Harmony Seen As 74th Congress Convenes

COUNTY WILL START NEW WORK PROJECTS SOON

By United Press
AUSTIN, Jan. 3.—Work relief projects to employ 474 men at a cost of $43,329 are being planned by the engineering department of the Texas Relief commission today.

Chief administrators were consulted with a case load of 300 destitute families as they seek relief for January. The load has increased 8.9 per cent over December's 270,795 cases.

About 21 per cent of the state's population was on relief rolls in December and highway projects in Eastland county will employ 26 men daily.

Eighty-eight houses will be built in Eastland and six counties at a cost of $18,500. Lumber for bridges will be provided from condemned railroad tracks in Freestone county.

Aims and Duties Of Lions Groups Outlined Today

An interesting session was held at the Lions Club today when the chairman of each standing committee gave a few minutes' talk on the aims and duties of his special committee for the year 1935.

It has often been said that a man thinks better in a pinch and when he is on his feet than at any other time. That was well proven today since not a chairman of a committee knew that he would be called on to talk. The remarks were well chosen and it appears that the entire Lions Club will be better off for having had the program they did today. A motion was made and carried that at the next meeting of the club every member bring two suggestions in writing to be filed with the secretary. They were, first, a method of raising money to carry on some civic improvement. Second, a suggestion as to some activity the club could sponsor for the civic betterment in this year.

After all had spoken the President, Colonel Braubier, put all the talks together into a charge to the club to grow throughout the year through active, constructive service.

MARGINAL OIL WELLS UNDER NEW ORDERS

By United Press
AUSTIN, Jan. 3.—Marginal wells in Texas were under a new production order today. It specifies just how much each well may produce. Col. E. O. Thompson of the railroad commission, said the order does not reduce the actual production of any well. It reduced the specified amount to what they are actually producing.

Computed this way the state total production becomes 998,612 barrels a day instead of 1,001,057.

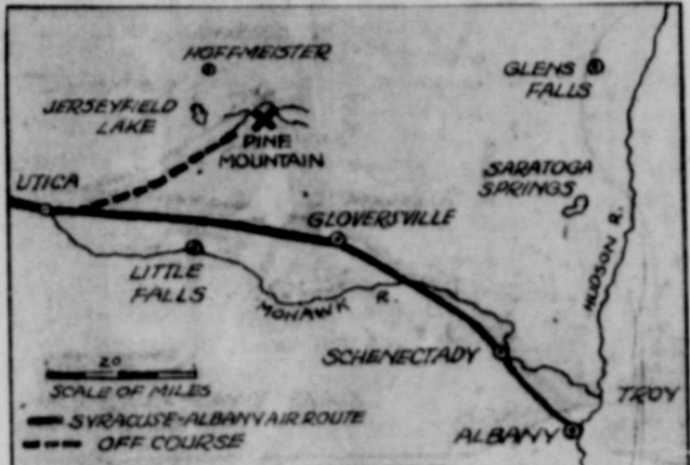

It gives the state a margin of several thousand barrels a day to allow new wells and new fields.

The west Central Texas field, principally is affected.

It is reduced 6,000 barrels a day to 25,000 barrels.

Marginal wells are those which are allowed a production maximum on the theory that less production will prove unprofitable and endanger the wells.

Where Rescue Came in Air Crash

Stamped indelibly on the memories of four men are the events that occurred in the territory shown on this map. The quartet, three flyers and a passenger, were marooned far up the side of Pine Mountain, N. Y., in the Adirondacks, when a 14-passenger American Air Lines plane crashed after going off its Syracuse-Albany route in a snowstorm. They were rescued 50 hours later in sub-zero weather after their shattered craft and their campfire had been sighted by Pilot Dean Smith, left.

ONLY TWO NEW OFFICERS TAKE OFFICE IN COUNTY AT BEGINNING OF YEAR

New Year's found few changes made in courthouse personnel.

A new county superintendent and a new county treasurer, however, greeted those who visited those offices that day.

Claiborne Eldridge took office as county superintendent, succeeding B. E. McGlamery. John White occupied the office of county treasurer, succeeding Mrs. Mae Harrison.

T. J. Haley was in and out of the court dates back to 1927. Judge Funderburk has been with the court since his appointment by the governor and his subsequent elections.

Judge W. P. Leslie and O. C. Funderburk continue as associate justices.

Judge Leslie's connection with the court dates back to 1927. Judge Funderburk has been with the court since his appointment by the governor and his subsequent elections.

Judge B. W. Patterson and G. L. Davenport continue as judges of the 88th and 91st courts, respectively.

STATE OPENS KIDNAP CASE IN NEW JERSEY

By United Press
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 3.—The State of New Jersey today branded Bruno Hauptmann as "the man who dealt Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., a murderous blow, crushing his skull, and who later stripped from the dead child's body the tell-tale sleeping garment to use for his evil purposes."

In his opening statement to the jury of eight men and four women Attorney General David Wilentz declared the kidnap plot and the murder were conceived and executed by one man, "the prisoner who sits before you behind his distinguished counsel."

Wilentz carried to the jury a picture of the peaceful Lindbergh manor in the Sourlands on the night of March 1, 1932. He gave a picture of a merry child romping on the Lindbergh estate, loved by the family and servants.

His description of the commission of the crime produced cold chills. He told how the state "will prove" the crime had been plotted for a long time and the former German machine gunner was its plotter.

He described how the abductor fled down the ladder from the nursery he had robbed and how he dealt a "crushing blow" to the small head.

"Then," he shouted, "this man fleeing with the dead child, the child deliberately killed, found part of his burden too heavy. He discarded the ladder and stripped and yanked the sleeping garment from the body. Half an hour later he escaped and dug a shallow grave and placed the body, face down in it."

"The man who did this," he said, "is in this courtroom."

He turned. And for 10 seconds gazed steadily at Hauptmann.

Hauptmann, stolid, impassive, returned the gaze.

Wilentz's outline of the case provided the first dramatic scene in the courtroom. As he spoke not a sound could be heard beyond the rustle of paper and racing pencils.

Appreciates U. S. After Nazi Jail

By United Press
MIAMI, Okla., Jan. 3.—An officer and a gunman were dead today, two other officers wounded and posses sought two or more fugitives in the tri-state area after two gun battles at Picher Lane last night.

Deputy Sheriff Gerald Hodge, 35, Miami, and Buster Cooper, suspended bank robber, died of gunshot wounds during the night. Hodge was shot through the heart. Cooper was believed to have fired the fatal shot.

Some of the officers on the case believed Raymond Hamilton, southwestern desperado, was in the gun battle.

IS PLEDGED TO SUPPORT THE RECOVERY PLAN

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The 74th congress convened today in command of southern leaders pledged to enact President Roosevelt's recovery legislation.

Danger of radical legislation diminished when legislators met. Business, seeking white house protection, finds foundation for confidence that Mr. Roosevelt will be able to control this congress on most issues.

Immediate payment of $2,100,000,000 to war veterans in exchange for their service compensation certificates, does, however, promise a hot fight and possible defeat for anti-business new dealers.

Industrial improvement and re-employment of millions of the jobless depend largely now on the house and senate, which met today for the first time after the democratic sweep of last Nov. 6.

Two-thirds majorities in both houses claim allegiance to the administration, but democratic forces are divided on banking, industrial relief and social security legislation, which will top this session in importance and bitterness in debate.

Mr. Roosevelt waits in the white house for word from congress that it is in session and ready to hear any message he may care to deliver to a joint session tomorrow. He will report on the state of the nation. Monday congress will receive his budget message.

Eastland President's Rites Held Wednesday

Funeral services for Rev. Arthur Jones, 64, former resident and pastor of the Christian church in Eastland, who died in Austin Tuesday, were held Wednesday morning in Austin with burial at Caddo Park.

Ranger Man Finds Hawks Nest Built Of Strands of Wire

Owen Bray, at Adams & Co., Main street, Ranger, has a hawk's nest that is constructed almost entirely of wire, thought it is lined with wool, cotton, rags and pieces of rabbit fur.

The nest was found atop a windmill on an abandoned ranch 11 miles from Roswell, N. M., when Bray was hunting. He said that he located six of the nests in the vicinity, all of which were made of wire, and some of which were firmly anchored on trees, while several were on the windmill.

It required a lot of work and considerable time to get the nest down, Bray says, because it was tightly wired to the windmill tower, the wires being wrapped around the shafts and woven back into the nest. Several long strands of barbed wire were also used in making the nest, while only a few twigs and limbs were used.

A few nests weigh seven and a half pounds and though it has been tossed around considerably it has not lost its shape.

Sunday School Class To Have a Banquet

A banquet by the Oil Belt Bible class of the Central Baptist church of which Wallace Wagner is teacher, will be held at the Gholson hotel Friday night.

The banquet is the outgrowth of a contest between two teams, one captained by T. P. Anderson and the other by Joe Dennis. Anderson's team lost and the banquet is being planned in payment of the contest prize.

A good program has been worked up.

Meeting Called to Talk Over Plans of Consolidation Move

A joint meeting of the directors of the Retail Merchants association and the Chamber of Commerce is to be held Monday night for the purpose of going into the details of consolidating the two organizations.

At meetings of the directorates of the two organizations, which were held separately, each appointed members of a joint committee to discuss and go into details of a plan of consolidation. After a long meeting the committee was reported to be unanimously in favor of the consolidation and worked out temporary plans for a new setup under which the new organization could begin working out the details of reorganization.

Practically every merchant in the town, and every one of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce who attended the first meeting when the committee was appointed, spoke in favor of the consolidation, indicating that the consensus of opinion was decidedly in favor of the movement.

NEW FEDERAL OIL CONTROL PLAN URGED

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Creation of a new federal agency with jurisdiction over the petroleum industry was recommended today in a report of a house interstate commerce subcommittee.

The subcommittee's plan was presented after study of a report by the planning and co-ordination committee for the oil industry, which presented similar recommendations.

The house committee program, however, differed at several points with that of the industry group. It was drawn after examination of many suggestions for remedying the industry's ills.

The committee praised results which had been made by Harold Ickes, but recommendation against continuance of the oil regulation in its present form.

The reports suggested a new agency which would absorb many activities in various departments of the federal government. Jurisdiction over other natural resources was also suggested for the agency, which might be developed out of the bureau of mines.

The report stated that study indicated the petroleum administrative board, as now constituted, should not be continued.

Death Sentence of Ernest Oglesby Recalls Crimes

The approaching date for the electrocution of Ernest Oglesby in McAlester, Okla., Jan. 4, has recalled remembrance to courtroom circles of the time when he was convicted for 12 theft and burglary charges in Eastland.

He was assessed five years each for 12 charges on which he was convicted in 88th district court at Eastland in the March term in 1929. Indictments against him charged him with entering homes or residences that included Frank Castleberry's, C. L. Hyatt's, M. F. Allen's and J. Ellison's.

Oglesby was assessed the death sentence for the fatal shooting of Douglas Gates, Oklahoma City officer in 1933.

Mrs. Mary Oglesby of Baird, mother of the sentenced man, up to Wednesday had been denied two audiences with Governor Murray of Oklahoma in her attempt to obtain executive clemency for her son.

The case was tried in court at Eastland in 1933 and White was given a two year sentence.

An indictment was returned against White recently by a grand jury on a burglary count.

Better Prices For Crude Oil Are Forecast In 1935 Outlook

Better prices and elimination of widespread marketing waste were forecast today for 1935 in the oil industry, on the basis of general improvement made this year with federal aid.
Prominent American oil company executives, federal and state oil control officials and leaders of industrial associations drew the picture for the new year in the annual United Press oil review.
Federal supervision of crude oil production and shipment is due to continue, they said, but the industry seldom has been more united than in its current fight against outright federal control of any part of its operations.
The review found numerous major company heads still critical of New Deal measures for the industry. A test of federal oil activities under the New Deal was pending in the highest court.
Strong opposition was ready for bills expected to be offered in congress, at the instance of the Petroleum Administrative board, to give the government a firmer grip on the oil business. At least part of this proposed legislation was to be aimed at elimination of some of the plethora of filling stations and related gasoline distribution agencies.
Pending adoption and effectiveness of some form of interstate pact for control of crude oil production, the industry was willing to support only legislation making permanent the section of the National Industrial Recovery act which regulates shipment of petroleum and its products in interstate commerce.

It was that section which stamped out hot oil (grade oil produced in excess of allowances) in 1934 and aided in reducing production and reserves to the point where 1935 will be able to justify and perhaps increase the artificial, but sustained, crude prices of 1934.
The year 1934 passed without discovery of any new major oil field anywhere in the world. So did 1932 and 1933. The oil executives pointed to these facts as most significant from all angles, especially from that of prices.
Better prices for crude were forecast because of the lack of new supplies. For more than three years the industry has been drawing on its crude reserves at the rate of 540,000,000 barrels per year, this being the rate of consumption in excess of newly discovered reserves.
East Texas, with its vast flush field, reported steadily declining pressure in wells. The likelihood was that before the end of the new year this area, cause of most of the worldwide industry's pains since March 1931, would have lost its pulsance and gone "on the pump."

But the most romantic and imaginative figures in the industry, such as Gov. Ernest Whitworth Marland of Oklahoma, were Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as oil code administrator, said: "I feel that steady improvement has been maintained through 1934 in the industry, and that we have been working consistently toward our objective of conserving national petroleum resources. Great returns have been realized by the industry and by employees of the industry.
As a fundamental part of this improvement, production has been soundly curtailed as a conservation measure and to prevent waste. I have grave doubts as to whether a workable interstate oil compact can be formulated, agreed upon and put into operation.
While we have not realized every objective in the administration of the code, we have progressed far from the depths of confusion prevailing barely sixteen months ago. With adequate legislative provision to assure the continuation of our program I am optimistic that 1935 will witness the realization of our primary objectives of true conservation and sound stability."

In Russia more than 100 were shot for plotting against the Soviet; in Bulgaria 500 were jailed for plotting a Soviet state. But in Russia, that ends it.
Ford Engine Given Direct Ventilation
A new system of direct-flow ventilation, its principal purpose to prevent contamination of the lubricating oil, is embodied in the engine of the Ford V-8 for 1935, now on display in the showrooms of Leveille Motor company, local Ford dealer.
Built as an integral part of the engine, the new crankcase ventilation system acts primarily to remove water vapor from the crankcase. Since water aids in the formation of sludge, removal of the vapor practically eliminates this condition. Vapor elimination also reduces the possibility of water collecting and freezing in the oil in cold weather and possibly blocking the lubrication system.
Crankcase ventilation also aids in reducing oil dilution. The continuous flow of air through the crankcase and valve chamber tends to lengthen oil life and minimize engine wear. In addition, engine fumes are prevented from entering the body of the car.
In the Ford V-8 crankcase ventilation system, the air is forced by the fan into a scoop at the rear of the engine. The draft is carried through a duct down into the crankcase, then passes upward into the valve chamber, and finally downward and out by way of a vent under the front of the evaporator.

W. S. Farish, chairman of the Board of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, said that such improvement in 1934 was due primarily to the pegged price of crude. He said that while this was beneficial to the industry as a whole, it resulted in many inequalities.
Farish said that "federal control of production within a state is of doubtful legality and is certain to be challenged in the highest court." Less than two weeks later, G. A. Sadler, an independent East Texas refiner, filed suit in the federal district court demanding an injunction against enforcement of federal restrictions on interstate shipments of crude, on the contention that they were discriminatory in that they applied only to the East Texas field.
The issue of federal regulation under the oil code, and the code itself, already were before the United States supreme court in the Amazon and Panama company cases from East Texas. Members of the court, in hearing arguments on constitutionality of the recovery act on Dec. 11, expressed dissatisfaction with records of oil code administration.
Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as oil code administrator, said: "I feel that steady improvement has been maintained through 1934 in the industry, and that we have been working consistently toward our objective of conserving national petroleum resources. Great returns have been realized by the industry and by employees of the industry.
As a fundamental part of this improvement, production has been soundly curtailed as a conservation measure and to prevent waste. I have grave doubts as to whether a workable interstate oil compact can be formulated, agreed upon and put into operation.
While we have not realized every objective in the administration of the code, we have progressed far from the depths of confusion prevailing barely sixteen months ago. With adequate legislative provision to assure the continuation of our program I am optimistic that 1935 will witness the realization of our primary objectives of true conservation and sound stability."

WEAR BOILED SHIRTS

WELLESLEY, Mass.—Wellesley College girls thought that the firemen had gone high hat when they answered an alarm sent from the college in formal evening clothes. The men, dressed in swallowtails and boiled shirts, fought the blaze. It was learned later that they were about to attend the annual fireman's ball when an alarm was sounded and they were forced to answer the call after they were dressed.

Thirty-six thousand were killed in automobile accidents during 1934. So, you see, there are some of us who still get away alive.

Cereal Concern Increases Wages

BATTLE CREEK Mich, Jan. 3.—During the present economic upset volume and wage scales have been increased by the Kellogg Company, world's largest manufacturer of ready-to-eat cereals, while employment during 1934 was nearly 20 per cent greater than in 1929. Advertising and sales promotion will be at a high watermark for the company during 1935.

"Throughout the major part of the past few years our plants have operated on a 24-hour a day schedule, with the 6-hour day working shift and the highest wage scale ever paid our employees.

"The Kellogg Company has employed many advertising media in helping to gain these objectives. Each has performed a valuable function but since the earliest days of the Kellogg Company, newspaper advertising has been the backbone of our effort.

"Cooperation of the newspapers and the flexibility of this type of advertising have enabled us to concentrate our efforts where they are most needed, with a minimum of delay, and have proved to us over and over again the outstanding value of newspaper advertising.

"We face 1935 with even greater confidence born of our experience during the past three years."

OLD GRINDING STONE FOUND
NORTH LOUP, Neb.—Ancient grinding stones, believed used by some primitive inhabitant of Nebraska, have been unearthed here. Leveling a hill, workmen, discovered the flat grinding stones with flint arrowheads, pieces of baked clay and bones. Presence of ashes mingled in the relics gave rise to the belief the find may mark the site of some ancient camp.

That new star in the sky is reported to be getting brighter, but it will have to go some yet to rival those in Hollywood.
