We Are Not Yet Set For World Unity

That sad and solemn noise you hear under the shouts and alarms from Europe these days is probably the dirge that is being chanted over all that is mortal of the League of Nations.

With one tribe after another doing the war-dance about a flickering camp fire, international politics is rapidly shaping up into precisely the kind of mess which the league was designed to settle. And the league, defied and mocked over a period of many months, is no longer relied on by anyone to handle the situation.

Before the I-told-you-so chorus grows too triumphant, it might be a good idea to try to figure out just why the league has failed.

The chief reason seems to be that it was a magnificent theory tossed into a world that wasn't ready for it. It was so far ahead of its time, in fact, that most of us have never quite realized just what it was intended to do.

For the league was not designed as an international debating society, or as a forum through which nations could negotiate a settlement of their differences. It was meant to be an instrument more powerful than any of its members, so that it could compel nations to abide by the decisions of international society.

It was based on the idea that if it pays for small states to group themselves into a nation, it also should pay for large nations to group themselves into a super-state.

Thus the very features of the league covenant which aroused the most opposition were the ones most vital to the league's success. The league had to be able to enforce its decisions; to do that, it had to know in advance that it could call on its members to use their armies and navies in the league's behalf.

The people of the United States refused point-blank to agree to anything of the kind. A few years later Great Britain took a similar step, refusing to sign a blank check for use of the British navy by the league.

The organization was thus hamstrung. Its chance to be a super-state was killed. It remained only for the course of events to prove its impotence.

Pacifists are fond of saying that ordinary people don't go about their daily business armed to the teeth to avert trouble—the intended moral, of course, being that nations needn't do so either.

But the point is that ordinary people go unarmed because there is a police force and an organized body of law to handle disputes for them. The league was nothing less than an attempt to provide such institutions on an international scale.

The plan collapsed when nations refused to limit their own sovereignty. We seem to prefer a system of intermittent warfare to a system of enforced peace.

The world as a whole is not yet ready to submit to international control for the common good.

Smiles, not frowns, scare trouble away.

TEXAS FARMS

SEYMOUR—More than 4,000 feet of subirrigation tile were laid by 18 farmers in Baylor county in January and February of this year, according to F. C. Colgin, county agricultural agent. In addition to the amount already laid, 2,015 feet of tile are still in the hands of three local men who are making tile for sale and in the hands of three farmers who have not yet laid it in their gardens. During 1934, 10,600 feet of subirrigation tile were laid by Baylor county farmers.

WICHITA FALLS—Using parts of old clothes to hook into a gully sack foundation, Mrs. Leon Rankin, home industries demonstrator for the Frerberg Home Demonstration club in Wichita county, made a top for a foot stool, according to Miss Bessie Lee Sikes, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Rankin made the foot stool from a piece of waste lumber and four discarded stove legs and a bit of left over black enamel. Her only cash expense was 10 cents for black upholstery tacks which she used to fasten the top to the stool.

COOPER—A sandwick bedspread has just been completed for 20 cents cash by Mrs. T. A. Mosley, member of the Enloe Home Demonstration club in Delta county, according to Miss Mary Louise Ramsey, home demonstration agent. As a foundation, Mrs. Mosley used heavy feed sacks which were permanently crinkled and resemble homespun. The thread used for the embroidery was the kind used by milling companies for sewing up sacks. When this was doubled it was heavy enough. Mrs. Mosley's only expense was for the thread.

FALFURRIAS—At a cost of $3.75 for lumber and labor, Mrs. J. T. Sharp, 4-H pantry demonstrator of the Falfurrias Home Demonstration club in Brooks county, put 21 feet of shelving in her kitchen to store her canned goods conveniently and systematically, according to Miss Louise Hogue, home demonstration agent.

Although the canning season for vegetables has not begun, Mrs. Sharp has 108 jars and cans labeled with the 4-H pantry labels to place on her shelves. Of the 108, 61 containers were citrus fruit products made from the fruit of a few citrus trees in her own back yard and from two bushels of grapefruit given her. The cans are organized on the shelves according to the plan recommended by the extension service.

and walked down the corridor to her own room. She had barely opened the door and stepped inside when she realized that someone else was in the room. She whirled toward the closet. Vera Duchene emerged from the closet. "What are you doing here?" Millicent demanded.

"Just returning your visit, dearie," Vera Duchene said. "What right have you to enter my closet?" Vera Duchene, smiling sweetly, said, "I just wondered how it happened your dress got all covered with mud, dearie." And Vera Duchene held out before her the dress which Millicent had been wearing the night before. (To Be Continued)

I'm going to start with. Millicent said nothing. "Make some notes of the appearance of the handkerchief," Hupp said. "You can make a sketch of the lace border if you want to." Millicent took the handkerchief, spread it on the desk and, as she did so, carefully looked it over to make certain there were no distinguishing marks which would identify it as being hers. It was a handkerchief which had been in the pocket of her fur coat, and, she suddenly remembered, was one of a pair she had received from a friend for Christmas. The other one must be in her trunk. She heard Jarvis Hupp saying, "I also have some good news for you. I understand that the trunk which you had as Millicent Graves is going to be stored by the police. I think that I can arrange to get access to that trunk and if there is anything in particular which you want..." Millicent interrupted hastily, "Oh, don't do that! It would be dangerous and, beside, I don't need anything in there. You have been most thoughtful in providing clothes for me. I have absolutely everything I need."

"Nevertheless," he said slowly and, she thought, perhaps ominously, "there will be certain things that you might like—your own lingerie—your handkerchiefs, for instance." She found it impossible to say a word by way of answer. "And now," he said, "please get busy on this little job of detective work I want you to try to find Vera Duchene's handkerchief and see if you can find a handkerchief which corresponds to this. If you can, bring it to me." "Very well," Millicent said, and got to her feet. She smiled at him!

Ranger Boy Given Recognition By a Baptists Magazine

Roy Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Stevens of Ranger and a former star end on the Ranger High school football team, is one of the outstanding students of Furman University, according to a story about him in the Baptist Student, which also carries a picture of "Steve" with a group from his Sunday school class.

The article in the Baptist Student, reads as follows:

"From Texas" comes one of South Carolina's outstanding college students—Roy Stevens. In him Furman University has one of the most versatile athletes and one of the finest examples of Christian manhood to be found anywhere. His unusual athletic ability, coupled with his fine character, make him a great influence for good on the campus.

"See this strong sophomore practice good sportsmanship on the field, hailed by many as the South's greatest punter, already having achieved the coveted all-state rank, making headlines and having his pictures constantly in South Carolina newspapers. Do you wonder that the coach of Georgia, after Roy's brilliant plays in a game against that team, was quoted as saying that Roy was the South's greatest punter? He won his position on the state team by outpunting his opponents all season, averaging approximately 45 yards from the scrimmage line. His athletic prowess reaches other fields, too—last year, as a freshman, he broke two state hurdle records in track.

"There's another side of Roy which has the same fine record. See him again on Sunday morning—sleeping lazily until noon after a hard game on Saturday? Not at all—but rising early and teaching a Sunday school class, regular attending church and sponsoring a B. Y. P. U. Truly Roy is a gentlemanly, living cleanly, and carrying his fine Christian ideals into all his student activities and daily living."

Two Feature Bouts At Arena Tonight

On the Elks weekly wrestling card tonight there will be a double main event, two two-hour time limit matches. The fans have been clamoring for better bouts at these weekly shows and the new promoter, Charlie Lay, promised them better matches. There are here.

The first event will see a newcomer, Tuffy Watson of Dallas, who will try and break the winning streak of Pat Swanson of Fort Worth. Swanson has won his last 10 straight matches and is going to try and hang up the eleventh tonight.

The second event will be between two old rivals, Blacksmith Smith of Dallas and our hometown favorite, Charlie Lay of Ranger. Lay defeated Smith in their last match but Smith was not satisfied with the referee's ruling and has asked for another match. Here they are. Charlie Lay has invented and perfected a go getter, which he calls a drop kick and when well executed they stay dropped.

The pass list has been cut off and all passes under the old management are void. Ringside seats have been advanced to 40 cents. A large attendance is expected to see this double main event of heavyweights.

Brownsville May Get Deep Water Port This Year

BROWNVILLE.—The city of Brownsville will be provided with a deep water port before the close of the year, making it an important shipping point for the first time since the Civil War.

It will be the ninth deep-water port in Texas.

Like Houston, Brownsville will be an inland port. The channel will be extended from Brazos de Santiago Pass across Laguna Madre, a distance of three miles, and then fourteen miles across the coastal plain to within a few miles of Brownsville.

The channel is to be 25 feet with a bottom width of 100 feet and a surface width of 250 feet. It will be large enough to permit the entrance of all but the largest of ocean-going vessels.

A turning basin is to be excavated near Brownsville. The jetty at Brazos de Santiago Pass have been completed and work on the excavation of the channel and turning basin is under way.

The total cost of the project will be $5,500,000, borne jointly by the Brownsville Navigation district and the Federal government. The canal is to be ready for ocean traffic in December.

Since the Civil War Brownsville has not been a port of any importance. During the Civil War, however, a large narrow-gauge railroad was built from Brownsville to Point Isabel (now Port Isabel) and there was considerable commerce through the shallow harbor there.

Citrus fruits and garden vegetables which are shipped from the Rio Grande Valley in considerable quantities, will be the chief
