Four Problems Confront Administration

Nebraska G.O.P. Booms McCarl As Presidential Hope

By United Press
M'COOK, Neb.—Old guard republicans here are booming J. Raymond McCarl, former tenor in the McCook "home-town quartette" and comptroller general of the U. S. treasury, as a prospective leader to carry the party banner in the 1936 presidential elections.

Although more than a year has yet to elapse before the country once again elects its national executive, Nebraska republican leaders are on the alert for evidence that McCarl might be considered. Advice from Washington and the east, in their estimation, have signified that McCarl's prospects are not remote.

Nebraska old line republicans have received trumpet blasts of Ogden Mills with noticeable coolness. The "pleasure trip" of the former President Hoover through the middle west, while not reaching Nebraska, failed to stir up any enthusiasm here.

Mention of McCarl's name, however, usually is well received. His supporters here point to his mention recently in industrial control reports, issued by the James True Associates at Washington, as indicating that his name actually is being considered.

Citizens here, who were intimately acquainted with McCarl trace his liberal attitude to his long association with Senator George W. Norris, leading exponent of the liberal gospel in the United States senate. After his graduation from the University of Nebraska school of law in 1903, McCarl returned to his home here to try his first case before the then Judge Norris. The trial formed the basis for a long friendship.

When Norris went to congress as representative for the first time, he took McCarl with him as secretary. The young man's flair for politics soon was discovered and utilized by his party leaders in the capital. In 1920 he was named by the republican national committee to direct the party's national congressional campaigns. The returns from the congressional elections that year was a smashing victory for the republicans, consolidated McCarl's position.

Killed in Fight With Dillinger

MAURY HUGHES OPENS DRIVE FOR ELECTION

By United Press
MCKINNEY, Texas, April 28.—Demanding law enforcement, reduction of taxes and repeal of the state dry laws with half of the consequent liquor revenue going to the state school fund, Maury Hughes of Dallas, former state Democratic executive committee chairman, opened his campaign for governor here today.

"There must be a drastic change in our law enforcement machinery," Hughes warned. He proposed establishment of a state police force, consolidation of the Rangers and the state highway patrol with a central law enforcement bureau at Austin to prevent "gangster" like Barrow and Dillinger from running amok on our highways."

Included in his anti-crime campaign would be a judicial reform to speed trial of criminals, and adoption of a pardon system similar to that of the federal government.

"I am for immediate repeal," he said, "and not only will I vote for repeal, but I will fight for its accomplishment."

Eastland Girl to Have Role in T.C.U. Pageant Program

By United Press
FORT WORTH, April 28.—Miss Bernice Johnson, Texas Christian university student from Eastland, will represent one of the pantomime characters in the annual spring pageant of the university to be presented in the stadium May 12.

Miss Johnson will portray one of the oriental merchants in the Biblical story of Ruth and Naomi, which will be the theme of the pageant, which is directed by Mrs. Helen Walker Murphy, head of the physical education department. The principal setting of the presentation will be laid in the market place of Bethlehem. The first scene will show the return of Ruth and Naomi to Bethlehem; the second scene will portray the reapers and gleaners in the field; the third scene will show the marriage of Ruth and Boaz in the market place.

Model Home of Electric Age Is Placed on Display

By United Press
MANSFIELD, O.—A model "home of the future," more completely electrified than ever before, has been attempted, has been opened here for public inspection. It represents what engineers of 20 different departments of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company conceive will be available to the average householder five or ten years hence.

If all the switches are turned on at once it represents electrical capacity equal to 864 servants at work, say the engineers. The house consumes 30 times more electrical energy than the average home of today, but its designers point out that already there is an over-production of power in the United States, and when the gigantic government projects now under way are completed the availability of low-cost power in home should be practically limitless.

The house is completely "air conditioned." That is, warm air in the winter and cool air in the summer is circulated through the house from a "weather room" in the basement.

Mother, driving home from bridge or tea in the family car doesn't have to get out and open cumbersome garage doors. As she approaches, she simply turns on her radio. The garage doors open, as though by unseen hands. She drives in, shuts off the radio, the garage doors close automatically.

The kitchen is one of those "straight-line production" affairs. The electric range heats up in a jiffy. The broiler broils a steak or chops on both sides at once. Food mixers, egg beaters and gadgets of that sort are permanently installed, and all operate merely by turning switches.

The dishwasher not only washes the dishes but rinses and dries them. Ultra-violet rays and infrared rays are provided in bedrooms and bathrooms. Garbage and waste paper is automatically dumped into outdoor receptacles. There are no fuses to burn out, and the electric meter is outdoors.

Sheriff Finds Own Pistol Amid Loot

By United Press
RICHMOND, Texas.—Imagine Sheriff Rusk Roane's surprise when he looked over a burglar's loot and recognized his own pistol that he hadn't even missed.

Raymond Hunt of Dallas, who confessed to several robberies in the community, told the sheriff he had cut the screen to the officer's house, entered and found the gun. "I guess I ought to keep this to myself," Sheriff Roane said, "but it's too good to keep."

Hunt was apprehended by George Lane at Rosenberg, three miles west of Richmond, after Lane's small daughter had watched a burglar prowling through the house. As the man left she ran and awakened her father who seized his gun and caught Hunt.

Dog Killed, Revived; Brain Dies

Lazarus IV, mongrel terrier, has been brought back from the dead, but his brain has been killed by the operation. Dr. Robert Cornish, California physician, shown here feeding the animal, asphyxiated the terrier April 18 and started to restore life after Lazarus IV had been pronounced dead for four minutes. Using blood, adrenalin, and heparin, he brought the dog back to life, but the brain failed to respond to treatment and the patient will be a "hopeless idiot."

By United Press

An old-fashioned frontier model .45 calibre pistol, one of his treasured possessions, was found beside him. The 45-year-old ranger died immediately.

MARY O'DARE IS FREED ON $5,000 BOND

By United Press
DALLAS, April 28.—Mary O'Dare, the girl who shared Raymond Hamilton's fortunes when they were bright but who declared she was through with him when he was recaptured, was free to go where she pleased today.

The girl, heart fancy of Hamilton, was brought here from Waco last night where earlier she waived an examining trial on a charge of robbery with firearms in connection with the holdup of a bank at West, Texas.

She was released on a $5,000 appearance bond, signed by a professional bondsman.

When word that the girl had been released reached Hamilton, confined in the Dallas county jail, he became more embittered at the thought that his sweetheart was through with him. He told jail guards, he blamed her with his capture.

"I was in love with her. I knew she was nearly broke. I wanted to help her, so I robbed the Lewisville bank to get her some money. Now she is through with me," Hamilton said.

Trail of Baby Face Nelson Grows Hot

By United Press
The trial of George (Baby Face) Nelson, machine gunner of the Dillinger gang, grew hot today when two men believed to be Nelson, stole an automobile at Pine City, Minn.

"Use every precaution in apprehending," a police broadcast warned.

Pine City is on the highway between the Twin Cities and Superior, near where Nelson is believed to have had a gun fight with Al Johnson, special deputy sheriff, Friday night.

Minneapolis and St. Paul police immediately ordered blockades on all highways.

FAMILY WAITS FOR WORD FROM KIDNAP BAND

By United Press
TUCSON, Ariz., April 28.—The distracted family of June Robles, 6, detained awaiting further instructions from her kidnapers for payment of $10,000 for ransom.

A night long vigil on the front porch of the Robles home, after a telephone call was received last night from the child's captors, was unproductive.

Searchers suspended operations in and near Tucson in the hope that contact would be made with the child's father or her grandfather.

The telephone call last night promised additional instructions as to how the money should be delivered. It was ready, in currency, of the denominations specified by the abductors.

June was abducted late Wednesday as she returned home from school. A newsboy, to whom it had been handed, gave her father the original ransom note two hours later.

Two suspects questioned at Phoenix because their car resembled that said to have been used by the kidnapers, were released.

Moore said no unusual precautions will be taken to guard the governor.

RECOVERY TO BE TAKEN UP WITH PROBLEMS

Additional Legislation Must Be Rushed If It Is Needed.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, April 28.—The administration, confronted with four pressing problems, demanding solution was said in capitol sources today to be planning to retard its recovery drive for a few weeks in order to take stock of the situation.

Congress is on the threshold of concluding work on the controversial tariff bill for reciprocal trade agreements. While senate debate rages the administration will be able to evaluate its recovery program and determine what additional legislation may be necessary.

Outstanding among the problems to be faced are:
1.—Curtailling of huge government expenditures.
2.—Aligning activity of industry and agriculture under the NRA and the AAA.

3.—Possible adjustment of the monetary program due to belief the gold program has not worked as well as expected.
4.—Reviving enthusiasm in congress for administration measures.

Six children have preceded her to the grave.

Up until the time of her sickness, "Aunt Rose," as she was known by her numerous friends, was a favorite in the community and was loved for her quaint sayings and philosophy. The couple celebrated their fiftieth anniversary not very long ago.

TEXAS FARMERS ARE SUPPLYING THEIR OWN TABLES

Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham is the associate editor of the extension service news of the A. & M. college. She has been prominent in all political and farm movements in recent years. She has been a leader in the activities of her native state. Mrs. Cunningham has reports showing that last year 59,087 families in 11 Texas counties directly assisted with home demonstration work through organizations sponsored by county and home demonstration agents and carried educational information through demonstrations to 128,972 other families not in the work. A magnificent showing, to say the least. More than 16,118,331 containers of food were canned by these 59,087 families. They also reported dried cured and stored foods aggregating 16,926,254 pounds had been put away for home consumption or the market. Value of these foods has been placed at more than $5,900,000 by economists of the extension service.

Now "inability of Texas farm families to buy containers for canned products" is reflected in the figures showing the tremendous increases in the amount of dried and cured food products on which the extension service obtained definite report for 1933. Thousands of Texas farmers are "feeding themselves." They are canning their way out. They are going back to the days of their fathers and their grandfathers who created a marvelous commonwealth with their own hands without federal relief or state financial aid.

Competition between cities spurs them on to civic achievement.

Many cities are in a position to move ahead. All they need is for a lot of citizens to give the live ones a chance.

Every live citizen should be a good sport, come out of their shells, boost hard for the home city and make the dead ones do the same.

The whaling industry will never regain its former glory. This is a matter for sincere regret. With its passing goes a race of men who did not know the meaning of the word "fear."

above his waist, remained all night in the tree and called for help.

The water rose within three feet of Priour and it was feared he might fall from exhaustion or that the tree would be washed away. Other trees near it were uprooted. In the morning men on the opposite bank made several attempts by swimming and by use of a raft and a boat to reach Priour, but they were unsuccessful. Fletcher, who had watched these attempts, enter the water from the bank opposite to that upon which Priour was marooned; swam 350 feet at an angle to the current; and slowly swimming with great difficulty and effort from tree to tree reached Priour in an hour and a half. Fletcher carried a can of food and first aid supplies tied to his back and an open knife in his teeth. He feared that the string with which the can was tied might catch on drift. The water had receded to a depth of 12 feet. Fletcher gave coffee and food to Priour, who was dazed. Two hours later, the water then being eight feet deep at the tree, Priour and Fletcher started to swim to wadeable water. Alternately swimming and resting by holding to bushes, they swam 175 feet to wadeable water, Fletcher giving Priour aid at times. A bronze medal was awarded to Joseph C. opportunity to look at her host. He was tall and very erect. His snow white hair curled slightly and touched the collar of the dressing gown that hung to his gaunt legs. "Did Madeline come?" the old man asked as Bill sprinted up the three steps to his side. "Here she is!" Bill beckoned to Donna, who was just behind him. "Grandfather," she whispered huskily, "Grandfather." Groping garbled hands reached for her; old arms enfolded her "Madeline, my little Madeline." The girl pressed her face against his shoulder, hoping he would not notice how fast her heart was beating. "I've wanted you for such a long time and now I can't even see you." "I know," she choked, tears in her throat. "Bill told me—you are blind. Oh, I'm so sorry, so sorry!" "That's all right, Madeline. Be assured, getting her curls with trembling, affectionate fingers. "I'm old and affliction doesn't matter so much to an old fellow. Only I've missed you and wanted you. But there, there! We're not going to be sad for the little time you are here. There must be a heap more I want to tell you and a heap more I want to know. Come in side. Mrs. Planter laid out some supper for you." In books Donna had read of just such a room—quiet, homely in setting, containing something between the four walls that she had longed for all her life. There were rocking chairs with low squares in their backs, a "whatnot" in the corner with china bric-a-brac on its shelves, a reading lamp beside a stand holding a large family Bible. On the big center table a vase of purple and white lilacs stood and beneath a nap in the supper was laid out. Donna's glance rested upon an enlarged photograph on the wall, the picture of a small girl and wide, questioning eyes. Madeline of course. "It doesn't look much like you now," Bill said. "The old man's faltering steps led him to the chair beside the Bible. "Maybe you don't mind with prayer now Madeline," he said, but I want to thank God that He sent you to me before the call came. "Oh Grandfather!" she cried she dropped on her knees beside him feeling suddenly that this was her home, this old man, whose face touched the precipice of death, was her relative. "Oh Grandfather!" In the midst of the simple prayer a door opened and the housekeeper Mrs. Planter, came into the room instantly the spell vanished. Donna felt the antagonism of the woman. Though Mrs. Planter's lips parted in a smile, though she extended her hand in cordial greeting, her pale eyes between white lashes informed Donna she was not welcome. "I reckon you find your grandpa changed a lot," she said. "He's been falling fast this past year. And you've changed too. You've changed. I wouldn't have known you." "Five years make changes in everybody," Donna answered bravely. "You ought to be in bed, Amos,

Cowen Pollock Knocks Modern Movies

PHILADELPHIA. — Channing Pollock, playwright and author, issued a withering blast at modern movies in an address before the University students here. "They are selling toy machines to the children on the streets of New York," he said. "That is just the result of the vicious modern movie."

"Everyone connected with modern pictures, 'I'm No Angel,' ought to be in the penitentiary. There seems to be a movement under way to throw overboard duty, sacrifice, heroism and other virtues conspicuous in their behavior from modern books, plays and motion pictures."

Pollock discussed what he called "filthy modern books" at length.

"We no longer can write filth on the bathroom walls, so we put it in books," he said. "But why buy a book when you can stand on the corner listening to the conversation of two truck drivers? In modern literature, if it isn't filth, it's love. Today's 'best sellers' are life of the greatest realities, truth and beauty."

"The hero has vanished from modern literature, and his place has been taken by the poor fish, the neuroses of life have a place in the clinic, but not in books."

'Miss Florida' Romance Ends

SHE REMEMBERED

BINGHAM, Utah. — A lesson all taught by her father was responsible for the saving of the life of Viola McDonald. The 10-year-old girl sat alone in the family car. It was parked on a steep grade in this mining town. Suddenly the machine started rolling. As suddenly as it started, the car came to a halt. Just short of crashing into a building. Frightened to death, little Viola explained she had heard her daddy say to "pull the lever when you want to stop the car." That was what she had done.

PLAN TO EXPLORE CAVE

By United Press
MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. — Skull Cave, located here and believed to contain skulls of mysterious origin, is to be explored by scientists under the direction of the Island State Park commission. Belief that human bones are buried in the dark recesses of the cave is based on the writings of Alexander Henry, famous fur trader, who hid there from the Indians in 1763. He wrote that "human bones and skulls covered the floor." Modern historians believe they may be remains of Chippewa Indians killed in a raid by the Hurons, a rival tribe.

Speeding Up of Sound Transmission To Be Demonstrated

TULSA, Okla.—The transmission of sound as a beam of light, increasing its speed approximately one million times will be a novel demonstration at the International Petroleum Exposition and Congress, which will be held in Tulsa May 12 to 19.

How far reaching is this invention, which as yet has not been generally introduced to the scientific world, is not known but it may revolutionize the communication world even as did the coming of the radio wave, according to P. L. Willson, member of the scientific and technical committee in charge of the demonstration.

"At the present time the transmission of sound as a beam of light is in its infant stage and the transmission can be affected but several hundred feet." However, Willson points out that the same was true of the telephone, wireless and radio in its early stages.

In the demonstration the human voice will be sent at the speed of 186,000 miles per second in contrast with the normal rate of approximately 1,100 feet per second as the voice travels from person to person. This invention is the outcome of scientific developments of the photo-electric cell, commonly called the electric eye, which has many practical applications to industry.

In the oil industry it records the density of smoke and tells refinery executives whether there is waste going up into the air; it distinguishes between colors and differences in shades imperceptible to the human eye. It can run locomotives, control all sorts of operations with uncanny accuracy; operate safety devices the minute workers cross the danger lines; start sprinklers in case of fire. The application of this to the oil industry will be clearly demonstrated at the exposition.

The exposition will have many marvelous features in the machinery lines for all branches of the industry. Exhibits will be valued at more than 10 million dollars. It will be of interest to oil man and layman alike. At the last show held in 1930 visitors from 21 foreign nations and 38 states of the union attended. Indications are, according to W. B. Way, general manager, that attendance will be as great again this year.

CHEVROLET When you pay the price of a Knee-Action car, you naturally want genuine Knee-Action and all that goes with it. You want the new gliding ride at its best. You want the huskiest, sturdiest front-end you can buy. And, of course, you want shock-proof steering. You pay for them all—but you get them all, in the low-price field, only from Chevrolet. The reason is simple. Fully-enclosed Knee-Action wheels are costly to build—so costly that only Chevrolet, world's largest builder of cars, can afford to make the necessary huge investment in new machinery—and still keep prices among the lowest of the lot. Only Chevrolet has the resources and the assured volume of sales that permit this extra production cost. Chevrolet does it because Chevrolet believes that, to KEEP ON SELLING THE MOST CARS, YOU MUST KEEP ON BUILDING THE BEST.

Indian Mounds Found at Shiloh

By United Press.

WASHINGTON.—On the Civil war battlefield of Shiloh, an expedition of CWA workers, directed by Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts Jr., of the Bureau of American Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, has unearthed a group of Indian mounds of marked historic interest.

Located on a high bluff above the Tennessee river, the group is believed to have constituted an ancient refuge and ceremonial center. Within a radius of two miles, it was pointed out, are sites of six once-populous aboriginal villages.

Well protected on three sides by high bluffs and on the fourth by a palisade fence, the group is believed to have been a center for worship, refuge from floods, and civic government. Remains of what probably was an ancient temple were uncovered on one building site.

Larger mounds, Dr. Roberts said, disclosed no artifacts or skeletal material—a distinct peculiarity. However, under smaller mounds, traces were found of approximately 30 houses and, Roberts added, one small mound contained the flexed remains of 30 skeletons.

Date or identity of the tribal inhabitants has not been determined, although it is believed they were proto-Muskogean, from whom evolved the highly cultured Indians encountered by the first white explorers in the Gulf states.

PORTLAND, Ore.—When Mrs. Maude Loiselle wanted to prevent her husband, John, from drinking, she had to present a petition for an order of interdiction to prevent the state of Oregon from selling her spouse any beverages. The state is the sole legal dispenser of hard liquors.
