NO CUSTOMERS OF LONE STAR TO BE ON JURY

By United Press

AUSTIN, June 9.—No patron of Lone Star Gas company will be on the jury to be selected here Monday to determine if the natural gas rate must be reduced.

The jury will be struck from a regular civil panel in District Judge Charles Wheeler's court. Two thirds of the panel are from rural communities without gas service. Others reside in Austin, which is not served by the Lone Star company.

Approximately 700,000 persons who are supplied with gas through 200,000 meter connections in other parts of Texas will be affected by the decision of Travis County jurors.

The specific matter jurors will decide is whether a reduction from 40 cents to 32 cents a thousand cubic feet should be made in the price the company charges for delivery of natural gas from its pipe lines at city and town limits.

If the state wins the contention that the lower rate is fair, it still will be necessary to determine reasonable distribution charges levied against consumers within patron towns.

Oil Districts Change Orders Been Rescinded

CISCO, June 9.—An executive order which was issued as of May 1, requiring certain administrative changes in the Abilene and Eastland conservation districts of the oil and gas division of the state railroad commission has been rescinded, and the organization and personnel of these districts have reverted to the status of prior to that date.

The announcement was made by W. J. Carden, of the Abilene district; I. J. Killough of the Eastland district, and Luther Belew of Eastland. These three are deputy oil and gas supervisors.

The rescinded order, they said, affected other conservation and proration districts of the state, also. It never went into effect, however.

Oil operators, they announced, will therefore send to Mr. Carden at Abilene such papers as relate to conservation phases of the oil and gas administration in the Abilene district and to Mr. Killough at Eastland such papers as relate to conservation regulations in the Eastland area.

Devices Used to Run Hot Oil Are In Washington

By United Press

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Scores of devices used by East Texas oil operator to evade oil code regulation, have been discovered by government agents gathering evidence expected to bring numerous prosecutions.

Reporting to Oil Administrator Harold Ickes, Louis Glavis, chief interior department investigator, said his men had found portable refineries, which can be moved through the backwoods roads of Eastern Texas; truck valves which permit oil to flow while apparently sealed and locked, pipe line tapping on oil well casing pipe below ground, and other devices to run oil illegally.

In the Money

None of the 500,000 who watched the running of English Derby at Epsom Downs got a bigger thrill than the two New Yorkers shown here. Miss Alma Manay (top), a former Almas Follies girl, won $152,000 on Windsor Lad, the winner. Fred Krakenberg, mail carrier, is shown (below) as he announced that before the race he had sold for $50,000 his ticket on Colombo. That's just the sum he would have won anyhow when Colombo finished third!

BUYING POWER STILL NEEDED FOR RECOVERY

By United Press

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Need for increased public buying power to stimulate further business gains was reported today by the American Federation of Labor as a new deal in Texas, from a new deck, and new dealers in the game" is a slogan pleasing to the average man and woman who is interested in the welfare of Texas.

The thing that first brought James V. Allred before the public was the energy and ability displayed as a prosecutor in West Texas, coupled with his high conception of a public trust in office, and the same attributes as Attorney General, has caused him to be acclaimed by the masses as a Good Public Servant. His friends point out that he has made a record as a law enforcer, as a lawyer, and as a statesman, and yet his simple and democratic manner marks him as a man who has not lost touch with the masses who have honored him.

The commerce department in its survey of current business reported that despite a further rise in production this spring again outstripped the buying power, but not as much as a year ago when an abortive rise in business collapsed in July.

The commerce department in its survey of current business reported that despite a further rise in April in employment and payrolls the manufacturing expansion was checked during May.

The federation survey reported that business observers "generally feel a decline slightly more than seasonal may be expected and that it will last until late summer."

Roosevelt Submits Drought Relief Plan

By United Press

WASHINGTON, June 9.—A seven point program for drought relief calling for an appropriation of $525,000,000 was transmitted to Congress today by President Roosevelt.

"I believe the present emergency can be met by the appropriation of $525,000,000," the chief executive wrote in a special message, the last of such communications expected to be submitted to the present session.

Arms Parley May Adjourn Until Fall

By United Press

GENEVA, June 9.—Adjournment of the world disarmament conference until autumn, probably October, so the big powers can negotiate with Germany and among themselves in secrecy, was planned today by conference leaders, it was learned authoritatively.

James V. Allred to Speak In County First of the Week

James V. Allred, candidate for governor, will speak in Ranger Tuesday night at 8:30 in the interest of his candidacy. The speaking will be conducted in front of the old Liberty theatre, where seats will be arranged for everyone. Arrangements for the speaking date in Ranger are being conducted by Herbert Stafford.

Dr. Harry A. Logsdon, mayor of Ranger, will introduce the speaker and arrangements are being made for a musical program to precede or follow the speaking.

Politically speaking, the people of Texas have thus far declined to be disturbed by the familiar cry of the politicians for votes. It is apparent that Texas intends never again to place too much hope in extravagant promises of office-seekers who will not be in a position to fulfill such promises. They are about ready to recognize that there is more for them in a faithful and efficient administration of their government than there is in vain promises of material receipts or donations from their government. As stated by one of the leading newspapers of the state, "The announcements made so far by candidates for important offices in Texas—with the exception of one utterance—(referring to James V. Allred's announcement) consists of mouthings of issues worn shabby by endless reiteration on the Texas stump, and honored more in the breach than the observance by candidates after they get into office."

James V. Allred is making three speeches in Eastland county during next week. He will speak in Ranger Tuesday night, Eastland Wednesday at four o'clock p.m., and in Cisco Wednesday night.

Frank Sparks is busy making arrangements for Mr. Allred's visit to the county, and urges the entire citizenship to hear Mr. Allred at one or more of the above speaking engagements. "James V. Allred is campaigning with the same energy and thoroughness which has characterized his work as Attorney General," says Mr. Sparks, "and if elected Governor I believe he will in a comparative degree match our energetic President, Mr. Roosevelt, in 'doing things'—a new deal in Texas, from a new deck, and new dealers in the game" is a slogan pleasing to the average man and woman who is interested in the welfare of Texas.

The thing that first brought James V. Allred before the public was the energy and ability displayed as a prosecutor in West Texas, coupled with his high conception of a public trust in office, and the same attributes as Attorney General, has caused him to be acclaimed by the masses as a Good Public Servant. His friends point out that he has made a record as a law enforcer, as a lawyer, and as a statesman, and yet his simple and democratic manner marks him as a man who has not lost touch with the masses who have honored him.

We are planning to have a great opening rally for Mr. Allred immediately after the first primary," said Mr. Sparks, "inviting delegations from all the surrounding counties, and open the second primary campaign which will elect James V. Allred Governor of Texas by a handsome majority."

The federation survey reported that business observers "generally feel a decline slightly more than seasonal may be expected and that it will last until late summer."

BLAST IN NITROGLYCERIN TRUCK BLOWS BODIES OF SEVEN TO BITS

Their bodies blown to bits and scattered 300 yards across a field, seven men died near Norman, Okla., in a terrific explosion in their nitroglycerin-loaded truck, the shattered wreck of which is shown here. The blast occurred in a storm and its cause may never be known, one theory being that it was struck by lightning and another being that contents of the truck were touched off when the machine struck a bump in the road. The victims were members of an oil exploring party.

PASSING OF FREDERIC TAYLOR CONNERLY

Frederic Taylor Connerly has passed on to his reward. He was the clerk of the supreme court of Texas for many years. Indeed, he had served since 1888. He had as wide a list of acquaintances as any citizen of Texas. He was known to thousands of lawyers, who are living or dead. He knew all the public men in the life of the southwest for decades. He was prominent in various avenues of endeavor, speakin gof the social and political and fraternal life of the Friendly City. He was one of the noted sportsmen of the Southwest. He was a hunter, a fisherman, a golfer and a crack shot. This fame as a sportsman was nation-wide in days gone by. He knew the history of Texas as well as the biographies of its earliest and greatest sons—all down the line. He was popular, he was lovable, he was patriotic and he was ever a man of his word.

Born in Alabama, Connerly was brought to Texas by his parents at the age of 14. He was educated in Texas. His active life was spent in Texas. His achievements were registered in Texas. He was only 19 when he received his first job in the office of clerk of the supreme court and when the messenger of death called him he had served 46 years of continuous service in that office under the big dome of the Texas capitol. His family will mourn him; his friends will mourn him; the bar of the state will mourn him; his associates will mourn him for the very good reason that when he closed his eyes the soul of a real man with the human touch has crossed the borderline to his maker in that world invisible.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

JOHN GARLAND POLLARD Says:

"Success in government depends largely on the selection of officials with the will and ability to perform great tasks."

"Government is not automatic."

"It must be run by human beings."

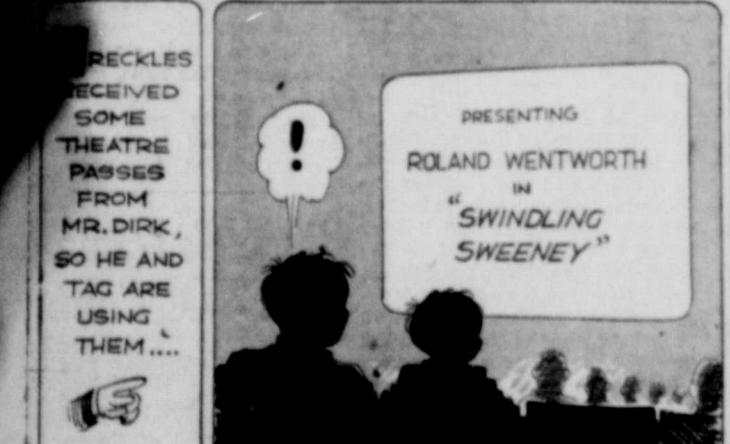

"Its plan may be perfect but if administered by the inefficient men, it will fail."

"Good government, therefore, is largely a matter of personnel."

"It is well that we should be giving our attention to improving the mechanism of our government, but all our work will come to naught unless efficient men are chosen for office."

"The government will never be any more efficient than the men who administer it."

Scrubbing Boards

Best Dirt Removers

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—The old fashioned scrubbing board still sends the whitest shirts to the clothes line in the back yard. Penn State co-eds found in the study of home economics.

Ironically, the result of the investigation was reported by Dr. Pauline Berry Black at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Laundryowners association.

The scrubbing board method took out 77 per cent of the dirt in shirts, it was found, but the texture of the cloth suffered severely, its strength being reduced 27.8 per cent in 50 washings.

Each shirt was scrubbed 50 times, 15 minutes each time, to reach the average for dirt removal.

TRYING TO GET A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

MRS. PLANTER, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy.

A MAN SIDDAL, Madeline's grandfather, has a stroke.

Meanwhile, the girl who has married CON DAVID, the animal trainer, is killed. Con knows of Madeline's deception and decides to break up the marriage.

He comes to the nearby town and Donna agrees to meet him. She departs telling Bill she'll get him.

Bill grows anxious because she is gone so long. He finds an anonymous letter written by Con. It says that Donna has gone to meet Con. He has just finished reading the letter when Donna arrives.

CHAPTER XXXIX

I WAS startled," Donna had said to Con. "It's so dark and I didn't see you." Her voice shook a little.

Con offered his hand but she ignored it. Then he laughed. "Let me look at you," he said.

"What is it you want, Con?" the girl asked hurriedly. "I haven't much time and I'm not anxious to drive on a country road in this kind of weather."

"Yes," she whispered. Then she added, "But it isn't altogether Bill's Grandfather. The shock might kill him in his weakened condition."

"He doesn't know about Madeline's death?"

"No."

Con whistled under his breath.

"Pretty soft for you—dying."

"What do you mean?"

"You know what I mean. Maybe she told me the truth and maybe she didn't, but from all I gathered the old man is pretty well fixed."

"The farm is valuable."

"And there are no heirs but this precious Bill and Madeline. Madeline was the nearest kin and due to inherit all the old man possesses. Now she's dead and you're supposed to be she. What are you going to do about it when the old man dies?"

"I—I hadn't thought—not since she died."

"I'll bet you haven't!" With him hanging to life by the skin of his teeth and a will made out giving everything to his granddaughter."

"THAT doesn't matter now," she said slowly. "While Madeline lived I knew that some day I would have to admit the fraud but now Bill would inherit the farm. He's the only living relative."

"And that, my dear, is what I am here to prevent."

"Prevent?"

"Exactly. Madeline was my wife if a valuable piece of property had belonged to her at the time of her death it would naturally be mine now. I've no intention of standing by and seeing this man you've married come into the estate that should be mine."

"I don't see how you can help it," Donna said in a tight voice.

"That's all you know about it. If I owned a farm I could turn it into headquarters for them."

"All that lovely fertile land! I summers and the rest of it but don't tell me you married this yokel because you're in love with him!"

"He isn't a yokel," Donna said indignantly. "Bill Siddal is better educated than you are. Con David. He may not be as sophisticated, nor have seen as much of the world but as the fitness man I ever knew except Grandfather I love him! I loved him the first time he came to the circus—"

"But you won't."

"I certainly will!"

"Oh, no you won't. You've no proof that Madeline concocted the scheme that you and she put over me. You've not been foolish enough—or is it clever enough?—to keep her letters. Maybe your husband might overlook the fraud and maybe the old man might be generous and see something decent in your attempt to pass yourself off as his granddaughter, but the law wouldn't."

"The law?"

"Yes, the law. I don't suppose you are aware you've committed a felony in pretending to be another person in order to inherit that person's fortune?"

"But I didn't do it for the fun of it! You know I didn't!"

"IT isn't what I know or believe," Con said slowly. "Unless you have copies of those letters, you've only your word that they were ever written. If I take the matter to court I can get plenty of witnesses to prove that you are Donna Gabriel, that you married under an assumed name, that the death of the girl you impersonated was known by you, I let you keep the knowledge a secret from her relatives and—"

"You cad!" she said hoarsely.

"Rather a harsh term for a man who is only seeking what is right for him. I'm being on the level with you, laying my cards on the table. Under other circumstances I would have gone right to old Mr. Siddal and told him the truth but it happened I'm fond of you."

"Fond!" she sneered.

"That's a mild word. I low—

"Don't!"

"Surely that's not news to you. Marrying Madeline didn't change my feelings toward you. I've always been crazy about you. I still am."

"I won't listen to anything else," she cried.

"Just a minute!" he caught her wrist. "I like your spirit, Donna. That was a rotten thing to say and I didn't get you here to make love to you. I wanted to—"

"Shush!" she said suddenly, apprehensively. "There's someone over there."

The crackling of a twig reached them as the eavesdropper, in an attempt to hear more clearly, moved closer and for a second was out lined against the trees.

Panic gripped Donna's heart. "Let me go," she jerked. "This will get me into terrible trouble."

"Don't be nervous. Nothing would have been heard. You're a car, haven't you? Come on. Let's get in it. I've only said half what I intended."

SINCLAIR IN FIRST PLACE AFTER A WIN

Free Flying Circus Will Be Held This Afternoon

Plans have been made for a thrilling air performance at the Ranger airport Sunday afternoon starting at 1 o'clock.

Reg Robbins, who set a new world's endurance record two years ago over Fort Worth, will be here in his 14-passenger Tri-motored Ford plane. In his endurance flight he stayed in the air over seven days and nights, breaking the record set by the U. S. Army flyers in the "Question Mark."

Mr. Robbins will give a souvenir card with his name, picture and picture of his plane on it to every person who takes a ride in his plane Sunday.

The outstanding event of the afternoon will be the sensational double parachute jump by Leon McKenon, nationally known parachute jumper from Love Field. He has made several hundred jumps and every jump is filled with thrills. Mr. McKenon will jump from the Tri-motored Ford plane Sunday afternoon from a height of 3000 feet and fall a quarter of a mile before opening his chute.

Other interesting feats of the show will make it worth driving miles to see.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kindle are shown at the Columbia Theatre today, showing actual pictures of the actual slaying of Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker.

"This film should not be confused with the one shown at the Arcadia a few days after the shooting," Mr. Garner said, "as that was one which showed only pictures taken of the scene of the shooting, while the picture at the Columbia today was actually taken at the time the trap was sprung and the two desperadoes were first taken to the morgue."

The film, Garner said, also shows the death car, with many bullet holes, and the two bodies as they appeared when first taken to the morgue.
