Success Lies In Hopes That Are Fulfilled

Representative John S. McGroarty of California, preparing to do legislative battle for the Townsend old age pension plan, is warned by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt that this plan is raising false hopes. To which he replies, somewhat caustically, that the whole New Deal program "has raised a hell of a lot of false hopes."

In this one sentence the gentleman seems to have put his finger on the distinguishing feature of the present era — that thing which makes it both a more encouraging and a more potentially dangerous time than any in recent years.

It is an era of hope; of high hopes, some of them, held by people in all classes of society. The course that our society will take in the next generation may easily depend very largely on the extent to which these hopes can be satisfied.

It is no disparagement of Mr. Hoover to say that the final year of his administration was a time of discouragement. That happened because of the inexorable march of events. Everything seemed to be sliding down hill.

We actually got so that we took a kind of morbid delight in pessimistic forecasts. No one dared look to the future with true confidence.

Then, for one reason or another, our mental attitude changed. The greatest gain made in the last two years has been based on that change. We became hopeful again.

We stopped expecting everything to go to pieces day after tomorrow, and started to comfort ourselves with fine dreams in the old American tradition—dreams about the great things that were about to be done in our country.

But if this has been a great gain, it has also carried with it the seeds of great risk. When many hopes are aroused, it is inevitable that some of them must be false ones. Not everything can be set right overnight.

Not all the schemes for self-betterment can be sound. Someone has to be disappointed.

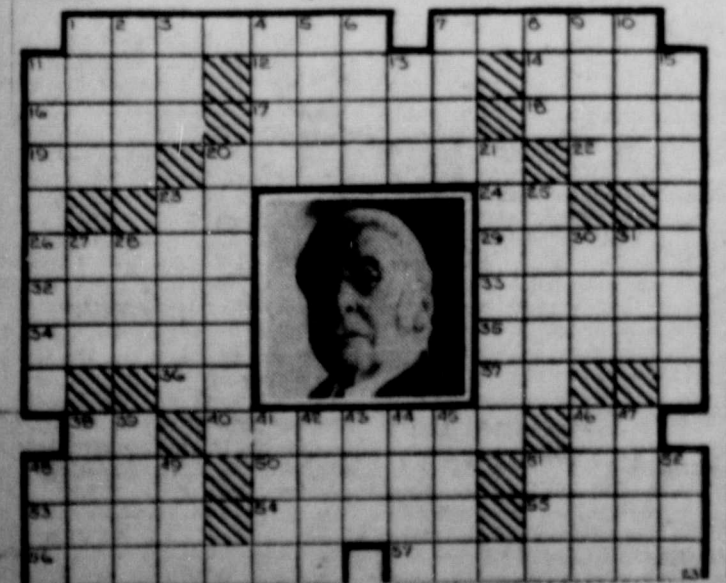

And in this inevitable disillusionment lies danger. The greatest responsibility that lies upon the administration today is to see that there is as little disillusionment as possible; to fulfill, wholly or in part, as many of the new hopes as may be humanly attainable.

Which is just another way of saying that the government, now as never before, must be responsive to the desires of the people. Its success or failure will be judged, eventually, by the percentage of these hopes that it has been able to satisfy.

Advertising is profitable for a community or state as well as for an individual or private corporation.

CROWING "TURKEY" CAUSES TROUBLE

SEATTLE—A "turkey" that crowed brought trouble to Tom Singleton and Jim Hayden. The men were carrying a large paper-covered package when Officers E. N. Johnson and Charles Meyers accosted them. "That's a turkey," said Singleton. Just then a lusty crow issued from the package. Investigation showed it contained two hens and a rooster. The men were jailed for investigation.

Jewel Salesman Slugged, Robbed

SIoux CITY, Ia., Jan. 23.—Three bandits slugged Sol Roseman, New York jewelry salesman, and escaped with $125,000 in diamonds after a battle with police. One of the trio hit Roseman on the head with a revolver, seized the diamonds and jumped into a waiting car. A policeman saw the robbery and chased the bandit car. He drove it into a blind alley. The thieves opened fire, shooting the way out of the trap.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

Weather Wisdom for Gardeners

The map above, prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture shows the eastern half of the U. S. divided into zones according to the average date of the last killing frost in the spring. Christmas is a festival of spring. It is celebrated when the sun starts north from the equator. Newspaper headlines often proclaim that the shortest day of the year is the beginning of winter, but gardeners know better. Once the days begun to lengthen, signs of spring appear in the garden. Buds swell, bark changes color, mysterious growth processes unfold even in coldest weather. With many hardy plants, the period of freezing is as necessary to their development, as the warmth which follows. Spring is near at hand and it is time to make plans for sowing seeds just as soon as it is safe. How can the safe date be determined? "Beating" the weather is a gamble which many a backyard tiller is willing to take on the chance that he may have his first crop of lettuce or radishes a few days before his neighbor. It is still a gamble, however, and the gardener who would rather be reasonably sure of his crop had best make some inquiries of his local weather station. The date of the latest recorded killing frost in your neighborhood is an important factor. It will give you a basis for figuring just when you can take a gambling chance on any early garden with a good chance of winning. The latest killing frost on record is about a month later than the average date and so it is usually safe to plant the hardiest seeds a month ahead of it. The period of time between the latest and the average killing frost date increases as we move away from the seashore. In New York there is a margin of 20 days in St. Louis the average date is 38 days earlier than the record freezing date. Cleveland has a day difference and Chicago about the same as Cleveland. Lower 30 days is playing your garden a month before the latest recorded killing frost. There are many vegetables which frost will not injure, provided it is not freezing weather, general all the root crops are freezing weather. In general the root crops are hardy and not mind frosts so long as they are not frozen; most of the crops for greens are in the same category. But only one crop, the mature seeds of which furnish a delicious food, can be called hard and that is the pea, and only certain varieties of the pea. So while it is freezing or snowing outside gather up weather data and figure the date for the earliest possible start this year. If a waste of seed to start too early and a waste of time to start too late. The frost record will give you a reliable basis of giving just the right time. If the plants should be nipped you are not out much but if they are not you are just that much ahead with the garden and the odds are greatly in favor of seeing a killing frost. If the Townsend plan was adopted, the fast life we're living today wouldn't be half fast enough.

Double Burden On Taxpayers Is Subject of Study

By United Press
CHICAGO.—The most obvious form of double taxation—collection of revenue from the same source by two separate agencies such as federal and state or two states—is but one of the methods by which collectors "get the taxpayer coming and going."
There are four other tax conditions, each more serious, according to James W. Martin, research director of the Interstate Commission on Conflicting Taxation.
The general definition of double taxation, Martin said, is a duplicate tax levy that discriminates between certain types of taxpayers, whether it is levied by one jurisdiction or more than one.
Thus, double taxation may arise in a single taxing district in the case of a general property tax which defines as taxable property both the stock of a corporation and the realty it owns.
Another taxation conflict reported by Martin is technical difficulty arising from indifference of one taxing jurisdiction to the levies of another. If a corporation does business in several states, it is likely to encounter several bases for computing capital gains or depreciations. Varying legal interpretations of the same statutory provisions present another aspect to this difficulty.
On the other hand there are at least two constitutional provisions which deprive revenue collectors of tax funds, Martin said.
One prohibits state taxation of interstate commerce. If, for example, a shipment is made from Cincinnati, O., to Cleveland, O., freight tariff receipts of the railroad company are taxable. However, if the same shipment originates in Ludlow, Ky., a mile across the Ohio border, and travels exactly the same line, Ohio cannot levy the tax.
The second may be the outgrowth of competition between various commonwealths for economic advantage—as seen in the recent Florida constitutional provision exempting movie producers from income tax, Martin said.

Texas Goats Provide Material For New "Third Dimension" Art

Texas Angora goats supplied the materials with which Russell Patterson made this unique "third dimension" picture, "Beauty in Mohair." He used the new mohair velvet fabric used on Fisher Bodies on the new General Motors cars—practically all of which is being displayed at the current automobile shows. Patterson is seen showing the picture to Miss Constance Carpenter, musical comedy dancer and his model for the picture.

Non-Freeze Lake Water Failed to Work In Radiator

By United Press
GENEVA, N. Y.—Farmer Dell had a great idea.
The more he thought of the idea, the better it seemed—to Farmer Dell. He confided in no one. He wanted to test it first.
The farmer's inspiration came from a peculiarity of Seneca Lake, one of the state's most famous beauty spots.
The lake very seldom freezes, despite the fact that surrounding waters are sheets of ice. Only in the most severe cold spells will the lake develop more than a skim of ice. There are various scientific explanations, including the great depth of the lake and its uniform year-round temperature. That didn't interest Farmer Dell. All he cared about was that the lake didn't freeze.
Farmer Dell's idea, as he later admitted, was to fill the radiator of his automobile with Lake Seneca water, and save the cost of purchasing non-freezing agents.
To his surprise, the water which would not freeze in Lake Seneca turned to ice so quickly during a zero cold wave that the radiator burst in several places.

Girl Soldier Is Buried By Lover

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The body of a girl soldier who apparently died at the side of her Union sweetheart has been uncovered on the battlefield of Shiloh by CWA workers.
While excavating old Indian mounds on the banks of the Tennessee river, CWA men accidentally drove their picks into a grave of nine unknown Union soldiers. Only skeletons and uniform buttons remained.
Eight of the Northerners were men. The other was a girl, about 17 or 18 years old.
Buttons of the infantryman's coat rested on the fleshless chest of the girl. The Confederate bullet which killed her was found inside the skeleton.
There was no clue to the identity of the men or the girl. They apparently had been found by Northern burial squads and dumped into an unmarked grave. That one of the nine was a girl evidently was not discovered.
The grave was so far from the center of fighting that it had been overlooked when Shiloh's national cemetery was established.
It was believed the girl was a native of Illinois, Indiana or Ohio. Bodies of soldiers of an Illinois regiment were found near the scene of the girl's death.
She was believed to have been in the group of frightened midwest recruits who marched up the Tennessee river from Pittsburg Landing to face their baptism of fire.
Her body now rests with her eight companions in a new grave at Shiloh cemetery. Above the grave is the inscription, "Nine Unknown Union Soldiers."

Peanuts Are Jinx For Racing Ace

By United Press
WASHINGTON.—"Wild Bill" Cummings, national automobile racing champion, believes peanuts are his jinx.
No less an authority than Mrs. Cummings, the racer's wife, is responsible for this disclosure.
Mrs. Cummings said "Wild Bill" won't let her eat peanuts. She said that every time someone has eaten them around him before a race he has been jinxed.
Cummings is so superstitious about the nuts, his wife added, that she doesn't dare eat them even when she is watching him from the stands.
She revealed also that Bill isn't fond of meeting cross-eyed people before a race. And once when he lost his daughter's baby shoes he threatened to quit racing.
Mrs. Cummings said her husband drove well in traffic. She said "he doesn't drive fast, but he weaves around everything."
Cummings, who set a new record while winning the Indianapolis Speedway 500-mile race last year, also like airplanes and motorcycles.

like this—without heat or anything to eat and that baby sick."
The other woman turned. "Where else can I go?" she said. "What if I do?"
"My brother's bringing someone," Gale told her "and there are potatoes and bread and canned tomatoes in that basket. But Mary, I think you should have a doctor. The way that baby coughs—"
Mary Cassidy folded the blanket closer about the child's head. "I tried to get the Summers, she said. "I sent Ruthie but he said no, he couldn't come because I don't work at the mill no more."
There was a knock at the door and Gale opened it. A short, stout woman in a rusty black coat stood on the threshold. She had tied a strip of red cloth about her head in place of a hat.
"How's the baby?" the woman asked.
"I don't think he's any better," Mrs. Nicoletti, Gale said. "I wish we could get a doctor. He's been coughing—"
The child's body made a spasmodic movement and the harsh wheezing cough broke out again.
The woman who had just entered started forward. "Croup!" she said emphatically. "That's what it is. My Esther used to have it every winter."
SHE turned and saw the older child standing wide-eyed in the corner of the room.
"Ruthie," Mrs. Nicoletti went on, "run down to my house and tell Esther to give you the bottle of Ipecac. She knows where it is. And hurry right back! Your brother's awful sick—"
The little girl said, "Yes," picked up a coat and disappeared through the door.
"Have you got hot water?" Mrs. Nicoletti went on. She had taken her own coat off, was moving about energetically.
"I will have in about a minute," Gale said. "I've just got the fire to burning."
Mrs. Nicoletti bent over the child in Mary Cassidy's arms. She pursed her lips together, shook her head sadly. "Croup!" she repeated. "That's what it is. Listen to him!"
The mother held the baby closer. Fear shone in her eyes, making the pupils tiny, dark points. "He's had, ain't he?" Her voice was husky. She spoke as though the words were being torn from her. "We got to have a doctor. I got to get one somehow!"
Gale was working at the stove, trying to make the flames rise higher, turned. "I'll go," she said. "There are other doctors in town besides Doc Sommers. I'll find one."
Mrs. Nicoletti shook her head. "No," she said. "It ain't a doctor we need; it's Ipecac. I know what to do for croup—didn't I bring my Esther through it every winter for four years straight?" She leaned toward the child. "Let me take him, Mary."
"The water's boiling," Gale announced.
"Good."
The outer door opened and Ruthie Cassidy reappeared. "Here it is," the little girl said eagerly, holding a bottle forward.
"That's it," Mrs. Nicoletti agreed. "Now then, we can get to work!"

Gale said, "Mary, you can't stay here like this—without heat or anything to eat and that baby sick."
"Sh!" an older woman said warningly. "Do you want everybody to hear you?"
"I don't care who hears me!" the other insisted, but her voice dropped.
"There's no use talking that way, Wilma Claridge," the red-haired girl spoke up. "What are you trying to do—make Mary feel worse than she does?"
Gale Henderson had edged her way into the group. The woman who had been weeping hysterically was quiet now. Gale put a hand on the woman's arm. "Listen, Mary," she said, "you mustn't feel so dreadfully."
MARY CASSIDY raised her head, dabbed at her eyes. "It's the kids," she gulped. "It wouldn't be so bad if it was only me. How m I go to get anything for the kids to eat if I can't work? Where'll they stay? Her eyes filled with tears again. "The rent's back two months now," she went on. "They'll put us out—"
Gale interrupted. "No," she said. "They won't put you out. Maybe next week you'll be back working again if there's anything you want tonight come over to our house. Or no—I'll drop in to see you. Right after dinner. And remember it doesn't help to worry."
Others spoke up encouragingly, over-cheerfully. The false note of confidence in their voices was obvious, but Mary Cassidy dried her red-rimmed eyes. Sure, they told her, more than likely she'd be back at the mill in a few days. Not more than a week. In the meantime there were others similar to Gale's. No one had much to give,

Roman Candles Whipped Birds

By United Press
PHILADELPHIA.—The fireworks display recently staged for the purpose of removing the thousands of starlings from around the library here, seems to have been successful.
Last month the library staff gathered around the building and let loose a barrage of Roman candles. Much to the discomfort of the birds, today the birds look askance at the inviting caves of the building and then fly on to other places where they are treated more cordially. Their main location of habitation is now the Academy of Music.
Starlings are not adverse to noise—they love it—but the Roman candle stunt was too much. They didn't like the sudden noise coupled with the blinding colored light.
Pigeons on the other hand pay no attention to the fireworks, but do not have any time for people who turn little streams of cold water onto them while enjoying the comforts of home in some lofty crevice. The pigeons favorite hangout is around city hall and the postoffice.

Miss Smith Leads Program
The Y. W. A. of the First Baptist church met Tuesday night in the home of their sponsor, Mrs. Miss Smith.

The program was an interesting study of "The Land Where the Cedars Stand," led by Miss Estelle Smith. Following a song, "O, Zion Beate," Mrs. Corby read Psalm 24 for the devotional.

There was a prayer for missions and discussions of condition in Palestine and other countries.

Plans were made for an "industrial hour" to be had in the home of Miss Estelle Smith on next Tuesday night.

Refreshments were enjoyed by Misses Wainwright, Eula Phillips, Phyllis Preslar, Estelle Smith, Fayline McGee, Aida Mae Miller, Margarette Lester, Mamye Robinson, and Mrs. Cosby.

Important Meeting of Teachers and Citizens Thursday Night
All officers and teachers of the First Methodist church are asked to report at the church Thursday night, 7:30 for an important discussion which centers around the standard training course to be conducted in Eastland next week.

Rev. J. M. Bond extends an invitation to anyone who might be interested in the course and asks that they meet with the group tomorrow night.

Cooper Circle Meeting With Mrs. Brasher Thursday
Cooper circle of the Women's Missionary society of the First Baptist church of which Mrs. Glenn Curry is chairman, will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Col. Brasher, 1111 Oddie street at 3 o'clock, for the lesson to be taken from the 10th chapter of John.

Mrs. Curry is anxious that all members be present, since the study will be a continuation from the last one and has the promise of a worth while hour.

Anderson Home Burglarized By An Intruder Tuesday

Mrs. Anderson returned to her home about 9 o'clock and found a window screen had been removed and the window jimmied. She called assistance, saying that a man was in the house, but he had apparently fled before neighbors arrived.

Two drawers had been ransacked, everything in them being taken except one shirt, which was likely left when the intruder fled.

California Tightens Auto Speed Laws
SACRAMENTO, Calif.—California's speed laws will be enforced almost to the letter in an attempt to curb the rapidly mounting fatalities on highways.

E. Raymond Cato, chief of the state highway patrol, has ordered all patrolmen to arrest any motorist traveling more than 50 miles an hour, regardless of circumstances. The speed limit is 45, and no more than a five-mile margin will be permitted.

Heretofore, fast drivers were warned, while speed on good highways where traffic was not congested received little attention.

Warner Baxter Has Romantic Role In Arcadia Feature
Described as a thrilling romance of death and danger in the skies, the new Fox film production, "Hell in the Heavens," starring Warner Baxter, will begin an engagement at the Arcadia theatre today.

Star of a long and notable series of screen hits, including "The Cisco Kid," "Grand Canary," "In Old Arizona," "Stand Up and Cheer" and "Paddy the Next Best Thing," Warner Baxter is said to contribute his greatest performance in seasons to the new Fox film. This time he is cast as a flier in the Lafayette Escadrille, who is promoted by death to fill his captain's place.

Haunted by "the fear that he will be afraid," the lieutenant struggles to combat it. Love helps, in the form of dashing Conchita Montenegro. At length Baxter meets the "Baron," most daring and dangerous of German aces, in close conflict high above the clouds—and solves his destiny through courage.

Fox has surrounded the star with one of the most distinguished supporting casts in years. Conchita Montenegro, who appeared with Baxter in "The Cisco Kid," is again his leading woman. Russell Hardie, seen recently in "Pursued" and "As the Earth Turns," has an important juvenile role.

Other members of the cast are Herbert Mundin, Andy Devine, Ralph Morgan, Vince Barnett, William Stelling, J. Carrol Naish and Johnny Arthur.

Good Program For Scout Meeting Is Planned for Friday
A good program has been arranged for the meeting of Troop 9 for next Friday night, to which every member of the scout troop has been invited.

Last Friday night the Star patrol did not have their part of the program ready, so they combined with the Fox patrol and are going to give a real surprise next Friday night, they have announced.

The troop reporter, Foy Sanders, reports that R. A. Steele, the scoutmaster of the troop, "has something up his sleeve" for Friday and warns all scouts to be present at the meeting.

General Strike Is Called In Mexico
TAMPICO, Mexico, Jan. 23.—A general strike went into effect at 10 a. m. in Tampico.

All activities in the city ceased except electric light service, drug stores and bakeries. Approximately 25,000 men in the various labor unions refused the government's request to postpone the strike.

If this strike is not slowing things down, it will be a more successful one than the one that started in the city of Mexico last week.

For they can't do it. They only have the bones and a more successful one than the one that started in the city of Mexico last week.

A Doctor Knows!

And doctors use a liquid laxative

Leave the rest to nature

There's a very good reason why doctors and hospitals have always used liquid laxatives! You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The
