Lack of National Planning Brings on a Huey Long

Sometimes the different items in the's news tie up together more closely than you'd think at first glance. Here's a little sample:

The wires a few days ago reported that the National Planning Board has submitted its findings, after some months of study, urging long-range national planning "as a means of richer life for the masses and an indispensable bulwark against violent expositions.'

This was hardly out of the oven before another story came floating over the wires-this one a dispatch reporting that the ineffable Huey Long of Louisiana was preparing to run for the presidency in 1936.

Now these two items seem as far apart as the poles, when you first read them. But they are directly and logically connected with each other, after all.

It does not take more than a moment's thought to make one realize that this projected presidential candidacy of the loud voice from the delta is an excellent example of the "violent expositions" which the national planners' re-

For there is always this to remember about Senator Long: He is, after all, the spokesman for a large number of people who feel that, if he does not speak for them, nobody will.

He may represent demagoguery at its most dangerous. but he also represents a blind but powerful resentment which is boiling up from the bottom of the kettle and which is bound to have an outlet.

People do not hand political power over to such men out of pure perversity or wrong-headedness. They do it out of desperation.

Such men come to the top on a wave of public unrest; and his unrest appears only when large numbers of people grow convinced that it is hopeless for them to expect to get anywhere by proceeding along more orthodox lines.

The great irritating factor in all this depression has been the fact that it has been without any obvious physical cause. We have the plant to provide all our people with an abundance of everything they need, if we can only find the way to set it going.

If we don't succeed pretty soon in devising some sort of broad plan that will enable us to do it, the number of people who are not horrified by the thought of Huey Long in the White House is apt to swell to an alarming total

While the New Utility Cooker brings to you the possibilities of enjoying old-fashioned meals in addition, it permits you to prepare foods by the newer methods of cooking without water.

Science has discovered that there is so much natural moisture in all meats, vegetables and fruits that it is entirely feasible to cook them with little or no water.

About the only reason why we have cooked with water was to avoid burning. Water distributes the heat evenly, conducting it away from the point nearest the fire.

our foods we have poured off the excess water and with it we have poured the bone-forming, teethbuilding minerals; the iron, calcium and phosphorus that constitute the essential elements which the human system must have. With the new perfected Utility Cooker you can prepare foods deliciously tender and full of these health-building elements. The Utility Cooker is ideal for the housewife who wishes to practice this modern, more healthful and more economical way of cooking.
