Arguments Heard In Doggett Murder Trial

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

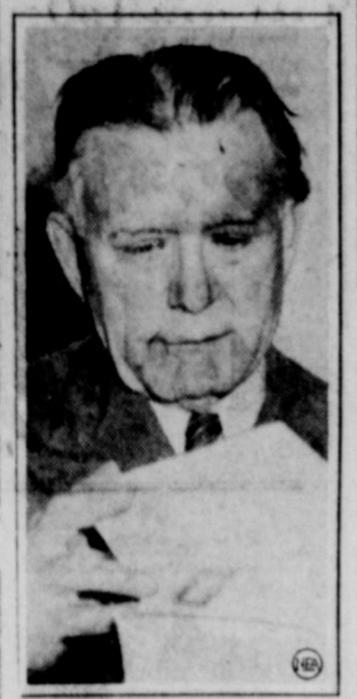

with BILL MAYES

Wilson Ritchie, sports scribe of Breckenridge, predicts that Britt and Anderson can be stopped and intimates that they will be stopped on Thanksgiving Day when they encounter the Breckenridge Buckaroos.

After starting off with a paragraph or two to show that Breckenridge might be the under dog in the contest, he continues at length as follows:

"Just what is there to keep them from beating Breckenridge as much as they were beaten by the Bucks in '29? There's plenty. Those Ranger fans and Breckenridge people who foresee a Bulldog triumph might recall, in the first place, that the Breckenridge boys have a habit which dates from away back of making it tough for the Bulldogs even when the Bucks are easy pickings for other elevens.

COLD WAVE IN TEXAS WAS SHORT LIVED

By United Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 23.—Generally fair and warmer weather was forecast for today and tomorrow between the Mississippi and Rocky Mountains where a cold wave was felt.

The high pressure area that moved rapidly south from Edmonton, Canada, Tuesday and caused a cold wave throughout the central states and in this section late Wednesday and yesterday, has moved northeastward and the resultant low temperatures were expected to be entirely gone by tomorrow.

Winter moved out of Texas today after a brief preliminary call that left several sections of the state slivered with frost.

The forecast was for warmer weather tonight and tomorrow. Light to heavy frost accompanied temperature drops at several reporting stations early today.

STATE RESTED ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON

No Time Limit Is Set on The Speeches To Jurors By The Attorneys.

Arguments of attorneys in the trial of Clifford Doggett, charged with murder in connection of the death of L. F. Threet, Cisco rancher, were in progress in district court at Eastland this morning. No time limit for the arguments had been set by 88th district court Judge R. W. Patterson.

The state rested its case Thursday afternoon after several witnesses had testified. Elmer Van Cleve, 22, co-defendant, who will face charges identical of those of Doggett's, testified against the defendant.

According to testimony of Van Cleve, Doggett was the person who fired shots fatal to the aged rancher on his ranch. Van Cleve told jurors Doggett had propositioned him the night of Aug. 14 on how they could rob Threet. Van Cleve said, "He asked me how would I like to make some money?" Continuing, Van Cleve testified, Doggett told him, "I have a girl friend who'll lure Threet away and we can rob him."

"They might recall last year's game in particular. It was an entirely green bunch of youngsters that P. E. Shotwell had last year; not a letterman was in the bunch and only one had even made the traveling squad the year before Ranger's team was old and experienced. What happened? The Buckaroos played their best game of the year and were barely nosed out by a club that was supposed to be several touchdowns the stronger eleven.

"Now in the impending engagement there will be opposing each other the same group of boys, with few exceptions. Breckenridge's team is more experienced, but so is the Ranger aggregation.

"The difference, though, between this and last year's experience is greater with the Bucks than with the Bulldogs. That will stand them in good stead on Thanksgiving, but there are the weight, power and accompanying versatility with which the Bucks will have to contend.

"When there is a weight disadvantage the usual pep talk is that "fight" will make up the difference. It is that "fight" on which Buckaroos are relying for their favorites to whip the Bulldogs. But in this case there is real foundation for the expectations that the lighter ones have the stuff.

"In every game this season Breck fans have become more and more proud of the light youngsters who have gamely faced weight odds in almost every instance and overcome them on each occasion. Their heroic courage and indomitable will have put them over against odds that were apparently admiration from their supporters.

"When the going gets the toughest and the outlook the gloomiest the competitive spirit of the Buckaroos makes its best showing. They work best under fire. Which explains the reason that out of nine victories this season they have come from behind in five. It was in the Abilene game after they had come from behind in the second half to tie the game 7-7 that the Bucks executed a play blocking which Coach P. E. Shotwell pronounced almost perfect and a halfback ran 73 yards for a touchdown to place the score out of Abilene's reach, giving the Bucks their fourth and hardest conference victory and the right to play in the title game.

"It is said that the breaks one gets are the breaks he makes. The Breckenridge football team has had the breaks this year and it has fully deserved them. An agreement made by the boys among themselves early in the fall has on principally responsible for their being as well trained as a football eleven can be. There are very few on the team who have tendencies to dissipate, and those tendencies have been held com-

PEACE, WAR IN EUROPE ARE FORESEEN

By United Press
PARIS, France, Nov. 23.—Efforts to preserve peace and preparations to wage war were being made throughout Europe today on a big scale. Work for peace centered in Geneva and London. Throughout the continent nations were making their armies ready for any emergency.

The league of nations council was expected next week to consider a complaint made to it by Jugo-Slavia with the support of Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia against alleged Hungarian complicity in the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou at Marseille Oct. 9.

At London, American, British, and Japanese delegates to the naval limitation conference, preliminary to the big one contemplated for next year, almost disappeared by agreement.

Seriousness of the situation there was shown by statements from men who run the British government. In two days Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer and Sir John Simon, foreign minister, have given notice of their anxiety. All Europe was openly armng.

Santa's Toy Factory In Ranger One of Busiest Places In All Eastland County

Has anyone visited Santa Claus' workshop in Ranger, where four men are busily engaged in making all kinds of toys for the children of relief clients of Ranger? If not a visit would surprise anyone who is not aware of the hum and activity of the shop, which is located in the Ranger fire station.

When toy projects were first mentioned in Eastland county, whereby men could be secured from the relief rolls to make toys for the children, Fire Chief G. A. Murphy was the first, and so far the only one, to ask for such aid. Through the combined efforts of H. E. Driskill, county relief administrator, and several Ranger men, the project was approved and work was begun immediately.

The work is to continue for a month, or until Christmas, and a large variety of substantial toys are to be made in that time to aid Santa in his big job of making things for all the children.

The Child Welfare Club of Ranger has donated some money with which to buy lumber and paints with which to keep the men busy, about $4 of which has been spent for lumber and $3.50 for stains and turpentine. Scrap lumber has been used considerably, to date, but the supply in Ranger is rapidly being exhausted and more lumber will be needed before long.

WATCHMAN AT RACE TRACK IS FOUND SLAIN

By United Press
ARLINGTON, Texas, Nov. 23.—Tom Watson, 75, night watchman at Arlington Downs here, was found shot to death in the tackle room of the Three-D stables today. The gray-haired watchman had been shot in the stomach, the bullet ranging upward. Doctors believed he was slain about midnight.

Deputy Sheriff G. A. Coke and Justice of the Peace E. C. King investigated the slaying and believe robbery was the motive. A hurried check did not reveal anything missing from the stable, however.

Watson's body was found by Clifton Barber, another employe of the Three-D stable, owned by W. T. Waggoner, wealthy Fort Worth oil man and owner of Arlington Downs. The body was lying face downward on the floor of the room where the racing equipment of the Waggoner thoroughbreds is kept.

Watson's own pistol still was in his holster. It had not been fired. Investigators believed that it was likely the watchman, while making his rounds, found the slayer at the tackle room and was shot down before he had a chance to interfere.

An autopsy to determine the calibre of the fatal bullet was ordered. Watson, who has been ill during the summer, returned to his work about three months ago. He had been employed there only a few months.

Old Gold Buying Creating Tricks

NEW YORK.—Twice as much old gold was found in American homes last year as was dug from all the gold mines of the country, according to Alexander Hamilton, deputy commissioner of weights and measures of New York, in a recent address.

A new problem concerning honest weights has arisen, he finds, in assuring a fair price for the average citizen who has found old gold in his home.

When President Roosevelt raised the price of old gold to $35 an ounce, the highest price in 60 years, he started a gold rush which has served to recover over $100,000,000 worth of old gold. This treasure has created overnight an army of opportunists, who try to buy the precious metal from its owners and depend upon their wits and the seller's ignorance to drive a shrewd bargain.

The average citizen who finds himself with old gold to sell usually is inexperienced in dispensing with it. There are tricks in all trades, and among the purchasers of old gold there are many irresponsible men. One class of buyers represent themselves as U. S. government agents. There are no government agents authorized to buy old gold and men claiming to be such are imposters.

The best plan in selling old gold, Mr. Hamilton concludes, is to sell the treasure to a jeweler who holds the confidence of his community.

TAX EXEMPT RECOVERY PLAN IS PROPOSED

(Copyright, 1935, United Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—A plan of tax exemption inducements to encourage corporations to spend immediately for plant improvements has been submitted to the treasury.

The proposal is a development of the recent U. S. Chamber of Commerce plan for business cooperation in recovery, but it was not presented as a Chamber project. It is designed to foster corporate spending to provide quick re-employment in the heavy manufacturing industries.

As received by the treasury the plan would exempt from the existing 13.75 per cent tax on corporate income, some proportion of each corporation net returns. The exemption would be allowed with the express agreement that the bulk exempted from taxation would be spent at once in plant modernization or extension.

THE CHRISTIAN STEWARD
 Matt. 25:14-30

Jesus with the shadow of the cross dark across his path, death being just three days away, sat upon the Mount of Olives and talk with his disciples of many things.

In olden times the steward of the family was a well loved and trusted slave who was deeply attached to his master and loyal to all of his interests. He superintended the family financing and investments.

Christ took this well known of five and made of it a parable to teach his disciples a great lesson of the use of their talents.

"And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, to another one; to each according to his several ability."

It makes an interesting story of the investments of their talents while the master was away.

The servant with five and the servant with two talents doubled their value by wise investment. But the servant with one talent "dug in the earth, and hid his lord's money."

"After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and maketh a reckoning with them."

How happy were the servants who could bring an increase in their money to their lord and receive his praise!

How small was the man who had his talent and had nothing more to show to his master. He was most zealous in vindicating himself, speaking of his fear. It was a cowardly excuse. He was not afraid but only lazy and indifferent.

His master condemned him, "Thou wicked and slothful servant. It was not because he made no money but because of his wicked and sullen disposition. The master took the talent and gave it to the man with the 10 talents."

"For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but from that hath not, even that which he hath shall be taken away."

Conversion is the starting point of the Christian life. But if the spiritual life is not nourished, it does not grow and expand into that wisdom that comes from above.

As we make use of the opportunities before us in study, prayer and service, our ability to serve will increase in God's work. Diligent and faithful cultivation of powers makes them more effective and the Christian finds himself growing in capacity to know and understand the way God would have him use his talent.

Every person has some talent. It may be preaching, singing, writing, teaching and many others. But one of the greatest is to so live that a person can partake of the life of Christ until all who contact that life will see and realize the good influence radiating from every act.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes has summed up our reckoning with a very strict plan that should put all Christians to thinking. God's grace overshadows us. No one can be perfect but in some way we are stewards of all we have, both time and money.

Rev. Hughes makes it very emphatic that we will stand before the judgment seat and be reckoned with. First, our physical abilities, mental abilities, whether it was literary, artistic, scientific, commercial or political, will be considered, whether we possessed any natural ability or any special disposition to the more spiritual side of life. Our stewardship of time and money and all of the opportunities of life will be reckoned with.

So it behooves the Christian to study his heart and life and by meditation and prayer find his place in God's plan. It may be humble and it may be great but what ever it is it should be used for the glory of God through Christ our saviour.

Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and evil speaking, be put away from you with all malice.

 And be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake, hath forgiven you. (Eph. 4:31-32).
 Then when the judgment seat is confronted, we will not be as cringing cowards giving vain and foolish excuses but happy and proud to hear the welcome plaudit.
 Well done, good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will set thee over many things; enter thou into the Joy of thy Lord. (Matt. 25:21, Golden Text.)

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to help overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Lovable

By MARY RAYMOND © 1934 NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY ANN HOLLISTER, pretty and 20, leaves that her college course was made possible by loans from her father's friends.

Sarah said, "Ann Hollister, this is Tony Mickle. You probably think he's a lunatic. When you know him better you'll be certain of it."

AFTERWARD Sarah Kent was sure that she had realized trouble was brewing when she saw Tony heading for the library's reference department.

Suddenly Sarah came to another of her quick, intuitive decisions. Tony was turning bookish because of that red-headed girl from Georgia, Ann Hollister, who had been added to the staff only this week and temporarily assigned to assist Mrs. Keating, reference librarian.

Following her "hunch," Sarah walked from the information desk to the reference room and looked inside. At the far end of the room Tony was hunched over a table, his black hair ruffled as usual, apparently engrossed in a large book spread before him.

Sarah went back to the lobby. She was willing to give Tony the benefit of the doubt.

An hour elapsed before she passed the information desk. Half way to the door, she stopped, retracing her steps. What a first-class sleuth you're turning out to be, she said.

"No, you were quite right, but wrong, too, came for information the first time. I've come back because I've been knocked for a loop. Think of finding a girl like that shut up in a reference room when she might be—"

"When she might be listening to your ardent phrases?"

"Don't pretend with me, Tony."

HE smiled back at her. "Well, admit for the sake of argument that I'm more of a man than an artist and that I have been trying to meet her. What's the harm?"

"I can not. This is a library—not a bureau to promote the dark plots of ambitious young men."

All afternoon she felt vaguely troubled, at last coming to the realization that Ann Hollister—rather the combination of Ann Hollister and Tony Mickle, is responsible young commercial artist—was the cause of it.

The trouble was that Sarah visited here Sunday with their sister, Mrs. J. W. Minnick and other relatives.

really liked Tony. Women invariably did. There were some who hated him and loved him at the same time. Eileen Wallace for instance.

More than once Tony had told Eileen he was through, yet she was constantly hobnobbing up agents in the turbulent stream that was Tony's life.

The following afternoon about 3 o'clock, Tony arrived as usual. He bowed extravagantly to Sarah, passing her desk, a mocking smile in his eyes.

Ann, busy mounting clippings, looked up to meet Tony's straight stare. She turned back to her work, aware that she had flushed a little. When she had finished the task she was kept busy answering reference questions and wheeling out book trucks containing back numbers of magazines.

After a while, at her desk, Ann stole a look at the bold stranger. Later, as afternoon shadows dimmed the room, the crowd gathered about the tables thinned rapidly. Still the young man sat on.

As closing time neared the room was occupied only by the young man, a spectacled woman and Ann. The woman glanced at her watch and arose to leave. The young man arose, too. Now he was coming toward Ann.

"Angel," he said softly, "when did you fly down?"

Ann's eyes widened in amazement.

"Oh," said the young man easily, "I see I made a mistake in the subject. Nice day, isn't it? Or do you prefer snow and galoshes?"

"If I smile," Ann thought, "I'll never be able to look myself in the face. Of all the impudent take-you-for-granted men, he is absolutely the worst!"

"I presume you've come to stay," Tony continued, evidently enjoying this one-sided conversation.

Ann unheeded enough to reply, "I'm afraid not if I permit such conduct as this."

"If they fire you I'll never read another book in this library. I'll dynamite the dump!"

"There are some books you should read," Ann said coldly.

"What books?"

"Etiquet books."

He laughed. "A hit, run and no errors. I have an idea that I won't be a stranger long."

"What utter nonsense," Ann said, walking out of the room.

Tony followed closely. "It's only that you haven't my point of view," he said.

"What luck! Will you please introduce me? I'm about to be thrown out on my ear."

Sarah said resignedly, "Ann Hollister, this is Tony Mickle. You probably think he's a lunatic. When you know him better you'll be certain of it."

upon an account of the benefit ball. Posters, read, would be displayed in hotel lobbies and downtown department stores. They would be done by Anthony Mickle, talented artist. Mr. Mickle was also to assist with the tableaux.

Ann had scarcely listened when Tony had spoken in the postscript she had decided that he was a flirtatious nuisance. It would be best to ignore him if ever he came to the library again.

Tony did come. And there was no opportunity to ignore him. He saw Ann at all, it was through a haze of preoccupation. He would speak to her politely, absently and then enlist the assistance of another librarian.

"Have you noticed the good looking young man who comes in here every day?" Mildred Meador asked Ann one day.

Ann said she had, though she hadn't noticed that he was particularly good-looking.

"It's about that benefit ball. He's doing posters of costume of different nations in the eighteenth century," Mildred explained.

Ann found, to her amazement, that she wanted to answer. "Yes, he told me about it," instead she merely said, "I read something about it in a newspaper."

No, of course, she wasn't the least interested in Tony Mickle, merely surprised that he had shared his interest so quickly. Of course it was much better this way.

"I've noticed that Tony is still rushing the reference department," Sarah said to Ann. "I suppose he's been bothering you to death."

"No," said Ann. "He barely speaks."

"Oh," Sarah's eyes were enigmatic. She decided it was high time to tell Ann about the "Tony tradition."

German Equality in World Is Worth Risk for Peace

Gen. Jan Smuts of South Africa has long been one of the most respected men in the British empire. Now he comes forward with a suggestion that might well win new respect for him, to wit: that the nations try to insure peace by acting as if they wanted peace, instead of stalking about with bludgeons in their hands.

General Smuts refers to the German problem. What he says is worth quoting:

"There is only one way to remove the inferiority complex that is obsessing and poisoning the mind and the very soul of Germany; namely, recognize her complete equality with her fellows.

"Do so freely, frankly and without reserve. A resolute and determined effort may yet save the situation, bring Germany back to the disarmament conference and the League of Nations, and thus probably lead to a substantial step forward toward agreed disarmament."

General Smuts likes Hitlerism no better than the next man. But he has the good sense to see that Hitlerism, like the present tendency toward war, is in large part a direct product of the repressions and inequalities of the post-war treaties.

It speaks volumes about the stupid way in which international politics have been conducted to find this simple idea, that trouble can be lessened by removing its cause, coming as such a surprise.

There would be some risks attached to this program, of course. To give Germany full equality with other nations would mean to permit her to arm right up to the teeth, if she chose. A nation like France can hardly be blamed for looking on such a plan with grave anxiety.

But the point to remember is that there are risks attached to the existing policy, too. When every magazine, and almost every issue of your daily paper, carries new rumblings of the war that everybody fears, we can hardly boast that world peace is out of danger.

Furthermore, it might be argued that preservation of peace is something that it is worth taking risks to get. Too many peace policies are purely negative. Here is one that offers a straight forward, definite program.

Risky? Undoubtedly. But isn't peace worth a few perils?

Three Newcomers on Wrestling Card at Elks Arena Monday

Ollie Altman, 154-pound headliner in wrestling, who is a protege of the once-famous Farmer Burns, will be in the semi-final match at the Elks arena Monday night, it has been announced. Altman hails from Omaha, Neb., and his first match in Texas will be in Ranger. He meets Rex O'Sullivan, 152-pounder of Kansas City, who has been going strong around his home town and will be able to take care of himself against anyone anywhere near his weight.

On the main event will be seen match for the best two out of three falls for a two-hour time limit, and will bring together Jim Saber, the Terrible Turk, who last Monday night defeated Frank Simmons in the main event. He meets another newcomer, who is from Roswell, N. M., Ken Gaston, 156-pounder. Gaston has a reputation of being the best leg artist in the wrestling game and has defeated some of the best.

Gaston takes the place of Pogi, who was booked for Monday night, but could not fill his engagement because he is in a hospital in El Paso.

There will be plenty of action in both of these matches, as these men come well recommended.

The show will start promptly at 8 o'clock instead of 8:30, which has been the starting time for the past few months.

Eat to Retain Your Curves, Mae Advises

"Keep your figure by eating" is the advice which Mae West, latest sex-appeal champion of the screen, whose new Paramount picture, "I'm No Angel," comes on Sunday to the Columbia theatre, offers to all women who are tired of a restricted diet.

"Exercise will keep the figure curved and feminine," says Mae, "but food is essential for vitality. And in the long run, it's the vitality that counts."

Miss West's celebrated figure, which has set the fashion on two continents, is kept alluringly curvaceous by nine or 10 hours sleep every night, exercising, fresh air and sunshine. She drinks a quart of milk a day, eats creamed food and potatoes and plenty of butter.

The well proportioned curves of Paramount's blond charmer play a particularly important role in "I'm No Angel" because they are encased in tights in keeping with her role of Tira, the diamond-decked circus siren, who charms men and lions, falls in love with a socially prominent clubman, sticks her head in a lion's mouth and generally raises Cain to the accompaniment of a whirlwind of wisecracks which will soon be echoed in every hamlet of the country.

Streak of Blue Light Baffling Meteorologists

By United Press
PORT ARTHUR.—A streak of blue light which extended from the horizon to the zenith was observed here by T.C. Roddy.

The phenomenon is unlike anything that has been seen here and has completely baffled all local meteorologists.

Roddy said he was driving along a country road about 10 or 15 minutes after sunset when he noticed the shaft of light, apparently about two feet wide, extending from the point where the sun had set on the horizon to the zenith.

It was not merely a dark streak in the sky, he said, and except for its position in the sky resembled a rainbow in which the blue color was most predominant. He could see the other colors of the rainbow at intervals he reported.

Roddy said several of his acquaintances had also noticed the phenomenon.

Tim McCoy Escapes Death When Loaded Gun Is Discovered

Col. Tim McCoy narrowly missed being drilled through the heart in making "Beyond the Law," train hold-up picture, coming to the Columbia theatre, next Saturday. Incidentally, this narrow escape disclosed why he never fails to examine any gun used in making his action pictures before the "quick-draw" artists go into the scene.

McCoy and Addison Richards, the "villain," were about to do a scene in which Richards fixes a blank-loaded pistol at him in close range. To appear correct on the screen, such pistols have shells loaded with soft paper "bullets" protruding from the chamber.

"It's loaded with gumies," declared the prop man as he observed McCoy pulling out each shell for his usual inspection. "I just brought it in here from the prop room."

But one of them looked real to McCoy. He dug into the supposedly paper "bullet" with his knife. It was lead. A minute later it might have been fired point blank into the popular actor's chest.

"So that's what you were sure was a dummy," McCoy commented crisply. "Now you see why I never let a gun go in to a scene without an inspection. I learned my lesson on the first silent picture I ever made. That time a supposedly empty shotgun was fired at me, and I've still got powder marks on my shoulder

Wheeler and Woolsey Cuckoo Comics In "Kentucky Kernels"

The nuts are loose again! RKO-Radio Pictures releases Bart Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, its cuckoo comic stars, below the Mason and Dixon line, and the boys are said to "go to town" in a mad funny picture punctuated by gay song and dance—"Kentucky Kernels."

Their latest vehicle brings Wheeler and Woolsey and an orphan ward to a Kentucky plantation to which he has fallen heir. They also find themselves amid a feud fought with six-shooters between the Milfords and the Wakefields.

The complications cause greater laughs, building to a rousing climax when Wheeler courts Gloria Wakefield, and Woolsey temporarily placates the enemy clan at a sumptuous garden party and dance.

Mary Carlisle, alluring young blonde actress is featured as Gloria, and "Spanky" McFarland, remembered for his clever antics in "Our Gang" comedies, is seen as the young ward. Noah Beery is also importantly cast.

General Foods Will Give Pensions to Its Old Employees

Assurance of old age retirement income is given General Foods employees through a new co-operative annuity plan announced today by G. S. Robison, 1013 Mercantile Bank building, Dallas district manager for General Foods. The plan affects employees in 45 plants and 29 sales divisions and districts in this country and Canada.

Every General Foods employee in his district, according to Mr. Robison, has approved the new plan. This 100 per cent acceptance makes each one a part of the co-operative annuity agreement.

Joint contributions of corporation and employees will provide fixed monthly incomes to be paid employees when they reach retirement eligibility—age 60 for women, 65 for men. General Foods pays more than half the total cost of the retirement plan. Although income payments start when women and men employees are 60 and 65 years old, respectively, retirement then is not obligatory. The plan also provides that employees with the company's consent may elect to retire, and receive incomes at a reduced rate, at any time within 10 years of customary retirement age.

Amount of monthly income depends on length of service and rate of earnings prior to retirement. Payments by the corporation and the employee obtain for the participant a retirement income more than twice as large, on the average, as he could purchase individually through annuity insurance.

An example: An employee 30 years old, earning $35 a week, will contribute toward the plan $1.84 38 times a year, and his payments will be matched by General Foods. If he remains in the same earnings classification and makes this same weekly contribution until age 65, his retirement income will be $112 monthly. Actuarial studies show that the average man of 65 can look forward to another 12 years of life.

"For years we have been working on the development of a plan to eliminate old age insecurity for our employees," states C. M. Chester, president of General Foods. "The system we are now instituting has several unusual features. All participating workers have the option if they should leave the corporation of, 1, having their contributions returned or, 2, leaving them with the insurance company as a paid-up annuity. But if they have participated for 15 consecutive years, they can, by leaving their own deposits with the insurance companies, receive retirement income based on the corporation's contributions, as well as their own.

"Upon retirement, an employee may expect to enjoy an income equivalent to 2 per cent of his average earnings for every year of his participation in the plan. For instance, an employee age 35 today will, upon retirement, receive each month 50 per cent of whatever his average monthly salary may be during the next 30 years. If an employee wishes, he can arrange his policy so that payments, in reduced amounts, will be continued during the lifetime of a designated dependent, should this dependent survive the retired employee's death. If such arrangement is not chosen, the balance of the contributions not disbursed as retirement income is paid to a beneficiary named in the policy."

Sept. 1, 1934, has been designated as the date when the plan goes into effect. All employees of General Foods and subsidiary companies in United States and Canada, now under retirement age, who have been with the organization one year prior to Sept. 1, are eligible to participate, but participation is not obligatory. General will pay not only its share of the plan, but also the September, October, and November employees' contributions for all workers joining the plan before Dec. 1. Although the plan itself does not provide for it, the announcement states General Foods may at its discretion allow the retirement income of employees who are now more than 45 years old.

General Foods will deduct payments of participating employees directly from salary checks. These funds, together with the corporation's contributions, will be immediately turned over to the two largest insurance companies in the country. These companies will handle the administration of the plan and assure security of all payments.

President Roosevelt's constant smile is due perhaps to his amusement at the way people try to figure out what he means by what he says.

Woodman Circle Receives Letter From Dr. and Mrs. Stout

Thirteen adults and three junior members assembled at the Woodman hall, Elm street, Wednesday for the regularly observed weekly session which is opened each Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The guardian's chair was occupied by Mrs. Ruby Greer, who presided and read to the Julia Alexander Grove No. 1954, a letter recently received from Dr. and Mrs. Stout, of the Woodman Circle home at Sherman. Dr. Stout serves in the capacity as superintendent. Thanks were expressed in the letter to the chapter for the fruit and quilt shower which was sent the home only a short time ago. Quits donated for this purpose were made by the members, who have spent entire days with covered dish luncheons served, the only interval during the hours of work.

The year of 1934 has indeed been one worth while, and the personnel of members whose co-operation has been so well exemplified have much to their credit along the line of splendid and successful projects.

Mrs. Hazel Smoot won the usual penny cash prize offered at each session. The prize was furnished by Mrs. Ona Keel.

Entertaining Pre-Thanksgiving Program

Members of Young School Parent-Teacher association were pleasantly entertained with a pre-Thanksgiving program at the assembly hall, Tuesday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock.

The program opened with acrobatics by pupils of Mrs. Anderson's room. Other numbers rounding out the well offered program were: Story of the Pilgrims, Billy Anderson; "Three Maids of a Housekeeping Turn," Marion Jane Bishop, Billy Christina Howell, Mary Anna Jones, "Needles Thanksgiving Day Visit," Juanita Love, Thankgiving Lesson, Jane Lauderdale, Dorothy Byas, Carroll Boon, Babb Edmonds; "My Turn-ick's Got a Pain," Donald Barton; Thankgiving song, Jane Matthews, Cleo Anna Moore, Pelly Seymour, Candie Jarvis, and Keyce June Lyon.

Lone Star Club to Have Turkey Dinner Saturday Night

The Lone Star Social club, whose personnel is composed of a group of women whose husbands are associates of the Lone Star Gas company, comes listed as one of the most active and wide-awake clubs in Ranger.

Saturday night at the Lone Star clubhouse at 7 o'clock the club is to entertain with a turkey dinner in compliment to husbands and a limited group of friends.

Bridge, at gaily dressed tables, will be played after dinner and those who have reserved Saturday night for this compliment have in store a real treat, which comes as one of the gala pre-Thanksgiving Day social happenings in Ranger circles.

All-Church Night Has Good Attendance

Dance Plans in the Making For a Gala Thanksgiving

Socially speaking... many are pleased with the plans made by Arlys Niver for a dance to be given at the American Legion hall, Thursday night, offering a fitting climax to the big day's program.

Already informal get-together parties and buffet suppers are in the making... and dance lovers are reserving space on their day's calendar for impromptu calls before the hour of 10 o'clock, when Carl Williams and his eight-piece orchestra will open the hour of dance with their first popular tune hit.

This group of musicians come highly praised, and hail from the Loma Linda night club, of Houston.

With the Ranger-Breckenridge football game on tap for the afternoon, and dance that evening... there is little need—if any—for Ranger folk to spend the day out of town, and from all early indications we're going to stay home... and enjoy another good football game by our Ranger Bulldogs.

Latest Chan Film Packed With Thrills

Judged by preview audiences on the coast as by far the most entertaining of the entire series of "Chan" thrillers, "Charlie Chan in London" will make its appearance on the screen of the Arcadia theatre on Friday, Warner Oland, whose name has become synonymous with the character of Charlie throughout the series, again portrays the role of the bland Chinese detective. Advance reports indicate that Oland's portrayal in this film is his most notable to date.

In his latest adventure, Charlie Chan invades Sherlock Holmes' realm, and journeys to London to solve the most amazing mystery of his remarkable career in criminology.

A man is doomed to hang for a murder. His sister believes him innocent. She pleads with Chan to find the real murderer and exonerate her brother. With only 65 hours remaining before the innocent man must meet his death, Chan gets to work. He finds he is working against time and a murderer who has the cunning of a fox. With only eight hours remaining in which to solve the mystery, Chan lays a clever trap, and snares his human fox without the aid of hounds or horse.

Ambitious Film Co-Stars Three Famous Actors

Three Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award winners head the cast of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," to be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Arcadia theatre.

Norma Shearer, in the role of the poet Elizabeth, is starred opposite Frederic March, as the ancient Robert Browning—the same team which broke all records in "Smilin' Through." Charles Laughton, most recent Academy award winner, appears in the grim and powerful role of the elder Barrett, his first American picture since the international hit, "Henry the Eighth."

Adapted by the talented scenario writing team, Ernest Vajda and Claudine West, dialogue by Donald Ogden Stewart, from the play by Rudolf Besier, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" stands as one of the outstanding theatrical hits of the decade. Katherine Cornell, who created the part in the New York theatre, recently climaxed one of the most successful road tours of her career with the piece.

Dramatization of a vivid picture from history, it is the story of the love of two poets, Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning—a love nearly frustrated by her demoniacal father.

Elizabeth had resigned herself to a lingering death, when correspondence with the poet Browning suddenly materialized with his handsome presence in her own room. It was love at first sight between the fragile girl and her ardent admirer. With all the spleen and cunning of his nature, the elder Barrett throws himself against this romance, and thereon hangs the tale, interwoven with glimpses into the lives of the many brothers and sisters in the historical menage.

Greeks Learn to Speak English In Very Short Time

By United Press

WACO—Two former citizens of Greece who moved here a few weeks ago have already learned the rudiments of the American language.

The two were totally ignorant of English when they arrived in this country a few weeks ago. When they came here they enrolled in the adult school conducted through the cooperation of the federal government.

Recently they were promoted to the fourth grade reader by Supervisor W. E. Marshall who is in charge of the school.

"So don't count the Breckenridge team out. The game has not started yet. If they are trailing at the half don't count them out. Wait until the final gun fires.
