Another Body Blow Given NRA Recovery Act

There is an election coming next year. A third of the membership of the senate will face the voters of their respective states for re-election. The United States senate voted to extend the NRA until April 1, 1936, after eliminating its price fixing provisions and limiting its regulations to interstate commerce. President Roosevelt asked for an extension of its life for two years.

All this happened after the senate had backed up the New Deal power program against in adverse court decision, voting 56 to 19 to give the Tennessee Valley author ity specific power "to generate, transmit and sell electrical energy." Only a score of senators were in the chamber when the NRA extension measure was passed without a record vote. Senator Lafollette, progressive, of Wisconsin, warned that it "would kill the recovery law as dead as a doornail," but he said the house will grant the two years extension recommended and then the conferees named by the house and the senate will complete the job-

Texans are reminded that the senate resolution would extend the recovery law "with price fixing eliminated except in mineral natural resource industries and with purely intra-state business exempt from the code structure." Texas is the greatest of oil and gas mineral natural resource industries. Eternal vigilance appears to be the price of liberty today as it was in colonial times, when freemen were preparing to battle for a republic of their own.
