SINGERS TO GATHER HERE FOR WEEK END

The first state-wide singing convention, sponsored by the Ranger Singing Association, the Ranger School Board and the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, will start at the Recreation building Saturday afternoon and will continue through Sunday night.

Dr. A. K. Wier, president of the singing association and chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, stated today that he anticipated several thousand would be on hand for the singing and that he expected the capacity of the new auditorium building to be taxed to capacity.

Arrangements have been made to furnish rooms for specially invited singers and quartets in the homes in Ranger and in local hotels. It was stated, while a large number are expected to be on hand Saturday to remain over for the two days of the convention.

Word has been received from practically all over the state and from several singers in Oklahoma that they would be present at the convention, it was stated recently, and the letters from these singers indicate that the attendance will be around 5,000, committees have stated.

Special numbers have been arranged by the committee and will be presented as a surprise for the singers, and these specialties are expected to prove exceedingly popular.

Services in most of the Ranger churches for Sunday night have been curtailed so that the congregations can be dismissed in time for the members to attend the singing convention on that night.

Plans for the football training camp will be explained at the squad meeting, and the list of those who are to go to the camp will be made out. Since only 35 squadmen can be taken to the camp this year some of the younger boys will not be able to go along, but they will probably be taken to the camp next year, it was explained.

All members of the squad were urged by the coach to meet with him at the high school promptly at 1:30 in order that arrangements could be made for starting the camp on Monday of next week.

This will be the first training camp for the Bulldogs and much good is expected from the camp, not only by the coach, but by the squadmen.

Jersey Cow Club Will Be Organized At Eastland Meet

Definite steps toward organization of an Eastland county registered Jersey club or association will be taken at a meeting to be held in the office of C. Metz Head, county agent, in the county courthouse at Eastland Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The meeting is being called at the insistence of a number of Jersey cattle breeders in both Eastland and Ranger and a number of cattle breeders in other sections of the county have expressed an interest in the formation of such an organization.

At a recent meeting in Ranger Rev. Charles W. Estes of Eastland made a talk on the registered Jersey cow, and urged that such an organization be formed, to include every Jersey cow owner in the county.

All owners of registered and grade cattle in the county have been issued special invitations to attend the meeting in Eastland Saturday, at which time the purpose and functions of such a club will be thoroughly discussed and a permanent organization formed. Election of officers will likely follow the organization of the club and it is expected to become active immediately after its organization.

Last year one of the best style shows ever held in Ranger was put on in the block of Main street between the Gholson hotel and the corner of Rusk and Main.

IL DUCE TELLS OF ETHIOPIAN PERSECUTIONS

By ED KEEN

ROME, Aug. 23.—"A solution of the Ethiopian problem must be something radical and conclusive," Mussolini declared today.

"Ethiopia cannot continue as a weapon—a modern weapon, not an ancient lance—pointed at Italy's back."

With these words, spoken by Benito Mussolini, on the eve of his departure for Northern Italy to attend the fair since the World War, concluded an hour's interview in which he discussed Italy's justification for her course of action.

"When I told him the object of my visit to Rome was to obtain first hand information about Italy's purpose and the reason for them, about which the world and to a considerable degree critical, Mussolini said:

"For the past 40 years Ethiopia has been hostile toward Italy. In order to avoid friction we tried to come to an understanding with her and in 1928 we signed a treaty of friendship which she has since consistently disregarded."

"The situation has become worse and worse. She has attacked our soldiers, killed our officials and civilians and has been preparing an army to attack us."

"So we decided to take precautionary measures and I have sent our soldiers to Africa."

"I am not an enemy to any race but I insist Italian rights be respected by every race. That is what we intend to do in Ethiopia."

Mexicanis Charged In Highway Robbery
Chief of Police Jim Ingram of Ranger filed charges of highway robbery against Steve Gueyredo, Mexican, who had been arrested on a complaint alleging robbery of Julio Garcia, section hand for the Texas and Pacific company, stationed at Wiles.

According to the story told by Garcia he and Gueyredo had been drinking together in the negro section of town, and when they parted company Gueyredo slipped up behind him, hitting him over the head with a bottle, blackjack or some similar instrument, taking a new $70 watch which Garcia had just purchased a few days before.

The chief of police and patrolman Guy Pledger made the arrest following a complaint by Garcia.

The charges were filed in Justice of the Peace McFater's court in Ranger, after which the Mexican was turned over to county authorities. The watch was recovered and returned to Garcia.

Announcement was made this morning by D. Joseph, president of the Ranger Retail Merchants association, and endorsed by J. C. Smith, that a meeting of the merchants would be held next Thursday night at the Retail Merchants' office for the purpose of working out plans for the annual style show which will be held some time not later than Sept. 15.

Last year one of the best style shows ever held in Ranger was put on in the block of Main street between the Gholson hotel and the corner of Rusk and Main.

Several thousand people were in attendance at the show and this year the merchants plan a better show. An orchestra will give a concert, and a suitable program will be worked up for the occasion.

An urgent request from the officers of the Retail Merchants is that all merchants, not only the dry goods merchants, but furniture merchants, grocers and electric refrigerator dealers be present. The meeting will be called promptly at 8 o'clock.

Sen. Tidings Denies He Attended Any Cocktail Parties
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Senator Tidings, Dem., Md., broke into the senate lobby hearing today to shout at B. B. Robinson, utility lobbyist, a denial he had ever met Robinson at a cocktail party.

"And hereafter when you use my name in this testimony you be damn sure you are right," shouted Tidings.

The Maryland senator was in a rage, because of Robinson's testimony regarding officials he met and entertained at cocktail and dinner parties for which H. C. Hopsan, kingpin of the Associated Gas & Electric company, paid the bills.

Robinson flushed as the senator shook his fist at him.

WITNESS TELLS OF PURCHASING SOME HOT OIL

HOUSTON, Aug. 23.—A witness testified here today before the house oil investigating committee that he paid 29 cents per barrel in an oil confiscation sale by the state of Texas for the sole purpose of getting permission to move the oil.

The oil was confiscated by the state as "hot" and could not be moved otherwise.

The witness was Earl Hepworth, who was plant manager of the Phoenix Refining company at the time of the deal. The state got only one-fourth of the amount paid by Phoenix for the oil, the purchasers being able to buy 21,000 barrels for a quarter of its value. The oil cost 83 cents a barrel in all. The firm paid attorney's fees of 10 cents a barrel for handling the case, to the firm of Allred, Powers & Allred.

The two Allreds in the firm are brothers of the governor.

TRADING IN COTTON TAKES ON NEW LIFE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Cotton traders celebrated a return to a free and open market for the first time in two years today with tremendous activity.

First prices showed terrific drops from the previous close, because of the inherent bearishness on the surface of the government reduction in the cotton loan basis from 12 cents to 9 cents a pound.

Initial prices showed losses of more than $4 a bale, trading was feverish, blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 bales appearing. They were dumped overboard by speculators and eagerly taken by foreign houses.

The Japanese, good bargainers, were quick to absorb offerings. Liverpool also entered the market. Traders shouted orders around the ring in a deafening roar. The orders were spread over a larger number of houses than in many months, adding to confusion of the transactions.

Cotton men turned this latest government move as a declaration of independence for the south and a blow to those countries that had been making inroads into the market for American cotton, notably Brazil.

After the first burst of selling the market became more orderly. Near months rallied 17 to 18 points from the lows, while the distant positions followed at a slower pace. Under the new ruling it was anticipated the American price would get down to world levels and commerce in cotton would be resumed on a large scale.

The seven amendments upon which the people will vote are as follows:

It further provides that the requirements for the length of time of actual residence in Texas, shall never be less than five years during the nine years immediately preceding such legislation and providing that the Legislature shall have authority to accept from the government of the United States financial aid for old age assistance.

Amendment 2: Chance in the method of treatment of insane.

This provides that a person who is mentally ill can be committed to the psychopathic hospital or any State hospital without trial for a period not to exceed ninety days.

COTTON LOANS OF 12 CENTS BEING URGED

Senator John Bankhead, Dem., Ala., meantime announced an immediate drive to get farmers to hold their cotton off the market until they get a price of 12 cents or more.

STATE HEAD IS RECOMMENDING COUNTY PLANS

Judge Clyde L. Garrett Now Confident With Avenue Of Action Known

Eastland county's application for a farm colony project has been recommended by Dr. C. A. Wiley, Acting State Director of Rural Resettlement for Texas, to Washington officials.

This information, from the State Rural Resettlement head in a letter to Judge Clyde L. Garrett was announced today.

Explanation of workings of the program and to which authorities Eastland county must deal in its effort to secure the estimated $375,000 project, was given in the letter.

In pursuance with a request by Wiley that the Eastland county brief be sent him, Judge Garrett has notified regional headquarters at Stillwater, Okla., that it be sent to Wiley at Austin.

Judge Garrett today viewed Eastland county's possibilities of securing the colony with confidence.

Wiley's communication to Judge Garrett stated:

"Early in July it appeared to be still rather indefinite in the minds of Resettlement officials whether or not the sponsoring of Rural communities was to be done by the state organization or from the regional office. At the time of transfer of activities to the Resettlement Administration, I understood that steps in the promotion of rural communities were to be initiated by the regional office rather than by the director of resettlement in a particular state.

However, recent policy seems to point rather definitely to the conclusion that initial steps are to be taken by the state organization and recommendations made to the regional office which passes upon such recommendations and forwards their conclusion to the Washington office for approval.

"Because of the above misunderstanding, Mr. Orr returned to you, at the request of Mr. Reese, a brief of a proposed community project in your section of the state. Since returning this brief we have been called upon, by the regional office, for information which it was practically impossible for us to supply without the information contained in your brief. At any rate we had in mind the needs of a community project in your section of the state and have sent in a recommendation through the regional office to Washington for approval for the location of a project in your section of the county."

"Since we may be called upon to supply additional information of this nature in the future, may I ask if you will kindly cooperate with us in returning a copy of your brief to this office for our files."

"I am sorry that it seems necessary for us to inconvenience you in this matter, but if the recommendations for projects are to originate in this office it is rather imperative that we have a copy of your brief here for ready reference."

"I trust that you still have the copy which we returned to you on or about the first of August. If you do not have, will you please state what disposition has been made of it and where we might obtain a copy of same."

"Assuring you that we wish to cooperate with you in every way possible in conformity with procedure laid down with use, I am, Yours very truly,

"C. A. Wiley, Acting State Director Rural Resettlement in Texas."

Natural Talent Manifested in Drawings by Master Donald Wetter

There are those born with talent and those without, and early indications in each child's life are often manifested in various ways. Ranger has a chap who Sept. 9 celebrated his tenth birthday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Van Wetter and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Bryant.

A large number of Master Donald's play hours are spent in drawing, first glancing through choice magazines and then to the newspapers where his favorite comic strips are found. Seated at his work desk during the past week he sketched a favorite pose of Will Rogers and Wiley Post, when finished each carrying an appropriate and personally inscribed sentiment of the young artist, who has never had a lesson in drawing.

The picture of "Will," as he was known to the world, emphasizes his ever beaming smile, and the hat which was usually worn in the happy, care-free angle from one side of his head. Underneath the picture carries the words, "His alarm clock rings, and his time is up forever." Wiley Post is equally as good in profile and in likeness of the famous flier. In connection with this picture is seen a perfectly drawn cabin plane, then a bit to the side are the words, "His motor stops, and his wings flop, and down he goes, with his pal and friend, Will."

A map of the complete route is also included in the drawing with the fatal point as well as other points clearly brought out. Other splendid drawings are included in the present collection which the grandfather, employe of Joseph Dry Goods company, displays with marked pride and pleasure.

plate was served by the hospitality committee of the local church to some 24 members, representing the entire district.

The afternoon hour was devoted strictly to business and plans for the association meeting to be held at Albany in September.

The meeting proved most satisfactory from the standpoint of attendance as well as summarized reports, according to the president of the Ranger W. M. U., Mrs. W. A. Lewis.

TWO STORIES ALL TO COME OFF BUILDING

A decision has been reached by the building owners to remove only two stories from the top of the Guaranty State Bank building, at the corner of Main and Austin streets, it was revealed in Ranger today.

The decision at first was to remove three floors, leaving the building two stories high in front and three stories high in the rear, the main floor at the front of the building occupying the height of two floors at the rear.

The decision was reached, it was reported, because the heavy structural work at the lower part of the building would make a building of that height look queer and it was decided to leave one floor more than was at first contemplated.

The work of demolishing the two top floors was begun three weeks ago, and will likely be completed this week, while work has already been begun on building the roof over the front part of the building.

It was estimated when the work started that it would take about three weeks to complete the re-roofing work.

World Made Little Progress Until Printed Invented

HOUSTON.—The world did not make any marked progress until a system of recorded writing was developed. Henry M. Ellis recently told members of the Houston and Galveston Graphic Arts association.

In an address on "Printing, the Vehicle of Knowledge," the speaker pointed out that the world depends upon the printing industry to "present and preserve" its knowledge.

"The printing industry dates from 1440," he said, "and follows the discovery and invention of moveable type by Johannes Gutenberg, but its value can only be appreciated by looking into the ancient past.

"According to the claims of science, civilization dates approximately from 7,000 B. C. Yet for a period of more than 3,000 years, these self-same scientists declare that there was little or no progress toward the conscious withdrawal from the primitive.

"The reason that there was no development among the ancients was that there was no system of perpetuating intelligence because there was no way of taking prints of first copies. Those who possessed a higher understanding made of it a mystery and sacred cult, reserving its use to gods and kings."

Printing, the speaker continued, is the media for world enlightenment, knowledge and understanding. He pointed out that there is no business, no science, no profession that is independent of the products of the printing press.

Methodist Church To Have A Short Service On Sunday

In deference to the Singing Convention there will be only a very brief service conducted at the First Methodist church next Sunday morning in order that the people may have opportunity to attend the exercises at the Recreation Building auditorium. Following Sunday School, the morning worship service will begin at 10:50 a. m. and close at 11:15 a. m. A quartet from the singing convention will be present and sing a few special selections. There will be no night preaching service at the church.

World Made Little Progress Until Printed Invented

HOUSTON.—The world did not make any marked progress until a system of recorded writing was developed. Henry M. Ellis recently told members of the Houston and Galveston Graphic Arts association.

In an address on "Printing, the Vehicle of Knowledge," the speaker pointed out that the world depends upon the printing industry to "present and preserve" its knowledge.

"The printing industry dates from 1440," he said, "and follows the discovery and invention of moveable type by Johannes Gutenberg, but its value can only be appreciated by looking into the ancient past.

"According to the claims of science, civilization dates approximately from 7,000 B. C. Yet for a period of more than 3,000 years, these self-same scientists declare that there was little or no progress toward the conscious withdrawal from the primitive.

"The reason that there was no development among the ancients was that there was no system of perpetuating intelligence because there was no way of taking prints of first copies. Those who possessed a higher understanding made of it a mystery and sacred cult, reserving its use to gods and kings."

Printing, the speaker continued, is the media for world enlightenment, knowledge and understanding. He pointed out that there is no business, no science, no profession that is independent of the products of the printing press.

Common Sense Takes Place of An Ideal

Perhaps the most significant single comment on the new tax bill came from Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. Senator Harrison led the fight in the Senate committee for the administration's tax schedules. When the committee moved out from under him and began to broaden the scope of the bill so as to bring in more money than the administration had contemplated, Senator Harrison struggled for a while and then voted for the insurgents' plan. As he did so, he dropped the remark that "We might as well go out and get some revenue."

Here, at last, seems to be a saving drop of common sense in the peculiar mixture of high hopes and idealistic plans which has surrounded this tax bill from the beginning.

"We might as well go out and get some revenue." Yes, indeed—and why not? What else would a new tax bill be for, in a time when the government's expenditures have been exceeding its income for some four years in a row? We were told originally that this tax bill was to introduce a new principle into American taxation. It was to attack the vast concentrations of wealth, with the idea that they would be scientifically reduced and shaved down so that the world would once more be made safe for the little fellows.

This was all very fine, and it was rather hard to quarrel with it; but when the administration's program was presented to Congress it appeared that the government's very pressing need for more money to finance its extraordinary series of expenditures had been lost in the shuffle.

There is room for more science in our taxation policies, heaven knows. Taxation represents the most effective weapon by which a government can shape the economic destinies of its country; yet for a great many years our tax policy has been more or less a hit-or-miss proposition, and if the administration can so revise it as to make it accomplish desired social ends the country will be all the better for it.

But there is, after all, the question of paying today's bills. The Senate Finance committee's revision of the administration bill is expected to bring an extra half billion in revenue, and the treasury needs that money very badly.

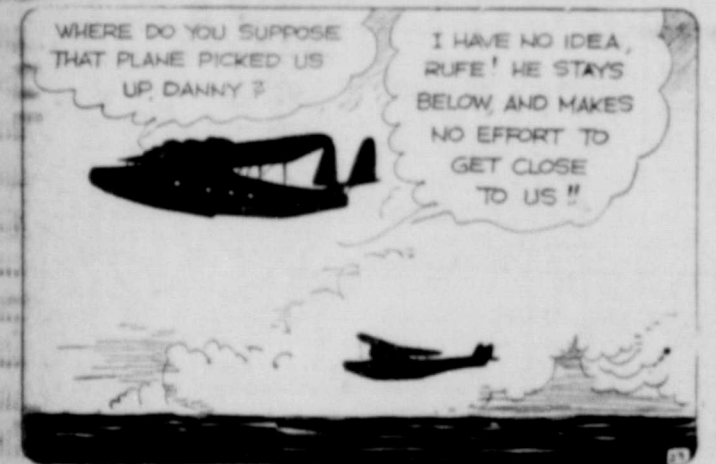

Senator Harrison, remarking that we might as well go out and get some revenue, has tapped the nail right on the spot designed for tapping. We might, indeed—and the sooner we get it the better off we shall be.

But there is, after all, the question of paying today's bills. The Senate Finance committee's revision of the administration bill is expected to bring an extra half billion in revenue, and the treasury needs that money very badly.

Senator Harrison, remarking that we might as well go out and get some revenue, has tapped the nail right on the spot designed for tapping. We might, indeed—and the sooner we get it the better off we shall be.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

SUN-TAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 JO DARLEN breaks her engagement to BOB PAUL, college athletic star, because he objects to her taking a job as secretary at Crest Lake. She becomes friendly with GLEN MARSH, Jo goes to Crest Lake and later meets a man who is her life.
 Promoted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job. She meets a man who is her life.
 "What I am going to say is a bit difficult," he returned her smile. "You see, it smacks a little of attending to your business instead of mine. But you'll understand that my people—the actors and actresses who work for Atlas—represent millions of dollars in investments. Investments that have to be protected for the sake of the Atlas stockholders."
 He paused a moment, and Jo wondered to what he was leading.
 "I think I can see you're a sensible young woman," he went on. "You're not the sort of girl I expected. I think you'll listen to reason. You know, of course, to what I'm referring."
 "I'm afraid I don't, exactly," Jo confessed, her mind in a whirl.
 "It's about Fragonet," he told her quickly, his tone edged suddenly with impatience.
 "Fragonet?" repeated Jo, startled. "I don't understand, Mr. Boleson."
 "You don't know Fragonet?"
 "Of course not. But I—"
 SHE was interrupted by his quick nod. "Good! Miss Darlen, I don't know what your real feelings are toward Peter Fragonet, nor do I know what his real feelings are toward you. That's not my business. But Fragonet—Fragonet as an asset to Atlas Pictures Corporation—is my business. I have several millions tied up in Fragonet pictures, one of which has not even been released."
 "But—"
 "Please let me finish, Miss Darlen. We have always had a little trouble with Fragonet. He has a—shall I say, a flair—for drawing adverse publicity. Just now there's a drive for clean pictures, and I'm heartily in favor of it. Along with better pictures the public is demanding that the private lives of its stars be normal and sane. I agree with that, too."
 "One moment, Mr. Boleson," Jo interrupted, her lips pale with slowly rising anger. "I really can't see what all this has to do with me. I met Mr. Fragonet at Crest Lake where he was making a picture. I've seen him not more than two or three times since coming to Hollywood. Beyond that there's nothing that would—"
 "I believe you," Boleson told her quietly. "But I'm not sure that the gossip would, especially after the rumors have been embroidered a bit. And there's Mrs. Fragonet. You flew from Crest Lake with Fragonet, did you not?"
 Jo nodded weakly. "That was a mistake, I know."
 "I'm afraid it was. The rumor mill was all set to boil over about this, but fortunately I arranged for Fragonet and his wife to appear together at one of the premiere at Grauman's."

 Boleson leaned forward slightly, meeting Jo's eyes across the desk. "It's purely a business proposition with me, Miss Darlen. I'd like to get rid of Fragonet—he's a lot of trouble—but I can't do that. I want to avoid any scandal for him. I'm going to get to the point, Miss Darlen. What is it worth to you?"
 "What is it worth to me?"
 "Exactly. What will you take to turn Fragonet down cold?"
 Jo grew crimson. She bit her lips, those trembling lips she had rouged so carefully for this important visit to Boleson's office.
 "I'll take nothing at all," she said coldly.
 Boleson smiled, but it was a cool smile now. "Are you trying for higher stakes, or are you in love with him?"
 "Neither, Mr. Boleson. I've—I've already turned him down cold, as you put it. Perhaps there were times at Crest Lake, when I should have avoided him. But I didn't realize then what it could lead to. I really never want to see Fragonet again."
 SHE broke off, suddenly weeping. Before she could stem the flow of tears she was conscious of Boleson leaning over her solicitously, his hands nervous, his voice heavy with embarrassing regret.
 "Miss Darlen, I—I can't tell you how sorry I am," he was saying over and over again. "It was necessary for me to put it up to you pretty straight, just in case you were the hardboiled type. I'm really sorry, and I do believe you."
 Jo held to his arm, lifted herself suddenly from the chair. "It's quite all right, you see. I—I was rather taken by surprise."
 "I didn't mean to have that happen," Boleson said, puzzled. "Surely you must have had some notion that I'd be concerned about the situation with Fragonet?"
 "Perhaps I should have. But I thought you were calling me here to talk about my screen test."
 Boleson's eyes widened. "You took a screen test? How long ago, Miss Darlen? I don't see them all, you know, but perhaps in a few days."
 "I'm sorry," Jo interrupted. "I just thought you reviewed them all. That was silly of me, wasn't it?"
 "Not at all. Perhaps I should, you know," he shrugged helplessly. "But there are only so many hours in the day." He reached for her hand, held it in an open, friendly fashion. "Miss Darlen," he went on. "I hope this Fragonet business hasn't hurt you."
 "I shook her head. "I'm all right. And I'm really glad you called me."
 Once again in the bright sunlight, Jo walked the hot miles from the Atlas lot to the stucco bungalow, yet when she reached the little hallway she felt no weariness. Rather she was like an automaton who had been set for a certain distance, a certain route, and now was finished with its task.
 In the dark hallway she telephoned Loitta's home to leave a message with the Mouser maid.
 "This is Miss Darlen. Miss Monica arranged for a job for me, I believe. Will you please tell her I want it very much? And that I'd like to begin work tomorrow, if I may?"

"OUTOURWAY" — By Williams

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop) — By Cowen

A majority of qualified voters in such subdivisions voting in an election held for such purpose shall determine such to be lawful, provided that this subsection shall not prohibit sale of alcoholic beverages containing not more than 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight in such subdivisions in which the qualified voters have voted to legalize such sale.

Amendment 4: "Submission of amendments at special session of legislature."
 This would revise the constitution to permit the submission of amendments at special sessions, pointing out that in emergency cases, particularly in relief matters that it might be necessary for Texas voters to vote on an emergency measure at all times, when the regular session of the legislature is quite far in the future.

If adopted the Legislature in any special session can submit proposed amendments to the voters, if submitted by the Governor for its consideration.

Amendment 5: "Power of granting suspended terms."
 This amendment would vest the granting of suspended sentences in the Trial Judge, instead of the jury, as it is at present.

To permit the Legislature to pass laws giving the courts the rights to suspend sentences and to place the defendants on such probation as the court might deem proper, with power to suspend sentences subject to certain limitations.

Amendment 6: "Abolition of the Fee System."
 Provides that the fee system as a method of paying certain precinct, county and district officials shall be abolished in counties having 20,000 or more population. In counties under 20,000 population the Commissioners Court may put their county, and precinct officers on a salary basis if they so decide but does not specifically state who shall set the salaries of such officials. Provides that fees shall continue to be collected as at present but they will go to the county, instead of the officials.

Amendment 7: "Free Text Books for private and parochial schools as well as public schools."
 This amendment would allow the State to furnish free text books to all pupils in the public schools of the State, public, private or parochial. It would also allow the Legislature to determine a new basis for the apportioning of school funds by other means than that of the scholastic census.

TEXAS TOWNS ARE URGED TO GET IN WPA PROJECTS AS SOON AS POSSIBLE

ANTONIO—Texans today face the challenge of President Roosevelt and of 147,387 of our own destitute citizens.

"The federal government must and will quit this business of direct relief," President Roosevelt has declared.

"We are tired of living on the dole. All that we ask is a chance to earn a livelihood." Certainly, that would be the sentiment of the vast number of Texans now being given relief allotments in lieu of work were their numbers polled today.

Your task, and it is one which must be performed at once, is to decide how money may be spent to provide jobs for the largest possible number of unemployed in your district. The double incentive of providing work for the jobless and of securing needed public improvements of permanent benefit to your community is offered by WPA.

Necessity for speed in suggesting projects is justified by advice from Washington authorities that not nearly enough proposals have been presented at national headquarters. Thus admonished, every state will be striving to gain precedence for its program. Texas has presented a mere three and one-half millions in works proposals for federal improvements at the end of the week of Aug. 17. We are anxious to have 20 million dollars in projects in the hands of federal examiners by the end of this month.

Our state is peculiarly adapted, due to physical advantages, to such ambitious projects as lateral

Republican Headliners Meet

When two outstanding Republicans get together, there must be something in the air. Consequently, when Herbert Hoover and Mrs. George B. Simmons, Marshall, Mo., farm-wife whose sensational speeches "stole the show" at Springfield "grass roots" convention, met in Chicago, as shown above, rumors increased regarding the political significance of Hoover's cross-country swing.

States' Rights Group Being Organized In Texas Counties

By United Press

CROCKETT, Tex.—Organization of the States' Rights Democratic Group, sponsored by Joe Bailey Humphreys, Crockett City Attorney, is now under way and individual set-ups are being made in every county in the state, Humphreys said today.

At present temporary organizations have been set up in more than 40 of the most populous counties and other groups are likewise being formed in other counties, he said.

Humphreys scored President Roosevelt for having endorsed the Cole-Disney compromise oil bill, saying that action on the part of the president is merely another example of how the current administration had domineered private enterprise and taken from the states their rights to govern their own industries.

"Government interference in this gigantic business would seriously injure all oil producing states and would be especially detrimental to Texas," Humphreys said.

"The federal government is determined to get control of Texas' most valuable natural resource. Everybody knows that we have more than half the world's supply of oil in Texas and they had better begin to find out that we are going to lose control of it unless we wake up and fight federal encroachment upon the rights of states."

"Texas derives thousands of dollars annually in taxes from production of oil and its associated industries. Thousands of dollars go to the school districts where adequate facilities are now made possible for the children who otherwise would be deprived of the privilege of attending a well equipped school. All these would be lost when the Federal Government steps in and the taxpayers will be called upon for more and heavier taxes."

"The New Deal is a constant threat to our oil industry. Although a most vicious bill was killed by committee action through the efforts of one of our outstanding congressmen last year, there has cropped up a new bill which has been made a part of the so-called 'must program'. As long as these ego-maniacs crave power, we people in Texas have more to guard than any other state in the union."

"It is interesting to note that many are coming to life and certainly by the time we are to select delegates to the national convention everybody will be clamoring for a real Democrat. Opposition to the New Deal is manifest on every hand, and if the democratic party is to remain in power, we will have to make some drastic changes in our policies.

"I am interested in seeing the Democratic Party remain in power but that is impossible under the present set-up."

"I am now organizing Texas, county by county, to carry on the defense of local self-government. We will send delegates to every convention, from the precinct to the national, who will not be intimidated and who will cast the Texas vote for a real Democrat. Many county organizations are already well established and report solid opposition against federal encroachment upon the states' rights of self-government."

Humphreys said he has received much encouragement from various parts of the United States and that he is especially encouraged over the enthusiastic response with which he has met in Texas.

Asked what he thought of being dubbed a "one man revolt," Humphreys said, "Don't they wish it really were only a one-man revolution."

Kellogg's All-Bran furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines. Also vitamin B and iron.

farm-to-market roads. Too, lastly of project requirements makes it easy to find many types of needed improvements to which WPA energies may be devoted. With proper co-operation from our political subdivision, any of which may participate in the program, this state can forge far ahead on the federal allotment schedule.

This opportunity for states, counties, and cities to get permanent, lasting improvements at a minor fraction of the cost may not arrive again. No county in Texas is so "broke" that its paper would not be accepted by practically any materials dealer in the state. Construction material costs may easily be spread over a period of years, so that the burden would not be too heavy.

WPA's expenditure in your community is limited, in most instances, only by the number of unemployed your project will put to work. We are restricted only by the necessity of receiving the equivalent of one year's work for one person for each $600 spent.

Twenty district WPA offices have been set up in strategic locations over the State of Texas. Counties have been urged to set up planning boards for the study of project potentialities. It is the duty of every civic-minded person and organization in the state to present ideas to these groups. They are anxious to serve their sections, they are interested in surveying any proposals submitted, and they are dependent upon the people of their districts for help in choosing the types of projects best fitted to the needs of the locality.

In line with federal policy, we must pursue a first come-first served course in approving projects. We must earnestly urge, therefore, that sponsors exercise all possible haste in submitting their projects. It cannot be emphasized too strongly that those sponsors who delay submitting proposals in the hope of getting a higher per man-year grant will be doomed to disappointment and will be jeopardizing the chances of their own unemployed to get jobs.

Drastic curtailment of FERA allotments scheduled for Nov. 1 will place the burden of caring for our own needy upon the counties and cities. Utilize the facilities of WPA and you will have jobs awaiting those persons when their relief grants are discontinued. Procrastinate and you will hazard your own chances for reaping the benefits of worthwhile public improvements and you will be ignoring the plea of your destitute neighbors who await an opportunity to remove themselves from the morale-shattering influence of the dole.

Part Time Printer Inherits Fortune

By United Press

EL PASO, Tex.—While Theo in Lumiere, El Paso printer, was working part time in newspaper composing rooms throughout the United States, he and his wife were unaware that a $40,000 bequest awaited Mrs. Lumiere in Birmingham, Ala.

An attorney from Birmingham found the family in El Paso several days ago after a four years' search and notified them of the bequest made by Mrs. Lumiere's uncle, the late Zack T. Mossely, wealthy brick manufacturer.

Mrs. Lumiere was preparing to leave for Birmingham Sunday where she will settle up legal matters in connection with the inheritance.

"When I find out what is coming to me, I'm going to buy a zebrap and a toy Boston bulldog," she declared today. "I have wanted both of them all my life."

Mrs. Lumiere said her uncle built his fortune from an original investment of twenty-five cents. The estate left by the brick man was believed to be about $100,000 in which 30 or 40 heirs will share.

BARNABAS, IN PARTNERSHIP WITH GOD

Acts 4:36, 37; 11:19-30
Golden Text: He was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith.—Acts 11:24.

Barnabas is introduced in Acts 4 with the name Joseph or Joseph, which is changed to Barnabas, meaning son of consolation or prophecy. This was done to honor him for his full surrender of his life and means to the Lord. He was a Levite from Cyprus. He was a man of wide connections, probably having studied in the schools of Tarsus, and of a great liberal spirit.

In Acts 11 a vivid picture is found of the preaching which had been only to the Jews being given to others. The persecution of the Christians had scattered them abroad and they preached with great success to the Greeks.

Paul was in Tarsus but many people did not trust his conversion and was still afraid of him, remembering how cruel he had been in his persecution of them.

Barnabas, a Greek-speaking Jew, was sent by the church at Jerusalem to inquire into the matter at Antioch. Barnabas had gained a great understanding of men through his full surrender to God. So when he found heathens being converted he was glad and also began to preach to them.

The work grew and he felt the need of someone to help him. No doubt but that he had pondered and prayed over Paul's work in Tarsus. His understanding of men gave him the vision of what Paul, so learned and eloquent, could do with proper backing. He went to Tarsus seeking Saul.

Antioch at that time was the metropolis of Syria, situated at the northeast corner of the Mediterranean sea, being the third largest city in the Roman Empire, with a population of 5,000 people.

It was connected with its seaport, Seleucia, by the River Orontes, a great road and a huge canal cut through masses of solid rock.

In this great wealthy city, with its walls 50 feet high and so wide that two chariots could drive abreast on them, Christianity took a great forward step.

These two preachers did not have an easy road to proclaim the gospel in that city. Five miles out was the grove of Daphne, filled with shrines of Appollo, Venus, Iris, crowded theaters, baths, taverns and dancing saloons. This place was so infamous that if a sailor visited it he was dismissed from the imperial service.

Their labor together is a beautiful picture of service gained by a bond of faith and consecration common to each in love to "The Lord of Hosts."

Barnabas did three outstanding things that proved he was full of the Holy Ghost and faith. The first was his consecration of self and wealth to the service of God. The second when he went to Tarsus and took Paul under his protection, thus assuring all disciples that Paul was reliable and his conversion real.

Then later when they were joined by Mark, who faltered when the work was hard, Paul turned away from him. Barnabas understood that Mark, who was his nephew, might quit if he turned away from him. So in love for the cause of Christ he turned from his valued helper, Paul, and went with Mark.

So there were two great missionary teams, Paul and Silas, Barnabas and Mark, taking different directions to proclaim the gospel.

The spirit that Barnabas expressed, love, sympathy and untiring labor is at variance with the spirit of the world today. It is often heard in the business world, "Show me what you can do in money results."

But happy are the people who vision Christ, who takes the love of sin, such as existed in the days of Antioch and today, in the saloon question out of the hearts of people. In the place of turbulent, stormy minds and hearts he brings peace and quietness, new visions of an eternal home where the weary can rest in a new and perfect world.

"And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it; for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof."

"And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it."—Rev. 21:23, 24.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Preparing for fall planting is another summer-time yard job commended by Miss Jacks. Planting peas to turn under, she recommends as a good way to get the ground in shape.

BRADY—Planting soy beans in every third row of cotton saved part of his cotton crop for Grover T. Gattis, McCulloch county farmer, according to J. D. Prewitt, county agricultural agent.

Thirty acres, of which every row was planted to cotton, has been completely destroyed by cut worms and grasshoppers.

The 16 acres of cotton that he interplanted with soy beans came up in good condition. The cut worms and grasshoppers fed entirely on the soy beans and did not touch the cotton. Gattis says that the soy beans are growing again now and that he expects to make a good crop out of them.

COTULLA—The past three years have proved the advantages of diversified farming, according to John Nagy, county agricultural agent from LaSalle county.

"Before this time," he said, "the farmers of this county depended on corn and cotton as their cash crops."

One farmer in this county changed his method of farming from planting corn altogether to diversifying with other crops for feed and cash. On his farm of 400 acres in cultivation he has 60 acres in corn as roasting ears, averaging $15.60 per acre; he gathered more than one-third of his corn crop as dry corn.

He sold 93,000 pounds of pop corn for $2,325. He has 60 acres of cotton on which he will harvest one-fourth of a bale per acre. He also has 100 acres of different kinds of grain sorghums, some of which will harvest three cuttings of feed. With this feed he will fatten his hogs and calves that he has raised, saving enough feed for his work stock.

On 80 acres, he has planted peas, picked them green and sold them at a profit. He then plowed under the pea vines and is keeping this piece of land in readiness for a fall crop of spinach and onions.

OLTON—One farm woman in Lamb county says that she always stores her sweet potatoes in the cellar in dry sand and that they keep all winter. The sand keeps the sweet potatoes warm and dry.

SULPHUR SPRINGS—Forty cents spent for Irish potato seed, 10 cents spent for poison and one-half day of labor produced 13 bushels of potatoes, according to Mrs. A. A. Strasser, farm food supply demonstrator of the Brinker Home Demonstration club of Hopkins county.

WAXAHACHIE—Telephone wire was used to replace all the broken wires of some bed springs of Mrs. A. H. Greenhaw of Ellis county.

She says her son just placed the old bed springs where the original wire was with some wire on hand.

CONROE—A portable pantry was built for Mrs. R. H. Smith of Montgomery county for $12.80. The pantry is built of 12-inch boards. It is six feet high and six feet long and the shelves are two feet wide. The shelves were built 10 inches apart in order to fit tin containers or quart jars. A wider space was left at the bottom for storing larger containers.

CAKE LURES DEER TO DEATH
HARTFORD, Conn.—A wedding cake lured a young brown doe to its death. Roaming the deserted streets at night, the animal spied the cake in a pastry shop window and leaped through the plate glass. The doe bled to death from a cut.
