A STATEWIDE ORGANIZATION OF ALL INDUSTRIES

There is a congressional committee in investigating petroleum conditions in Texas. 'Tis well. All the important facts and figures are at their disposal. There is a state regulatory body elected by all the voters of the commonwealth. Its members have made a remarkable record for the enforcement of proration orders since the fifth district court of appeals rebuked and reversed orders of minor federal judges not long ago in the city of New Orleans. The decision of the federal court which set aside many injunctions issued by minor federal courts paved the way for the rail commissioners to enforce their orders to conserve the supply, to regulate the daily output and to punish, or rather bring to justice, those who had violated all orders and all codes.

Speaking of the Roosevelt reign, "we have now been for a year and a half under the New Deal."

In this deal over three-fifths of the nation is for the idea and execution as performed. It is safe to say in Texas four persons out of five are for the New Deal as the President has carried it forward. It is also safe to say that four persons out of five are very definitely and acutely concerned about states rights. This is as it should be. Representative citizens speaking for all industries including agricultur the state over have launched an organization for the preservation and perpetuation of the rights of the state. Mark you, states rights in 1934 "are not in connection with slavery or party political matters."

There should be local organizations in all the 254 counties. Those who believe in the dogma of state rights should affiliate with the organization for the protection of the constitutional guarantees given to the states in the long ago by the immortal makers of the federal constitution who were likewise the founders of this republic.

In 1934 states rights means a broad basis of happiness for 6,000,000 people. It concerns an economic question and not the right of secession of a state or the defense of chattel slavery. It covers the right to divide between husband and wife community property not only in connection with the division of possessions but the division of income in the payment of taxes.

It also involves such questions as high tariffs and low tariffs. For many years the makers of things have been the beneficiaries of high tariffs and the growers of things, who produce the staples of the farm and the ranch and the orchard and the garden have been largely overlooked. It concerns restricted immigration laws, which prevents the coming of new people into new land and therefore perhaps reduces the value of what we have in a new country as well as the creation of new land values and an increase in the tax-paying element of a commonwealth.

Eternal vigilance being the price of liberty, on with the movement.

VACATION POST CARDS

CONFERENCE ON THE STATE OF THE NATION.

MISSISSIPPI REGAINS POLICE POWER OF STATE

In the long ago as time is counted a Mississippi legislature was among the first to ratify the 18th amendment of the federal constitution. It surrendered the police power of the state—a most sacred right passed on to the states by the makers of the constitution. Well, the 18th amendment was repealed. Mississippians have state constitutional prohibition. A repeal amendment was submitted to the voters the other day. Then it was that Mississippians clamored again for the right to regulate their own affairs, speaking of the liquor traffic, and the dry leaders declared for the retention in the constitution of the organic law for the protection of those who did not believe in the licensing and sale of hard liquor. The dries won by a handsome majority. They had surrendered the police power to the federal government. Now it has been returned to the Mississippi commonwealth.

This is as it should be. A national convention of democrats declared for a return of police power to the states. The American congress voted for the return of its power. Now Mississippians have been given the right not only to regulate the sale of intoxicating beverages but to stamp out the liquor traffic within the borders of their commonwealth. Surely, the makers of the constitution of the republic who were the founders and the builders of this nation of freemen knew what they were doing in the long ago when they drafted and adopted the constitution.

Texas, or a vast majority, have ever been for the rights of the state. Now it is for Texans to exercise their rights as freemen and to strive by voice and influence to preserve and perpetuate inviolate the rights passed on to their commonwealth by the makers of the republic and the Lone Star siser admitted in the long ago by articles of annexation which had been given the approval of the congress as well as the voters of a little republic that passed out of existence and became one of the proudest stars in the diadem of a great nation.

Unless they use advertising behind their efforts and make up their minds to fight for business, some business men will be like some unplanted ones that still just manage to keep on earth.

D. L. Kinnaird

D. L. Kinnaird of Eastland, who is a candidate for flitorial representative from the 107th district composed of Eastland and Callahan Counties.

Kinnaird Issues Statement to the Voters of 107th

In presenting myself as a candidate for State Representative from the 107th District, comprising Eastland and Callahan Counties, I believe the voters of the District are entitled to know something of my background. Briefly, I was born in Missouri, and at an early age my parents moved to Oklahoma where I completed my grade schooling. After graduating from the local school I attended the Oklahoma State University for three years and a half, working my way through. The war came on in 1917 and I enlisted. I was in service almost two years. Was with the 36th Division one year. After my return from the army I located in Eastland where I have resided for the past fifteen years, having engaged in the same occupation during that period. I own my own business. I am at present, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of the City of Eastland, serving without compensation, and am a member of the Eastland County Reconciliation which is also a Board serving without compensation to adjust farm loans. Through my contacts with numerous people in the District, I believe that I have a clear insight into the needs and desires of the people of this district.

Among the measures which I favor as a means of remedying the present situation of economic stress, are a marked reduction in ad valorem tax on all real estate and exemption of any and all taxes on small homes, unemployment insurance, old age pensions and strict regulation of public utilities and control rates. I believe one factor necessary to recovery is to exercise economy and careful expenditure in Government.

In addition to this I favor the passage of any other legislation which is calculated to relieve the present situation, if such can be done without permanent injury to this District or its people.

Upon the basis of my record as Mayor of the City of Eastland and as a member of the Reconciliation Board I submit that I am fully qualified to properly represent this district in the State Legislature. My record shows conclusively that I have always held unwaveringly toward the course which promised the greatest good for the people who had placed me in office. I can pledge to you that I will continue the same policy if I should be elected as your representative in the oncoming Democratic primary election. I was elected Mayor of the City of Eastland on a (anti-utility) ticket.

I will welcome an investigation into my qualifications and experience. I owe no allegiance and am under no obligation to any person or organization save to the people of this district for whose support I am making this appeal. If elected I shall put forth my utmost endeavor to perform my duties as representative in an honest, impartial and business-like manner.

I earnestly solicit your support and influence in the approaching primary election upon the sole campaign promise that if I become your State Representative that my duties will be performed with a view for the greatest good of Callahan and Eastland Counties.

D. L. (Donald) KINNAIRD, Candidate for 107th flitorial Representative. (Political Adv.)

One cow-hand said 'Give me a key to the front door-I'll be out late tonight'

Yes, this actually happened. One of the boys from a neighborhood ranch walked up to the desk at one of the West Texas Hiltons and said, "Give me the key to the front door. I'll be out late tonight." Of course, we explained to him that "the latchkey hung on the outside." "Doors never locked, we reader 'Minnas' service twenty-four hours a day, three hundred and sixty-five days a year."

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

HELEN HERE TODAY New York determined to show her home town, Hamburg, and especially AMY, that she can make a success of her life. AMY had been her best friend since the engagement. Jane had forced upon her and married Amy in New York. She obtains a position in a real estate office and soon a man, FRANK, enters her picture.

THE last day of Commencement the dean's wife telephoned, in a hurry. "Amy, Rufus is terribly sick, one of those awful stomach upsets he has when he gets too tired and I'm in such a fix—we were to have two of the trustees for dinner tonight, you know. Will our Barney and Louis Prentice, a couple of old timers as ever were, come to take them? I'll send you the whole dinner, all cooked and a maid to serve it. And listen, Amy, there's plenty for a dozen, so ask some more people if you feel equal to it. There's gallons of soup and three roast ducks and I'll send you a couple of those really good old Burgundy Rufus has been saying and oh, Amy, do give them a real time. There's both been so much with the Endowment Fund and we want them good to do something about the scholarships—you see how it is! I do wish you could dig up an entertaining pretty woman or two, but I suppose that's impossible. Marburg might be better as far as extra women are concerned, but of course they'll enjoy you dear. They haven't got their wives with them, thank heaven!"

AND now Jane and Miss Rosa were coming in. Miss Rosa, trailing her best black chiffon and glittering with her entire set of old pink top, necklace, "rooch, bracelets, earrings, and behind her, with the expression of one who lends herself to a small town diversion with kindly patronage, came Jane. Jane at her most sophisticated in a bareback golden frock, pointed up with a jade cigarette holder and an enormous jade clasp on her girder. The borrowed maid appeared at the door. "Dinner is served, Mrs. Jackson," she murmured. Amy led them out, seated them—Howard at the head, Miss Rosa at his right. Yes, and she would put Jane at his left, Mr. Barney at the foot, Alice at his left and Prentice between Alice and Jane, leaving Edgar and herself to fill the other side. Frances beamed to find him-

"Happenings at Willows"
 Have you had your exercise today? Since the pool at the Willows has been drained and refilled this last time the water is more delightful than ever, and after these hot days the temperature is just right for swimming until 10:30, when the pool closes.

We certainly should be grateful to the Lions and Rotary clubs of Ranger for this opportunity of getting to swim at home rather than having to drive several miles to a place which isn't kept in the sanitary manner this one is. There is no better exercise than swimming, the favorite outdoor amusement for summer.

We maintain every person should know how to swim. It's an important and often times a life saving accomplishment. Judging from various swim parties and persons who are taking advantage of the Willows there are just lots of youngsters in Ranger who are far better swimmers than older persons, splendid divers and at least not afraid to get wet. All of us have heard people say "I'm afraid of water." To master fear in early years means much to future achievements. Even the little folk in the baby pool duck each other and get ears full of water and like it—think it great fun.

Mrs. Haganman offered prayer which prefaced the talk on "Money Raising," given by Mrs. C. A. Smith. Drawing the program to a close before the meeting turned into a business period, Mrs. McAneely said prayer taken from the Bulletin sheet.

CO-OPERATION

It seems to me that the present state of the people's mind in this part of the country is such to create alarm and distress. We are slumbering upon a volcano. Let us assume for a moment we are standing upon some high terrace, free from the earth, watching the ever-changing world, while the nations revolve before us. What do we see? We see a world torn by strife, a world gone made in its lust for carnage, a world in the throes of the most tragic panic it has ever known. We see the galley slave, the farmer, lashed to death, pouring his sweat and tears into the black furrow of his plow. The emptiness of age in his face, and upon his back the burden of the world.

Is there any wonder there is such universal discontent and rebellion in a world like this?

When the night is on the deep and the headlights are obscured by darkness and when the storm is in the air, that man who undertakes to steer by looking over the side of the ship, over the bow or over the stern or by looking at the clouds or his own fears, is a fool. There is a silent, needle and in the binnacle which points like the finger of God, telling the mariner which way to steer, and enabling him to outride the storm and reach the harbor in safety, and what the compass is to navigation, that is what co-operation of the farmer is to the danger into which we are running.

One Summer afternoon when it was very hot, a traveler was seen going down a country road. He had not walked far when he saw an old darky in a buggy. When the darky came up to him he asked for a ride to the nearest town. "Boss," said the darky, "I'll be glad to let you ride." They passed through a forest, and every time they came to a tree upon a flower the old darky took his long whip and knocked it off. He did this each time they came to a tree. The traveler did not say anything. Finally they came to a swarm of bees hanging on a limb of a tree. The old darky just looked and drove on. The traveler asked him why he did not knock those bees down, whereupon the old darky replied, "Boss, dem bees is organized."

This can be applied to the farmer. If they are organized the world in general will respect them. Co-operation offers a solution to the farmers' problems. The farmer must co-operate or else he will cease to exist. Large businesses are merging for greater development, laborers, doctors, lawyers and practically all classes. Even are gangsters are organized.

For a nation to prosper, the farmer must prosper. More is this truth of our nation, one whose riches are virtually determined by the agricultural resources.

Let the farmers of today take the California fruit growers as their example or the united tobacco growers of America. The California fruit growers started off very slowly. A reorganization was later needed and today this organization handles from 85 to 90 per cent of the fruit grown there and saves the farmers many dollars.

In the past such organizations as the Alliance, the Grange and the Farm Board were forced to disband, due to lack of unity of co-operation. Today the chamber of commerce, the vocational agriculture teacher and the county agent are seeking to unite the farm forces and aid the farmers, who are feeding marketless products to marketless livestock, while thousands starve for bread in a land of plenty.

Our country seems to be inevitably great, but her future greatness depends upon her farmers with increasing greatness, increasing perils and panics, such as we are experiencing, threatens the future.

American finance is in the midst of a dangerous cycle. Success, prosperity and booms are suddenly halted and we are thrown into dejection.

These panics, this wrecking of homes and the financial world, and shattering years of prosperity offer threat to every American farmer.

To organize, to unite, to co-operate, or disaster is inevitable.

Letters From Our Readers

It seems to me that the present state of the people's mind in this part of the country is such to create alarm and distress. We are slumbering upon a volcano. Let us assume for a moment we are standing upon some high terrace, free from the earth, watching the ever-changing world, while the nations revolve before us. What do we see? We see a world torn by strife, a world gone made in its lust for carnage, a world in the throes of the most tragic panic it has ever known. We see the galley slave, the farmer, lashed to death, pouring his sweat and tears into the black furrow of his plow. The emptiness of age in his face, and upon his back the burden of the world.

Is there any wonder there is such universal discontent and rebellion in a world like this?

When the night is on the deep and the headlights are obscured by darkness and when the storm is in the air, that man who undertakes to steer by looking over the side of the ship, over the bow or over the stern or by looking at the clouds or his own fears, is a fool. There is a silent, needle and in the binnacle which points like the finger of God, telling the mariner which way to steer, and enabling him to outride the storm and reach the harbor in safety, and what the compass is to navigation, that is what co-operation of the farmer is to the danger into which we are running.

One Summer afternoon when it was very hot, a traveler was seen going down a country road. He had not walked far when he saw an old darky in a buggy. When the darky came up to him he asked for a ride to the nearest town. "Boss," said the darky, "I'll be glad to let you ride." They passed through a forest, and every time they came to a tree upon a flower the old darky took his long whip and knocked it off. He did this each time they came to a tree. The traveler did not say anything. Finally they came to a swarm of bees hanging on a limb of a tree. The old darky just looked and drove on. The traveler asked him why he did not knock those bees down, whereupon the old darky replied, "Boss, dem bees is organized."

This can be applied to the farmer. If they are organized the world in general will respect them. Co-operation offers a solution to the farmers' problems. The farmer must co-operate or else he will cease to exist. Large businesses are merging for greater development, laborers, doctors, lawyers and practically all classes. Even are gangsters are organized.

For a nation to prosper, the farmer must prosper. More is this truth of our nation, one whose riches are virtually determined by the agricultural resources.

Let the farmers of today take the California fruit growers as their example or the united tobacco growers of America. The California fruit growers started off very slowly. A reorganization was later needed and today this organization handles from 85 to 90 per cent of the fruit grown there and saves the farmers many dollars.

In the past such organizations as the Alliance, the Grange and the Farm Board were forced to disband, due to lack of unity of co-operation. Today the chamber of commerce, the vocational agriculture teacher and the county agent are seeking to unite the farm forces and aid the farmers, who are feeding marketless products to marketless livestock, while thousands starve for bread in a land of plenty.

Our country seems to be inevitably great, but her future greatness depends upon her farmers with increasing greatness, increasing perils and panics, such as we are experiencing, threatens the future.

New Passenger Plane May Do 250 Miles Hour

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Top speeds of 250 miles an hour for passenger planes were predicted following first tests here of a new creation designed by Ben O. Howard, United Air Lines and famed racing pilot.

The new plane has been under construction here since December at the American Eagle Aircraft factory. The current design provides seating space for four persons including the pilot.

It is powered with a 420 horsepower wasp motor. The builders believe that with attachment of a supercharger, a top speed of 300 miles could be attained. Wings are covered with plywood and the fuselage is covered with metal, plywood and fabric. It has a 31 foot wing span and measures 24 1/2 feet in length.

Howard incorporated many features in the new ship discovered through his experience as a racing pilot.

In 1930 Howard built "Pete," a small white monoplane, which he won honors with at the Cleveland National Air Races that year. The cockpit was so small that he had to remove his shoes to get his feet on the rudder bar. "Pete's" top speed of 170 miles an hour was sufficient to win all of the light powered races and was good enough for a fourth in the Thompson Trophy Event, the American Speed Classic.

Later, he built two other high-speed racing ships, "Ike" and "Mike." Both are low wing monoplanes and have given good account of themselves in various national race meets.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food does not digest properly. It stays in our stomach, and we feel the poison of the decay all over our body. It makes us feel drowsy, groggy and so good for nothing. What makes the food decay in the stomach? When we eat too much, our stomach can't digest it. What is the solution? It is the most vital digestive juice in the body. Unlike other juices it is flowing from our liver into our stomach every day. Our movements get hard and constipated. A lack of our food decays in our stomach. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath, but we don't, and we feel like a whopper, don't use a mouthwash or take a bath. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start our liver into our stomach every day. Our movements get hard and constipated. A lack of our food decays in our stomach. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.
