ENGLISH FLIERS LAND SAFELY IN HONOLULU

GOVERNMENT RESTS IN THE INSULL CASE

By United Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—The government unexpectedly rested its case against Samuel Insull and others today.
Insull, one-time ruler of a $20,000,000 utility empire, and associates, are on trial on charges of engineering a $143,000,000 mail fraud.
It had been expected the government would require another week, its fifth, to give to the jury evidence that Insull defrauded thousands of investors through the operation of the Corporation Securities Company.
The defense of the 74-year-old Insull is expected to take longer than the government case. The closing of the prosecution is designed as a move to leave the jurors' minds the picture of Insull that prevailed in the last week's meeting April 16, 1932.

He said he and his father quarreled at the old man's home. The subject of the dispute was about $5,000 worth of property left by Howell Davis after her death in February.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

The Ranger Bulldogs, after their impressive victory over the Abilene Eagles, are now rated much higher in the eyes of the sports writers of the state and are considered much more of a threat than earlier in the season. The Eagles, likewise, who were proclaimed as contenders for the state championship, took a decided slump on the contender market, which reminds us of the stock market crash of 1929.
And, while winning, several of the Bulldogs apparently made a Roman holiday out of it, whatever that means.
Particularly Mellinger Jacoby. He was in the hair of the big Schupback, 225-pound tackle, who was rated as a whiz until he met the Bulldogs. Jacoby made Schupback and E. Jones, the left end for the Eagles, look particularly sick. He kept them guessing until they looked pitiful, and made them look even sicker.
When he would get into the line of scrimmage, with Ranger carrying the ball, he would ram Schupback, "Look out, Grandpa; this one is a stinger." He would then throw a shoulder into the gigantic tackle and take him completely out of the play with the greatest of ease. Or, he would point out where the play was going, then feint off to the right and motion for Jones to follow. And the Eagle end did not know whether to follow him and be lured completely out of the play or to stay put and let Jacoby get into the open for a pass. He would also tease the defensive half out of position, then dart back into the play after telling him to "Stay right there; I'll be back and get you in a minute."
The whole line kept Schupback so harassed that he did not know what it was all about and he was seldom, if ever, in a play at the end, but was stretched out harmlessly somewhere else, usually with another of his linemen smothered out of the play under his huge frame.
The passers for the Eagles had the same trouble. Rankin Britt, Jacoby and Payton swarmed over them until they were glad to get rid of the ball, just as Britt, playing his first year in 1932, made Glenn Wyatt look sick as a tripe-throat man when the Bulldogs conquered the Eagles 20 to 0.
We really felt sorry for those little Abilene backs after the game got under way well, but they brought it upon themselves. After they put over their lone touchdown to take the lead they began razzing the Bulldogs. Their tune soon changed, however. Whenever they found an opening in the line they found Aaron Anderson or Stumpy Warden charging in from the other side just as fast, or faster, and when they collided the Eagles

Lift McAdoo Romance Race Ban

Racial barriers that threatened the romance of Ellen Wilson McAdoo, right, daughter of U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo of California and granddaughter of Woodrow Wilson, and Rafael Lopez de Onate, above, have been razed, with submission of proof by the film actor known as Ralph Novarro, that he is of Spanish blood and a U. S. citizen. The Onate practiced geography showing that he was an Filipino, after the county clerk in Riverside, Calif., had raised the question of nationality.
Near hysterics during the closing argument of her trial on charges of complicity in the murder of a New York policeman, Marquita Lopez, former night club hostess, wept copiously as she awaited the jury's decision as to her guilt. The defense pictured her as a "love slave" who was present at the fatal shooting against her will.

LABOR BOARD MOVES TO STOP LABOR DISPUTE

By United Press
CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 29.—The regional labor board stepped into the controversy between the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and organized labor today in an effort to prevent removal of the chain's 500 stores from Cleveland.
Workmen were stripping the company's two big warehouses of food and fixtures when Ralph Lind, chairman of the regional labor board, evolved a six-point compromise peace plan.
He submitted the proposal to the national labor relations board in Washington received approval to submit it to company officials and union leaders for acceptance.
The A. & P. company, meanwhile, went about the task of moving out of the city, declaring it would rather quit business here than to submit to demands for a closed shop. The decision, officials said, was final.
Every store of the company here was closed. More than 2,000 employees, few of them affiliated with the union whose demands brought about the controversy, had lost their jobs.

IN SHADOW OF CHAIR

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Oct. 29.—Sir Charles Kingsford Smith and Captain P. G. Taylor landed their "Lady Southern Cross" at Wheeler Field here today to complete the second phase of their trans-ocean flight from Australia.
When they landed here the two fliers had negotiated safely a 3,100-mile jump from the Fiji Islands, started at 10:10 a. m. Sunday (PST).
The Lady Southern Cross landed at 10:55 a. m. PST. (2:55 EST).
HONOLULU, Oct. 29.—It was estimated today on the basis of radio messages from Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith that the Lady Southern Cross would land here early this afternoon.
After pulling the airplane out of a dangerous spin, Sir Charles found a new worry—a gasoline shortage—as the plane neared the end of a 3,100-mile flight from the Fiji Islands to Honolulu, enroute to San Francisco.
"Gas running a bit low, but I think it will be O. K.," Sir Charles radioed at 3:15 a. m. Honolulu time (5:45 a. m. PST).
Sir Charles saved the ship from disaster earlier when it stalled and went into a spin during a heavy rainstorm.
A dramatic story of the battle against a forced landing on the waters of the Pacific came in radio messages from the plane.
Well passed the half way mark, the ship poked her nose into a rainstorm. Sir Charles tried to rise above the storm but couldn't clear it at an altitude of 1,500 feet.
While the storm rocked and tossed the sturdy monoplane, an airspeed indicator failed. The pilot reached down into the cockpit to fix it and at that moment the plane shot into a spin.
Not until after he had arrested the spin, after losing considerable altitude, did he learn the cause of that sudden drop toward the black waters of the ocean. He found that in fumbling around the cockpit he had thrown the switch to the wing flaps.

Grand Master to Visit Hannibal Masonic Lodge

Announcement was made Sunday that Grand Master W. S. Cooke of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Texas, was to meet with the Hannibal lodge next Thursday night, Nov. 1, and that probably other grand lodge officials would also accompany the grand master. The meeting is sponsored by the Hannibal lodge, which is located about 10 miles south of Thurber on the Stephenville highway. This is the second time in the history of the Hannibal lodge that the grand master has paid this lodge a visit. Several years ago Grand Master Hiram Lively of Dallas made a special trip to the lodge.
The meeting is for all Master Masons in this part of the state and it is expected that a large number will attend to hear the grand master, who we understand, is bringing a special message to subordinate lodges and their membership. District Deputy Grand Master C. E. May and a number of Ranger and Eastland Masons are planning on making the trip.
George Stewart, well known over the Ranger-Eastland territory and the entire Oil Belt, in sending out the message stated that the lodge was planning to entertain the group in true Hannibal fashion and that a banquet would be served at the close of the meeting.
The meeting is to open promptly at 8 o'clock. Cars leaving for the meeting from Ranger will assemble at Langston's barber shop and those going from Eastland will meet at the Masonic temple and all go in a body. The cars will leave the pavement at the foot of Thurber mountain and travel highway No. 89 on to Thurber, where they will turn due south and travel on the Stephenville highway to Hannibal.

A good card has been worked up and the fans will be able to see some of the best available wrestlers in action.

NEW DEAL FACES TEST IN ELECTIONS ON NOVEMBER 6

By EDWARD W. LEWIS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Voters in 47 states will join Nov. 6 in the first referendum on New Deal policies since Franklin D. Roosevelt's smashing victory in 1932.
The nation-wide poll is to elect 432 members of the house of representatives. Maine's regular jump-the-gun election last September sent two democrats and one republican to the house, a numerical alignment identical with that chosen by Maine voters two years ago.
Democratic congressional leaders are fighting to protect their vital two-thirds majority which enabled them to beat down almost all rebellion in the 73rd congress. If the democrats retain a bare two-thirds majority of 290 seats the administration may mount it an unqualified triumph.
The average minority gain in off-year elections is 70 seats. Republicans are predicting an increase of from 50 to 85. Their gains probably will be much less than 50. Democrats insist that they will be as strong in the next house as they were in the last.
The 73rd house was composed of 311 democrats, 114 republicans, five farmer-laborites. There are five vacancies.
In California the gubernatorial candidacy of one-time socialist Upton Sinclair may effect the luck of the democratic congressional ticket. Likewise in Nebraska, due to a bitter democratic senatorial fight involving the Gov. Bryan wing, republicans may gain seats. A split in Michigan's democracy also suggests republican gains.
The farmer-labor third party situation in Minnesota and the La Follette progressive party campaign in Wisconsin are disturbing factors in congressional races in those states. The Guffey-Road-Pinchot argument in the Pennsylvania senatorial fight may have repercussions in congressional districts.
Minnesota, Kentucky and Missouri elected their congressmen at large in 1932, and republicans are expected to pick up a few seats in those states now that redistricting is completed.
In Rhode Island, textile strike violence rebounded into politics. Massachusetts was scorched by a democratic senatorial primary fight which may affect a re-election chances of democrats.
Republicans to make substantial gains are more likely to cut into democratic ranks in those states which are usually republican, but which climbed on the Roosevelt bandwagon in 1932. These include Illinois, Indiana, California, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia and New York.
House majority leader Joseph W. Tyner, chairman of the congressional democratic campaign committee, refuses to concede that the republicans will gain any seats, despite the fact that the off-

Batch of Projects Sent to Austin

The largest number of work projects ever sent to Austin for approval in one week were forwarded last week to relief headquarters by the county office.
H. E. Driscoll, county administrator, enumerated the projects sent to Austin as follows:
Hatchery projects at Cisco, 42 men; lateral road project from Sranton to Dothan, 15 men; clearing lake Cisco, 62 men; concrete bridge at Rising Star, nine men; straightening, widening and cleaning ditches to Lake Hagaman at Ranger, 200 men; graveling and other work on Ammerman street in Eastland where paved road leaves off to Lake Eastland, 81 men; sinking a water line on a 790 foot stretch is included in the project.
Forty-two applications in the rural rehabilitation program which were at one time sent to Austin and then sent back for revisions have been forwarded to Austin. Time for the rural projects were for one year and not as three, which by recent law is the time.
Other projects enumerated by Driscoll, which have as yet not been sent in, but will be are as follows: lateral road project from Lone Cedar road to Bankhead highway, east of Olden, 53 men; lateral road at Breckenridge-Ranger highway intersection, 53 men; levelling and shaping of football field at Rising Star, 10 men. Two other projects for Rising Star on two bus routes east and west of the city. Thirteen men will be employed after the project is sent to Austin, following changes in the project at the county office.
Driscoll Monday stated that estimates for relief requirements for the month of November were sent to Austin Oct. 25.

Thieves Visit At Three Residences

Thefts at three residences in Eastland apparently committed Sunday night or Monday morning have been reported.

T. L. Cooper, county tax collector, 613 S. Mulberry, when coming to his garage Monday morning, found a tire, wheel and radiator cap missing from his automobile. Motley Trial Jury Selection Begins Jurors were being selected today in the case of State of Texas vs. Glenn Motley, charged with murder in connection with the death of Clarence D. Herring, youth allegedly stabbed while attending a dance in Eastland this year. The case is in the 88th district court.

Juror selection, it is expected, will be concluded today, with possibly beginning of testimony.
J. Frank Sparks of Eastland is representing the defendant with District Attorney Grady Owen prosecuting.

Thieves Visit At Three Residences

Thefts at three residences in Eastland apparently committed Sunday night or Monday morning have been reported.
P. L. Crowsley, district clerk, 1401 S. Mulberry, says thieves jacked up his car, taking a tire, wheel, gasoline and a hub cap. H. M. Hart, 1403 S. Seaman, reports a tire, wheel was taken from his car. Clothing in the house was also stolen.
T. L. Cooper, county tax collector, 613 S. Mulberry, when coming to his garage Monday morning, found a tire, wheel and radiator cap missing from his automobile. He states the gasoline tank cap was on the floor, possibly indicating that thieves were frightened and did not go through with theft of gasoline as none was missing.

This Bureaucracy Is One Worth While

This word "bureaucracy" is a very horrid word, indeed, and we do well to fear it. But the particular bureaucracy represented by the Tennessee Valley Authority seems to be an outfit that moves fast and keeps its eyes on the ball every minute.

Within recent weeks there was completed a deal by which the city of Knoxville, Tenn., with its environs, receives electric current from the TVA. Terms of this deal are well worth examining.

Knoxville originally planned to build its own distribution system to handle the current, and a PWA loan was lined up for the purpose. Had this been done, the Tennessee Public Service Company, which was supplying Knoxville with electric power would have faced ruin.

So it was arranged that Knoxville should buy out this company's distribution system, instead.

Knoxville, of course, had to go into debt to make this purchase, and a 10 per cent surcharge had to be placed on the new electricity rates to retire the debt. Even including that surcharge, however, Knoxville consumers will now get their current at rate reductions which—in the case of people who use as much as 240 kilowatt hours a month—will run as high as 34 per cent.

In ten years the citizens of Knoxville will own the distribution system, lock, stock, and barrel, free of debt; meanwhile, they will have been paying less for their electricity than the cheapest rates privately owned utilities ever offered.

It has been clear gain, obviously, for the people of Knoxville. How about the people who held securities in the Tennessee Public Service Company?

The bond-holders get back the price at which the bonds were issued, 96 1/2%. Preferred stockholders retain $3,300,000 in cash and liquid assets; furthermore, the company still owns the Knoxville street railway, which is carried on the books at a value of slightly more than $4,000,000.

Four years ago the company issued common stock on a "write-up" of $4,500,000. This stock represented no investment—although dividends of $846,000 were paid on it during the depression—and so it did not share in the pay-off.

This TVA bureaucracy, then, seems to have shaken something very much like a Christmas tree for the people of Knoxville—while, at the same time, doing full justice to the utility security-holders.

Bureaucracy is a horrid word. But it depends on which bureaucracy you mean.

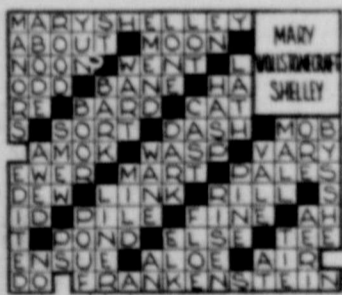

Newspaper advertising is helpful to both buyer and seller.

A community divided against itself cannot get anywhere.

Forces Marshalled Against One of the State Amendments

AUSTIN.—Seeing in the so-called tax-limiting constitutional amendment a grave menace to public education, to the highway program, to poor relief and to the small taxpayer, one of the most imposing arrays of opposition ever assembled in Texas against an amendment is marshalling forces in every corner of the state.

The amendment, one of those to be voted upon Nov. 6, proposes to restrict state (not including local) collections and expenditures from taxes, licenses, permits and fees to a total of $22.50 per inhabitant per biennium.

School teachers, women's clubs, parents, motorists, business and civic leaders interested in highway development, county and school officials, relief workers and small home-owners are campaigning to impress upon the electorate what the amendment really means.

The Democratic party of Texas, at its Galveston convention, Sept. 11, furnished the spearhead of the attack by recommending to the voters "that this amendment be defeated" because it is undemocratic, would shift tax burdens to small taxpayers, would menace poor relief and federal highway aid, and "threatens the continuation on existing bases of state aid to local units for schools and roads."

Texas schoolteachers, through their state president, J. C. Loftin have said: "Inevitably, the state would reduce its aid to counties and local districts for building highways and maintaining schools and roads. The scholastic apportionment and rural aid funds for schools are especially endangered. The local tax-burden of the average taxpayer would be increased.

"The joker in the proposal," added Dr. L. H. Hubbard, president of C. I. A., "is that it does not seek also to limit county, city and school district taxes, which are the taxes the average person in Texas finds it difficult to pay. This is not a tax-limiting, but a tax-shifting proposal." Adds Eula Lee Carter, president of the honor society for women teachers, Delta Kappa Gamma: "This amendment would not apply on local taxation, but it would tend greatly to increase local taxes."

The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs entered the fight with this salvo from its president, Mrs. Volney Taylor: "The limitation of general taxes on the basis of population is unprecedented in the United States." And Gladys E. Morgan, state president of the American Association of University Women, put her forces into the drive with, "Certainly in regard to this amendment, the slogan of friends of education should be, 'It shall not pass'."

Declared the Texas Good Roads Association through its president, W. O. Huggins: "The net result of this amendment would be a crippled school system and a crippled highway program, or else a heavier total tax burden upon the average man and the average community."

The goats must be killed, skinned and the hide salted and returned to the administrator's office to prove that the animal has been used for food purposes.

Date for the opening of the cannery has not been set.

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop)

The Claw of the Forgotten Murder

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, is found dead by DAVID BLAKE, publisher, employs SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder. Morden had been investigating the affairs of FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, following the arrest of an impostor claiming to be Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY BRIGGS.

The day following Morden's death Cathay dies of poisoning. Griff learns that Morden had visited the apartment of ALICE GRIFF, who has information as to the disappearance of her roommate, ESTHER OGDWAY.

Griff goes to see Alice and accuses her of being "Esther Ogdway." She declares this her chance, her former story. When Griff leaves he instructs detectives to shadow the girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII

SIDNEY GRIFF returned to his own car and drove at once to the Hillcrest hotel. He got in touch with the bell captain on the night shift and gave him a $5 bill by way of introduction.

"I want to find out," he said, "about a man by the name of Cathay who was registered here on Monday night in Room 364."

"There's been two or three people asking about him," the bell boy said.

"Showed you photographs?"

"Yes."

"The photographs they showed you weren't the photographs of the man who was here?"

"No."

"Can you remember what he looked like?"

"He was rather a big fellow and I think he had blue eyes. I can't remember enough about him to describe him, but I could tell him if I saw him again."

"He was paged several times during the evening?"

"Yes."

"Can you tell me about the calls he received? You paged him during the evening here in the lobby?"

"It must have been 15 or 20 times."

"Were the calls telephone calls, or was it someone who was here in the hotel and wanted to talk with him?"

"Someone here in the hotel—a little guy with gray hair and blue eyes. I remember him well. He was mad as a wet cat about something. He had an appointment with this guy, Cathay, that Cathay hadn't kept. He was some kind of an inventor, I think, and there was some kind of a deal on that Cathay was to close."

Griff's eyes were thoughtful.

"I wonder if we can find out who that man was?" he said.

"I think so," the bell captain told him. "I think the man had a room here in the hotel, at least for the night, and I think he waited over. It seems to me I saw him checking out about the time I came on duty Tuesday night."

"Let's go see if we can find out," "Okay," the bell boy said. "You wait here, chief, and I'll go prow around a little bit. I think maybe I can find out. I tell you what I think I can do. I think I can contact one of the boys who took a pint of whisky up to his room. I remember, the boy asked me for an okay on him."

"The bell boy grinned confidentially. "Of course," he said, "that's just between you and me, chief."

Griff nodded.

The bell captain departed and was back within less than five minutes.

"I've got him located for you," he said. "His name is Harry Fancher and he lives at 2692 Kenwood avenue, Millvale. At any rate, that's the address he gave on the register."

Sidney Griff looked at his watch. "A night drive," he said, "would bring me into Millvale just about daylight."

The bell boy regarded him curiously.

"It would," he said, "be a long way to go if the man had given a phone address. Lots of them do, you know."

Sidney Griff nodded thoughtfully. He handed the boy another $5 bill. He went to the telephone booth and put through a call for the police headquarters at Millvale. Within 10 minutes he had them on the line.

"You have a city directory there, as well as a register of voters?" he asked. "This is Sidney Griff, the criminologist."

"What is it you want?" asked a gruff voice at the other end of the line.

"I want to find out whether you have a Harry Fancher registered in town, what his occupation is, and where he lives."

"Hold the line," said the voice, with a weary lack of curiosity, engendered by a life that made crime a mere matter of daily routine.

After a moment the voice came over the wire.

"Yes, there's a Harry Fancher registered. He lives at 2692 Kenwood avenue, and he's an inventor and machinist."

"Thank you," said Griff, and hung up.

HARRY FANCHER, attired in towseled pajamas, with his hair in wild disarray, regarded Sidney Griff with meek brown eyes.

"Did I get you up?" asked Griff smiling cordially.

Harry Fancher nodded his head, then added after a moment, "I'm sorry."

Griff raised his eyebrows. Fancher went on to explain.

"I shouldn't have slept so late," he said. "Usually I'm up earlier but, this being Sunday morning, I stayed in bed."

Griff regarded the man with curious, speculative eyes.

"I am the one who should make the apologies," he said, "for disturbing you at this hour. But I drove all night in order to get here—that is, the best part of the night."

"To see me?" asked Fancher, raising his brow.

"Exactly," Sidney Griff agreed. "Won't you come in?"

Fancher led the way into the house, his slippers sliding along the floor. He waved a hand and indicated a chair in the sitting room.

"I'm sorry," he said, "the room looks like this. It's just the way I left it when I went to bed last night. I do quite a bit of reading and research work, and I'm not always tidy about putting my books back."

Griff surveyed the littered table and picked up one of the trade magazines at random. "You're an inventor, I believe?"

Fancher remarked, "If he didn't want to finance my invention, why didn't he say so in the first place? Why did he go to the trouble of writing me a letter and telling me how wonderful he thought my invention was, and then fail to keep the appointment he made with me?"

"He wrote you?" asked Griff.

"Yes."

"Have you his letter available?" Griff inquired.

"Why, yes, I think so."

"I wonder if I could see it?"

Fancher's slippers' feet made shuffling sounds as he crossed to a writing desk. He opened the desk and turned to the criminologist.

"Here it is," he said.

Griff examined the letter carefully. It was written on the stationery of Frank B. Cathay, his stationery which read "FRANK B. CATHAY—INVENTOR—905 FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, RIVERVIEW."

There followed a date line, with the name of the city and state. The letter, which was addressed to Harry Fancher, at Millvale, read:

Dear Mr. Fancher: I have been very much interested in your correspondence relating to your new static eliminator for radios. While, ordinarily, I do not finance inventions, I would be very glad to have a discussion with you for the purpose of ascertaining upon what mutually profitable basis we can arrange for the manufacture and sale of your device.

Will you please meet me at Hillcrest Hotel on Monday, the 19th of March, at the hour of 10 o'clock p. m. I will be glad to go into matters in detail at that time, as I expect to be in the city in connection with other business. I would suggest that you bring with you your patents and any data you may have on the cost of manufacture.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Frank B. Cathay.
(To Be Continued)

Fancher continues his story, involving a pretty braided and a conductor, in the next installment.

usually came off second best. If they tried the ends, Britt, Jacoby, Payton or Love charged in just as hard and took them out.

Then, when Ranger was carrying the ball if the play went through the line they had the same thing to contend with, Anderson or Britt charging into them, and when the two broke around end into the secondary the first man to attempt the tackle alone would be mighty slow in coming up. Sometimes they didn't.

But the Bulldogs showed good sportsmanship with it, however. Whenever one of the Eagles got hurt and was taken from the game there were usually four or five Ranger players on their feet to pat him on the back and give him a word of cheer, while the Eagles stood around in a group and said nothing. When an Eagle brought a ball carrier down he almost always got a pat on the back and congratulations, and when the Eagle running plays stopped the Bulldog tackler often helped him to his feet, gave him that same pat and a good word.

All in all there was no department of the game in which we thought the Eagles excelled, nor a single man who outplayed his opponent on the Bulldog team.

BUT we still have Cisco and Breckenridge to face. They are probably equally as tough, maybe more so than the Eagles, and more versatile by far. They won't present anything like a setup and the race is not over yet by any means, even though we have won from one of the three leading contenders.

"Details Important in Ensemble"

Says Orry-Kelly Famous Hollywood Designer in the Fifth of a Series of Personal Interviews

ORRY-KELLY Designer of Fashions for Warner Bros. Pictures

RUBY KEELER Star of Warner Bros.—First National Pictures

"A costume is as smart as its smallest detail," asserts Orry-Kelly, designer of fashions for Warner Brothers—First National Pictures. "Nowhere is this so apparent as in the costuming of stars for the screen. Many people imagine that so long as an effect of smartness is achieved, it is not necessary for us to concern ourselves with the small details of an ensemble. But there is where they are wrong. We can never depend upon the chance of something not showing in the picture, because the eye of the camera is all-seeing. Every accessory has its own important role to play in the achievement of the perfect ensemble and, as in every thing, success depends upon the extent to which they work together."

"The easiest part of dressing a star is the first step when I design her dress, her coat or her suit. I can follow my inspiration without any limitations, except to create the most suitable and beautiful thing possible. But from this point on, it becomes more involved. The hat which goes with that costume must be not only beautiful and smart in its own right, it must cooperate toward the general effect of chic. The same thing is true of the shoes and gloves and bag. They must not only be suitable for the dress or coat. They must be suitable for each other. So you see, the assembling of a perfect costume is not a matter to be passed over lightly."

Colors Important

"Even hostery colors are vastly important. There are certain shades which go perfectly with certain shades in fabrics. Any color but these will introduce a jarring note, make the legs too sharply defined instead of continuing the harmony of color and line below the hem of the dress. In my own studio I have created special stocking colors to go perfectly with the new fabric tones. We call them Screenlit Shades. No one realizes so well as a screen star how important such a thing as a hostery shade can be to her completed ensemble."

Matched Costumes

"It is interesting to trace the fashion of the ensemble. You will remember that years ago, no effort was made to coordinate the different elements of a costume. Then someone introduced the fashion of the matched costume. Under this regime if one's coat was brown, one wore a brown hat, brown shoes, brown hose, brown gloves and carried a brown bag. I never cared for so monotonous and unimaginative an ensemble as this, did not feel that it possessed enough individuality to satisfy the really smart woman. But this vague did accomplish one thing. It made women conscious of the relation between their clothes and their accessories."

"From the matched ensemble, we began to experiment with color harmonies and finally further to the introduction of bold contrasts in accessories. We discovered that, if taste was used, really daring effects could be achieved with perfect smartness. Now the relationship between the various elements of the costume has become a fine art, with many subtleties and refinements. The more thought you give to it, the more fascinating it becomes. The more expert you become in the assembling of fashions, the more fully you realize that no detail is too small to have importance in the successful costume."
