OPPOSITION VOICED VETO MESSAGE PROPOSAL

C. of C. Directors
 Hear Reports On
 New Activities

A meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, which was postponed from Monday night, May 13, was held Monday night of this week, with F. D. Hicks, vice president, presiding in the absence of J. E. McCreary, who was absent for the first part of the meeting because of a mangled finger. He attended the meeting after having the injured finger dressed at a doctor's office.

J. C. Smith, chairman of the Fourth of July picnic committee, made a brief report, after which Hal Hunter and Clyde Davis were added to the original committee, which was composed of J. C. Smith, A. J. Ratliff and E. R. Gentry. The committee is to consider the matter further and to report to the directors at a meeting to be held Monday night of next week.

John Hassen reported that a report from the Kraft Cheese company would be in Ranger soon to survey the milk situation in view of putting in a milk route and possibly a cheese factory. A survey is to be furnished by Metz Head, county agent.

Hal Hunter of the Lone Star Gas company announced that gas from the Ranger field was now being stored underground in wells at Cheaney and the Cheaney district would have gas for many years to come. A report from C. D. Woods, highway committee chairman, was read, giving the activities of that committee.

Calvin Brown, D. Joseph and T. J. Anderson were appointed on a committee to see about having a breakfast for all the membership sometime early in June.

The federal project committee announced that J. J. Kelly from the Chamber of Commerce, E. A. Arnold from the Lions club and Clyde Davis from the Carl Barnes post had been named as members, while the Rotary club, Elks and city commission are still to name members from their organizations.

A report on the Gorman trades day was made by Joe Dennis, who was in Gorman when the last trades day was held.

It was announced that Ranger must raise $50 as her part of the Highway 89 celebration to be held in Eastland on May 30 and that G. A. Murphy had been appointed to raise the money.

Those present at the meeting were F. D. Hicks, Hal Hunter, J. J. Kelly, W. D. Conway, Joe Dennis, F. P. Brasher, John Hassen, Calvin Brown, G. E. Robinson, A. J. Ratliff, D. Joseph, J. E. McCreary, E. R. Gentry, Clyde Davis, T. J. Anderson and J. E. Matthews.

Eastland is Preparing for Highway 89 Fete

Byrns Gives Best Smile to Bonus

It probably was labor lost, for President Roosevelt had made known he would veto the soldier bonus bill, but Speaker Joseph W. Byrns seemed to get genuine enjoyment out of signing the measure, as pictured here. Cheers all ways, Byrns wore his best smile for the occasion.

MAIN PROGRAM TO CENTER AT PARK, SQUARE

The Highway 89 Airline Celebration to be held in Eastland May 30 will open on the south side of the square at 10 a. m. and at 2 o'clock will be centered in the City Park, members of the Eastland arrangements committee decided Monday.

Opening their meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, and then later going to the park for an inspection, near final details of the celebration were planned.

Efforts to have county offices closed will be made by committee-men. Relief officials have already notified the celebration group that their offices will be closed on the Memorial day.

Milburn McCarty, general chairman for the celebration, reiterated his prediction that over 5,000 will be in Eastland on the day.

Ben Scott, F. V. Williams and Grady Pipkin were named to assist C. J. Rhodes in his solicitation of funds in Eastland.

J. F. Little promised that the band stand will be moved to the park and would be painted. The new city manager was appointed to contact the Eastland fire department so that the Ranger group can come to Eastland on a suitable date and assist in decorating.

The Eastland arrangements committee decided to give Boy Scouts privileges of selling cold drinks and ice cream at the park for 10 per cent of their profits. The 10 per cent will be allocated by the committee to celebration expenses.

Program for the celebration is practically complete. The program will open with an address of welcome on behalf of the committee by Judge S. M. Russell of Stephenville. Hamilton McRae, president of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, will welcome in behalf of Eastland.

Response will be made by Senator Grady Woodruff of Decatur.

At noon the celebration program will close, to resume at 2 o'clock in the Eastland City Park.

Harry Hines of Wichita Falls, new member of the highway commission, and his predecessor, W. R. Ely of Abilene, are slated as two of the principal speakers of the day.

In the morning hours and afternoon hours a North Texas State Teachers College stage band, the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band of Abilene, the Ranger Tivoli Band and others of the section will play.

Attending the Monday meet of the Eastland group were Rev. C. W. Estes, H. C. Davis, Hamilton McRae, Milburn McCarty, Ben Scott, George Harper, F. V. Williams, J. F. Little, T. E. Richardson, C. J. Rhodes, Grady Pipkin.

Judge Considers Motion to Quash Post Indictments

LUBBOCK, May 21.—Federal Judge James Wilson had under advisement today defense motions to quash indictments against Dr. L. W. Kitchen, Post veterinarian, and Dr. W. A. Hartman, Post physician, charging violation of narcotics laws. Another indictment charging conspiracy to violate the laws named Dr. Kitchen, Dr. Hartman, Sheriff W. F. Cato and several others.

Dr. Kitchen and Dr. Hartman are also charged with murder of Spencer Stafford.

WILD ANIMAL TRAINER GORED BY ELEPHANT

COVINA, Cal., May 21.—Joe Reed, veteran animal trainer, was killed today by an enraged bull elephant which gored and mutilated him at the A. I. G. Barnes winter quarters here.

Reed was rehearsing eight elephants for an appearance in a motion picture when they stampeded. Prince, a huge bull, charged the trainer and struck at him with a tusk. The elephant then grabbed the victim, threw him to the ground and gored him three times before attendants subdued him. Reed was trampled by the elephant.

Reed died at a hospital a short time later. Doctors said his scalp had been torn off and one tusk had nearly disemboweled him.

All Dogs Must Be Vaccinated and Licensed Eastland Officials Order To Combat Threat of Mad Canines

All dogs in Eastland must be vaccinated and licenses procured at the city hall, Eastland commissioners ordered Monday night in their regular session.

With two children taking Pasteur treatment for prevention of hydrophobia by successive inoculation with attenuated virus of increasing strength, the commission was urged by Eastland doctors to enforce the dog ordinance passed in 1922.

The ordinance provides that dogs must be vaccinated and licenses obtained at the city hall for $1.50.

Dogs running at large will be seized by police, held for three days, and if not claimed will be disposed of. A fee of 25 cents per day will be assessed against owners of dogs which are impounded. The owner, if he claims his dog, must pay the fine and comply with the ordinance.

A child of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lawson and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Castleman have taken or are taking Pasteur treatments. At least one dog has been positively identified as mad with rabies.

Doctors cautioned Eastland parents to watch their children.

A dog who has rabies, Eastland doctors pointed out, will soon die. Before his expiration, they said, he will go into a paralytic state.

The situation was described by commissioners as serious and calling for closest co-operation of all.

People who reside in the country who bring dogs with them to town must confine them in their vehicles or comply as residents of Eastland.

With 50 tags at the city hall, J. F. Little, city manager, Tuesday morning thought that the supply was sufficient for one week.

Other business completed by the commission included approval of the following orders from the previous meet:

Employment of J. C. Allison to transfer the unpaid tax list to the delinquent tax roll.

Employment of M. H. Kelly as city clerk and his posting of bond of $5,000.

Purging the commission record minutes of April 27.

REPUBLICANS JOIN FIGHT ON JOINT SESSION

Smedley Butler Threatens Organization of "Every Man Who Carried a Gun".

WASHINGTON, May 21.—President Roosevelt's proposal to deliver his veto to the Patman bonus bill at an unprecedented joint session of Congress, provoked a storm of debate in the senate.

Conservative republicans, led by Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon, charged the proposed meeting was unconstitutional and said the senate had "no business acting as a window dresser" for Mr. Roosevelt.

Smedley Butler, former Marine Corps general, entered the battle over the Patman bill, asserting that if it failed he will organize a frankly critical veterans movement, open to "every man who ever carried a gun."

Butler conferred with Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, and other leaders of the Patman bloc.

As the bonus controversy approached a climax, leaders of the Patman group expressed conflicting opinions on the outcome. Some contended the senate could override the veto, thus enacting the Patman plan to print $2,200,000,000 of new money to pay the veterans. Others estimated the Patman strength was three or four votes short of the two thirds necessary.

"I have no objection to the president's communication of his objections orally, but I condemn this proposal to include the senate in the proceedings," Steiwer said. "It is in violation of the constitution. There is no reason the senate should set the stage for a more effective presentation of the veto."

Senator Huey Long, Democrat, Louisiana, and other leaders of the Patman group supported the movement.

Water Minimum Raised By Group To 15,000 Gallons

EASTLAND, Texas, May 21.—Raise of the water minimum to 15,000 from 10,000 gallons was made Monday night by city commissioners in regular meeting.

The order was made to be effective as of May 1.

Due to a full lake of water and that the increased minimum will enable Eastland residents to plant gardens and water lawns, the commission acted.

Duration of the increased minimum will be governed by the water supply.

Eastland residents will pay $3 for the 15,000 gallons, same as was charged for the minimum of 10,000 gallons.

The question was raised in litigation between Albert Scramm and the Pearl Oil Corporation. One of Scramm's associates is owner of the doodlebug and possessor of its secrets.

They claim that through its use oil was located on an East Texas tract in Rusk county, now leased by the Pearl Oil corporation. They seek an interest and accounting.

White Motor Co. Employes Strike

CLEVELAND, May 21.—Union employes walked out of the White Motor company plant today while their representatives were in conference with the management on wages and working hours demands.

The plant, which employs 2000 workers, was closed and company officials said no attempt would be made to operate the plant in defiance of the strike.

Union workers had voted 1200 to 67 in favor of the strike. The labor crisis at the truck manufacturing plant came as a result of a deadlock in negotiations on union demands for the closed shop wage increases and changes in seniority rulings.

School Fund Lost Money Through Its Bad Investments

AUSTIN, May 21.—Texas' permanent school fund suffered a grave loss through investments in depression years, according to a report issued today by the House of Representatives investigating committee of $41,412,000 invested the committee estimated that 25 per cent of the bonds held are "good", 25 per cent "fair" and 50 per cent "undesirable."

The investigation was ordered by the House after a report had been filed by the state auditor criticizing the investment of school funds. He estimated that $1,318,000 was invested in worthless securities.

The permanent school fund consisted of money received from sale of school land, leases and oil royalties from the land.

He accused other nations of refusing to disarm and therefore contended Germany had not scrapped a treaty which had already been discarded by the parties to it.

LABOR MAY REVOLT OVER WAGE SCALES

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Organized labor today threatened revolt against President Roosevelt's 19 to 24 a month work relief wage scale.

"There can be only one logical result from such injustice—strikes and strikes," said William Green, chief of all federated unions.

Senators prepared to protest the administration's decision. Many of them had fought for prevailing wages for all workers under the re-employment drive.

The combined opposition came immediately after the chief executive had announced a $19 minimum for unskilled southern laborers and a $24 maximum for technicians and professionals under the re-employment program.

FIGHT LOOMED AS COMMITTEE HELD SESSION

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A fist fight threatened today in the House military affairs committee between Representative Maury Maverick and Andrew May, Democrat, Kentucky, critic of the administration TVA power "yard stick" program.

In discussing the audit of the project, May explained that an attorney from the Alabama Power company had made copies of the audit free.

"Coal and utility interests don't call at my office," Maverick shouted.

"Is that a personal remark," May demanded.

"Make it any way you like," retorted the Texan.

"Maybe we had better settle this thing outside," replied May.

"I am afraid," Maverick replied sarcastically.

Farming Must Depend On National Welfare

With Engineer Morris L. Cooke of Philadelphia announcing that we have only about 100 years of "virile national existence" left to us unless we do something drastic to stop soil erosion, it begins to look as if there really was a fire behind all the smoke of those dust storms.

Mr. Cooke, who is chairman of the administration's Mississippi Valley committee, says that in another 50 years we shall have only 150,000,000 acres of really fertile soil, if present wastage goes unchecked.

It is his idea that soil preservation is as urgent a national problem as economic and financial recovery.

The whole situation with respect to soil erosion is a direct outgrowth of our time-honored policy in respect to our agricultural land. Of all the natural resources with which this country was blessed, its soil has been probably the richest; and our use of it illustrates both the best and the worst aspects of rugged individualism.

In its best aspect, the individualism of our agriculture has built up a social class unique in agricultural history. We have no peasantry; instead we have a class of men of sturdy and independent self-reliance, following a way of life that has produced much happiness and that has made our great democratic experiment workable.

On the other hand, we have permitted this greatest of our natural assets to be used wastefully, without regard for the future or for the welfare of the country as a whole.

We have let our soil be used in such way that wind and water have permanently ruined enormous areas and threaten the ruin of even larger areas; so that today we find ourselves obliged to spend much money and effort to repair the damage which this individualism has inflicted.

We need to do, of course, is find some sort of middle course which will conserve the good side of our rural individualism and put a curb on the bad side.

We don't want collective farming, a la Stalin. We don't want a system of regimentation under which the farmer must ask permission of Washington before he puts his plow into the ground. We do want to save that rural independence which has been so richly productive of human values.

On the other hand, we must insist that farm land be used with the national welfare in mind. We need intelligent conservation measures which will enable us to hand down to our grandchildren a farmland just as broad and rich as it always has been.

We must stop the wastage which, if unchecked, would lead to a progressive national decline.

It ought not to be impossible to find a program which would embrace all these aims at once.

Secretary Wallace Never Deserts His Flag

Secretary Henry A. Wallace in his address to 3000 farmers from the South and the West, "who paid their own way to Washington," declared that the agricultural processing tax would not be removed until industry removes the tariff. These 3000 ranchmen and farmers who paid their own way gave the Haweye leader an ovation that will long be remembered in the political circles of the country. There were no nobyists in the army of 3000. They spoke for the farmers and ranchmen of the country—at least of their sections. They appealed for justice as well as the continuation of the processing tax system to save cotton men and wheat men and corn growers and hog raisers from ruin. Three republican presidents and three republican congresses are responsible for the iniquitous tariffs of America. As ever, it is a battle between the growers of things of the South and the West and the makers of things who have made the tariff and financial laws of America ever since the memorable day when the flag of the Confederacy was furled forever. Why not keep the record straight.

Long before the coming of Franklin D. Roosevelt and his New Deal there was an annual carryover of 14,000,000 bales of American cotton and Liverpool set the price of cotton consumed at home and cotton consumed in foreign countries. There was a carryover of 400,000,000 bushels of wheat and foreign buyers set the price of American wheat—at home and abroad. President Roosevelt extended his welcome to the real farmers of the country who pay their own way and what he had said in defense of his administration was a plenty.

You should do your share toward making your city the industrial and commercial metropolis of your section.

When a structure is built upon sand and not upon rock, it is certain that unless the foundation is strengthened the structure will weaken when foods and winds beat upon it.

Surplus crops are like a river in flood. The river will in time burst its banks. Surplus crops accumulated in various countries will always, if possible, flood other countries.

"We have advised our stockholders it now appears a vote may be taken on this bill in the United States Senate within the next few days. One would think from the ardor with which advocates of this bill are pressing for its enactment that there was a general demand from the American people that it be made a law. Everyone knows that this is not the case."

"During the hearings held by the House and Senate committees there appeared before those committees a long and distinguished cross-section of American life, to record their opposition to this bill. In this group were representatives of insurance companies, savings banks, local investors, state regulatory commissions, economists and many others who opposed the bill as unfair, un-American, discriminatory, unnecessary and vicious."

"Besides, it has been publicly stated that many thousands of letters and telegrams protesting against the passage of this bill have been received, from all parts of the country, by members of Congress and the President."

"Who appeared for this bill? No one, except a few employees of the Government. Not one person representing the millions of investors, not one person representing the millions of electrical customers appeared before either of the committees to speak in favor of the legislation.

"In view of the lack of public support of this bill and the nationwide protests against its enactment it is not natural that the people should look askance at efforts being made to rush this bill into law. One can not help but feel there is an unexplained motive behind this extraordinary procedure."

"I am forced to the opinion that the ultimate plans of those who are trying so hard to speed this bill into law includes not only the avowed objectives of destruction of holding companies but also embraces as their primary purpose the weakening of their locally owned companies so that they will have to seek financial aid from the Government at dictated terms, thus hastening the day of socialization of this industry without recompense to the investors who built it."

"As was recently expressed, the bill remains as before, unsound substance, punitive in spirit and destructive in its effects."

"What America wants is more destruction but more construction; greater payrolls instead of more people on relief; more confidence in business investment instead of fear."

UTILITY HEAD QUESTIONS RAYBURN BILL "PRESSURE"

NEW YORK, May 20—None of the major objectionable features of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill affecting electric and gas utilities have been eliminated in the revised bill reported out of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, according to C. E. Groesbeck, chairman of the Electric Bond and Share Company. In a report mailed to more than 250,000 stockholders of the company, Groesbeck questioned the "pressure" that is being used to hasten the bill through Congress, despite the hundreds of thousands of protests from stockholders and others, and pointed out that the only proponents for the bill are Government employees.

The statement of Groesbeck follows: "We are advising our more than a quarter-million stockholders that despite all reports to the contrary, the public utility bill, known also as the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, still provides for the dismembering and destruction of our companies and other utility holding companies."

"We feel it is our duty to keep our stockholders informed and to point out to them that if they want to protect their investments quick action is necessary in expressing their opposition to this bill, because of the extraordinary efforts being made to rush this destructive bill into law."

Katharine Strykhurst, beautiful, restless and discontented, is taken to the home of Violet Merseur. Victor Strykhurst comes to see his daughter. Mrs. Merseur welcomes him as an old acquaintance.

Katharine, riding with Michael, is thrown from her horse. Shocked but not seriously injured, she is taken to the home of Violet Merseur. Victor Strykhurst comes to see his daughter. Mrs. Merseur welcomes him as an old acquaintance.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XI

"We meet again," Violet Merseur had said lightly to the handsome, portly gentleman who had invaded her prim little sitting room with its white paint and polished old tables and bright chintzes.

Victor Strykhurst opened his eyes widely at this. Then he stepped forward with his hands outstretched, every evidence of cordiality on his rosy, full-featured face.

"Violet! But this is extraordinary. My wife said..."

"What did she tell you? Sit down, Victor. Katharine is splendid; you may go up in a minute. But first I want to talk to you."

"Of course, of course." He settled comfortably in one of the deep-cushioned chairs, glancing around him approvingly. "But I never knew you lived in Innicoek, Violet!"

"We've been here almost seven years."

"I knew you'd married, of course. Saw a bit about it in the papers."

Her dark eyes were rather enigmatic. "You didn't write to wish me joy. I—I rather thought you would."

He touched his full lips with the corners of a fine white handkerchief. "Katharine's mother died that year," he said rather hollowly.

"Yes, I remember. Your daughter is a lovely creature, Victor. Does she remind you of me at that age?"

"Eh?" Victor Strykhurst's color deepened a trifle. He glanced apprehensively in the direction of the staircase.

"Don't worry," Violet went on softly. "Her door is closed. She can't hear. I was Katharine's age just 7 years ago, Victor. I was 20 when I went to work in your office."

"Is it possible it's that long?" murmured the man, exhaling a deep breath.

"I was rather like her," murmured the woman with the tired dark eyes, staring out across the darkness evergreen. "I had the same prickly-pear attitude in regard to men... oh, yes, I've talked to Katharine today rather a lot. I've found out more about her, perhaps than you know yourself."

Her tone held a subtle hint of mystery in it. The man glanced at her apprehensively.

"I know you're wondering what this is all about," said Mrs. Merseur, rousing herself to speak in a slightly brisker tone. "Just this—the child is very definitely unhappy."

"Unhappy? My daughter?"

There was injury in the man's tone. "Impossible! You were always an imaginative girl, Vi. Katharine has everything in the world. Why should she be unhappy?"

Mrs. Merseur shrugged her slender shoulders. "I met the second Mrs. Strykhurst for the first time today, Victor."

He had the grace to flush.

"Bertine's been splendid with Katharine. She's very executive. She took her in hand..."

"Exactly!" Mrs. Merseur's tone was dry.

"Katharine needs a lot of love, sympathy and understanding," she pursued a moment later. "Or—well, you know how it was with me. She may go off the deep end..."

"I haven't the faintest notion what you mean!" The man's annoyance showed in every syllable. "I mean you may expect her to find sympathy—or love—wherever she can find it."

"Oh, tommyrot!"

"I did," reminded the woman, with rather a bitter smile. "My home was unhappy. I believed the first pretty story a man told me. You may remember..."

He looked as if the reminder were to him a painful one.

Violet Merseur rose, as if terminating the interview. "Well, that's really all I wanted to say, Victor. Go on up now. First door to the right at the head of the stairs."

His tread echoed pompously through the house.

The woman, left alone, stared around her for a moment, as though rousing herself from a dream into which she had fallen. A lamp, lighted at her elbow, cast a golden circle of light upon polished mahogany and dropping rose petals. The swish of a broom kitchenward, came to her ears; the clinking of milk bottles, as a screen door closed. Then the door to Lavinia's room was firmly shut. Upstairs there was the murmur of voices, father and daughter's.

"Seventeen years," murmured the woman, half to herself. She settled herself with a book. She had her gaze wandered from the pages.

"Well, well!" Victor Strykhurst came downstairs briskly, rubbing his hands together. "Katharine's in fine shape. We were in luck to come off so easily. Don't you think I could take her off with me tonight?"

"The doctor advised letting her stay till morning," Violet Merseur smiled at him. "You'd rather get her out of my house, wouldn't you?"

"Nonsense, nonsense! I am eternally indebted to you for your kindness to Katharine!"

"I'm not going to tell her anything about—us," said the woman with deliberation.

"Naturally, you wouldn't. You are a most sensible woman, Violet. I always said so..."

"Not sensible enough!" A sardonic touch to her voice now. "That is, I'll not say a word, on one condition!"

He stared. "And that?"

"That you let her come to see me occasionally. That you don't attempt to wean her away from me. I like the child. I've taken a great fancy to her. I've two of my own now, Victor, you see."

"Really! But of course you must be friends with Katharine. Why not?"

"There may be another objection to that," commented Violet Merseur dryly. "Your wife..."

"Ah, you don't take a fancy to Bertine, I can see that." Putting back his handsome head, the lawyer gave the hearty laugh she so well remembered.

"Bertine is all right. She means well. It's not so easy, you know, to raise another woman's child." Violet Merseur smiled to herself. She could almost hear the second Mrs. Strykhurst's voice. He had been told that many, many times.

"I agree. I had a stepmother myself. Looking back now, I can see that sometimes she meant well..."

"You're very cozy here." His eyes roamed around the sitting room. "I've always noticed this place. Decent bit of garden."

"Stan inherited it from his uncle," the woman told him. "I married Stan Merseur, the illustrator."

"Interesting," murmured the man, at a loss. "Well, well, Violet, I must be getting back. My wife will wonder if something has happened."

She allowed him to clasp her slender hand in his fleshy one. "And—and we didn't know each other before, Victor?"

"Right you are!" There was relief in the words. "Explanations are so tiresome." She stood, smiling rather wryly after him.

Katharine came down the stairs slowly the following morning.

"You're all right?" Violet's eyes sought hers anxiously. Outside Bertine sat at the wheel of the big car. Ellen, with a suitcase, followed her young mistress.

"Oh, I'm perfectly fine. Just have to get my land legs again."

"Well, it's been lovely having you."

Sybil and Diana were on the edge of the group, their long legs brown and slim under the brief shorts of their white play suits.

"Do come again to see us, Miss Katharine. Please do!"

"Oh, I will! And there must be another puppy for the basket, mustn't there? A nice quiet one who will stay at home when he's told to?"

"Oh, yes, yes," they chorused, dancing up and down.

Bertine smiled stiffly, her company smile. She climbed out to assist Ellen who was helping Katharine in.

"Thank you ever so much, Mrs. Merseur. My husband and I are eternally grateful."

The words were right, but the tone withheld much. Bertine was saying, behind that pleasant mask of hers: but of course no one knows the Mersers in Innicoek. We shall smile and bow to you in Main Street, of course; that is all.

Katharine waved to them until the car disappeared out of sight, around the bend.

"Mummy, who was the fatted man who came after we went to bed last night?" Sybil's wistful, round face with its long golden mane was lifted to her mother's.

"Oh, you had ones, you were supposed to be asleep!"

"We peeked," Sybil said confidently. "We heard the car stop and saw him come up the walk. Was that Miss Katharine's daddy and was he nice?"

"Very nice," said Violet absent-

ly. Diana pounced upon her.

"Mummy, you're not listening. I can always tell when you're not listening. You use such a faraway voice."

"Oh, do I? But I was really, this time. Sybil asked if Katharine's father were nice and I said yes, he was."

"But sort of puffy, Mummy, wasn't he? It wasn't quite dark and we got a good look at him. Not nearly so good-looking as Miss Katharine. Don't you think she's beautiful, Mummy? Sort of like a movie star?"

"Yes, I do. She's really lovely."

"Shall I ever be that lovely, do you suppose, if I stop biting my nails and things?" Sybil asked gravely.

"I think very likely. Look, if we want to get down to the village to get things for lunch we'd better start."

Violet wheeled the little car out and the two hopped into it.

"Mummy, what were you muttering to yourself just now?" She flashed her dark eyes at them. "Just a song some one I know used to sing. The words of it, I mean. Don't remember the tune."

Violet answered; "Oh, how I laugh, when I think how I cried about you!"

Relief Clients Have Planted Gardens

AUSTIN.—Texas relief clients will go far toward feeding themselves this year if plans of the state relief headquarters materialize.

"We have furnished seed to plant 76,891 home gardens covering 20,250 acres in 157 counties of the state," said A. C. Allen, production director for the Texas Relief commission.

Community gardens will be placed in 82 counties, adding 2,909 acres to the total tilled by relief clients.

To complete the program Texas will operate 500 canning factories to conserve excess vegetables for winter use. Every type of vegetable common to Texas will be planted.

HARDWORKING HENS

TIFFIN, O.—Chickens in the flock owned by Mrs. Joseph Clouse are placing their own interpretation on the AAA's effort to curtail production. One hen determined to observe the principle of restriction in the latter, if not in the spirit, by packing three ordinary eggs into one shell. The egg weighed four ounces and had a circumference of 7 1-3 inches. Another hen hatched a chicken with three legs.

OUT OUR WAY" By Williams

Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop) By Cowen

ALLEY OOP By HAMLIN

Suppose YOUR Business were to be Shackled..

An industry that you depend on is now facing ruinous governmental interference.....

YOU have the right as an American to engage in any decent lawful business. Let's assume you are a business man who has worked hard and invested money to provide a service which your fellow man desires and needs.

What would you say if a law were proposed in Congress that would shackle your business with so many regulations that you could not go on? You probably would say, "I never thought it could happen in America."

Yet one of the country's great industries which serves you every day with something you desire and need is threatened with destruction by law. It is the gas and electric utility industry. A bill known as the Wheeler-Rayburn bill now in Congress aims first to chain this entire industry to severe regulation, and then deliberately to cripple and dismember it.

Your local electric company would be seriously affected. The holding company which aids your company to give good service would be abolished. Not all holding companies are to be destroyed under the terms of this proposed law, but only public utility holding companies; not all public utility holding companies, but only those engaged in the electric or gas business or both. That is significant.

Men who are experts in legislation think this bill is only the first step in a program of certain legislators to put government into all business. Other lines of business will be attacked, perhaps even yours.

The Wheeler-Rayburn bill may be the first big step toward National Socialism!

"Broadway Bill" Is A Grand Romance

The amazing Frank Capra, director of "Lady For a Day" and "It Happened One Night," has undoubtedly surpassed all his former glories in his newest Columbia comedy sensation, "Broadway Bill," which made its debut last night at the Arcadia Theatre.

With uncanny genius, the inimitable Mr. Capra has produced a beautifully human and appealing screen romance that is sheer delight. Based on a story by Mark Hellinger and written for the screen by the same Robert Riskin who collaborated with Capra on his two previous successes, "Broadway Bill" sets a standard in screen entertainment that will not easily be reached.

No little of the film's superb qualities can be attributed to the splendid performance registered by Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy in the two starring roles. Baxter's "Dan Brooks" is his finest screen characterization since the Cisco Kid in "In Old Arizona." Myrna Loy is a delightful revelation, a new and greater screen personality. Tonight as a romantic team, both Baxter and Loy are near perfect.

The story is that of Dan Brooks, who is a nomad at heart, but by circumstance the son-in-law of J. L. Higgins (Walter Connolly), who controls everyone and everything in Higginsville. His word is law, that is, to everyone excepting Dan, who doesn't give a hoot for business. Although he is married to one of Higgins' three daughters and is general manager of the Higgins Paper Box Factory, which assures a rosy financial future, he still doesn't like it. He likes horses, freedom, everything that is the antithesis of hide-bound Higginsville. The entire Higgins clan sneer at him—all except Alice, the young, unmarried sister-in-law.

In spite of sneers, Dan kicks over the financial applecart and goes his way. With him goes his horse, "Broadway Bill," and the horse's colored groom, Whitey, played by Clarence Muse. Unknown to Dan, there goes with him also the devotion and sympathy of Alice, his young sister-in-law.

The developments that follow are filled with drama, pathos and comedy. It will tug at your heart-strings one moment and make you laugh through your tears the next. One of the thrilling sequences of the story is a horse race which, it may be honestly said, has not been equalled on the screen.

Stone Shows the Vikings Landed Here in Year 1362

By United Press
DETROIT LAKES, Minn. — Belief that a tribe of ancient Norsemen visited this territory in the 14th century was voiced by F. T. Gustavson, Pequot, Minnesota, nationally known anthropologist, after a study of several stones at Cormorant Lake near here known as the "Norse Anchor Stones."

After viewing the stones, Gustavson declared that the runic inscription on the famous Kensington Runestone fits entirely with the Cormorant Lake stones. The inscription on the Kensington stone reads: "Eight Goths and 22 Norwegians on exploration — journey from Vineland Westward. We had camp by two skerries one day — journey north from this stone. We fished one day. When we returned home we found 10 men red with blood and dead. Ave Maria. Save from evil! Have ten of our party by the sea to look after our ships in 14 day journey from this island. Year 1362."

Gustavson explained that a day's journey meant at that time the distance traveled by boat along the coast of Norway, about "The lake with the two skerries" is Cormorant Lake, he added "while the sea where the ships were left is probably Hudson Bay. The party must have come down the Nelson River, Lake Winnipeg and the Red River to the mouth of the Buffalo River and by this stream to Cormorant Lake—where vestiges of the Norsemen still remain."

Accompanying Gustavson when he inspected the stones were Otto Zeck, Detroit Lakes, field agent for the University of Minnesota geologist department, and H. C. Colmer, member of the American Legion Historical Committee.
