FORMER EASTLAND GIRL IS DROWNED

POOL AT CROSS CUT IN BROWN CO. IS SCENE

Miss Ophelia Smith Sinks When Exhausted In Swimming Race.

Miss Ophelia Smith, 16, daughter of former Eastland residents, Mr. and Mrs. Zola Smith, drowned Tuesday in a pool at Cross Cut community and funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon.

Cross Cut, in Brown county, is about 15 miles southwest of Rising Star.

She was swimming with two boy friends, racing to the other side of the pool when she was drowned, according to reports. Racing across the pool and outdistancing her, the boys did not notice her submerging from apparent exhaustion until they reached the shore.

The girl attended Eastland High school and was well known. She was graduated from the Cross Cut school this year, relatives of the girl at Eastland stated.

Many friends of the daughter of the Root-Rhodes driller who lived at Eastland attended the funeral. While Mr. Smith and family resided in Eastland he was a driller for the company, which maintains its head offices there.

In Callahan county Mr. Smith is superintendent for Root-Rhodes extensive lease properties.

The drowning victim was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Smith. An aunt of the girl, Mrs. Jess Barnett, resides in Eastland.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Rhodes were among those from Eastland who attended the funeral which was held at Cross Cut. Others included the victim's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Barnett of Eastland, and their children, Tim, Jessie Ruth and Tom and S. J. Barnett, a cousin, and wife of Kilgore also attended the funeral as well as Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Terrell, residents of Eastland.

Mrs. Lee Ella Costello of Cisco, friend of the girl, also went to the funeral rites.

An outlined course in "How to Prepare for Civil Service Examinations" is to be offered in the federal adult school. These classes are being held in the high school building each evening from 8:15 to 9.

This course will cover the mathematics pertaining to civil service examinations. Other phases of this work will also be offered. This course will help one qualify for civil service examinations. Those interested in beginning this work are urged to enroll Wednesday or Thursday evening. This is an opportunity for those wishing to review before taking their examination.

Other classes in arithmetic and algebra are being offered from 6:30 to 8:15, Room 4, high school building, each evening of the week.

Rev. James Speaker At Rotary Meeting

R. B. Canfield had charge of the Rotary program at noon today and introduced Rev. E. S. James, who is conducting a revival at the First Baptist church. Rev. James spoke on the subject, "Seeing Through the Other Fellow's Glasses."

Rev. G. W. Thomas, pastor of the church, and Bro. Denham, who is conducting the singing, were also present at the meeting.

Foreigners Leave Addis Ababa Today

LONDON, July 10.—Evacuation of foreigners including children of Italian fathers and Abyssinian mothers, continued today in Halle Selassie's capital, Addis Ababa.

In contrast to reports that the refugees numbered many Americans, dispatches indicated the 125 Americans now in Ethiopia, nearly all missionary families, would remain at their posts despite warnings to leave.

How to Break 'Death Grip'

TWO GIRLS TO BE BURIED IN SAME GRAVE

Two girls who were friends during life, and who went to their death clasped in each other's embrace, will be buried together in Evergreen cemetery, Ranger, Thursday when funeral services will be conducted for Miss Edna Lucile Bush, 16, of Ranger, and Eleanor Rae Drinkard, 15, of Eastland, who were victims of a drowning accident at Mansell lake, near Ranger, Tuesday afternoon.

The services are to be conducted at the First Baptist church of Ranger, Thursday, 2 p. m., with Rev. K. C. Edmonds in charge of the services. Interment will be in the same grave following the church services.

Funeral arrangements for the two girls were completed Wednesday morning.

T. I. Bush, father of one of the victims, was in Savannah, Mo., when the two girls drowned, and was to arrive in Ranger Wednesday afternoon at 4:20 in time for the double funeral.

Misses Bush and Drinkard, who had been friends for a number of years, went swimming Tuesday afternoon at Mansell lake, two miles northwest of Ranger, with a young aunt, Mrs. J. E. Bush. The girls were holding to a raft in the deep water of the lake when it overturned. Miss Bush started for the shore, but when she saw Miss Drinkard was in distress she swam back to aid her and the two drowned together. The aunt, who could not swim, summoned aid from the Evergreen cemetery, half a mile away, and the two bodies were recovered.

Miss Bush is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. I. Bush; six sisters, Mrs. Lois Drinkard of Eastland, Mrs. Jesse Lee Rollins of Altus, Okla., Mrs. Bernice Walthall of Ranger, Audrey Faye, Billie Jean and Joyce Bush, all of Ranger, and three brothers, Durwood, J. M. and T. L. Bush Jr.

Surviving the Eastland girl are two sisters, Mrs. J. R. Aldredge of Fort Stockton, who arrived today at her parents home; Ruth, 12, of Eastland and the brother, Marshall, who is thought in California. Mr. Drinkard is an Eastland carpenter.

Eastland's "White Way" Is Now Dark

If you're in the dark as to reason of no illumination of the Eastland "white way," here's the explanation offered by city employes:

A cable, located under the sidewalk near the Connellie hotel is "shorted out." Discovery of the trouble was made by Guy Sherrill and Johnnie Hart, electricians, after a series of experimentations with the system.

Continuation of operation of the white way is expected in several days, although it may be necessary to go under pavement at the Mulberry-West Main street intersection, it was stated.

106 Degrees of Heat is Record

Eastland residents who speculated Tuesday as hottest day of the year are right and J. A. Beard, official weather observer, corroborates their impression.

He reported Wednesday that a maximum temperature Tuesday of 106 was recorded. Monday a temperature of 102 degrees was noted, on Sunday it was 100 and the day previous the mercury ran from the 95 to 98 degree scale.

Cafe Man Freed On Charge of Murder

LIBERTY, Texas, July 10.—T. E. Barnes, cafe man of Hull, was freed of murder charges in connection with the shooting of Ernest Baucum, also of Hull, in 1933.

A district court jury acquitted Barnes yesterday.

Barnes said he shot Baucum in self-defense after an argument over alleged illicit relations between Baucum and his daughter, Virgie Barnes. Trial was completed in two days.

Cisco High After Students of Three Rural Communities

Arrangement whereby a bus will carry Central, Bluff Branch and Cottonwood students to Cisco high school next term is being made by Superintendent of Cisco Schools R. N. Cluck, it was stated Wednesday.

Consideration of some for a bus to carry students of those schools to Union high school in Callahan county has been discarded because of non-affiliation of the institution, it was stated.

Short Subjects On Thursday's Program At Arcadia Theatre

The annual short subject program, which has been presented for several years by the Arcadia theatre, is to be shown Thursday, with a carefully selected list of comedies, cartoons and other short features.

Included in the entertainment booked for that date are: Pop Eye cartoon, "Gypsy Sweetheart," Charles Abner and his Millionaire Band, Laurel and Hardy, Buddy's Big Hunt, a Looney Tune cartoon, Remember the Alamo, and The Lost Chick, a technicolor cartoon.

Dallas Man Dies In Record Heat

DALLAS, July 10.—The stifling heat wave caused its first fatality here today.

E. S. Carter, 40, bookkeeper, collapsed at his desk and died in an ambulance as he was being taken to a hospital. The weather bureau offers no relief from the sweltering temperatures. The temperature was expected to equal the high temperature of 102.2, registered yesterday, the highest recorded here since 1913.

Story Telling Hour At Public Library

Miss Mary Edio Davenport will entertain the older boys and girls by telling them some of the things she saw on her recent trip to New York, Washington, and other eastern places. Mrs. W. W. Jarvis will amuse the small children with fairy tales and animal stories. The story hour is conducted each Thursday afternoon at 4 p. m. at the library in the high school. All children are invited.

Max Baer Says "We're Still In Love"

NEW YORK, July 10.—Max Baer, one-time playboy heavyweight boxing champion, today confirmed difficulties with his bride, Mary Sullivan, but denied a serious rift had occurred.

"We love each other now and it will be the same way 10 years from now," Baer, enroute to Johns Hopkins hospital for an operation on his hand, told reporters.

DEAN ELECTED FOR R.J.C. FOR THE NEXT YEAR

The Ranger school board, at a regular meeting Tuesday night, elected three teachers for the coming school year.

Lemuel S. Rhein of the University of Arkansas was elected to a position of dean of the Ranger Junior college for the year to replace H. S. Von Roeder, who will be on a leave of absence for the year while working toward his Ph. D. degree at the University of Texas. No action was taken in the selection of a principal of the high school, the two positions having been separated by action of the board Tuesday night.

Velton Moser was elected to a position in the elementary grades, without assignment to any particular school, as was Miss Vesta McCleskey of Frankell.

"I have been elected to a part-time instructorship in educational administration at the University of Texas and I have decided to accept," Von Roeder said today concerning his plans for the future.

"I will be able to make living expenses by just teaching two classes and in that way I can take enough classwork to enable me to get my Ph. D. degree in about two years. The board here graciously voted to give me a year's leave of absence, which would permit me to resume my duties here for the year 1936-37, should I choose to do so. I appreciate this opportunity for me to advance professionally and to fit myself for greater and better service hereafter. If I may, I shall be glad to prepare a letter to the public to be run through the columns of your paper within the near future. I shall solicit students for Ranger Junior college for the next month or so."

Aged Woman Dies At Home of Mrs. Sparks, Daughter

Funeral services for Mrs. J. M. Dougherty, 78, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Sparks, in Eastland Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, were held Wednesday afternoon from Eads Funeral Home in Belton, where her husband was interred in 1909. Rev. E. R. Stanford, pastor of the Methodist church at Eastland, officiated.

Mrs. Dougherty had resided at the home of her daughter in Eastland for four months.

She was born April 16, 1857.

Survivors are four sons, J. G. Spearman, T. D. Levelland, Pat. former secretary of state under Governor Ross Sterling; Ed. Austin; three daughters, Mrs. M. B. Blair, wife of the appellate court justice at Austin, Judge Blair; Mrs. J. W. Stafford, Killeen, and Mrs. Frank Sparks, Eastland.

Funeral services were in charge of Hamner Undertaking Company of Eastland, who transported the body by overland to Belton.

CIVIL COURT HOLDS 32 CENT GAS GATE RATE IS NOT PROVEN CONFISCATORY

AUSTIN, July 10.—A sweeping decision of the Third Court of Civil Appeals today held a 32-cent gas rate set by the Texas railroad commission for the Lone Star Gas company had not been shown to be confiscatory or unreasonable, by the company court attack upon the order.

The appeals court rendered judgment for the state and dissolved an injunction against making the rate effective.

Railroad Commission Chairman E. O. Thompson announced the decision is open for 200 towns serviced by the company to order reduced rates. The 32-cent rate is eight cents lower than the former rate.

Thompson backed his statement by citing that "the railroad commission may make its order requiring distributing companies to pay not in excess of such rates, without further notice of hearing." The opinion, however, dealt only with the state's interest in the case.

Dissolution of a three-judge federal restraining order must be gotten by the attorney general's department before cities may reduce their gas rates.

Savings to consumers is estimated at $1,400,000 a year. The company has 15 days to file a motion for rehearing by the court of civil appeals. If that is overruled they can ask the state supreme court for a writ of error.

"Be Lazy" Is Tip Of Woman, 102, to Be a Centenarian

MONTREAL.—Be lazy and live to be a hundred.

That is the advice of Mrs. Timothee Malouin, who has just started her 102nd year. She attributes her longevity to the fact that she "has never done a stroke of work" in all her life.

Laziness, she said, was her main virtue, lemonade her strongest drink and her daily two-block walk to church her favorite diversion.

UTILITY BILL IS SENT INTO CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The utilities holding company bill was sent to conference today when Senator William Dietrich, Democrat, Illinois, agreed to withdraw his motion to instruct conferees to proceed from their position on the "death sentence" feature.

The action was regarded as a temporary administration victory although there was no indication the senate conferees under Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, could force the house to accept the "death sentence" provision in the form in which it was advanced originally by the administration and passed by the senate.

He withdrew the motion after Wheeler promised that every effort would be made to work out an agreement with the house on the section and that if no satisfactory arrangement could be completed in conference the senate would have another opportunity to vote on the death sentence.

Walter Owens of Gorman Is Injured In Car Accident

Serious injuries were sustained by Walter Owens of Gorman in an automobile accident in that city Tuesday afternoon, it was reported Wednesday.

Extent of his injuries and details of the accident were not available.

The two, Lorene Stubblefield, 16, and Stella Fry, 15, were found last night at a roadside eating place by the Stubblefield girl's uncle. The girls were washing dishes and waiting counter for $2 a week.

Stubblefield went to the eating place after a woman saw them there.

MARSHALL, July 10.—Nine Harrison county officers were under a grand jury indictment today for an alleged "intentional disregard of the law" in the conduct of their offices.

The officers included constables, deputy sheriffs and a justice of the peace.

The indictments followed an investigation of the fee system in Harrison county.

Justice of the Peace J. B. Henderson was indicted for failing to keep fee books. Constable E. J. White, J. P. Jones, Joe Pope, Felix Jones and J. D. Smith were also charged with failing to keep fee books.

Deputy Sheriff Ellis Johnson, H. H. Little and Eaton Hunt were charged with failure to produce cost bills.

Cities Begin to Rebel Against Corruption

When the history of this era is written by our grandchildren, it is probable that the post-war years will be described as the period in which American municipal government was redeemed after it had almost fallen apart. The chief trouble with our city governments in the last 15 years has been an inefficiency and a blind greed which reflected the extent to which stupid and corrupt partisan politics had made control of municipal affairs a racket rather than a branch of public service; and the most prominent symptom of this state of affairs was to be found in the brazenness of organized criminal gangs.

There is not much use in rehearsing a great deal of past history on this point. What happened in Chicago and New York—to name only two cities under the regimes of such men as Capone and Rothstein is too well known to need repeating. The point is that at long last the tide seems to have begun to run the other way. St. Paul had an explosion the other day. An energetic commissioner of public safety, H. E. Warren, dug out evidence to show that the city's police department was in a direct and startling alliance with the underworld. The sensation which followed brought about a swift purge of the police department, and probably jarred the citizens of St. Paul sufficiently to make them insist hereafter on decency and honesty in control of their government.

This explosion in St. Paul was a symptom, just as the corrupt condition which preceded it was also a symptom. For a long time American cities generally were content to go along under the kind of political misrule which had developed during the generations before. People knew that in most cases they were being misgoverned, but they had plenty of money to pay for it and nobody cared very much.

But at last the situation became too costly to be put up with any longer. The gang fights of prohibition days did not bother the ordinary man very much; the depredations of the Dillingers hit too close to home to be endurable.

But opinion demanded and got a concerted drive against these gentry—and in the course of this drive it became obvious that large-scale crime can exist only when it can maintain a working alliance with city governments.

Slowly but surely, this alliance is being overthrown. And along with the overthrow we are beginning to learn anew the old lesson of democratic government—that a city, a state, or a nation gets just about the kind of rule that it deserves; that greedy partisan politics is the most expensive of all luxuries; and that even the worst of messes can be cleaned up if the citizens really desire it.

Nations in Arms Race of Goose and Gander

One of the troubles with the international armament situation is the ancient belief that what is sauce for the goose is also sauce for the gander. The difficulty with this is that if your flock of geese and ganders is too large, all hands wind up in a worse position than the one from which they started.

In other words, there is no logical argument by which by which you can upset the statesman's plea that until other countries disarm his own country must maintain a big military establishment. And yet when all statesmen adopt that viewpoint, what you get is nothing less than one of those armament races that lead with frightening speed and precision to war.

A survey of the present situation shows all the great nations of Europe preparing feverishly for war; and the general point of view is neatly illustrated by recent remarks of Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, air minister in the British cabinet.

"Adequate strength is the most effective deterrent of war, and the expansion of our air force is not a panic measure," he says. "We will work for limitation of armaments, for an air pact, and for peace, but we cannot hope to obtain these objectives until our own strength is adequate."

Now there simply is no quarreling with this statement. In the present condition of European affairs, no British government could afford to go unprepared.

Indeed, it is probably quite true that the prospects for continued peace in Europe are better when England is amply defended than they are when she is not.

And yet—what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. If England must spend millions getting ready for a fight, so much everyone else.

Each nation can adopt this attitude of the British air minister; each nation can honestly and sincerely desire peace and disarmament, but bow to the necessity of keeping up its strength as long as everyone else does the same—and in the end you get that invention of the devil himself, the armament race.

It may be, indeed, that disarmament will have to wait for the appearance of some national government brave enough to reduce its own forces without waiting for other nations to do the same.

Aged Negro Has Lived Same Place For Seventy Years

By United Press
 CONROE, Texas—"Uncle" William Butler, former slave on a Virginia plantation, has lost count of his years, but he has lived in a little cabin near here for 70 years and his friends claim he is far past the century mark.

Uncle William was born on the Col. Alf Butler plantation "in de Blue Ridge mountains," near Stafford, Va., and was "drapt off" an army wagon in Montgomery county "by de Yankees" at the close of the Civil war.

He said he didn't return to his former home because it "gits so cold back in de Blue Ridge mountains." He exhibited his crippled feet as evidence.

When he was a little fellow, "old Colonel Alf" sent him for whisky. On his way home he decided to "tap de jug."

Soon he was "daid drunk." He lay on the roadside all night and his feet froze.

Public Warned to Check Spread of Fly-Borne Disease

AUSTIN.—Flies spread disease. They are reared in filth and through life make frequent trips from filth to food. Germs causing dysentery and other intestinal disorders are transported on the dirty feet of flies. These insect pests are regarded as having played a leading part in causing food-borne epidemics of typhoid fever, stated Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer.

Flies multiply rapidly as soon as warm weather comes to stay. A female deposits more than a hundred eggs at a time in organic material such as manure or in an insanitary toilet. The life cycle from egg to larva (maggot), to pupa, to adult male or female fly requires but 10 days. A week later, 50 females, under favorable conditions, are ready to deposit a total of 50,000 eggs. During the summer season, nine generations of flies may result from one female that laid the first batch of eggs in the offspring of a single overwintering female were to survive through nine generations, descendants in the fall would number over five and a half trillion.

Fortunately, modern sanitation and knowledge regarding the life history and habits of the house fly render possible complete control over the fly nuisance. Proper disposal of human and animal wastes in urban areas and on farms will prevent the breeding and multiplicity of flies. Practical suggestions relative to methods of fly control may be obtained from the State Department of Health and U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Red Cross Aids 9,800 Families

By United Press
 ST. LOUIS.—Relief for sufferers from three major floods and six tornadoes has required expenditure of an estimated $350,000 this year, according to headquarters of the American Red Cross of the Midwestern area. The area includes 17 states.

In Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, an estimated 4,300 families will require aid to rebuild and furnish homes lost in the flood of the Missouri River. Arkansas and Oklahoma have 3,500 families recovering from the effects of floods of the Arkansas, Poteau, White and Cache rivers. About 2,000 families were left homeless in Texas by floods of the Rio Grande, Colorado, Guadalupe and other rivers. Tornado victims are not so numerous, and damage has been confined to small areas for the most part. The headquarters survey here shows there have been two tornadoes in Texas and one each in

TO FACE FINAL TEST IN HIGH COURT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 10.—President Roosevelt's first "New Deal" measure, the Tennessee Valley Authority, is headed for the United States supreme court for a final test on its constitutionality.

The case, which will be argued in the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, is headed for the United States supreme court for a final test on its constitutionality.

Inflation Creates Problem for Parachutists, too

The idea of stepping into this air terrifies the novice, but it is the actual landing that worries the experienced parachute jumper. If there's the least breeze, the jumper is likely to find himself at the mercy of his chute, his life imperiled by being dragged over rough ground, tossed into barbed wire or brambles. This unusual picture of British Air Force jumpers trying to haul in their billowing chutes after landing at Henlow, England vividly illustrates the terrific struggle that marks the end of the jump.

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop)

By Cowen

Since then, new rules have been devised and new laws passed as leaks were discovered through which "hot" oil flowed. Last stopgap requires truck drivers to display manifests for all oil products that they move out of the big field.

This manifest law gives enforcement officers a new weapon. Oil products found moving without a manifest can be confiscated.

The manifest is a shipping certificate. Manifests for products must show the source of the oil from which they were produced.

Death of Power Company Seen

Forney Johnston, attorney representing stockholders of the power company, predicted "certain annihilation" of the Alabama Power Company if TVA is permitted to compete with private utilities.

The TVA program is a "Congressional misapprehension" and there had never been anything like it before in this country, he said.

"The question is whether the government, having overbuilt Muscle Shoals, can now dispose of the surplus power generated there," Johnston said.

Grubb's Decision Sweeping

The present test case in the courts is the outgrowth of the TVA's effort to obtain a market for part of its Muscle Shoals electricity in North Alabama. The TVA had contracted to buy from the Alabama Power Company transmission and municipal distribution systems in 14 north Alabama towns at a cost of approximately $2,000,000. TVA opponents contend the company "yielded" to threats of destructive competition.

A small group of the power company's preferred stockholders obtained from Judge Grubb an injunction annulling the contracts. Judge Grubb also enjoined the towns from borrowing PWA money to build their own distribution plans or from buying any current from TVA.

'Hot' Oil Rebellion Continues After Battling Four Years

AUSTIN.—Texas' "hot" rebellion continues after four years of battling.

"Hot" oil, in field parlance, is oil produced in excess of that permitted by state regulation. Production of production began in Texas in 1927 upon discovery of the Yates field in Pecos county, which included the world's record well.

"Hot" oil became a problem in East Texas shortly after that field was discovered. Makeshift restriction orders were passed in rapid succession as courts, both state and federal, struck them down.

In addition to its numerous courthouse battles the "hot" oil war has had its actual conflicts, its fortress and soldiers in action.

At Gladewater a well was protected by a concrete diaphragm with the only means of access to the well through a dwelling protected from invasion by the state constitution.

Hidden pipelines and mismarked valves were more favored places to outfit the soldiers placed in the field by former Gov. Ross R. Sterling.

Lately the courthouses have again become the battlefields of the war. Right of the state to confiscate "hot" oil in contested. Sale prices for confiscated oil are criticized; oil receivers' fees protested.

Strictness of the regulation makes the rebellion long lived. Each of more than 16,000 wells in East Texas is allowed to produce daily in July only 3.3 per cent of what it could produce in one hour.

"Suppose Wall Street trading were restricted for a whole day's stock exchange session to transfer of 3.3 per cent of an average hour's trading," the oil field "rebels" say, "would brokers obey such a law?"

Big companies say that unrestricted oil production will wreck oil prices in the industry. The "rebels" reply that big companies are importing foreign oil at prices less than "hot" oil brings.

Agriculture Showed Greatest Strides in Lower Rio Grande

By United Press

M'ALLEN, Texas.—Agriculture

developed more rapidly in the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas than in any other part of the state during the five-year period from 1930 to 1935, according to estimates of the United States census bureau in Washington.

The four valley counties reported a total of 19,954 farms in 1935, as compared with a total of 9,420 farms in 1930. For the five-year period there was an increase of 10,534 farmers in the area. The percentage increase is approximately 112 per cent.

According to some estimates Hidalgo county has more farms than any other county in Texas and Cameron county ranks second in the state.

Hidalgo county's increase during the period was about 129 per cent while Cameron's increase was about 149 per cent.

CHAPTER III

JO and Tubby and Bret did full justice to the food. When, at last, Bret leaned back in his chair with a contented sigh and produced a package of cigarets there was little left on the table but the paper containers and the modest tableware Joe had found in the kitchen.

"Tubby," Joe said, "I don't know what I'd do without you this summer. I simply couldn't have dragged myself outside for dinner."

"I don't want to take all the credit," Tubby told her. "It was partly Bret's idea."

Bret looked at Jo through the gray haze of cigaret smoke. "And now I think Tubby and I ought to be skipping back to the campus. You'll need a full night's rest in preparation for tomorrow."

And truly enough Jo found herself quite ready to sleep again when Tubby and Bret had gone. She was so weary that she had only her bag brought up from the luggage room, and in the space of a very few minutes she had dozed blue palmas, left a call at the desk for seven o'clock, and climbed between the sheets.

When she was awakened the usually dingy room was bright with early morning June sunshine and as Jo rummaged in her bag for her toilet kit she astonished herself by breaking into a smile. Really it wasn't so bad to be on your own, to be facing the world with only your two hands and your brain. Especially when the morning was as bright as this one!

On the table was the newspaper Bret had left, folded at the advertisement he'd advised her to follow up. When she had dressed Jo tore out the little rectangle of printing and shoved it into the pocket of her suit. She still felt certain somehow that she was going to be successful in getting this job. She had a "hunch" about it—and Joe's hunches weren't too often wrong.

She stopped for breakfast at a little coffee shop in the same block as the Fendale, and when she had finished she inquired about the address of her prospective job.

"Oh, that's right near here," the cashier said. "Just turn to the right at the next block down, and then walk about four blocks."

Jo thanked her, glad indeed that the distance didn't call for carfare. The advance rent at the Fendale had left her very little money and Jo was determined that she would not appeal again to her parents for help.

"And if I get this place," she thought, "I can walk to work. That would be fortunate—and healthy."

When she reached the proper block it took her some little time to locate the address but at last she found it, and her heart sank. It was not a very prepossessing establishment. What she saw was hardly anything more than a small store room with rather a narrow door, and over the front was a weathered sign which read "Brown's Marine Supply Company." In the tiny show windows there were a few coils of rope, some brass boat hardware quite unfamiliar to Jo and a model of a sailing ship. But in the store itself she saw two small sleek mahogany runabout motorboats set on blocks.

She tried the door and found it locked and she was staring dazedly at the ship model when a rather gruff voice started her. "Well, you're early anyhow."

She turned to see a short, middle-aged man peering at her over his pocket. He fished in his hip pocket for a ring of keys selected one and proceeded to open the door.

"Did you come in answer to the ad in the paper?"

"Yes," Jo said. "I'm Jo Darien and—well, I'd like to work for you."

He looked at her quizzically. "Oh, you would, would you?"

At this question Jo became not at all sure that she would. But she remembered Bret's words. "Of course it's only half-time, but it'll help you keep your chin up, and it will give you the afternoons to look for something else."

"I'm Brown," the man said. "Owner and proprietor. Come on in."

Jo followed him through the store and into a tiny back room, a partition which could hardly be called an office.

"You look pretty young," Brown said, eyeing her again in the glare of a fly-specked globe he had turned on. "Had any experience keeping books?"

"A little. When I was in high school I used to help my father with the accounts in his store sometimes."

Brown nodded. "Well, my eye, you ain't complicated at all. You know this is only a half-time job, don't you?"

"Yes, I do. But I'm hoping that business will be so good this summer that you'll need me all the time."

Facing this remark, and Jo's friendly smile the gruff Mr. Brown thawed a little at last. He looked at her sharply for a moment, and then began to chuckle. "Well, maybe you'll be all right. Can you start this morning?"

"I certainly can. That is if—what do you pay Mr. Brown?"

"Remember this is just part-time

He dropped his business-like tone and smiled engagingly. "You're new here, aren't you?"

ing won't be half as hard as piecing out my writing!" He chuckled.

JO found it hard going that first morning. Brown didn't know much of a system, and during the winter when he had no assistance his office work fell into considerable confusion. But as the hours wore on and Jo began to make a little progress, she decided she could handle the work satisfactorily.

At 11:30 Mr. Brown shuffled into the little cubicle and asked Jo how she was making out.

"Fine, I think. I'll be faster when I get used to the work."

"Sure. I go out to lunch at 11:30. I just take half an hour, and you can watch the place. If anybody comes in ask 'em to wait a while."

He had been gone only a few minutes when she heard the door open and looked up to see a tall man walking down toward the office. He was Jo saw, smartly and quietly dressed, and there was an assured air in the way he carried a stick. When he reached the little office and raised his hat Jo thought, oddly and suddenly, that he was quite the handsomest man she had ever seen.

"How do you do," he said. "I'm Mr. Brown, Jr."

"He'll return in just a few minutes," Jo replied. "And I'm sure he'll want you to wait."

"Thanks—but I can see a map in this block, and then I'll come back." Suddenly he dropped his business-like tone and smiled so engagingly Jo guessed his age to be about 27 or 28, but when he smiled she couldn't be at all sure. "You're new here, aren't you?" he asked.

Jo nodded. "I came to work for Mr. Brown this morning," she said briefly.

"He's somewhat crusty on occasion but he's really the salt of the earth. Will you tell him please that Douglas March can wait?"

"Yes, Mr. March. I'll tell him." (To Be Continued)

Miss Ruth Smith is expected home today after a pleasant visit with friends in Ada, Okla., for the past few weeks.

O. B. Denney left the first of the week upon receipt of a telegram stating the condition of his mother was serious and his presence was desired at their Missouri home, near Springfield.

Thursday morning takes Mrs. W. W. Carlin and children to Fort Worth, to be at the bedside of Mrs. E. V. Mooney, sister of Mrs. Carlin, a patient at St. Joseph hospital, who underwent major surgery three days ago. A telephone report today revealed her condition is improved. Many friends here will be pleased to learn she is making progress toward a successful recovery. She is remembered as the former Miss Marie Whalen.

Members of Boy Scout Troop No. 19 are receiving compliments upon the manner in which the dance at the American Legion hall was conducted last night when they presented Roy Dodson and his Wanderers, a personnel of nine splendid and peppy musicians. Since they were a very friendly and congenial group of entertainers it was learned they answered to the following names: Buck Dodson, Dick Reinhart, Fred Casers, Jack Norwood, Marvin Montgomery, Don Perry and Hugh Berry. Roy Dodson, who does all the booking and serves as director, also proved a very courteous person and one who is much interested in making new friends for his dance band.

Boyce House, member of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram staff, was a welcome visitor in their former home town, Ranger, yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Calvert of Route 1 were callers at the Times office this morning. Mr. Calvert said that he could not do without the Daily and Weekly Times.

Announcement is being made today by Carl Koch, formerly of Fort Worth, but now of Ranger, of the opening of a Goodyear tire agency in Ranger, with J. W. McKinney of Ranger as an assistant in the retail store.

There have been but three retail agencies in Texas, but recently six others have been opened, one of which is in Ranger, it was stated today.

The local agency, which is located at 108 South Rusk street, in the building formerly occupied by Bill's Dry Cleaning plant, carries a full line of Goodyear tires, tubes, batteries, radios and accessories at popular prices.

"One of the features of our new selling plan will be easy time payments, made either weekly or monthly," it was explained today in making the announcement concerning the store. "We believe that if the people will just investigate our time payment plan they will be convinced that it is one of the most liberal to be found anywhere, and this, coupled with the Goodyear reputation, should appeal to all car owners."

United Press Staff Correspondent BERKELEY, Cal.—A complete chain of old, forgotten Spanish missions, swallowed up by the desert generations ago, has been rediscovered by the University of California.

The missions once were bustling and bustling outposts of Spanish civilization and defense in the New World.

Today nothing remains but a jumble of weed choked ruins in Lower California.

The Dominican Friars reared the missions along the coastal wastes of Lower California at the same time that the Franciscan monks were constructing their chain along what is now the coast of the State of California.

The Lower California group, uncertified by a University of California graduate student, once linked the Franciscan chain to the north, and the Jesuit chain to the south in one unbroken chain that extended for more than 1,200 miles through the two Californias.

They have long since become one of the dead spots in history, although they have played a heroic part in the annals of the Mexican nation.
