Ranger High School Holds Opening Exercises

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Having been away for a week on vacation, the first in three years, we have almost lost track of what is going on and why in the Oil Belt. Looking over the exchanges Monday afternoon, just before this was written, we see that Prexy Anderson has started up his "Morning Muse" column. In fact almost all the sports writers have gotten a jump on us and have blossomed forth with their columns. Down at Brownwood, Bruce Francis, who is the sports writer of the Brownwood Bulletin, is apparently on a vacation, too, as he has a pinch hitter writing in his place.

At Breckenridge, Wilson Ritchie, whom we haven't met as yet, is writing sports, as he has been doing for the past few weeks, thereby getting a lot of practice at this kind of thing before we even get started. But we imagine that we can find enough material from day to day to get by on.

Ritchie, incidentally informs his readers that "there will be no 'Big Green Wave' this year playing football at Breckenridge high school. It will be only a ripple. No, not because the boys are so much smaller, but because of the new suits. They are classy looking suits, gray being the main color, with green sleeves and a green stripe on the shoulders and down the side of the pants."

We suppose that the Bulldogs will use their maroon suits, about which we wrote several columns a couple of years ago, because we saw some of the boys out in them a week or so ago.

DEMOCRATES IN MAINE AHEAD; STATE GOES WET

By United Press
PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 11.—Maine Democrats, who tied their campaign to the New Deal, have recaptured the governorship, held their grip on two of the three congressional seats, and have a slight chance of winning a U. S. senatorial seat, nearly complete returns from yesterday's election showed today.

Gov. Louis Brann, apostle of the New Deal, has been re-elected—the first democratic governor in Maine's history to win a second term.

The State also voted to repeal its prohibition amendment by about nine to five.

By United Press
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—Despite dripping skies, citizens of embattled New Orleans turned out in orderly fashion today apparently in record numbers as a climax to five weeks of political war.

From every ward and precinct came reports of rapid voting. No police or militia were allowed around the polls. The election was handled by a board agreed upon by the clashing factions. Its work was final.

RANGER MERCHANTS APPROVE OF FALL STYLE SHOW PLANS

There has been quite a bit of discussion among the merchants and retail dry goods dealers in Ranger the last few days in regard to having a fall style show some time the latter part of this month or probably about the 20th.

In talking with John Hassen this morning in regard to the show Mr. Hassen had the following to say: "I believe we should have a Fall Style Show and that we should get busy and meet and put the show on not later than next week."

Observers said the pilot had been practicing a series of spins and that they believed he thought the plane was out of control when he decided to jump.

They said it appeared that Johnson either was too excited to pull the rip cord or that he was struck by the spinning plane and knocked unconscious.

The plane landed almost level and had remained with the ground and was only slightly damaged.

AMATEUR PILOT KILLED IN FALL FROM A PLANE

By United Press
WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 11.—Herschel Johnson, 30, amateur pilot, was killed today when he jumped from his stunting plane at an altitude of 300 feet and failed to pull the rip cord of his parachute. The plane swooped to the ground and was only slightly damaged.

Observers said the pilot had been practicing a series of spins and that they believed he thought the plane was out of control when he decided to jump.

They said it appeared that Johnson either was too excited to pull the rip cord or that he was struck by the spinning plane and knocked unconscious.

The plane landed almost level and had remained with the ground and was only slightly damaged.

Interest has been manifest by teachers of Eastland, Carbon, Olden and Morton Valley in taking study towards degrees from Dr. D. M. Wiggins, Hardin-Simmons professor, Abilene, who may instruct weekly in Eastland, W. P. Palm, Eastland high school principal, said Tuesday.

Mr. Palm, who is aiding Dr. Wiggins in rounding up those who may take a course, believes that possibility of the instructor making regular trips to Eastland a boon to teachers who may study and make headway for degrees.

Selection of Dr. Wiggins study, which if he comes, will be made by registrants in the course, has not yet been decided, Palm stated today.

Skipper of the ill-fated Morro Castle, Ward liner burned off the New Jersey coast, was Capt. Robert R. Willmott, with a long record of service covering many years with the line.

ENGINEER OF MORRO CASTLE TELLS OF FIRE

By United Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The story of destruction of the Morro Castle was unfolded at an inquiry today with testimony of men driven by smoke and fire from their posts in the liners' engine rooms.

Eben S. Abbott, chief engineer of the ship which was destroyed with loss of at least 137 lives, was the first called today by D. N. Hoover, conducting the inquiry for the commerce department.

The United States attorney's office also took the investigation before a federal grand jury.

A lifeboat put out from the burning ship with only two passengers among the 32 persons aboard, Abbott testified.

BOBBIT ASKS DEMOCRATS IN VOTE ON LIQUOR

By United Press
GALVESTON, Sept. 11.—A demand for submission of prohibition promptly to the voters of Texas was made in the keynote speech of R. L. Bobbitt of Laredo, at the state democratic convention here today.

Bobbitt made the speech as temporary chairman of the convention. "Our party is a liberal party, believing on fundamental principles of local self government and state rights and we are going to stand for those principles," he said.

"The people of Texas are more interested in bread than they are booze. They are more concerned in hogs and hominy than they are in hooch and horseshoeing."

"They are more interested in the wide and just safeguards around the homes and the schools than they are in boxing arenas, pool halls or any scheme of so-called legalized gambling."

"Let us promptly submit the question to the voters and then as honest democrats who believe in the majority rule, abide by the results."

A number of disagreements appeared in prospect.

Tom Love, Dallas dry, was ready to fight submission.

American Tragedy Case Near Trial

The courtroom scene of the real life version of "An American Tragedy" to be enacted at Wilkesbarre, Pa., beginning Monday, Sept. 10, when Robert Edwards, young divinity student, and from 10:15 to 11 o'clock Bible study was held, and from 11:15 to noon Rev. Lovell brought the morning message to the congregation, after which a wash tub offering was made.

Dinner was spread on the ground and was enjoyed by a large group.

At 1:45 songs were sung and at 2:30 Rev. Lovell brought the afternoon services.

At 4 o'clock a large crowd witnessed the baptizing at Cooper's tank.

During the meeting in Ranger there were some 60 conversions, with a large number baptized. Sunday night Rev. Lovell preached the last sermon of the revival.

Floor at Josephs Now Re-Decorated

A decided improvement in the appearance of the Joseph Dry Goods company store has been made with the re-decoration of the floor, which not only adds much to the attractiveness of the store, but adds to the lighting effect so that more light is available for the shoppers and clerks.

The floor has just been re-painted, with orange and gray as the predominant colors. The colors are painted in three-foot squares, with orange squares and gray squares alternating. The effect is quite unique and presents an attractive appearance which is quite noticeable as one enters the store.

60 Registered at Eastland Hi School

Registration at Eastland high school Monday reached a mark of 60, approximately the same as a year for first-day registration, W. P. Palm, principal, stated Tuesday.

Principal Palm voiced the opinion that the figures would be comparable throughout the week by registrants.

Tuesday, when studies began at Eastland high and other schools, confined to assignments given the teachers and other than late stragglers enrolling, bore all the marks of an ordinary school day.

37 MEMBERS OF BAND OUT FOR FIRST PRACTICE SESSION

The Ranger high school band, under the direction of R. L. Maddox, met Monday night at 7:30 at the high school for the first practice session of the year.

There were 37 members present, some of whom were old members and some starting their first year in the senior band, having been in the junior band last year.

Officers were elected for the coming year. Jack Davoport was elected president; John Thomas Scott, vice president; and Ernest Glazner, reporter. Roy Hanson, who has been drum major for the past several years, will not be back this year and Bill Burch was unanimously voted to succeed him.

There will also be a band sweetheart this year. She will be chosen in the near future.

With the number of members present Monday night and others who will start later, this promises to be a good year for the band.

Everyone is cordially invited to visit band practice, which will be held every Monday and Thursday nights.

ATTENDANCE LARGER THAN ON LAST YEAR

Program Is Presented In Auditorium of High School Tuesday Morning.

Every available seat was occupied Tuesday morning when the opening exercises of the Ranger High school and the Ranger Junior College were held in the auditorium of the high school. The program started promptly at 10 o'clock.

R. F. Holloway, superintendent of the high school and president of the junior college, made a short address of welcome to the students of both institutions and the faculty, welcoming both the new and old members of the faculty and the students from Ranger as well as those from out of town.

R. L. Maddox, director of the Ranger High school band then led the assembly in singing "America," accompanied on the piano by Miss Gillian Buchanan.

Rev. H. H. Stephens, pastor of the Central Baptist church was called upon and presented a beautifully worded prayer.

Mr. Holloway presented Dr. H. A. Logsdon as mayor of the city, who spoke briefly on education, stating that when the pilgrims first landed in America they first built churches in which they could worship and then built schools in order that they might educate their children. He pointed out that education was the groundwork on which our lives are built.

L. H. Fewell, president of the school board, was next introduced and he also stressed the advantages of education and of application of the pupils to their quest for knowledge. He asked the question "Why are you here?" and asked each student to keep that question in mind in order that he might have some real purpose in attending school. He stated that the need of any country was leadership and that the requirements for leadership were knowledge and wisdom, knowledge being obtained by learning, wisdom being obtained by experience.

H. S. Von Roeder, principal of the high school and dean of the junior college, presented the members of the faculty as each rose and acknowledged the applause of the students. He also made announcements concerning classes.

Mr. Holloway called attention to the fact that the school were growing in attendance, mentioning that Monday morning there were 20 more students registered in the high school than last year and that the last report he had from the Hodges Oak Park school showed that there were 70 more in that school than on the previous year. He did not have figures on the other grammar schools.

He then introduced Dr. Randolph Clark, mentioning that he was born 90 years ago when Texas was a republic and that he established his first school 61 years ago, which later became Texas Christian University. Dr. Clark, who was seated in the audience, went to the front and made a few brief remarks to the students.

Rev. D. W. Nichol, pastor of the Church of Christ, pronounced the benediction, after which the assembly was dismissed.

Union Leaders of Strike Warn They Seek no Violence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Union leaders warned today that beginning tomorrow they would refuse to accept responsibility for further violence in the textile strike which has brought troops out in five states.

"Violence is worse today than it has been before and it is going to get worse," Chairman Francis J. Gorman said. "If it continues after tonight, that is not our fault. We have made our peace proposal."

The proposal called for closing all mills while President Roosevelt's board mediates the strike.

Appointed County Rural Assistants

Notice of appointment of J. D. Barton of Eastland, former county sheriff, as assistant rural rehabilitation supervisor of Eastland and Stephens counties, has been received at the county general relief office in Eastland, an administrative official stated Tuesday.

Barton will work under W. P. Woods of Breckenridge, head of the program in the two counties, and will have charge of the work in Eastland county.

Unit Instructor of Army Visits Ranger

Capt. J. J. Albright of the United States army was a visitor in Ranger Tuesday, contacting the members of the Oil Belt Reserve Officers association.

Captain Albright is unit instructor for the 35th Infantry and is visiting his territory, which consists of the entire area between Fort Worth and New Mexico. He said while in Ranger that the main object of his visit at this time was to become acquainted with the reserve officers in his territory.

ANOTHER TEXAN GIVEN AN IMPORTANT POST

Another Texan has been given an important post. George C. Hester, state representative from the 83rd district, and head of the department of history and government at the Southwestern university for a number of years, has been called to Washington to serve as a member of the federal power commission. Hester will be located in Chicago until January. Then he will return to Washington where permanent headquarters will be maintained and where the commission will make a study of all the plans and phases of the power industry and the questions of hydro-electric power projects.

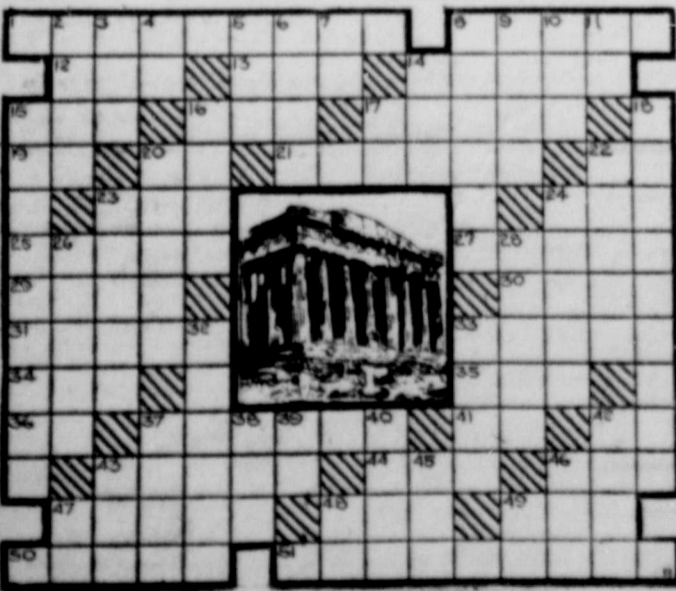

This is certainly a most important assignment. Texas is on the brink of a mighty river power development and control. There is the Buchanan dam project which concerns all the people from the very source of the Colorado river to the lower coastal regions where its waters flow into the Gulf of Mexico. There is the projected Brazos development which will cost millions and which will revolutionize conditions from the sources to the mouth of the river and add to the happiness as well as the protection of a vast army of Texas wealth makers. There are other rivers which in time will be harnessed, their flood waters controlled, for the uses of Texans in days of peril, speaking of droughts and all other elements which bring destruction to the staples that are grown by the tillers of the soil or the wool and the mohair and the meatstuffs produced by all who are engaged in the livestock industry. There is a forward movement calling for development of natural resources as well as the control of the flood waters. When this mighty revolution shall have taken place and the jobs have been completed there will be a new Texas and man here below will have completed the work of building and development and control which Nature passed on to him to finish on the completion of the original job by a superb master hand and invisible creative mind.

Some people seem to agree with a lot of members of the Brain Trust that we will soon be living in an Utopia with little work for everyone, high pay, and plenty of leisure in which to spend it. Some happy dream! I often wonder just how much business or practical experience our Brain Trusters have had, and if they realize that dreams do not always come true.

There is nothing undignified in manual labor, but it would be difficult to convince the rising generation on this point. Most of them have been educated to believe that a clerkship in some store or office is infinitely preferable to any task which entails shedding the coat and earning a living by the sweat of the brow.

Charters Granted In Texas Increase During August

AUSTIN.—New charters granted Texas corporations during August rose sharply from July, both in number and capitalization, but were somewhat below those of August, 1933, according to The University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.
The number of new charters granted during August totaled 119, a rise of 13.4 per cent from July but a decline of 3 per cent from August last year while capitalization of $2,200,000 represented an increase of 10.2 per cent over a month ago, but a drop of 15.6 per cent from last year.
Corporations with capitalization of $5,000 or less, of which there were 56, showed an increase of 40 per cent over July and 2 per cent below last year while the four with capitalization of 100,000 or more was the same number as in July but 20 per cent below August a year ago.
Groups showing an increase in corporation both with July and with August last year were: Oil, real estate-building, and out-of-state permits.

Izaak Walton League Urges Game Shelter

LINCOLN, Neb.—Inclusion of a program to provide wildlife feeding and nesting grounds within the shelter belt project recently approved by President Roosevelt is advocated by the Nebraska Izaak Walton league.
Ever since the president's shelter belt project was announced the Izaak Walton league has been recommending planting of an undergrowth of shrubs, berry-bearing bushes and smaller trees, in order that song and upland game birds and small game might be provided with adequate cover and with attractive nesting and feeding grounds.
The league has been informed that U. S. forest service now is planning to include the planting of shrubbery in the tree belt.

Testimony Shows Plane Co. Offered Official Commission

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Testimony that the Curtiss-Wright Export corporation offered to pay a 5 per cent commission to the comptroller general of Bolivia in 1933 on sales of airplanes to his government was presented today to the senate munitions committee.
Correspondence between company officials referred to the Bolivian official as Lopez.
A letter from Clifford Travis, Curtiss-Wright Bolivian agent, to a vice president Sept. 21, 1922, spoke of the necessity of "playing ball" with Lopez, as he is the deciding factor in all purchases—more so than the president himself.

Moody Argues Cigaret Tax Law

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—Former Gov. Dan Moody today closed a four-hour argument in district court, most of which was an attack on validity of the state cigarette tax statutes.
The former governor appeared as one of the counsel for former Attorney General Claude Pollard, charged with consenting to the use of counterfeit cigarette tax stamps. Moody's effort was to quash the indictment. He urged Judge W. F. Robertson to declare the indictment insufficient and also to hold the law invalid at once so it may be corrected at the present session of the legislature.

Governors Called Out the Guards In Many States

State governors, exercising their power over the National Guard units of their states that president does over the federal forces, have "called out the guard" in various states with- out last year.

The governor's power over the National Guard can become a virtual military dictator, according to Henry E. C. in an article in the current issue of the magazine, "Today."

The article said that the call of the guardsmen most frequently has been to intervene in strikes, as recently the case in California, Oregon, Minnesota, Alabama, Ohio, and Wisconsin. But they have been summoned for a variety of other tasks: to protect the families, to hunt escaped prisoners, to patrol summer camps for wealthy children, to protect public property, to enforce laws, to seize voting lists (Louisiana), to enforce the authority of a governor whose right of office is questioned (North Dakota).

Through the federal government furnishes $35,000,000 a year to provide equipment, rent, pay, for payrolls and summer expenses, the War Department has almost no power over the units. Thus, when objection is made to the use of the National Guard to seize voting lists in Louisiana was beyond its power, the War Department did not have acted even had it had to, the article said.

The National Guard in Louisiana often has resulted in bloodshed. An exception was at Kohler model industrial community where strikers welcomed the guardsmen after two of their number had been killed. The guardsmen dismantled machine gun units at Kohler plant.

Elsewhere—in San Francisco,neapolis, Toledo and Portland the presence of guardsmen against strikers and led to violence, use of firearms and bayonets and tear and nauseating gas.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOOTS HARKENS, 28, married RUSS LUND, handsome swimming instructor, because she doesn't want to see her parents' disappointment on learning she has been snatched by the younger set of Larchneek fashionable New York suburb.

Russ goes to Miami, promising to send her Boots later, she gets a job in a big department store and takes a tiny room in Greenwich Village. She becomes ill with influenza and is betrayed by DENNIS, 22, a young author. Fenway sees that Boots has a doctor and nurse and begs her not to worry about expense. After she recovers he invites her to tea at his apartment. There she meets beautiful KAY CHILLINGFORD who has a possessive manner toward Dennis.

Just before her illness Boots received a telegram telling her Russ had been killed in a motorboat accident.

she had known love and heartbreak and her whole life had been changed. She had not known what work was, nor how one struggled for the mere essentials of living. Now she knew. Perhaps that was why mention of Sylvia Rivers who had had so much to do, really with her breaking away from the narrowness and safety of home woke her responses only vaguely.

No, it was another girl dark haired, suave, silk-skirted, who figured in Boots' life this spring. Kay Chillingford. She did not speak of her to Isabel. Isabel would not understand Kay who had everything was everything sweet and clever and desirable, occasion ally reminded Boots of the heritage she had lost. It was not that she saw Kay very often; she did not. But whenever Edward Van Sciver took Boots to tea or to the theater Kay's name peppered his conversation.

"I think you're in love with her," Boots had said to Edward with a slow smile one evening as they dawdled over tall drinks in a corner of a big hotel lounge. "I'm in a state of chromium braced against seats upholstered in devalued leather." Edward grinned. "Me? With Kay? You're crazy, girl. Kay's not my type."

Boots considered this, her eyes drifting over the well-dressed crowd thronging the narrow corridor. She was wearing a new frock tonight—her new workaday frock of black crepe with a frill of sheerest organdie. Her skin had a positive transparency about it and her pale-gold hair, brushed into a shining cap feathered about the small black hat she wore.

"She's—she's extraordinary," she admitted aloud. "She's got everything..."

"Hasn't she, though?" agreed Edward with enthusiasm. "Smart and beautiful and all that rot. Did you know she speaks five languages?"

"She would," Boots muttered under her breath.

"What did you say?" Edward was nodding to a group of rather noisy young people milling about the next table.

"Nothing," Boots, glancing at her reflection in the mirror opposite, felt suddenly dull and uninteresting.

"You're cute, do you know it?" Edward told her contentedly as he matched her smaller steps to his great ones.

Boots reflected that she liked Edward a lot. He was pleasant to be with. He made you forget your troubles. His conversation was the light talk of the day. He knew all the newest restaurants, the latest catchwords. Door men and waiter starters, the waiters in the big restaurants all had an expansive air and a wide smile for the rich young man.

The big motion picture theater was crowded. A tall cadet in a braided and buttoned uniform led them across the chaste but sumptuous foyer. There were modern pieces of sculpture, angled, creamy white, all about. There were deep piled eastern rugs on the marble floor. Somewhere a great organ boomed and trilled and thundered.

"In the back. We like to sit in the back," Edward said firmly. And presently they were seated side by side in deep upholstered chairs, the screen a bluish square of light half a city block away.

"Nice!" Edward's big hand found her small hand, gave it a friendly pressure, released it.

Boots settled back, sighing with exquisite relief. The big, cool, vaulted place with its dimmed lights, its hushed and waiting throngs, suited her mood exactly. Presently the film began to wheel past. A story of love, poignantly simple, devastating. The girl found her eyes wet with unwilling tears. Why, this was what she didn't want to be reminded of—how overwhelming a force love could be. Only it wasn't Russ the picture reminded her of. The tall, disdainful young man in the husky uniform, keeping his cool, aloof profile turned toward the watching thousands, was ever so little like Dennis.

"I must be mad," she told herself angrily, with a little shrug of disgust. "Dennis is certainly nothing to me. He was merely kind. I—I didn't even like him at first. Besides he belongs to Kay."

The picture had played an odd trick upon her. She could not shake Dennis' image from her mind. And beside her Edward Van Sciver, big and brown and wholesome and rich, squared about in his seat to watch her. Edward too, was thinking new thoughts. The girl who had been just a delightful playmate for odd hours now presented herself to him in a new light. How lovely she was in this half light with that mysterious, glowing little smile playing about her mouth! Edward touched her warm hand again and it remained in his own as simply, as confidently as a child's might.

"She's darn sweet," Edward told himself again. But the words had a new meaning now. He felt an urge to protect, to guard her from the world. "Poor kid, she was having a hard time of it, wasn't she? And, not complaining, either."

The web of fate was tightening around them both. Boots, brooding over the memory of a dark, painful face, Edward in whose mind a slow dream was taking shape at last. A dream of a little stone house in the country some place and dogs and horses, roses tumbling over stone walls, and in the background a slim, graceful figure crowned by golden hair...

CHAPTER XXIX

THE long, cold, dreary winter dragged on. And presently there dawned a day when the light was golden instead of gray, and white clouds scudded across the surface of a sky of heaven's own blue. And there was the feeling of spring in the air.

Boots had seen Isabel twice, during the winter. She was started for news of her own people. When Isabel had greeted her, enthusiastically, one day across the counter. Boots had been quite simply glad to see her. She had made no pretenses, offered no explanations, for as being in Lacey's, Isabel had said something haltingly about being "terribly sorry" to hear about Russ's death. Boots had thanked her simply. Even now, when she heard his name and people spoke of his going, it didn't seem quite real. It was all part of an old dream.

Isabel had brought her news of the younger set in Larchneek. Sylvia, Isabel contributed, had been home for Christmas vacation, "looking stunning" in a mink coat. ("But imagine," Isabel had interpolated, "imagine mink on a girl her age!") And somehow this particular comment had made the old days seem very far away, the old struggles and heartaches unreal. Boots felt she had grown up. She was living a real life now. The big question of whether to spend 20 cents or a quarter for lunch, the saving for a new pair of shoes, the efforts to send one's sales totals up so that the end of the week brought approbation, or better still, a raise in one's pay envelope—all these were real. The other matters, parties at the Ritz, diamond wrist watches, silver fox scarves and tap dancing lessons, were so much unimportant.

Isabel herself, though sweet and friendly and confiding as ever, seemed very young, very frivolous to Boots now. But she brought news of her mother, and that was important. Mrs. Raeburn, Isabel reported, was well. "She misses you dreadfully still. Why don't you go up and see her?"

Boots shook her head, considering. No, she would not go until they sent for her. It was not stubbornness that held her back but pride. Her mother was well—was going about. She must be happy. It was enough to know that. Later, much later—she would see her...

WHAT'S DENIS DOING WITH HIMSELF THESE DAYS?

Edward wanted to know, signaling for his check. "If we want to see that Garbo picture we'd better be hurrying along," he added briskly. Edward was a restless soul. He had to be going places, doing things all the time. He liked the little fair haired girl at his side. She was sweet, he told himself. There was something darn sweet about her.

"I haven't seen him for ages," Boots made it sound very gay, very casual. Dennis had, in effect, "practically dropped" her, she told herself. Never mind, one of these days she would be a big buyer for a smart shop. She would go abroad... she would learn how to order head waiters about... Even Kay with her cool arrogance, should not daunt her then...

Edward tucked her hand in the crook of his arm. "How's for walking across town? It's at Fifth Street."

"Oh I'd love that!"

Edward told the doorman he would pick his car up later. Very good, Mr. Fox driver, yes, the big size one. I know it; sure I do.

Stanford Has Bright Outlook For Grid Season

PALO ALTO, Calif.—A backfield that sparked it to a three-way tie for the 1933 Coast conference; a line that boasts four regulars of a year ago; and a coach starting his second season after turning out a team that played in the Rose Bowl in his first attempt.

That's the picture as Claude F. "Tiny" Thornhill begins grooming his Stanford football squad for the 1934 season.

All Thornhill needs to do is weed out a pair of guards to replace the All-American field goal kicker, Bill Corbus, and his co-worker, Bob O'Connor, develop an end to play the opposite side of the line from

Take a Good Look at a HUMBLE STATION

ALL service stations are not alike. Humble Stations, for example, have been expertly designed to offer you complete and efficient service. They are kept clean and neat as a new pin; they are regularly inspected with the thoroughgoing methods of a good housekeeper. Still, we want to know what you—the practical buyer—think. So we extend this open invitation: stop and inspect a Humble Station. Then send us your opinion. It is our desire to please you, and to please you we must know what you want. We invite criticism, we invite suggestion; the door is open to both.

Gus L. Coleman Married to Mrs. Jones Johns in Cowboy Regalia on Horseback in Henderson Arena.

Gus L. Coleman, who for a number of years made Ranger his home and who for a time was employed with the Times Publishing company, was married last night at Henderson, Texas, to Mrs. Jones Johns, in full cowboy regalia on horseback at the Henderson arena, where a rodeo was the feature attraction in that city yesterday.

It all started as a joke a few days ago when plans for the rodeo were discussed with "Uncle Gus," a name which he has acquired since living at Henderson, and who serves as city editor of the Henderson Daily News. The idea of a rodeo novelty of having a local couple married on "horseback" never dreamed of, that the stated "Uncle Gus" had even contemplated marriage. However, the "Uncle Gus" had purchased marriage license in the office of the county clerk a number of hours before.

The wedding ceremony was performed last night with the Hon. R. T. Brown, district judge, officiating. Young Horace Wayne Johns, seven-year-old son of the bride, acted as ringbearer, while among the list of bridesmaids and attendants were a group of friends, well known persons throughout that section of the country coming from Amarillo, Overton, Tyler, Longview, Gladewater. Included among wedding party members was Mr. and Mrs. George Manning of Overton, formerly of Ranger.

The bride and groom entered the arena on horseback, the pick of the stock company, in their disposal. Likewise the Hon. Judge R. T. Brown, who read the ceremony and tied the knot to the tune of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by the cowboy band, also was mounted.

The bridesmaids, the best man and the ringbearer, were riding handsome horses. The ringbearer, however, created special attention mounted on a tiny Shetland pony. A real wedding supper was served in the cook tent of the stock company, composed of a Wild West menu. The groom, a popular fellow in Henderson, is a native of McAlester, Okla., while the bride hails from the Lone Star state, and has a host of friends in Henderson and vicinity.

Wednesday Afternoon Program

The home of Mrs. J. S. Reynolds will be open to members of Child Study Club No. 2, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Joe Thompson will preside, and Mrs. John Hassen will give the lesson subject, "Is Your Child Ready for School?"

Members are asked to arrange to be present for this lesson since plans of importance are to be opened for discussion.

To Attend U. of Arkansas

Morris Dudley, who for the past four months has been employed by the Sinclair Prairie Oil company, left today for Fort Worth for a visit with his sister, Miss Irene Dudley. Following Mr. Dudley's visit there he will leave for Fayetteville, Ark., where he is to attend the University of Arkansas.

J. T. Hughes Business Visitor Here Monday

J. T. Hughes of Breckenridge, manager of Breckenridge theatres, and former manager of the Arcadia theatre, was a business visitor in Ranger Monday afternoon.

Improved

The last three days has brought an improvement in condition to Mrs. Christine Ware, who is ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. Alice Davenport, 414 North Austin street. Mrs. Ware is endeavoring to recover from two major operations performed during the year of 1933 at the Methodist hospital at Los Angeles, for ulcerated stomach.

Mrs. J. H. Munn Leads Missionary Program

Mrs. J. H. Munn acted as leader of the Olden Baptist Women's Missionary society program rendered at the church Monday afternoon, which proved very interesting and inspiring to those present which numbered 11, including Mrs. K. C. Edmonds of Ranger. After adjournment of the session, the group of women visited the county farm, located between Carbon and Eastland, presenting those who are there at present with fruit, cake and magazines. The afternoon hour as a whole was a well worth while one and splendid work is being carried on by the society.

To Dallas

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McGee leave tomorrow for a trip to Dallas where they will take their young daughter, Gloria, to the Scottish Rite hospital for a thorough examination. They are expected to return home in a day or two.

District Zone Meeting Open to All Interested

The north zone of the Cisco District of Women's Missionary societies, which convenes here at the Methodist church Wednesday, Sept. 12, has been announced as an open meeting for all ladies of Ranger who are interested and who would like to attend.

Mrs. Phillip Shaw of Breckenridge as zone leader and Mrs. W. E. Barron, district secretary, of same, who arranged the program as presiding chairman, will be principal program representatives.

The program will open at 10 o'clock and a covered dish luncheon will be served at noon. Mrs. Mills Davenport, president of the W. M. S., together with a group of members of the organization, will extend a warm welcome to all visitors who are expected from all over the district.

District Manager Pays Visit To Montgomery Ward Store

W. A. Eaton, district supervisor for Montgomery Ward & Co., out of Fort Worth, paid a visit to the local store today, guest of Ray Fesmire, manager.

President Presides at W. M. U.

The Women's Missionary society of Central Baptist church met in a devotional and business session at the church Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. E. Ogg, president, presiding.

Mrs. E. S. Brink brought the devotional found in Psalm: The year's circle was outlined and the two circles were re-organized with names to be selected at a later date.

Mrs. E. S. Brink and Mrs. T. J. Anderson were elected circle leaders. Mrs. Frank Hicklin and Mrs. F. D. Hicks were appointed teachers for the circles.

Mrs. Brink appointed the chairman for her circle as follows: Mrs. S. C. Mahoney, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. W. O. Walker, personal service; Mrs. Noel Bell, stewardship; Mrs. C. C. Cash, as co-chairman.

The ladies are looking forward to a great year's work and study, and invite all the ladies of the church to be present for each meeting. The next meeting will be with Mrs. H. H. Stephens, Pine street.

All-Wrestling Card At Elks Arena Was Enjoyed By The Fans

The all-wrestling card at the Elks arena last night was attended by fans from over the Oil Belt and quite a bit of protest was registered from most of them during the match between Kid Lewis and Paul Murdoch, in which Lewis refused to wrestle and spent the entire time in running between the ropes and stalling. It was so rotten that Commissioner Murphy was compelled to disqualify Lewis in the first match because of unnecessary roughness and give the match to Murdoch.

The other two cards were appreciated. Red Rodgers lost to Blaylock in a 30-minute match. Curley Stringer beat Doc Pool in the final match.

If they could inject a little more sex appeal in this Gran Chaco war, some smart movie mogul might be able to find a spot for it.

Ranger Merchants

Ward was very optimistic over the new class of merchandise Ranger firms carry.

Ray Fesmire of Montgomery plans to have a real style cooperative style show and not one put on by two or three. Mr. Fesmire said you can quote me on the following: "Montgomery Ward wants to cooperate with all interests to keep the town up and on its toes we believe the people will be appreciative of this effort. We have lots of new merchandise, just received and we feel that the merchants should have a meeting immediately and going to this style show proposition from every angle." We also think all the merchants should attend this meeting and take a part in the discussion and all agree on certain, definite plans and then see that they are carried out."

Mr. Joseph in discussing the style show said it was a splendid thing for the business men of any city to get together and work out plans for a community affair such as a style show can be arranged. Mr. Joseph said he was in on anything that would promote a better understanding between the merchant and his customer and between the merchants themselves. One thing I do know said Mr. Joseph "we have all got to pull together, stay together and work together if we build Ranger and make it the sort of town that we all shall appreciate. Count on Joseph Dry Goods company to cooperate with all in any way that will be for the best of everybody and everything."

Mrs. Cohn of the Cohn Shop said she was in favor of anything that the merchants thought would be of benefit to the merchants and also that was cooperative and planned for the people. Mrs. Cohn said business was better than last year and she felt the style show would create a bit of interest and ease of people to come to Ranger see it.

It has been suggested that merchants get together tonight or soon thereafter to discuss the matter. It has been pointed out that the time before cold weather comes will take some planning and work to put over a style show that the merchants are planning. The merchants have not when they will meet to discuss this matter because there are some others that they want to interview. But in all probability a meeting will be some of this week for the purpose of discussing the fall style show.

Monthly Pains Relieved

Women who take CARDUI have found that severe monthly pains have been relieved and that by continued use of it for a reasonable length of time their strength has been renewed and their general health improved.

"I am glad to speak a few words for Cardui, the medicine I have taken for a week, run-down condition, for had pains in my side and back and for irregular periods," writes Mrs. Roy Chandler, of Casata, Ala. "Cardui straightened me out and I feel like per cent better. It certainly helped me."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

WHEN YOU'RE HEALTHY YOU'RE HAPPY!

The blame for "blow" days can be laid often to common constipation. It may bring loss of appetite and energy, sallow and pimply skin, even serious illness. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Research shows Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls of All-Bran daily, relieve most types of constipation. With each meal, in chronic cases.

If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Get the red and green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
