Smart Style Show Wins Delightful Applause
Wednesday morning at a formal fashion showing held at the local Singer Sewing Machine company's sales room, North Austin street, Miss Jane Barker of San Antonio, an attractive brunette model, presented a lovely summer wardrobe to an enthusiastic audience of Ranger women. As a fashion show it was unique, and smartly conducted under the direction of Mrs. S. A. Gunn of San Antonio, who pleasingly introduced the models in a delightfully descriptive manner.

Ten complete costumes were shown including nine dresses and a beautiful swagger coat of soft, creamy homespun. There were costumes for every occasion, everything from a cute little trick of red and white and black plaid shirt-waist frock with a pleated bosom like a man's shirt-front, two soft little afternoon prints and a lovely evening dress of pure-dye silk crepe with snugly clinging lines.

According to Mrs. Gunn, who pointed out the style features of each costume as the mannequin paraded through the aisle, this wardrobe was especially designed to demonstrate how easy it is to have smart clothes when you make them yourself. An afternoon frock, won rounds of praise, a cool-looking green fabric. Women who want a whole wardrobe of lovely dresses this summer will find they may have them at surprisingly low costs. Outline your plans now for a colorful array of smart frocks for the summer months.

After the formal showing, many

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Corrects Constipation

An enthusiastic and voluntary letter: "We have a daughter who has been troubled all her life with constipation." About three months ago, we discovered ALL-BRAN, and that day we now have not seen her any more of laxative.

We have become "ALL-BRAN" people, and now it is a part of our daily diet. We have told many of our friends and they, too, are getting results. Mr. and Mrs. L. F. ... 562 Maple Ave., Elmira, N.Y.

Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" and regular habits. It also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is often more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

... tablespoonsfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not corrected in a week, see your doctor.

Isn't this food much pleasanter to eat than risking patent medicine? Get the red-and-white package at your grocer.

Dime Chain Is Replica of a Greater Folly

These chain letters whereby honest souls make a few dimes for themselves at the price of overloading the postal system are a good deal like the kind of prosperity we had before 1929...

In each case the idea is a good one as long as you keep the ball rolling. Collapse comes only when the supply of suckers runs out.

You get a letter with five names on it. You add your name to the bottom, scratch off the top name, and mail copies to five friends...

Theoretically, there is no exact limit to the distance the thing could be carried. All that is necessary is that on any given date the number of new suckers being tapped is greater than the number of dimes in the mail...

Perhaps it is unkind to see in all this a parallel to the frenzied prosperity of the boom years. But you can see it if you look for it, just the same.

In the booming 'twenties, our industrial production was keyed to a steadily rising mass of debts. Part of this came in installment-plan buying at home...

Each year we sold a greater quantity of goods abroad. Since we bought abroad much less than we sold, the customers overseas couldn't pay us...

The amount of sales and loans kept on going up, year after year. As long as the loans went up just a shade faster than the sales, everything was lovely.

But the whole business—like the dime letter chain—was due to crash the moment this progression was checked. The check finally came, the crash followed...

So we get back, again, to this dime letter business. It's a dizzy way to make money, to be sure; but there is a precedent for it. Individuals are simply trying, in a small way, what the nation as a whole tried in a big way a few years ago.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE

SPRING party luncheon should give a lift to the spirits of everybody, including the hostess. The only way to get the hostess in on this is to have a meal that can be mostly cooked the day before.

There's nothing like a jellied salad to add charm to a luncheon plate. Vivid colors set in a pool of translucent jelly against a background of varied greens look almost too good to eat, but everybody does. Knowing that the salad is reposing in the ice-box at least twenty-four hours before it will be needed is what adds to the hostess' joy of living.

Meats for Slicing

Paper thin slices of baked ham, delicately seasoned, veal loaf and cold boiled sausage are good for the cold plate, but cold breast of chicken is best of all. Cook fowl in boiling water well seasoned with salt, pepper, onion and bay leaf. Let cool in stock. Then remove breast and divide in two parts entirely free from skin and bone. Wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator until ready to serve.

Although one chicken furnishes only two filets and one must plan with this in mind, the rest of the chicken and the stock will make many delicious meals for the family.

Serve sliced cucumbers in green pepper rings and garnish the plate with radish roses.

Jellied Vegetable Salad

One tablespoon granulated gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 cup boiling water, 1/2 cup vinegar, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, few drops tabasco sauce, 1 cup boiled beets cut in fancy

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Shredded fresh pineapple, cereal cooked with dates, cream, fried dried beef, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Waffles with creamed salmon and buttered peas, thimble compote, cottage cheese, toasted crackers, milk, tea.

DINNER: Roast shoulder of lamb, browned new potatoes, gravy, mint sauce, asparagus on toast, frozen tomato salad, Spanish cream, milk, coffee.

shapes, 1-2 cup sliced carrots, 2 hard cooked eggs.

Cut eggs into eight slices and put a slice in the center of each individual mold. Fill with prepared jelly and let stand in refrigerator over night to chill and become firm.

To make jelly: Soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar, vinegar, lemon juice and salt. Let stand until cool and beginning to stiffen. Then add tabasco sauce and vegetables.

Umold on a bed of lettuce and garnish with watercress and parsley.

Serve the cold plate with a variety of hot muffins—tiny whole wheat, cornmeal and rye muffins make a good assortment.

For dessert nothing can surpass strawberry ice-box cake or pineapple Charlotte. Both the desserts are seasonal and must be prepared the day before wanted for serving.

HOW DUST BLOTS OUT WORLD AS INKY PALL ROLLS UP

Black rain billowing up out of the southwest's great dust bowl here rolls slowly over the Panhandle town of Pampa, Tex., a suffocating wall of dust shutting out daylight and moving on to wreak havoc on the sparse crops remaining in the blighted district. Like an impenetrable screen of smoke it appears in this remarkable picture, with buildings standing out in relief against the inky blackness. Rain has brought some hope to the stricken area, but over a vast zone the pall has left devastation in its wake, with scores of cases of pneumonia aggravated by the choking dust.

SOME OF THE SMALLEST COMETS ARE LARGER THAN THE EARTH! THE "GREAT COMET," OF 1811, WAS LARGER THAN THE SUN, AND HAD A DIAMETER OF 1,000,000 MILES.

balloting, and of conducting the voting.

The vote is to be secret, and the community committee is charged with providing such voting facilities as will allow the votes to be made secretly, although private voting booths will not be required.

No member of a community committee is to disclose how any particular person voted in the referendum, or to announce the results of the referendum in the community. The results of the community committee are to be forwarded to the county allotment committee, and the county committee in turn will send in county totals to the Extension Director in each state. The Extension Director will then inform the Agricultural Adjustment Administration of the state totals. It is expected that these state totals will be reported to the Adjustment Administration by May 29.

Provision is made for investigation by county committees and State Extension Director in cases of disputes or appeals over the results of the vote. The voted ballots and community summaries are to be filed under lock by the county committees subject to inspection from the secretary of agriculture.

Fourth AAA Referendum
The vote on wheat will be the fourth referendum to be conducted by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Similar polls on the views of farmers toward adjustment programs have been taken among corn-hog producers, tobacco growers, and cotton farmers.

The wheat referendum is being taken now in order that the Adjustment Administration may have a clear-cut expression of opinion of producers far enough ahead of time to allow preparation of a wheat contract to be offered to farmers before planting of the winter wheat crop for 1935 begins early this coming fall.

Although the referendum is being taken on the single question of the attitude of growers toward a future wheat program, series of meetings are being scheduled now for every community in which the wheat program has been in operation and at these meetings farmers will discuss all phases of the current and past wheat situation, as well as the outlook for the future. Regional and state meetings have already been held in most areas and the community meetings follow.

Cultivate the Art Of Safe Walking, Insurance Man Urges

Humans usually learn to walk before they are two years old and from then on apparently assume that they have mastered the theory and practice of putting one foot in front of the other. In fact, walking is one of the most subconscious things we do. Yet, from the experience of recent years, there is a great deal that we all have to learn about walking if we wish to keep on walking!

In a recent interview with C. E. May on the general subject of automobile accident prevention the conversation turned to a discussion of the pedestrian's responsibility in the matter. Mr. May made the statement, which is undeniably true, that last year more persons were killed by automobiles than by any other type of accident. He stated further that more than one-half of all fatal traffic accidents in cities involve pedestrians. Hence, it is obvious that not only motorists but pedestrians need to use the streets and highways more cautiously.

Mr. May offered a number of practical suggestions which if followed would increase materially a pedestrian's margin of safety.

Before crossing a street or highway look first to the left and then to the right. Make sure the way is clear before taking the first step.

In cities, cross at intersections only and if there are traffic lights obey the signals.

When street or road is slippery be doubly careful as cars cannot stop as quickly as on a dry pavement.

When forced to walk in the highway, walk on the left side of the road, facing on-coming traffic.

After dark, the pedestrian walking along unlighted country highways should carry a light or wear light colored clothing or carry something white. Even a white handkerchief fluttering in the hand is better than nothing.

AAA Makes Known Procedure To Guide Farmers in Referendum

WASHINGTON.—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced today the general procedure under which county and community wheat growers' committees will conduct the national wheat referendum on May 25. The referendum will involve signers of approximately 575,000 wheat contracts in 37 states. A separate vote of non-signers will be taken.

The referendum is to be held for the purpose of indicating to the Adjustment Administration the sentiment of wheat farmers generally toward a new wheat program to follow the present one. The question upon which producers will be asked to vote is: "Are you in favor of a wheat production adjustment program to follow the present one which expires with the 1935 crop year?"

The county and community wheat committees have the principal responsibility in conducting the referendum. The county allotment committee will have charge of the referendum in each county or for several counties if they are formed into district associations. Community committees will have charge of the actual balloting in each community, which in most cases will be a township or similar area.

Wheat section officials have notified state, county and community workers that the balloting is to take place between 9 a. m. and 8 p. m., May 25.

Before the referendum is taken the county allotment committee is to designate in each community the places for balloting and to give public notice of the time for voting.

In exceptional cases, where only a few farmers produce wheat, the county committee may send ballots to these farmers and the vote may be made by mail, but in each case these ballots must be returned by May 25, under tentative regulations. Provision is also made for producers to vote an absent voter's ballot if they will be unable to go to the polling places, provided arranged in advance with the community committee.

The referendum is open to all bona fide wheat farmers. The county committee will furnish to each community committee a register of the wheat farmers who are contract signers. In addition, any bona fide wheat farmers may come to the polls on May 25 and vote, provided he satisfies the local committee that he is eligible to sign a wheat contract. There is no obligation upon farmers to agree to sign contracts, but each one voting must be eligible to sign a contract.

Duties of Local Committee
The local community committee has the responsibility of providing ballot boxes, of giving public notice of the time and place of the Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Katharine Strykhurst, beautiful, discontented and restless because of her wealthy father, Victor Strykhurst, and her aristocratic mother, Bertine, refuse to let Katharine undertake any sort of forgetten him. Maybe she'd be engaged ...

That will make the table just right ...

Katharine rides daily with Michael Leathere, young westerner who runs a riding club. She assures herself she is not interested in Michael but feels a pang of jealousy when Sally Moon, local favorite, enrolls at the club for lessons.

Thus Lisa Parker's thoughts on this fine morning ...

"No, don't," Zoe said hastily. "He's dining with some people from Scarsdale. The Williamses—Willises—something like that. He just said he'd see me there." It wouldn't do to get mother too excited about Frank Corliss. She'd be having them engaged before you knew it. Engagements were Mother's meat. She adored them—that is, if the man was suitably young and rich and decent-looking. She would never, never have consented to an engagement between Zoe and Gibbs.

CHAPTER II

Lisa Parker sat at the breakfast table in the new pseudo-Spanish house her parents had built on the tip-end of Innicoke Point. A built of blue stucco and studded with intervals with ornamental red tiles bounded the grounds, and several small boats floated in the bay.

"Mr. Gibbs Larkin is at the Pequot House at White Bay and will shortly depart with friends on a yachting party for Nova Scotia."

"Not," admitted Zoe to herself, "that he ever asked me ..."

There were sheer linen tablecloths, the texture of cobwebs, on the old oak table. The maid who had come in to clear the table, and the maid who had come in to clear the table, and the maid who had come in to clear the table ...

"No, I think not, Gerda, thank you." What did Gerda think about when she wasn't shining up the silver and making the beds?

"The little chauffeur came around to the side of Zoe's roadster. 'It was the gearshift lever sticking, miss. I fixed it.'"

"Who's coming?" "Oh, the Strykhursts and the Julians, and Captain Byrne and his fiancée. Two or three other people—I forget—your father has the list."

"Do I show up?" "You certainly do!" Mrs. Parker made her eyes very round. She was a plump, well-favored woman with a nice color and cheerful blue eyes behind nose glasses.

"We're just too stupid to earn our own livings, that's it," she often said mutinously to Zoe. "We couldn't, if we tried ..."

"There's a dance at the club," Zoe pouted. "Frank Corliss was coming out for it."

"The Princeton boy?" Mrs. Parker beamed. Zoe squirmed inwardly, hating the deception but not being able to do much about it.

Zoe shut off the engine and waited. It was very quiet here. A few chickens fluted about in the yard, and occasionally a horse's inquiring head, with its big, mild eyes, would appear over the open door of the stall.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Text: Acts 2:41-45; Ephesians 4:1-7, 11-16
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 12.
BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance
OUT of faith and experience comes fellowship. Such was the origin of the Christian Church, and such has been the origin of every new movement and organization in the history of the Church.
Sometimes the faith and the experience are narrow, and the resulting movement and fellowship are sectional or sectarian. This, also, has been the history of the Christian Church.
But in the beginning the Church arose out of a very definite experience of repentance and salvation. The Church had no pretemples. There was no organization with worldly strength which men might join for the sake of social prestige, or for the sake of power.
The Church consisted of small groups of those who had found the new experience of salvation and life in Christ Jesus. These groups met in a measure of seclusion with the threat of persecution constantly upon them.
One can hardly think of anyone joining the Church in those days except from strong conviction and because the Church represented a fellowship in something more precious than anything that the world offered. The marvel is that even under these conditions the members of this early church were not always ideal.
WE need only read Paul's epistles to see how even in this primitive church, where everything connected with it seemed to involve sacrifice, there were those whose lives were not proof against vice and whose spirits were not free from narrowness.
But here in our lesson, in the record of the first gathering and fellowship, we have the revelation of an ideal and practice so glorious that there seems little hope of humanity rising to it. So at moments like this, she thought it would be nice if she could get over Gibbs—get over wanting the queer excitement his presence always brought her. Maybe she could go away to some place simple and quiet, and forget about him. She had a feeling deep down that there were rough roads ahead of her. But she had fallen in love with Gibbs ... She didn't know what to do about it. There had been a desert without him. Other men were just shadows ... The lack of sleep all last night. Maybe that was why she dropped off into slumber as she waited for Katharine. That was why she didn't hear the horses and their riders had returned. Her car was drawn up alongside the dirt road, in the shadows of the drooping willow. Katharine didn't see her, either, for quite a little time. She was talking to the tall young man who dismounted from the big, nervous horse with the white star on his forehead. Zoe, awaking, stared at them curiously.

Why, whatever was the matter with Katharine? She had never seen her look that way—never before in all her life. Katharine was pale, but her eyes glittered as though she had an inward fever. She laughed vaguely and stripped off her gloves and put them on again, without seeming to know exactly what she was doing.
The young man was talking to her quietly; it seemed the most casual sort of conversation. Good.

We, the Seniors, wish to say a few parting words now that our school days are numbered. No, we haven't much more time to be in school; that time is drawing near to for so many years. We have dreamed and planned of the day when we would be free from school. No more working at difficult problems or wearisome studying for us, we said. But now, when we see this long-anticipated day just ahead of us we somehow seem to have lost the desire to be looking chap, Zoe told herself. He must be the young westerner who runs the place. But Katharine had never been interested in any man before. She (Zoe) must be imagining things ...
Presently Katharine saw Zoe waiting for her. She flushed deeply and said something to the man in riding clothes. He turned toward Zoe's car and saluted her gravely. Then Katharine walked briskly toward the car.
"My dear, I believe you're in love!" Zoe said.
Katharine stared at her. "Nonsense," she said sharply. "I never heard anything so silly in my life."

LOVE AND MYSTERY IN "STAR OF MIDNIGHT" ENGAGE WILLIAM POWELL AND GINGER ROGERS

Love and mystery form an intriguing combination in "Star of Midnight," RKO-Radio's romantic drama, starring William Powell and Ginger Rogers.

Telling a strikingly different type of love story, in which the delectable Miss Rogers, fresh from triumphs in the musical "Roberta," is the pursuer, and Powell the ostensibly wary quarry, the picture deals with a baffling mystery in modern New York's pageant and glitter.

A beautiful woman disappears, a newspaper columnist is killed under strange circumstances, and three different factions undertake the solution of the case, each with a separate motive.

Powell and Miss Rogers team as a "Sherlock and Watson" combination in running down clues to the mystery. The two stars, long established among the screen's foremost favorites, appear together for the first time. Although they have worked at the same studios many times and often have acted on adjoining stages, Powell and Miss Rogers were never cast

Mister Runyon's Hoodlums Beat Harvard's Footballers In Hilarious 'Hold 'Em Yale'

The Yales take the Harvard's at football and half a dozen very delightful people take the cafe in Damon Runyon's "Hold 'Em Yale," which opens today at the Arcadia Theatre. This highly entertaining picture definitely rates as one of the outstanding laugh attractions of the year and you're going to be definitely on the losing side if you miss it.

Though you might suspect from its title that "Hold 'Em Yale" is another of those football pictures, you're very much mistaken if you do so, for football plays a very minor part in the production.

As a matter of fact, what "Hold 'Em Yale" is, is a picturization of Damon Runyon's quaint Broadway slang on the screen—a process in which none of the quaintness, none of the hilarity of the original stories is lost.

"Hold 'Em Yale" is the story of such amiable characters as Sam the Gonoph, Louie Liverlips, Sunshine Joe and a few other such Runyon Broadway types. It's the story of Clarice van Cleve, a dizzy little wisp of a blonde with a yen for any male in a uniform, and of her father, who pays off theatre ushers, policemen and chauffeurs to keep his daughter from running off into matrimony with them.

When "Georgie the Gigolo," the smooth pal of Sam the Gonoph, Louie Liverlips, et al., discovers Clarice's weakness, he invests in the snappiest uniform he can buy, and begins paying suit. Clarice is bowled over, and Georgie sees his way clear to fame and fortune. But when Clarice's father disinherits her, Georgie's ardor cools, and he ducks out, leaving his companions to Clarice's none-too-tender mercies. She begins trying to make gentlemen out of these tough mugs and they try to marry her off to a college football player, that being the only way they can think of to get rid of her. What follows is the maddest, craziest denouement you've ever seen.

Splendidly acted by Patricia Ellis, Larry Crabbe as the football hero, Cesar Romero as Georgie the Gigolo, William Frawley, Warren Hymer, Andy Devine and George E. Stone as the Broadway mugs, and George Barbier as the father, "Hold 'Em Yale" is indeed the comedy classic of the season. We warn you—don't miss it! between believing one moment that the man was her husband and the next that he was Charlie.

Chevalier sings five songs, supplemented by lavish dance ensembles, staged by Dave Gould in the manner for which the Folies Bergere is world famous. "Singing a Happy Song," "Rhythm of the Rain," "I Was Lucky" and "Au Revoir L'Amour" were written by Meskill and Stern, while Lane and Adamson collaborated on "You Took the Words Right Out of My Mouth."

Chevalier Plays First Dual Role

Maurice Chevalier has his first dual role as star of "Folies Bergere," 20th Century's lavish picturization of the famous French musical comedy institution, which comes to the Arcadia Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

Chevalier plays both Charlie, the gay, straw-hatted, singing star of the Folies Bergere, and the bemused, be-mustached French Baron Cassini, noted for his amorous escapades. Thus, the personable French actor is both the hero and the "heavy," of the Darryl F. Zanuck production.

No trick photography was required, however, as Maurice never meets himself face to face. As the star of the Folies Bergere, Chevalier gives an impersonation of the Baron. It is so good that when the Baron secretly flies to London to raise a loan to cover bank funds he has sunk in a worthless African mine, his associates divert suspicion by hiring Charlie to impersonate him in real life as well.

Try to keep his jealous blonde partner, Mimi, placated and at the same time carry on a flirtation with the seductive Baroness whose husband he is impersonating, keeps Charlie stepping. The situation reaches a climax when the Baron returns unexpectedly and tests his wife's fidelity by impersonating Charlie. Intrigued, but uncertain, the Baroness enacts an impassioned love scene with him, finally putting him off with an ardent kiss, with the result that next morning she flutters distractedly do so, for football plays a very minor part in the production.

A NEW STARRING TEAM TO DAZZLE SCREEN FANS

Bright twinklers of the film firmament together for the first time! Of course you know them—suave, man-of-the-world William Powell and glamorous Ginger Rogers. RKO-Radio has brought them together as a romantic team in "Star of Midnight," an adventure-mystery drama based on the magazine story by the late Arthur Somers Roche. Stephen Roberts directed. In the strong cast are Paul Kelly, Gene Lockhart, Ralph Morgan, Leslie Fenton, J. Farrell MacDonald, Russell Hopton and Vivian Oakland. Showing at the Arcadia Saturday and Sunday.

France Plans New Lures for Tourists

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS.—With the memory still vivid of the rich harvest reaped by the tourist trade during the bonanza years, France is ever devising new schemes in an effort to lure back another stream of foreign visitors.

The latest one is the move to great special extra-quota licenses to the countries which have signed commercial compensation agreements with France.

This is to be proposed in a bill before the Chamber of Deputies, Deputy of the Nièvre, Mayor of Nevers and president of the Groupe France-Amerique du Sud.

Between France and a number of other countries there exist commercial compensation treaties by which every franc of imports from these countries must be compensated by exports from France. The new bill, which aims at encouraging foreigners to come to France on French ships, proposes to grant special licenses to these countries, permitting them to export to France, outside of quota limits, amounts of merchandise equal to the amount of money spent by their citizens in France, or on French ships.

In his explanation of the bill, Deputy Perin points out the gravity of France's consistently favorable trade balance and as the fact that the best way to diminish the deficit is to attract visitors to France, they may have a better opportunity of getting acquainted with French products.
