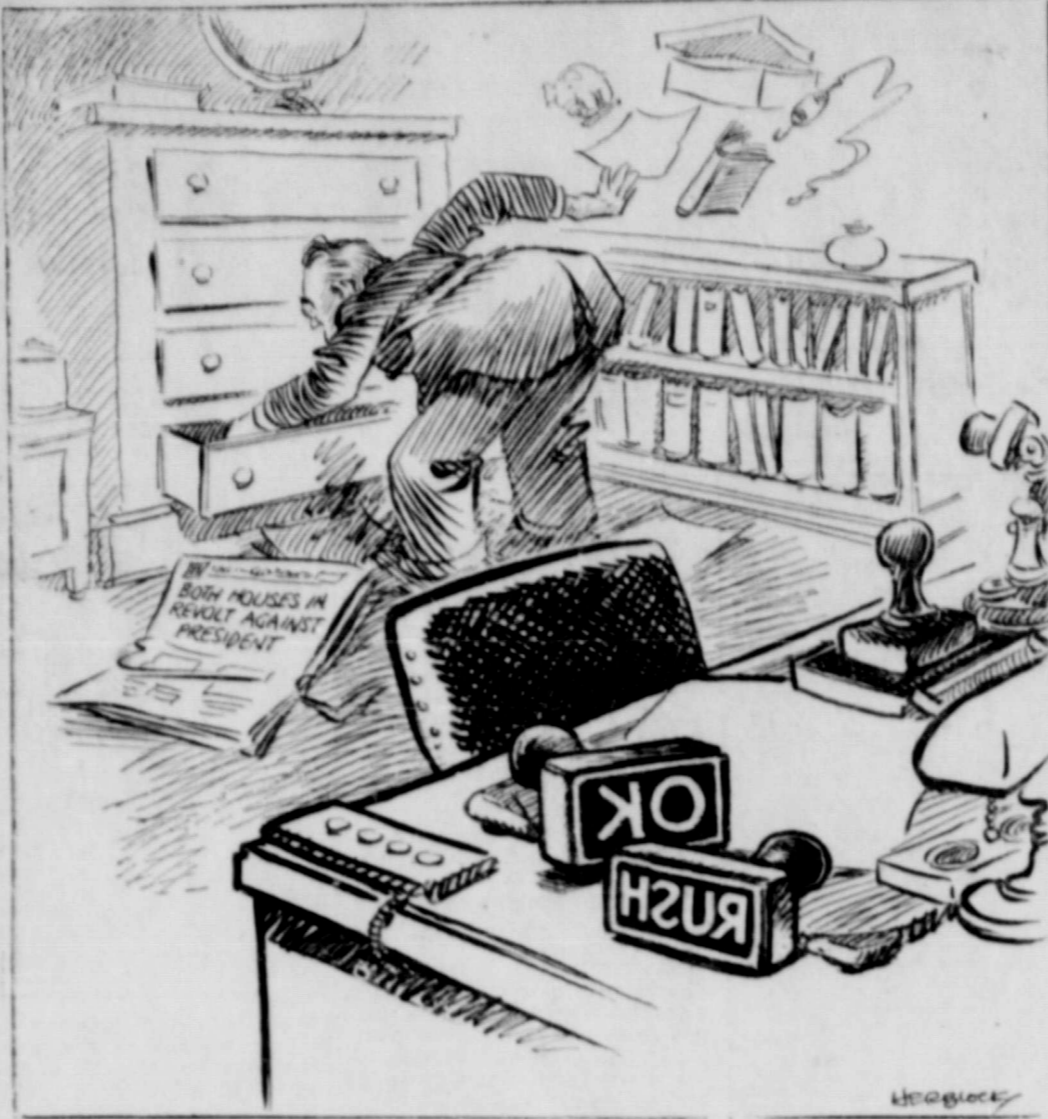

"Second, they are unafraid, undismayed and unswayed in their purpose by any and all clamor about hard times, no business, etc. They know that the law of supply and demand and the law of averages have not gone out of existence. They know that every sunrise means that a certain percentage of people are going to buy things during the day for the purpose of living—eating, heating, cooling, wearing, reading, sleeping, lighting, cooking, building, repairing, entertaining, going places, etc., and they propose to go after and get their share of this trading.

"They know it to be an undisputed fact that MORE people see and read and heed the newspapers than any other form of printed matter. They know that the newspaper is regarded as a living informational necessity and convenience in MORE homes than any other product of press, type and paper.

"They know from experience, good old dollars-and-cents records, that good advertising placed in a medium which is bought and paid for, received and read, needed and used because it is wanted and waited for, is always going to pay. They know this because they have made newspaper advertising pay.

"They use the right kind of advertising, prepared according to newspaper reader requirements (ask any newspaper man who knows his stuff) and when they advertise, THEY ADVERTISE. They don't run just an ad or two and then quit. You will see them in there all the time. They do not propose to let the public forget the worth and price of their goods and service.

Now Where Did Herb Leave That Veto Thing?

Life Moves Quietly Along Main Street With NRA Rush and Hubbub Unheeded

Main street in Coshocton, O., above, typical community of 10,000, where NRA effects are less marked than in the big cities. It is surrounded by farm territory from which farmers come in their Boston buggies, like that of the right kitched before the nearby Millersburg courthouse. Though A. F. of L.'s William Green (circle) is Coshocton's most prominent citizen, the town has seen little labor organization since NRA, and no strikes.

The New Deal Has Minor Effect on Coshocton, O.

By WILLIS THORNTON, NEA Service Staff Correspondent. COSHOCTON, O.—Life moves deliberately and quietly down Main street here, largely undisturbed by the hubbub with which the great cities have received NRA, the AAA, and all the new elements of the recovery program. There isn't any NRA compliance board here and never has been. Retail trade in its small stores is definitely better, though the small farmers hereabouts have been benefited less by direct AAA allotments than by the rise in prices. There have been no strikes in its small factories, and very little new organization of workers. CWA has been a godsend, and should be continued as a relief supplement, say those who know. And the whole recovery program is seen in a diluted and easy-going form, that is far different from its buzzing intensity in great cities.

Typical County Seat. How typical is Coshocton of the 850 towns of its size (just under 10,000) in the country, where 6,000,000 people live? Or the slightly smaller communities in which 5,000,000 more live? Judge from this: Coshocton is an Ohio county seat, its brick-front downtown district stringing along Main street, which is lined with the autos of farmers who have come in from three surrounding counties to shop, talk, or go to the movies.

The railroad runs right down the middle of Fifth street, both bisecting Main. There is an "O. K. Restaurant," a "Furniture and Undertaking" shop, and another advertising "Books, Drugs, and Wallpaper."

Its small industries employ in no case more than 250 people each: Gloves, rubber goods, advertising novelties, cast iron pipe, pottery, condensed milk, enameling, leather goods.

One newspaper. One movie, nearly 87 per cent white, native-born inhabitants. No industry dominant, a conservative, old-fashioned, steady community.

Dodge Compliance Board. When NRA began, Coshocton found itself ready to greet it with a parade. But local business men sidestepped compliance board work. There hasn't been, and isn't any, such board.

Somewhat, in a town like this, where everybody knows everybody else and calls him Bill, nobody wants to be in a position of calling Bill in and saying "Look here, you've got to do this and so."

Why, he might be wanting to sell Bill an automobile next week! So a pad of complaint blanks was stuck up in the postoffice, and notice given that anyone who wanted to make an NRA complaint could write it out and send it to state headquarters in Cleveland, 90 miles away.

Four or five complaints were adjusted locally and very informally, but some must have been sent to Cleveland, for the board there sent own independent organization, or none. Some of the old craft unions, like printers, carpenters, masons, and the like, have gained somewhat, and have revived a Labor Trades council which for years was dormant.

Home Town of Labor Chief. There is considerable sly smiling about town over the lack of labor progress in the home community of William Green, leader of the A. F. of L.'s organized millions of workmen.

Green, the town's most distinguished "alumna," maintains a home here, and visits it frequently.

The home loan program has made almost no progress at all, reports Ed Crawford of the Home Building and Loan association. Only four homes actually have been refinanced since last August with HOLC loans.

Red tape is its bane, Crawford indicates, telling how 50 applications had to be re-made (and re-paid for at $3.50 each) because of a change in the printed form.

Farmers Gain Little. There are no signs that farmers are paying off mortgages in AAA benefits. Such benefits are small, as farms average no larger than 180 acres, and are well-diversified.

Allotments average perhaps $50 or $75 on wheat. You can't pay mortgages on that. So retail trade gets it and is happy.

Corn loan money will begin to flow in soon, but will be small in this same proportion.

But the mortgage situation never was so serious here as in the specialized-farming areas, where land prices skyrocketed and had to fall sickeningly.

So most farm mortgages had less water in them here, and are hanging on. Every one of the three banks opened immediately after the bank holiday.

CWA Sole Agency To Stir County Seat Interest

CWA was a boon even in so small a community. The week after 750 CWA jobs began, 320 families were taken off relief rolls of 450. Meticulous records of Seth M. Snyder, in charge of county CWA work, and the small size of the community, made it certain that all CWA men who have been building roads, repairing schools, and renovating the courthouse, be men who were in need and "on relief."

Need Relief Work. Snyder feels that work under the successor plan to CWA will be needed here—that re-employment hasn't nearly taken up the slack. There were 30 applications for relief the day the first batch of CWA workers were discharged.

A good indication of employment conditions lies in a survey by the Business Men's association in angling for a new factory. It showed 1,900 women within a 20-mile radius were willing to take jobs there. The entire population of the county is only about 29,000.

One gas station closed, reports Arthur Hale, president of the Business Men's association, himself a gas station proprietor. It was a chain station, and closed not because the company could not afford to pay the code wages, but because the station did not itself produce enough income to pay that scale.

Keep Even Temp of Way. Hale believes that perhaps 150 other gas stations in the state have been eliminated for the same reason.

The building throughout the summer and fall of a new condensed milk plant, branch of a great national firm, helped building trade employment to the tune of 150 men, and may be a sign of the trend to decentralization of great city factories.

Never a boom town, and never quite down to the depths, this typical small community goes quietly on its way, accepting what it likes in the recovery program, benefitting mildly by its workings, confident that whatever comes the farmers' muddy cars still will park in thick rank along Main street.

A Salvation Army official credits Mae West for the rise in employment. Well, yes, if you've noticed the pronounced curve in business.

Jack Dempsey, former heavy-weight boxing champion of the world, who will referee the matches at the Elks Arena Friday night, as, according to the All-Sports record book, the best record of any fighter the game has ever known.

Here is his record compiled by Frank G. Menke, editor of the All-Sports.

Born June 24, 1895, Manassa, Colorado; real name William Harrison Dempsey; began fighting career around Utah and Colorado mining camps in 1914; weight then about 148; height, 6 feet 1 1/2 inches; weight in heavyweight prime 187-194. Won heavyweight title from Jess Willard, July 4, 1919 in Toledo; knocked Willard down 7 times in first round, battered him in second and third; Willard's seconds tossed in towel before fourth round began; lost title to Gene Tunney in Philadelphia, Sept. 23, 1926 on 19 round decision; announced retirement after second Tunney fight in Chicago, Sept., 1927.

From 1914 until 1919 Dempsey engaged in 61 fights, won 43 of them by knockouts; was never knocked out but once in entire career.

Statistical record: total matches, 69; won with kayo, 47; won decision, 7; won on foul, 1; no decisions, 5; draws, 4; lost decisions, 4; knocked one once.

As a gate attraction Dempsey was the best in any division of the fight game. In 5 fights after he became champion he drew a total of 454,800 paid admissions through the turnstiles.

In his fight with Willard, Dempsey received $27,500. Exhibition with Billy Miske, $55,000. Fight with Bill Brennan, $100,000. In his battle with Georges Carpentier his purse was $300,000. Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, Montana, $265,000. When he knocked out Firpo after 3 minutes and 58 seconds of fighting his end of the purse was $170,000, or $120,000 a fighting minute. First Tunney fight brought him $711,868. After he lost his title to Tunney he fought Jack Sharkey in New York, and netted $320,711 for himself. As contender for his former championship Dempsey received $425,000 in the second Tunney fight in Chicago.

Dempsey is now 39 years old and will never enter the ring again with the gloves on but will probably devote his entire time to the interest in Max Baer and the promotion of fights at Madison Square Garden.

Springtime Blossoms, Bringing Easter in the Colors, Yellow Predominating

Three tables were laid with yellow and green linens for the luncheon, and centered with charming arrangements of callendulas.

Places were indicated by flapper dolls, cleverly contrived of eggshells, in frilly orange and green paper costumes.

The menu bought egg-shaped chicken croquettes, French-fried sweet potatoes, rolls, and asparagus salad, arranged as a nest filled with tiny "Easter eggs" of strawberries, served with cheese, green and ripe olives and guarded by a tiny Easter bunny.

Last course was apricot mousse, simulating a poached egg, on sand tart cookies, to represent the toast, with coffee.

The discussion for the afternoon brought a round-table of current events, followed by some clever April fool games.

Members present: Misses Grady Pipkin, Horace Conley, James Horton, T. J. Haley, J. M. Perkins, Carl Springer, B. M. Collier, A. H. Johnson, M. L. Keasler, and guests Misses W. E. Whose Fault?

When Children Get Bad Reports in School. Poor marks in school are often due to a child's physical condition. No child can study with a sluggish system. Sluggishness actually dulls the senses, it will dull the brightest mind. Before you can blame the child—or his teacher—you must be sure you are not sending a badly clogged child to school. Don't wait for a badly coated tongue, headaches, and poor appetite to tell you a child's bowels need help! There's a way to insure their regularity; see next column.

This is the secret of helping boys and girls go through an entire school term without once slumping in their studies. Keep them free from bilious attacks. Not by purging them with cathartics of adult strength! They'll never need such things if you'll use this natural means of stimulating regular, thorough bowel action; every three or four days, let them have a little California Syrup of Figs. The laxative action of the senna in this fruity syrup is enough. Get pure California Syrup of Figs.

TEXAS FARM PLAN HAS HAD FAIR SUCCESS

By THOMAS O. HURST
United Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS, Tex.—Texas' farm plan, under the first year of Roosevelt administration, has been approximately 50 per cent successful.

The conclusion was reached after a state-wide survey by United Press, the state objective of the program to raise major farm products prices to 1913 levels.

A close comparison of current prices on farm commodities to those of a year ago, it would be perfectly justifiable to say that the Texas farm program was more than 50 per cent successful.

Price gains in the major products have been between 50 and 60 per cent of the total rise sought when President Roosevelt took office last March 4, the survey indicated.

Obviously, some price gains have been due to factors other than the Roosevelt farm program, but success of the production control plans, on the other hand, possibly has been greater than that of the usual price scheme.

Objectives of the Roosevelt farm price program as analyzed in March, 1933, at the time of official announcement, were:

To raise cotton prices 7 cents a pound from a level at that time of 35 cents a pound to the prewar level of 42 cents.

To raise corn prices 40 cents a bushel from 25 cents to the prewar level of 65 cents a bushel.

To raise wheat prices 50 cents a bushel from 32 cents to the prewar level of 82 cents.

Raise wool prices nine cents a pound, doubling its then current price of nine cents.

Increase the price of butter eight cents from an 18-cent level.

Add $4.00 per hundredweight for hogs to a figure of $2.22.

Two dollars per hundredweight to be added to lambs at $4, and 1.80 per hundredweight to be added to the prevailing price of cattle, $2.42 to bring it to the prewar level of $5.22.

Varying results have been achieved with the price program on these eight major farm products. The average gain on them all throughout the state has been between 50 and 60 per cent of the goal set by the administration.

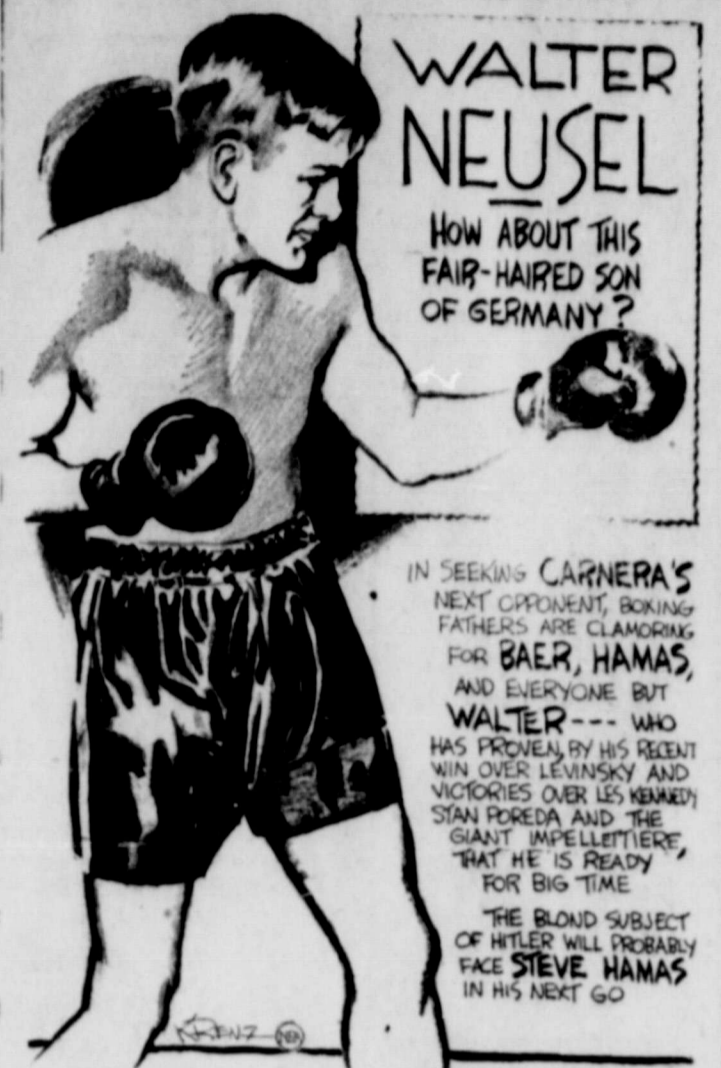

It is difficult to measure the exact percentage of achievement of the farm price program with a yardstick, but a glance at market prices on specific dates nearly a year ago gives a fairly accurate evaluating method to determine the success of the program.

Actual price gains on these products from February 15, 1933, to February 15, 1934, has been approximately 6 cents a pound on cotton, 24 cents a bushel on corn, 28 cents a bushel on wheat, 16 cents a pound on wool, 2 cents a pound on butter, and $1.25 a hundredweight on lambs, the survey revealed.

There was practically little or no gain on cattle and hogs.

Percentage gain, with regard to price rise necessary to restore February, 1933, prices to 1910-14 levels, has been 85 per cent on cotton, 60 per cent on corn, 68 per cent on wheat, 177 per cent on wool, 25 taken to keep the short pieces of hair from going down necks, nor was any shaving around the edges done. A little snipping here and there and the job was done. The main object was to get it short enough all over and a few gaps here and there did not worry anyone. We couldn't see them and Dad wouldn't say anything about them.

Invariably whenever we were going anywhere for some special occasion it would be discovered that kids needed a haircut and poor Dad would have to get the kids rounded up and get to work.

Another task that Dad was soon able to turn over to us, but which was carried on under his supervision and inspection for some time before we achieved that executive ability to see a job through, and before we gained the confidence of the heads of the family, was the Sunday morning shoe shining. We would have to get out the old bottle of Whittmore's polish with the cotton dauber on the end of a wire fastened to the stopper and give them a good coat of liquid polish. After this had dried we would have to shine them with a brush and then rub it briskly with a brush.

Inspections were carried on for years to be certain that we polished "clear around to the back" and if the job did not live up to requirements and specifications we had to do it all over. We were almost grown before we knew that a shine could be bought anywhere except in a bottle. Maybe shine parlors were not as numerous then as now and then maybe Dad did not want us to know about them and kept us in ignorance.

We remember the first "bought" shine we ever had. We were very much afraid that we would not be able to keep our feet on the two little iron stands and when the shine boy would shift suddenly from one shoe to the other with the shine cloth we would bear down so hard that we almost pushed the stand down.

Our first barber shop haircut, though, was at a much younger age, even before Dad took over the task. We had worn long, red curls, as boys did in those days, and we were somewhere around five years old before they were cut off. That job was left to a regular barber. We had just acquired a package of chewing gum and had a large portion of it in our mouth when we were taken into the barber shop. When we left we had a cud that would have done justice to a Jersey cow, it being about half chewing gum and half red hair and about the size of a 10-cent cut of chewing tobacco. It took considerable persuasion and another package of chewing gum to get us to throw it in the gutter after we left the shop.

When we got our first barber shop shave the barber could have been accused of taking money under false pretenses. We insisted on all the hot towels, powder, lotions and other things that go with a real, grown-up shave, though the soft, fuzzy down that adorned our face, or which we managed to see if we got up real close to the mirror and got the light at just the right angle, could have been cut off with a dull razor without even water being applied to soften it. But we were proud of it, and it must have been a good job, because it lasted us for something like six weeks, which no shave does nowadays.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rinin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks black, don't swallow a lot of saline, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and innocent and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Useinkle up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, among them it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Request a substitute. 25-cent drug stores. ©1934 C. M. C.
