Tornado Does Property Damage in Del Rio

AN AUXILIARY MEMBERSHIP DRIVE FOR COUNTRY CLUB IS OUTLINED AT MEETING

An enthusiastic meeting of members and others interested in the Del Rio Country Club, met in the Colonial ballroom of the Ghoslon hotel Thursday night, with Sam Gamble, president of the Country Club, presiding, to discuss a drive for auxiliary memberships.

At the opening of the meeting, President Gamble explained the purpose of the meeting and the auxiliary memberships, pointing out that the auxiliary members would have access to all the facilities of the country club, with the exception of the golf privileges.

He pointed out that the club was in the best financial condition in its history, owing only $292.93 and said that it was an organization that every business man in Del Rio should join if he is not a member at present.

It was mentioned that new facilities to the club would be added, including better picnic grounds, facilities for parties, both indoors and out, where gatherings of a community nature could be held. An attempt is to be made to push the social side of the country club more in the future and make it more attractive that everyone in town will feel it is his civic duty to belong. The sentiment of the members present was to encourage the use of the country club's grounds and clubhouse more in the future by all regular and auxiliary members.

The members present were enthusiastic over the work that has been done by President Gamble and his officers and directors, and it was pointed out by several that the club had really progressed each during his regime. He was warmly congratulated upon the improvement that has been shown by the organization during his term of office.

Members were also enthusiastic over the results of the meeting, which indicated more interest in the country club than has been shown in several years, and a number of regular members and auxiliary memberships were secured at the close of the meeting from among the 40 to 50 who were present.

A. N. Larson was appointed chairman of the auxiliary membership drive, a movement that has been tried in several other country clubs in the state and which has proved in each instance to be highly satisfactory. Others appointed on the committee were Milton Brashier, J. C. Smith, Jimmie Matthews, John Hassen, H. L. Vaughn and Clyde H. Davis.

Tentative plans were discussed for a chicken barbecue for the regular members, auxiliary members and other guests.

An annual invitation golf tournament is to be held sometime this spring, after the close of the membership campaign, though the plans have not as yet been completed nor the dates set.

It was mentioned at the meeting that the "golf bug" was already beginning to bite, and some of the golf stories were beginning to circulate, though most of the scores mentioned were made when the player was making the rounds alone and did not have any witnesses to verify his count of strokes.

The regular memberships have been lowered to $5 membership fee and $24 a year dues, while the auxiliary memberships there is no membership fee, but a yearly dues of $12.

Boy Scouts Will Plan a Clean-Up Routine Tonight

Announcement was made today that a meeting of Troop 9 and Troop 10 of the Ranger Boy Scouts would be held tonight at 7:30 in the American Legion hall for the purpose of outlining the work to be done by the Boy Scouts in the coming clean-up campaign, which is being sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

Hauling Committee Of Clean-Up Drive Holds First Meeting

The hauling committee of the Ranger cleanup and sanitary campaign, being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, met in the office of the executive secretary this afternoon for the purpose of working out details of hauling trash during and after the campaign. Wade Swift, chairman of the committee, was presiding at the meeting.

This is one of the first committees to meet and outline plans for the campaign, though other committees are expected to meet prior to the opening of the campaign, which starts on Monday, March 25.

Cotton Futures Up In Brisk Trading

NEW YORK, March 22.—Cotton futures ran up more than a dollar a day today after passage of the Patman bonus bill. Trading was active with outside buying noted.

July rose to within striking distance of the 11-cent level.

GERMANY IS CONFIDENT ON HER POSITION

BERLIN, March 22.—Germany, confident in her position is diplomatically dominant, will demand a bigger navy as well as a big army and air force, it was said on reliable authority today.

The demand it was said, will be made by Hitler in negotiations with Sir John Simon Monday and Tuesday.

It was believed Hitler was little disposed to make political concessions, such as acceptance of an Eastern European treaty, a pact of Danubian nations or a speedy return to the League of Nations.

It was not expected Simon would make, at first, a concrete offer for recognition or rearmament as legal because of the law for compulsory army service and militarization of the air force which precipitated the crisis.

The colonial concessions were mentioned but will not figure prominently.

As regards the navy it was said Hitler would demand one or three times as large as Britain. This would give Germany 387,000 tons as against her present 150,000 and France's 555,000.

He was expected to make it clear that Germany did not intend to build up to the demanded strength now. His argument was expected to be that Germany needed the ships for coast defense and they would be no menace. Germany was expected to seek small ships including 10,000-ton "pocket battleships" and submarines.

Former Belle Now Lives In a Hut

AMARILLO, Texas.—A mean adobe hut today houses the "Belle of Wild Tascosa," once called the most beautiful girl in West Texas. Now 30, her face is marked deeply with wrinkles.

She is Mrs. Mickey McCormick whose husband lies in a grave in notorious "Boot Hill" cemetery, last resting place of raucous cowboys and ruthless killers, victims of six-shooters in the wild days of West Texas.

Tascosa, once the rendezvous of riders of the old Chisholm Trail, lies molding in the dust of the plains country, its former glory only a memory.

The ragged little town had 21 saloons, numerous gambling houses and other places frequented by cowmen on their drives from Texas to Kansas.

All that remain are stories of Billy the Kid, the Catfish Kid and other outlaws, the old Tascosa courthouse which now is the headquarters of the Julian Bivins ranch, Boot Hill cemetery—and Mrs. McCormick's adobe hut.

Mrs. McCormick has lived in Tascosa since Mickey fell mortally wounded by a killer's bullets. All efforts to persuade her to go to a home for the aged have failed.

She vows she will be the last of the Tascosans. And her last wish is to be buried with her vivid memories of the wild west alongside Mickey in Boot Hill cemetery.

RANGERS' WAR ON GAMBLING TO CONTINUE

AUSTIN, March 22.—The rangers' war on gambling houses and saloons will be continued "without quarter," Gov. James Allred said today.

He announced he will speak to the Texas citizens tonight from 8 to 8:30 p. m., over a southwest radio hookup on the campaign against law violation.

"I want the people of Texas to know the shameful conditions that have prevailed in communities where these raids have taken place," he said.

"This war is on between open saloons and gambling houses and the law. There will be no quarter so far as the governor is concerned or the adjutant general."

He said he will take his text from the senate crime committee report on investigations of law violations, particularly as the report applies to communities already raided by rangers and local officers.

In the plaintiffs' original petition it was alleged that Moore and company Oct. 21, 1933, unlawfully took possession of a steel derrick located on the S. A. Davis farm seven miles northwest of Eastland.

The plaintiff alleged that removal of the derrick resulted in loss of $1,200.

Hopkins Warns Politicians Not To Meddle In PWA

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins today gave notice to politicians to "keep your fingers out of our business" of feeding the nation's needy.

"We won't tolerate political meddling. Whenever the playing of politics gets into relief I mean to get rid of it—and damn fast, too," he said with characteristic bluntness.

He said his stand had been approved by the White House.

PWA investigators have been checking records for months to prevent graft on projects financed by federal money. Their reports resulted in indictment of seven in an alleged plot to defraud the government in a $4,835,000 Texas irrigation project.

How Our Scions May Reduce Their Worries

Apparently one of the reforms we need down in Washington is a measure that would save politicians from themselves.

One of the commonest complaints of the hard-worked congressman—and most of them, by the way, do work very hard—is that greedy job-hunters take up so much of his time that he is hard put to do the work for which he was elected.

That being true, you'd suppose that when congressmen had a chance to reduce the number of posts open to spoils-men they'd jump at it. It is obvious that no one could pester a congressman for jobs that were completely out of the congressman's control.

Before the present session is over, it looks as if the lawmakers would get a chance to protect themselves in this matter. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska has introduced a bill to take the Postoffice Department completely out of politics, and he intends to have it voted on before adjournment.

Senator Norris' bill is one of those proposals which are so clearly and unmistakably in the public interest that it is hard for the innocent citizen to understand why they aren't passed with a rush and a whoop.

Under it, all postmasters would be put under strict civil service rules. They would be appointed by a postmaster general whose term of office would be ten years instead of four, and who would be barred from all political activity. Their appointments would not be subject to senatorial confirmation, and the jobs would be permanent.

All appointments would be made on merit, and a system of transfers would be set up so that a career service similar to that in the State Department could be worked out.

Merits of such plan need no argument. The Postoffice Department is really a gigantic business organization; this scheme would simply have it run in a business-like manner, with a complete divorce from politics.

And it ought to be a great relief for the congressman. No longer would he have to spend a couple of hours a day talking to candidates for the postmastership at Leaking Creek. One of his major worries would be removed. His life would be smoother and easier.

All these things considered, the bill ought to pass in jig time if it ever comes to a vote. Senator Norris insists that he will get action on it before the session ends. It will be enlightening to see what the congressmen do when this proposal comes before them.

Expect Many at Endeavor Meeting At Cisco Friday

CISCO, Texas, March 22.—With "My Church and Myself" for their theme, Christian Endeavorers of the mid-west district of the Texas Christian Endeavor Union will open a three-day convention in Cisco this evening, to last through Sunday.

Through addresses by leading pastors and laymen of this district and discussion by groups all centered upon the convention theme, scores of young people will seek a clearer conception of their relationship to their churches and practical ways in which they may serve them, it was announced.

The convention will be called to order this evening at 7:30 p. m. After the regular session this evening, a social hour has been planned, during which the Endeavorers from the entire district will get acquainted with one another. Each society represented will present a short skit and the most nearly unique skit will be awarded a prize.

Of special interest to Endeavorers of junior and intermediate age are the sessions on Saturday morning for each of those groups. The high light of the convention will be the banquet Saturday evening at 6 o'clock.

Sunday morning the Endeavorers will be transported to Lake Cisco for a sunrise prayer service. During the regular hours for church, delegates are cordially invited to attend the church of their choice. Sunday afternoon at 2:15 the closing session will begin. At this session the officers of the Mid-West C. E. union will be installed, after they having been chosen by the convention on Saturday night.

The address for the afternoon will be on the theme of the convention, "My Church and Myself." The convention will close at 4:30 p. m., with a great Mizpah circle in which all delegates pledge themselves to follow Christ through Christian Endeavor.

Convention headquarters are at the First Christian church, Joe Bob Winston, chairman of registrations, reports that 140 delegates have already paid their registration fees. "It is hoped that this number is not half of the final total," he said.

All registered delegates will be entitled to lodging Friday and Saturday nights, and breakfast Saturday and Sunday mornings, in a Cisco home.

of the silly subdebers theres a time and place for everything they say but we dont know where they belong except in a zoo hi hi come see the monkeys at their tricks theres still quite a bit of talk going on about the school board cutting out the j c dance and the h s dance the students seem to think this is an infringement on their rights as the annual dance is an old ranger custom why the board decided that to dance this year is a sin and a shame we dont know again the murray mooney affair this apparently endless repetition is getting on our nerves perlease make up your minds and although it may not be any of our business we carry a grudge against jack on account of gadsys because we think she is plenty much o k george is squiring betty jean around quite a bit lately we were really glad to see our good friend bull reed back in our little village from his reports in midland he is having a swell time vician still wonders why she lost her love from eastland it seems that it takes a car wreck and a good scare to make certain lost lovers return to each other from all comments on junior smith the gals think that he is cute as the devil earl brown is the big sheik of the high school he is always wearing a nice looking sport suit maybe the cisco boys arent so particular who they go with the popular subdebs (thats what they think) have been journeying to eastland quite a bit lately bill and

KING VIDOR'S "OUR DAILY BREAD" DUE

King Vidor launches his career as a full-fledged independent producer with "Our Daily Bread," the powerful human drama which is scheduled to come to the Arcadia theatre Friday.

Although Vidor has been making his own productions for years, this is the first time he has done his own financing, which puts him definitely in the independent producer class, along with Samuel Goldwyn, Darryl F. Zanick, Douglass Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and other producers who release through United Artists.

Vidor established headquarters in Hollywood at the United Artists studio, where he shot his interiors.
Most of the picture, however, was taken on location at Tarzana, the Edgar Rice Burroughs ranch in the rolling San Fernando valley, where the largest set built this year was constructed.

The story concerns an average young city couple, down on their luck, who take a new lease on life and love when they find themselves transplanted to a farm, and surround themselves with a group of disinherited folks, like themselves, from all walks of life.

Expecting to find peace and happiness close to nature, they are surprised to encounter emotional conflicts more stirring than any that confronted them in the whirling vortex of the city. Their love is threatened by a beautiful, unscrupulous blonde who enters the picture and causes an upheaval in the lives of the sweet, devoted little wife and all those around her.

The cast, headed by Karen Morley, Tom Keene, Barbara Pepper, John Qualen and Addison Richards, is an unusually large one,

Texas Masons Plan Gigantic Monument

HOUSTON.—A committee of Texas Masons have awarded the contract for the first unit of a $15,000 marble monument at the San Jacinto battleground as a memorial to early Texans who helped establish the order in the state.

Masonic leaders said the purpose of the shaft was to commemorate "those pioneer Masons who served in the engine out of a wilderness and laid the foundation of Masonry in Texas."

Dedication ceremonies will be held April 22. The monument, a shaft 42 feet high, was expected to be completed by April, 1936.

The monument will be placed on the field where the late General Sam Houston defeated the Mexican General, Santa Anna.

The government has paid off a lot of its debt with profits made when it devalued the dollar. To an administration like that, it ought to be no trick at all to produce funds for the Townsend plan, work relief, etc.

The DARK BLOND

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MILlicent Graves' employer, George Drimgold, tells her he has a confession to dictate and warns her against a woman in a black ermine coat.

Millicent leaves the office and sees such a woman. Later she finds her purse has been taken and a similar one substituted. In the elevator she meets a distinguished-looking man of middle age.

Returning to the office, Millicent finds Drimgold dead. In panic she rushes away and registers at a hotel under an assumed name. Next day she meets the stranger again. He tells her his name is Jarvis Happ. Happ sends her to a beauty shop where, in spite of her protests, she is transformed into a brunet.

Happ takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. Robert Caise, Happ's stepson, accuses Millicent of being the girl sought in the Drimgold murder.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII
Millicent knew there was no use denying Robert Caise's accusation that she was the girl the police were looking for. In the first place, the photographic evidence was damning. In the second place, she realized that to question the conclusions he had reached would simply make him more difficult to handle. So she stared steadily at him and said, "Well, what are you going to do about it?"

He started to say something, then paused as he heard the rattle of the doorknob.

"Nothing," he said. "Sit tight." He turned and was, apparently, just leaving the room as Jarvis Happ and Dick Gentry entered.

"Just getting some staff, he said, keeping his eyes averted from those of Jarvis Happ. "Hope I'm not intruding?"

"Not at all," Jarvis Happ said, but Millicent noticed there was something about his voice that was not entirely cordial—a certain harshly strained note of suspicion.

When she glanced at his face, however, she was able to see nothing in his eyes. His face was a perfect mask.

He indicated a small table.

"I think," he said, "you'd better sit there for the present. Miss Graves. Tomorrow I'll purchase a secretarial desk and have it sent up here. Then you can get at things in a businesslike way."

She seated herself and the two men lit cigars. Jarvis Happ went on talking in his smoothly eloquent voice—a voice which seemed so certain of itself, so soothing to tired eardrums.

"Dick and I," he said, "each put in $5,000 as capital and started speculating in stocks. I may as well confess to you that we were selling stocks short. I see nothing whatever wrong with that type of business transaction. However, of late there has been a certain public sentiment against it."

"When one realizes that commodities are going down, there is no sane reason why he shouldn't capitalize upon that knowledge. Moreover, were it not for the so-called 'short' sales, the market would soon pyramid itself up to such a frenzied peak of hysteria that when a crash came, as it would be bound to do sooner or later, the entire investment structure of the country would be jarred to its foundations."

"However, the fact remains that our speculations were very profitable. Dick has been handling the business end of the venture. We've taken a great deal of money out, and there's still a large amount in undistributed profits. Some of this we have put into a manufacturing business which has been one of the few manufacturing businesses to show a profit during the present period. I telephoned Dick this evening and asked him to bring all of the books and data which he has, and turn them over to you."

Jarvis Happ nodded toward a suitcase in the corner.

"They're all there," Gentry said, smiling.

Millicent met his eyes and realized something of the man's vital force. Here was a man who smashed through obstacles—a man who went after what he wanted, and was never satisfied with half-measures. He was, she realized, watching her strangely.

"Just what," she said, "do you wish me to do?"

"I want you to take all the data that's in there," Mr. Happ said, "and open a set of books."

"When shall I start?"

"As soon as you conveniently can," he said. "You can open a set of books all right?"

"Oh yes," she said. "I'm experienced as a bookkeeper. I worked in the office of a certified accountant for more than two years. Gentry removed the cigar from his lips, stared thoughtfully at the smoke which curled upward from the end.

"Jarvis," he said slowly, "let's not rush into this thing too hastily. Frankly, I'm not in favor of opening up a set of books on this thing. You've got commitments and so have I. I'd prefer to keep this as a little informal partnership."

Jarvis Happ shook his head and said, "The deal's to big, Dick. We're going to get in trouble with the income tax people and you know it."

Gentry sighed. "If it wasn't for the damned income tax," he said, "we'd be sitting pretty on this thing."

Happ's gesture with his cigar was one of impatient dismissal.

"But," he said, "there is an income tax, so why sit here and waste time talking about what we would do if there wasn't an income tax?"

Gentry nodded slowly.

"When can you start on the books?" asked Jarvis Happ.

"Right now," Millicent said, and, pushing back her chair, moved over toward the suitcase.

Gentry made a quick motion as though to stop her, then sat back and laughed.

"Well," he said, "that's commendable zeal."

"No," Happ said, "not tonight, Miss Graves. You've had a strenuous day."

Millicent shook her head, picked up the suitcase and said, "It would be a relief to have something on which I could concentrate. Would you mind very much if I started looking things over tonight?"

"Not at all," Happ said. "Suit yourself. If you're going to start working you might prefer to take them into your own room."

"I think," she said, "that I would."

"Go ahead," he told her.

She started for the door, but Dick Gentry gained her side in two swift strides.

"Permit me," he said, "to carry the suitcase for you. It's heavy."

Insull Is Weary of Court Grind

A bored Samuel Insull sits in court in Chicago, at his second trial growing out of collapse of his utility empire, urging "Let's get it over with."

With his son, Samuel, Jr., the elder Insull is shown here as he faced the charge of embezzling $65,000 from one of his holding companies.

The suitcase was indeed heavy, and she surrendered it to him with a smile, leading the way down the corridor to her room. She opened the door. Gentry stepped in swiftly after her, dropped the suitcase on the floor, and kicked the door shut.

"Listen," he said, "how did Jarvis happen to pick you up?"

She faced him defiantly.

"Mr. Happ," she said, "employed me after having made an investigation of my references, and that's what you mean. I assure you there was nothing of the 'pick-up' about it."

"I didn't mean that," he said. "I wanted to know how he happened to get in touch with you."

"Don't you think," she asked, "that it would be better to ask Mr. Happ about that?"

"No, I'm asking you."

"Very well, Mr. Gentry. Under those circumstances I will speak to me?"

Gentry's eyes slid over her features as a woman's fingers slide over a pair of silk hose she is contemplating buying.

"I might," he said, "at that. It's an idea."

"Are you crazy," she asked, "or drunk, or both?"

He looked down at the suitcase and laughed.

"You didn't have me bothered at all," he said, "until you told me that you'd worked for a certified public accountant. Now I know what's going to happen, and we may as well have an understanding now as later."

"Which is?" she asked, making another ineffectual attempt to free herself from his arms which circled her waist in a tight grip, holding her hips pressed closely against his, although he made no effort to pull her face closer to his, but seemed content to look down at her in contemplative appraisal.

"Oh, damn it!" he said. "You're going to find it out within another 24 hours, and I don't want you to run and blab to Jarvis Happ. You won't be looking at those books very long before you'll realize that you can make me do anything you want. You see, I'm . . ."

He was interrupted by a knock at the door.

Abruptly he pushed her away from him, turned and twisted the knob of the door.

Jarvis Happ was standing on the threshold. His eyes were cold.

"I was just wondering," he said, with suave urbanity, "if you had found the room all right?"

"Oh, yes, I found it all right," Gentry said, "and was just giving Miss Graves some instructions in regard to opening the books."

He turned and flung a meaning glance over his shoulder as he stepped out into the corridor. "Remember," he said, "what I told you. Think it over carefully when you start to open the set of books."

The door closed.

Millicent Graves jumped toward the suitcase, curiosity filling her

Mr. Happ and ask him to answer your question."

She moved as though to open the door and Gentry grabbed her shoulder, pushed her back from the door, then suddenly shot an arm about her waist, held her close to him.

She pushed at his chest with her hands.

"Now wait a minute, sister," he said, "don't get excited. I'm not trying to pull anything funny."

She realized that she was helpless, and simply quit struggling, staring up at him with her face a cold mask.

"When you have QUITE finished," she said, "with your caveman tactics, perhaps you'll . . ."

"Forget it," he told her roughly. "That's not what I'm after. Use your head, you little fool."

She saw that his eyes drifted uneasily toward the door.

"Listen," he said, "there's no reason why you can't be sitting pretty in this thing. Do you understand?"

"What do you mean?"

"You're not a fool, he said, "and if you're a girl who's had a bit of experience working for a living you understand that it's a life that doesn't get you any place. You can make a living, I grant you that, but that's all. You'll put in all of your youth slaving over a typewriter somewhere, and as soon as your youth has gone you'll find that you're crowded into the back with more pep, more beauty, and more vitality, who can stand the gaff and keep smiling. You'll get shoved back into a corner some where, get a lot of gray hairs, and wind up by being . . ."

"Wind up by being a woman who has lived her own life and been true to herself," she interrupted him. "If you don't like the way I'm living my life, you can kindly let me go and . . ."

"You still don't get me," he said. "You're young, you're beautiful. How would you like to travel while you've got the beauty to attract men? How'd you like to take long ocean trips where you were thrown into contact with men of money and influence, where they would have to notice your beauty? How would you like to take in the swell places of the world, see Monte Carlo, Europe? How would you like to get your gowns in Paris, spend your winters in the south? How would you like to really live instead of managing to barely exist?"

"Are you," she asked with a snarl, "proposing marriage to me?"

Gentry's eyes slid over her features as a woman's fingers slide over a pair of silk hose she is contemplating buying.

"I might," he said, "at that. It's an idea."

"Are you crazy," she asked, "or drunk, or both?"

He looked down at the suitcase and laughed.

Regular Elimination

The proper use of Thedford's Black-Draught, (for constipation) tends to leave the bowels acting regularly. It is a fine, reliable long-established family laxative.

"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught fully thirty years," writes Mrs. J. E. McDuff, of Elgin, Texas.

"I had trouble from constipation is why I first began the use of it, and as it gave perfect satisfaction I do not see any reason to change."

Another good thing about Black-Draught that helps to make it so popular—it is NOT expensive. Thedford's Black-Draught

Options Secured On Large Tract For Colony Farm

G. W. Sturdivant and Mr. Hagg of Colony, who have been assigned by the Chamber of Commerce to secure options on a tract of land near Colony for one of the government maintenance farms, reported to the Chamber of Commerce that their first days work had been highly successful.

During the first day the two men secured options on 1,028 acres, with two owners of large tracts not yet contacted, and they reported that they believed they would have little trouble in signing up the required number of acres.

Another committee, sent out by the Chamber of Commerce to another tract of land south of town, did not get to do much work Thursday, but had fairly good results to report. As this tract is owned, in the most part, by only about three landowners who reside out of the county, they are to be contacted by letter and their options obtained.

The Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the movement to secure one of the federal maintenance colonies for Eastland county and the officers are well pleased with the results of their labors so far.

Books In Ranger Library Popular

The books in the Ranger public library are proving themselves so popular that statistics kept show that the rate of circulation of each book is approximately once a week. As books may be checked out for the period of one week only, this would mean that all the books are in circulation all the time. This is not the case, however, because some of the books circulate several times within a week.

The books are borrowed from the state library in Austin, and are frequently changed to give a new supply of books to our readers. Recently a new shipment of books were added to the collection. These include western stories, mysteries, and light love stories as well as some of the best of the recent fiction.

Anyone desiring to read these books may borrow them from the library absolutely free of charge. The library in the high school building is open on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights from 7 until 8, as well as during school hours on school days.

GOOD NEWS travels fast!

Bad news used to have the reputation for speed. But such is the demand for the good things of life today that good news travels even faster.

The carriers of many of the good tidings that every one is eager to hear are right before you. They are the advertisements in this newspaper. They bring good news about soap and cereals and sedans and cigarettes. Good news for the housewife. Good news for the business man. Good news for every one who believes in comfort and happiness.

Let an automobile maker in Detroit or an orange grower in Florida develop a finer product. You will hear about it—not in a couple of years, not just "some time." The whole new story will be rushed to you on the wings of the greatest good-news service in the world—advertising.

Advertisements are filled with the kind of good words you like to find. They tell you of new products, new improvements in well-known merchandise, new values and new ways to increase your well-being. And always they tell you not only where and how to purchase goods of assured merit, but also the way to be certain of obtaining 100 cents' worth of value for every dollar you spend. Read them—and get their good news regularly.

F.A. Boys Visit Poultry Farm And Dairy Thursday

By HOWARD KENNEDY Thursday afternoon 18 boys in second year class of vocational agriculture including those who working towards the dairy and poultry teams journeyed to Mineral Wells and to Dr. Norwood's farm. Dr. Norwood owns the Norwood farm of Mineral Wells, but is a lover of outdoor life and dairy and animal breeding. The farm of Dr. Norwood lies probably three miles north and east of Mineral Wells and is the same type of soil that is characteristic of Palo Pinto county. The first impression that one of ranch upon seeing it from the hilltop is a favorable one. The buildings and lots are well arranged and modernly equipped. At least 70 head of cows are being milked daily. Among this number, head are Holstein and 50 are Jerseys. Milking here is done daily, beginning at eleven o'clock at night and eleven o'clock the mornings. The dairy barn will hold 40 head to be fed and milked and it takes only 55 minutes to milk the head, using vacuum milkers. Dr. Norwood has his own refrigeration plant to help take care of milk and eggs.

After the milking was over the boys from here who are trying to do the dairy judging teams had chance to judge their first Holsteins. Two classes of Holsteins are judged and discussed. Dr. Norwood breeds and raises the Lehigh strain of the English Game strain. At present there are three pens of hens producing fertile eggs with some- thing like 300 hens per pen and several small pens. There are breeding pens of 275 birds, which are yearlings and from which his hatching eggs come. This is used in the ration fed to the hens to make the eggs more valuable. Dr. Norwood has his feed and grist mill and he feeds all his feed and does his mixing of mash and grain.

The boys trying for the poultry team had a good work out judging the hens of the laying pen. M. L. Tierce, hatchery man at Mineral Wells, explained to the boys considerable by going into detail and explaining the points and placings. All the boys agreed that they would like to know poultry as Mr. Tierce does.

The sponsor and boys wish to thank Dr. Norwood for his hospitality and for the courtesy shown them on their visit to his farm. The following boys made the trip: Gerald Stevens, Dean Walsh, Crawford, F. C. Williamson, Neal, Roy Spiess, Fred Jones, David O'Keefe, Evert Jones, Jessie Milburn, Bob and Hodges, Ross Hodges, Stanley Snyder, Betty Hinman, J. B. Mason, Howard Kennedy and Walter, P. A. Tanksley.

VISIT MINERAL WELLS HATCHERY

The F. A. boys had the privilege of visiting the hatchery run by Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Tierce in Mineral Wells Thursday. Boys of the poultry team had a good work out here judging eggs and selecting them.

The hatchery carries two 16,000 egg unit incubators and both are in use. Then too the hatchery has a 3000 egg hatching unit of the automatic control.

Mr. Tierce was very nice in showing the hatchery business to the present government set-up.

Mr. Tierce demonstrated the test of chickens for white feathers. "Before long all flocks have to be tested for such because an egg can be sold or hatched as a specialty," explained Mr. Tierce.

The boys wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Tierce for their help.

Rev. Stephens Is Lions Club Speaker

Rev. H. H. Stephens, who had charge of the program at Thursday's Lions club, apologized to the membership for being caught in town on the day he was to appear on the program. He fully intended to be a long way from Ranger and thus avoid burdening his fellow Lions with a talk, he said. However, he gave an interesting talk on "Life."

Reports were heard from the committee on the safety drive in Ranger Friday. Every member of the club expressed himself as being heartily in favor of the drive, which is purely a voluntary movement though backed by state laws governing the driving of automobiles.

R. V. Galloway, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, told the club of the meeting at Thurber and the celebration at Weatherford in honor of the opening of the new Highway No. 89, and the opening of the new overpass at Weatherford on that highway. He invited all the Lions to attend if possible. The committee appointed to decide on the type of entertainment, the place and the time for the annual ladies' night was asked to continue its work and see the program through that has been outlined by them. The date decided upon is Thursday night, April 17.

Officers Seeking A Gypsy Slayer

By United Press DALLAS, March 22.—North Texas officers were engaged today in a grim game of hide-and-seek with a band of gypsies, sought for questioning in the fatal slugging of B. D. Wood, 27, near Bennington, Okla.

One group of eight were questioned all night at Denton and were released today as officers surrounded another group at McKinney, where 15 or 20 women and children were encamped with their expensive automobiles. Several men with the group at McKinney last night had disappeared today. The women said the men had gone to look for work.

By United Press OKLAHOMA CITY, March 22.—Oklahoma officers began a series of arrests of gypsy men today in an effort to turn up the man who beat B. D. Wood, 27, to death.

Four were arrested here. Six were held at Muskogee. Officers in western Oklahoma were looking for a caravan in camp near Clifton. Conflicting stories were told by the wanderers and it appeared the investigators knew who the killer was.

HOUSE PASSES PATMAN BILL TO PAY BONUS

By United Press WASHINGTON, March 22.—The house passed today the $2,000,000,000 Patman inflation bonus bill.

Passage came as a climax to a desperate last minute drive of anti-inflation blocs to shelve the controversial measure and pass the Vinson bill. The inflation proposal won by only three votes 207 to 204.

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop) By Cowen

A cheering house greeted passage of the Patman bill, which in two previous sessions had won approval only to be killed in the senate. The bill provides for payment of the adjusted service certificates in "new money" and carries a provision designed to act as a brake on unbridled inflation. Veterans would receive the 1945 cash value of their certificates, minus loans they have been made. The same bill in slightly different form passed the house in 1932 and 1934.

Senate inflationists battled today for more and cheaper money. Their fight, lead by Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, threatened to cause delay in the work relief program. Thomas plunged the relief measure heading into a double headed debate on silver inflation and the bonus. He coupled the bonus with his silver purchase plan and sent the senate into a discussion on money, currency and taxation. Thomas move placed and bonus and the silver plan before the senate as amendments to the work relief bill.

—so far as we know tobacco was first used about 400 years ago — throughout the years what one thing has given so much pleasure..so much satisfaction

Today the Governor of North Carolina says to the Governor of South Carolina— "Have a cigarette"

TODAY people all over the world use tobacco in one form or another. They chew it, they smoke it in pipes, they smoke cigars and cigarettes, and here is what an eminent physician said about cigarettes: "I have been something of a student of cigarettes, and it is my belief that they offer the mildest and purest form in which tobacco is used."

Yes, nowadays the cigarette is the most popular form in which tobacco is used. A good cigarette certainly gives men and women a lot of pleasure.

Maddocks, who was unable to attend due to the illness of her husband who has been confined to their home, 700 Sixth street, for the past two days.

LAUGHTON CHOSE STAGE, DISAPPOINTING PARENTS INTENT ON NAVAL CAREER

When Charles Laughton, featured in the title role of Paramount's "Ruggles of Red Gap," coming Saturday and Sunday to the Arcadia theatre, decided to follow the stage instead of the sea, the English navy lost a second rate admiral and the stage and screen gained one of its foremost figures. The decision of this eminent English actor, who plays his first full length comedy role in "Ruggles of Red Gap," to emulate the career of Sir Henry Irving instead of that of Lord Nelson came as a severe blow to his parents. They had nurtured him on Marryat's novels, "The Life of Nelson," and had even taken him to Trafalgar Square in London in the hope that its heroic reminders would waken a responsive chord in his breast. They were, in fact, intent on making him a midshipman, and in time and with luck an admiral on a quarterdeck.

But Laughton, however, evinced a decided preference to Shakespeare over seamanship at the early age of 12 and stuck to his guns. The best land job Laughton could find was clerking at a London hotel, the Claridge. The job was a clearing-house of faces, noses, gaits and accents, and Laughton fascinated in watching them almost forgot to add his figures. In time, however, he became hotel cashier, then resigned to enter the war.

After the war, he decided to indulge his dramatic propensities and enrolled at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. Just seven years ago, Laughton got his first part in a Russian play, acting one of those psychopathic characters which would win him undying fame in the theatre. And, although he made a late start, he worked to the front rank of London stage players in almost no time at all.

As "Ruggles," in the film version of Harry Leon Wilson's satiric novel of the West in the early 1900's, Laughton makes his first venture in to straight comedy. Plump and roundish, with his face adorned with butler's side-burns, he gives a most realistic performance both as a butler-valet and an English restaurateur in the cow country.

Mary Boland, Charlie Ruggles, Roland Young, Zasu Pitts and Deila Hyams support Laughton in "Ruggles of Red Gap," the comedy of a man who was a gentleman's gentleman in Europe, but a regular guy in the United States.
