LOOKING OVER THE PROSPECTS

Court Dispels Doubt in Hauptmann Case

The decision handed down by the New Jersey court of errors and appeals in the case of Bruno Hauptmann is worth a little study.

Hauptmann was convicted of a murder which, for the depth of public horror and anger which it aroused, was probably the most shocking ever committed in America. His trial was inevitably the center of nation-wide interest. The verdict was received with nation-wide satisfaction.

But because the conviction was based entirely on circumstantial evidence—which a popular misunderstanding somehow conceives to be of less value than direct evidence—and because he has had vocal defenders who have insisted that he was a victim of prejudice, there has grown up here and there a feeling that the cumbersome processes of the law managed to lay hold of the wrong man.

Anyone who has such a feeling should glance briefly at the appellate court's findings.

"Our conclusion," says the court, "is that the verdict is not only contrary to the weight of the evidence, but one to which the evidence inescapably led."

Why? Because, first and foremost, Hauptmann was caught with the goods. He had the ransom money in his possession; and the court points out that Hauptmann's own story of how he got the cash is simply unbelievable, adding that his method of handling it "makes clear his guilty connection with the enterprise."

Secondly, it was proved to the hilt that the ransom notes were all written by Hauptmann. They were in his handwriting and they used peculiarities of spelling and language which he habitually used.

It is an inescapable inference, says the court, that the man who wrote these notes entered the Lindbergh nursery and took the child.

Lastly, there is the fact some of the wood used to make the ladder by which the kidnaper entered the house was traced to Hauptmann's own home, and that on a board in his home there was written, by his hand, Dr. Condon's telephone number.

Adding these facts together, the court concludes that this "was a circumstantial case with the evidence pointing to guilt from so many directions as to leave no room for a reasonable doubt."

All this is worth keeping in mind. No criminal trial in our generation has held American attention as did Hauptmann's.

Those who have the notion that Hauptmann, after all, might have been guilty of a monstrous miscarriage of justice should reflect on the points raised by the appellate court.

These points ought to satisfy them that there are few cases in which a prisoner's guilt is so firmly established as in the case of Bruno Hauptmann.

Country Pays Homage To A Noble 'Failure'

The success story is one of the most typical of all American institutions. And that is why it is a good thing for us to enshrine one or two heroes who did not attain success—men who failed in their greatest undertaking, but who, nevertheless, managed to rise superior to their failures.

It was an instinctive understanding of this, perhaps, that brought such a large group of notables to Stratford, Va., the other day for dedication of the home of Robert E. Lee as a national memorial. People in 44 states contributed half a million dollars to acquire, restore, and preserve the property.

Gov. George C. Peery of Virginia was there, and President Roosevelt sent a message, and the ceremony was in every sense a tribute from the entire nation to Lee's memory.

Now Lee was by any standard one of the greatest of Americans; and yet he left no tangible achievement to stand as a reminder of his greatness.

The cause to which Lee gave himself is a blown ghost on the southern wind, and the echoes of his great battles have had nearly three-quarters of a century to die away among the Virginia hills.

There is no institution on which we can lay our hands and say, "We have this because of Robert E. Lee." And yet we instinctively recognize that this man was one of our giants and that it is to our own interest to keep his memory alive.

The simple truth is that we have overdone our emphasis on the success story. We need to understand that the way in which a man does a thing can be more important than what he actually does, that a man's life can far outweigh his achievements—that, in short, there are standards by which a man can be completely and everlastingly defeated and yet not be defeated at all in the realm that really counts.

Most of us have little understandings of military technicalities, and the marvels of Lee's campaigns leave us cold. Those who understand such things tell us that he was an authentic military genius, and we are ready enough to take their word for it; but at this distance, after all, it does not really matter much.

But there was more to it than that. In this man we have an unfortable example of what human nobility can really be; a supreme expression of the truth that the whole of a man's life somehow adds up to more than the total of its parts.

There just isn't any excuse for the Wrong Lane Turner!

He's the motorist who doesn't make up his mind that he's going to turn until after he's reached the intersection—and then suddenly attempts to cross in front of other moving cars. No warning signal—no brains!

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Scenes at New Dealers have been out around the country lately and many of them are now back on their jobs.

A symposium of off-the-record reports from these fellows shows they're distinctly more optimistic about the 1936 election than they were one month or two months ago.

They agree Roosevelt will have a "fight" and most of them insist it will be the "dirtiest fight" ever seen in an election campaign. They are just as bitter about the millions they expect big business to raise to defeat the president as Republicans have been about the billions of work-relief money which the U. S. P. terms a "campaign fund."

Most New Dealers used to regard the work-relief money as a sort of campaign fund, too. But now they're worried over the extent to which the WPA program may also become a liability.

The stronger belief here in the inevitability of Roosevelt's re-election has been partly due to the good popular reception F. D. had on his cross-country trip. But it's much more due to the fact that the traveling observers find, as they found a year ago, that neither Republican candidates nor issues are stirring up popular enthusiasm. Which perhaps is a lucky thing for Democrats, because these observers also found almost universally:

1. General resentment about the looseness of relief expenditures. Harry Hopkins can reply that responsibility for this rests with local administration, but nobody pays any attention. Graft, inefficiency and odorous politics are all charged up to Roosevelt.

2. The cities are still convinced that AAA's "slaughter of little pigs" is to blame for the high price of meat. And most people in the cities judge AAA on the basis of that.

3. People are bewildered as to where we're going from here and young people, especially, wonder what they're going to do for a living.

And, in vast numbers, administration men admit, citizens are worrying as to "where all the money is coming from."

In one state after another, Democratic politicians have reverted to type and are engaged in vicious factional battles. This is going to weaken the national ticket to a degree and will certainly result in some Republican victories in state elections where control is now held by Democrats. (Ohio and Iowa, for instance, seem fairly certain to elect Republican governors.)

Despite all that, returning political correspondents as well as interested administrationists are impressed by the failure of voters to demonstrate any love and affection for the Republican party, to indicate any desire to return to the "good old days," or to become particularly steamed up over anything Republicans are now offering.

6 Pontiacs Are On Exhibition

Three lines of new Pontiac models for 1936, the straight eight, the de luxe six, are now on view in Pontiac dealers' rooms throughout the country.

They sell at prices which put them within the range of the low-priced cars on the market.

The "silver streak" radiator and grille that formed the central motif of 1935 and earned Pontiac the descriptive character of the "most beautiful on wheels," continues as the theme with certain pleasing refinements that reflect even greater refinement of taste and more beauty than was expressed in the original.

Improvements included in the line are greater in number than were for the 1935 model and fully as important to the present. Many of them are not apparent at a glance and probably none of them stand out as prominently as the Fisher turret hood, the triple sealed brakes, the triple sealed chassis of 1935.

A close examination discloses the Pontiac engineers have through the 1935 chassis bodies, feature by feature, refined this one and perfecting that, keeping in mind the comfort and convenience of the motorist, the economy, performance and safety of the car.

A ten minute ride in a new line model with a well-informed salesman should be taken to realize the significance of the improvements.

Nineteen Body Styles

The straight eight and de luxe six are available in six body styles, while seven are mounted on the six chassis. Common to all are two-door and four-door sedans (with built-in trunk), all accommodating five passengers; the standard coupe for four passengers; the sport model built for four passengers; and the most striking change in external appearance is the front end treatment, where the chromium grille has been widened as it sweeps up over the radiator in an unbroken line, thus streamlining speed and giving the impression of a longer, sleeker, fiercer and lower car, despite the widened wheelbase of 117 inches on the eight and 112 on the six.

New radiator ornaments are in modern motif. Chrome trim brackets support the hood on the radiator shell. Further improvement in exterior appearance includes a more deeply rounded one-piece front fender dipping down to the bumper level and all-rubber steel reinforced fender boards. Rear fenders are more deeply rounded, with the rear wheel moved further back to a point over the wheel center. Rear bumpers are mounted on the fenders, and bumpers are longer. Bumper elements are refined and smaller. Sheet metal is fully rust-proof.

Many Body Details Bettered

Little improvement could be expected for in the grace and structural strength of the Fisher turret solid steel body. But there is a score or more of changes in interior fittings, appointments and trim of all body models for convenience, front doors of models are hinged at the front and open from the rear. The instrument panel is entirely new and modern. It is finished in red poplar and chrome. Dial covers are more easily read and everything has been improved. Artistic paneling on the doors, expensive new cloth trim further distinguish the body interior. Cabriolets are trimmed in plush, crushed grain tan leather or taupe worsted tweed pattern taupe woolen cloth; eight, taupe mohair or brown, pin stripe broadcloth.

Rest cushions have been redesigned to conform more nearly to the human figure. They are firmer and deeper and extend to a floor in both front and rear. There is a new and clever combination arm rest and door handle.

A full three-passenger four door front seat cushion is now standard on the de luxe six two-door sedan and touring sedan, as well as on the eight, giving these models ample room for six people.

Engines and Chassis Improved

Many refinements in the power units and chassis have been made to give improved performance, better acceleration, easier starting, higher speed, better economy and greater convenience in handling. Pontiac features that have proved highly satisfactory, such as the flow lubrication, cross cooling, silver-lead bearings, electro-plated pistons, rifle drilled connecting rods, square end and stroke, and ample engine room, for dependability and durability, naturally are retained.

The cylinder bore of the eight is stepped up to 3.14 inches increasing the piston displacement from 223.4 cubic inches to 232, and the horse-power from 87 to 87 at 3800 R. P. M., with a consequent increase in acceleration, hill climbing ability and top speed.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
SEA Service Staff Writer

HERE'S a column for the fall bride who may be having some bad moments just now with her meal planning. If it's a twist told tale to the rest of you, it still won't hurt you to be reminded once more.

There are five hard-and-fast rules for feeding the family first, they must have a balanced diet. That is, unless the members are dieting under a doctor's supervision they must have protein, carbohydrates and fats in definite proportions. This does not necessarily mean that each day must be rigidly accurate on these points but certainly over a month, the balance should be kept.

The minimum calory requirement for a day for adults is twelve calories to each pound of body weight. Children require more food in proportion to their weight than adults.

- Tomorrow's Menu
- BREAKFAST 8 to 9 a.m. dried raisins, cereal cooked with raisins, cream, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
- LUNCHEON Creamed Spanish onions with croutons, carrot sticks, cranberry sponge, sugar cookies, milk, tea.
- DINNER Baked noodles and diced left-over veal pot roast, creamed new cabbage, chef's salad, eggless cake with canned apricots, milk, coffee.

Finally every meal should contain something crisp and chewy for the sake of the teeth.

With the exception of a few concentrated foods such as sugar, several elements are found in all foods. Vegetables which are primarily sources of starch and sugar—carbohydrates—also supply mineral salts and vitamins.

If you serve a salad with eggs or some other protein food in it, you can cut down on the meat course. Or such a combination is splendid for luncheon as the main dish. Begin the noon-meal with a cup of hot bouillon and finish with an old-fashioned bread pudding.

Chef's Salad

Four hard cooked eggs, 4 medium sized tomatoes, leaf lettuce, well-beached chicken, French dressing.

Make a bed of lettuce in a shallow salad bowl. Over it arrange alternating slices of tomatoes and eggs cut in quarters. Fill in with chicken and serve with French dressing.

War Not Likely To Increase the Sulphur Demand

By United Press
 AUSTIN.—Little prospect that warfare among foreign nations will increase the demand for American sulphur was seen today by L. Mims, vice president of the Freeport Sulphur company.

Such a possibility had been seen by Rep. J. Franklin Spears as an opportunity to help pay Texas old age pensions with sulphur taxes.

War will not cause such a demand, Mims said, for four reasons: 1. Modern explosives require very little sulphur except in the form of sulphuric acid, which can be obtained from many sources.

2. Foreign nations having made themselves more independent of supplies from the United States will not hazard trans-Atlantic shipments of brimstone. (Elemental sulphur).

3. The United States will prohibit exportation of war materials.

4. Exports for the first six months of this year are lower than at any time in the past six years, despite increasing activity in war preparations.

It is a mistaken conception that Texas produces 90 to 99 per cent of the world's supply of sulphur, Mims said. The misunderstanding is due to using figures on elemental sulphur, while 65 per cent of the world requirement is produced from two other sources, brimstone and waste smelter gases.

The 35 per cent made of brimstone or elemental sulphur produced in Texas, Louisiana, California, Utah, Japan, Norway, Russia, Sweden, and Spain.

Texas reserves, Mims said, not exceed five per cent of world total.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her answer when BOBBY WALKER, young automobile sales man, asks Jean to marry him.

At the Golden Feather night club Jean meets SANDY HARKINS, whose business connection she values. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to MRS. and MISS LAWRENCE, who are well known to her. He tells them to Jean's surprise, LARRY GLENN, federal agent, long a friend of Jean's parents, is trying to locate BOBBY WALKER, a bank robber.

Sandy asks Jean to give him an answer after she returns from a vacation in her home town.

Larry locates some stolen bonds and questions SONNY BOYD, gambler, about them. Boyd confesses he bought them from Donald Montague.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 CHAPTER XVII

THE door closed behind the skinny, perspiring figure of Sonny Boyd, and Hagan and Larry Glenn looked at one another. There was a pregnant silence, broken at last by Hagan's devout, "Well, I'll be damned!"

Larry grinned. "Exactly," he said. "The upright and respected Mr. Donald Montague, leader of the bar and admired by one and all, has been passing hot bonds."

Mike Hagan shook his head. "Can you begin to see, now, why it's tough for guys like me?" he asked. "Here's Montague, a big shot politician, showing those bonds off on a louse like Sonny Boyd... and then they wonder why coppers like me can't run the racketeers out of town."

Larry nodded sympathetically. "I know. The cards are stacked against you. But before I get through here—" He paused, then went on: "Mike, I'm beginning to get on the trail of something here. At least a part of that Red Jack gang is floating around Dover. And part of the loot they got in that Neola robbery turns up here. It passes through the hands of DON MONTAGUE, who is one of Dover's most respected citizens. Before we get through I'm going to have the whole picture. And when I do—things are going to be different."

Hagan looked at him earnestly. "Going to have a little chat with Mr. Montague?" he asked.

Larry nodded and looked at his watch.

"Lord, I'd no idea it was so late," he said. "He'll have left his office for the day, by now. Oh, well, he'll keep until tomorrow. That's one thing about these big shot slickers—they don't run away from you, anyway."

"No," granted Hagan. "They don't need to. You can do anything to 'em if they do stick around."

LARRY meditated. "I'm not so sure," he said slowly. "This man Montague is beginning to draw too many cards in this whole mix-up. Look, we trace these stolen bonds to him. He also appeared for our friend Harkins when Harkins came in to prove that he wasn't mixed up in a robbery of which no one had even guessed him. There's one definite connection with the Jackson outfit—well, one possible connection.

By the way, tell me about that alibi. You say it was alright. What was there to it?"

"Oh, it was alright enough," said Hagan. "Harkins' been out mixing up with a girl that Friday afternoon. Started out about half an hour before the robbery and didn't get back until after dark. She was with him all the time. And the guy that rented the canoe to him, out on the Grand River, he came in too."

"Montague rounded 'em up, of course," mused Larry. Hagan nodded.

"Funny thing," he said. "He didn't even go out of his own office for his star witness."

"How do you mean?"

"Why, his own secretary. Swell-looking girl she is, too. What's her name, again—"

"You don't mean Jean Dunn?" asked Larry.

"Yeah, that's the name—Dunn, why?"

Larry gripped the edge of the desk angrily.

"Why, that girl—I've known her since she was knee high! She's one of the sweetest little youngsters ever born. And she—she came in and alibied for this lad Harkins? She'd been with him, canoing, all afternoon?"

"That's it."

"Lord!" said Larry fervently. "Is Montague making that kid perjure himself to keep his clients—"

"I don't think she was lying," said Hagan calmly. "I think she was telling the truth. An' that's what makes it puzzling. Because I can't help thinking that Harkins was the bird who pulled that robbery, too."

JEAN DUNN drew her legs up under her as she sat in the corner of the davenport, and beamed across the room at Larry Glenn. Who sat at his ease in the easy chair under the bridge lamp.

"You can't say it isn't pretty flattering," she said.

"What is?"

"Having you for a caller. Humble stenographer entertaining the busy business man—what is it, again, that you're doing Larry?"

"Oh, I do odds and ends of job for Uncle Sam," said Larry.

"Besides," he added. "I promised your father and mother I'd keep an eye on you, didn't I? And so far I've only seen you once since I've been in Dover."

"Well," said Jean, "that's not my fault, is it?"

"I don't know," said Larry, adopting a light, bantering tone. "I hear you're so popular that nobody can see you unless they make a date three weeks in advance."

"Shilly! Where'd you hear that?"

"Oh, it's all over town. I hear you even went down to police headquarters with a young man the other day."

"Oh, that! I was doing my good deed that day—you know, Girl Scout and all. I was keeping a nice young man from being bothered by the police."

"Were you, indeed? Tell uncle all about it."

"Well, you see," she said, "I'd been out with him this one afternoon a week or two ago—"

"Bobby, you mean? Don't tell me he's getting in trouble with the police?"

"No, not Bobby. This—this was Sandy Harkins," she said, feeling somewhat self-conscious.

"Who's he?"

"Oh, he's just—just a friend of mine." She felt more self-conscious than ever, so much so that she failed to notice that Larry's jaw muscles were tightening at this bit of evidence that she was on friend ly terms with Harkins. "Anyway, he and I'd been out canoing this afternoon, and next week it developed that he happened to look like a man the police were looking for about a robbery and it just happened that the robbery had happened the very afternoon that we were out canoing, so Mr. Montague took us down to police headquarters and I told them about it... and that's all there was to it."

"Oh, Larry looked at her speculatively. "Mr. Montague took you, did he?"

"Why, yes... It's funny, your mentioning Bobby. Because if it hadn't been for Bobby I might not have been canoing with Sandy at all that day. Anyway, Bobby came in to see Mr. Montague that afternoon."

"Bobby did?"

"Sure." Something about the surprise in Larry's tone made her open her eyes wider. "He had something he wanted to sell Mr. Montague—"

"Sell him?"

"Yes. What's the matter tonight, Larry?"

"Don't mind me. I'm getting mighty in my old age. Go on with your story."

"Oh, anyhow, Bobby came in and went into Mr. Montague's office, and then Mr. Montague came out and said I might as well take the rest of the day off, as I did, and I bumped into Sandy downstairs and we went canoing. That's all."

"Mmmm. Know this—what do you call him, Sandy?—very well, Jean."

Her cheeks grew redder by just the faintest shade, and she looked at the floor for a moment. Larry missed none of it. Then she said "Why—yes, pretty well."

He looked at her fondly. Then, to her surprise, he got up and came over and rested one hand on her shoulder.

"Jean," he said. "I'm getting jealous of all I see young blades. I want to see more of you myself. I'm not going to neglect you the way I have been. You'll save some time for the old uncle, won't you?"

"Why, of course, Larry," she said. "The more I see of you the happier I'll be. You know that."

He patted her shoulder again.

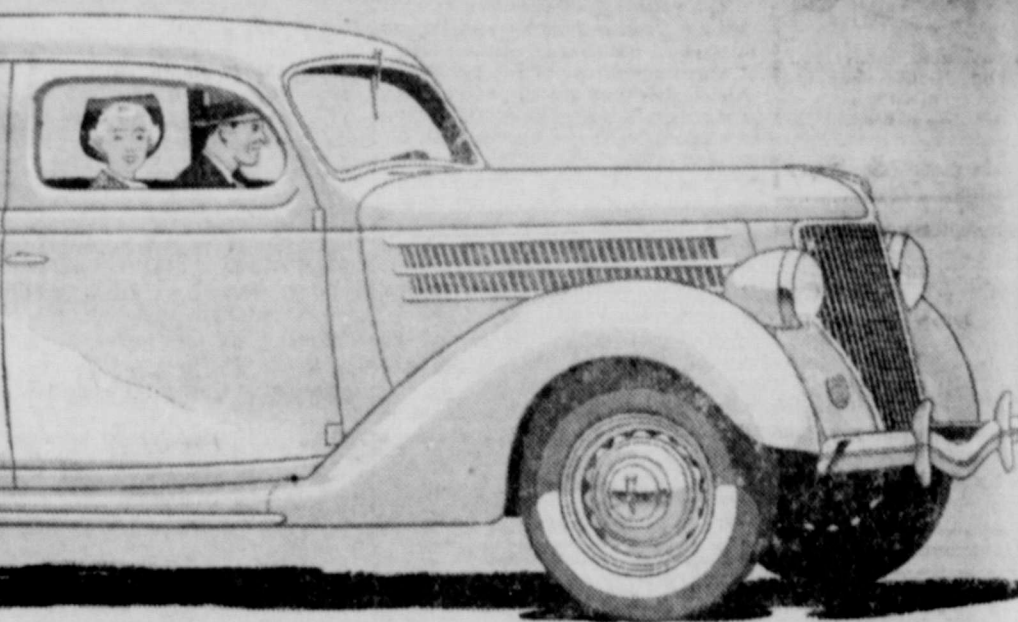

"When you need a father confessor—" he began. Then he rumbled her hair and grinned down at her. "All right, Princess. Charmings when next I see you again."

"Any time you—oh, Larry, I'll do most forgot! I'm going on my vacation next week. I'm going down home. Will you come and see me before I go?"

"See you? I'll take you out to dinner. Now about Friday night?"

"Larry, will you! I'll be tickled to death!"

AFTER he had gone Jean lay back on the couch and mused. Dear old Larry! So reliable and dependable—and not, like some other old friends always trying to bring up the subject of love and marriage! But why had he acted so strangely when she was telling him about going down to the police station with Sandy? And what queer, unwanted thoughts was floating around in her subconscious mind, making her feel uncomfortable whenever she herself thought about it? Something was wrong, somewhere, what was it?

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Distinguished new beauty of line has been combined with the outstanding comfort, safety and performance that have put the Ford V-8 in a class by itself. The car that led all others in 1935 has been made still better for the new year. It has been proved by the past and improved for the future. The New Ford provides every modern feature, with the assurance of satisfactory service. There are no experiments in it—nothing that has not been tried and tested. This means a great deal to motorists—especially in mechanical construction and safety. . . . The Ford gives you distinctly better performance because of its V-8 engine—it stands out also because it is such a safe car. The Steel Body, Safety Glass all around and Super-Safety Brakes provide exceptional security. . . . The Ford V-8 for 1936 is the finest, safest, most reliable Ford ever built.

New Modern Lines—New longer hood extends gracefully over the distinctive new radiator grille, accentuating the length of the car. New larger fenders, with a wide flare, contribute to the imposing front-end appearance. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New hood louvers. Steel wheels of entirely new design. Rich, enduring upholstery. Attractive appointments.

New Easier Steering—Steering gear ratio increased. Steering gear sector shaft mounted on roller bearings.

New Gear Shifting—Easier, quicker, smoother. Shorter distance for gear shift lever to travel. Quiet shifting. Quiet running in all speeds. Because of silent helical gears.

Super-Safety Brakes—Safest, most reliable type of brakes under all driving conditions. Mechanical brakes of the same proved design as have been used for years on America's finest cars. Extra large braking area. Easy to apply.

Welded Steel Bodies—The Ford V-8 has a genuine all-steel body structure—electrically welded for still greater strength.

Safety Glass Throughout—All Ford body types are equipped with Safety Glass throughout at no extra cost.

V-8 Engine—Fine-car power, speed, acceleration and smoothness. The reliability of the Ford V-8 engine has been proved in actual service by more than two million motorists—over a million Ford V-8s purchased in the last year. Figures show that the Ford V-8 is the most economical Ford ever built. Every year the Ford costs less to run.

No "Breaking In"—The Ford V-8 engine is made to such high standards of precision that it requires no breaking in. You can drive it 60 miles an hour the first day.

Efficient Cooling—The cooling system of the New Ford V-8 for 1936 circulates 5 1/2 gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-siphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvers permit rapid flow of air around the engine.

Bodies Insulated for Quiet—The floor, dash and body panels of the Ford V-8 for 1936 are insulated with new materials that absorb and deaden sound.

Center-Point Riding—All passengers ride near the center of the car—cradled between the soft, flexible springs. Exceptional comfort on every type of road. The Ford V-8 gives a front-seat ride to back-seat riders.

Unusual Body Room—Short, compact Ford V-8 engine takes up less space under the hood and permits more of the car's length to be used by passengers. There is increased room in the 1936 Fordor Sedans because the rear quarter trim is recessed above the new style arm rests.

LOW FORD V-8 PRICES

THIRTEEN BODY TYPES—Coupe (5 windows), $510. Tudor Sedan, $520. Fordor Sedan, $580. DE LUXE—Roadster (with rumble seat), $560. Coupe (5 windows), $570. Phaeton, $590. Tudor Sedan, $565. SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE

GET out your deep fat kettle— Halloween is near and you must have doughnuts to go with the cider. Have the temperature of your fat right, mix the doughnuts correctly, and you'll never have greasy, indigestible cakes. Don't overmix the dough, though. The ingredient as it is added should be thoroughly incorporated, but prolonged beating results in brick-bats that are treas to nobody. If you chill the dough for an hour or longer before rolling, it will be easier to handle with the minimum amount of flour and the texture will be tender and fluffy.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, poached eggs on milk toast, milk, coffee. LUNCHEON: Eggplant baked with cheese, graham muffins, Chinese cabbage salad, baked pears, butter-scotch cookies, milk, tea. DINNER: Ham loaf, potatoes hashed in cream, baked green beans, salad of mixed fruits with cheese sticks, Indian pudding, milk, coffee.

CHURCHES

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

L. R. Gray, Pastor Sunday School, 9:45 a. m.; S. B. Baker, superintendent. Morning worship, 11 a. m. At this hour the church will be favored with a sermon by Rev. J. C. Oehler, D.D., pastor at San Augustine, Texas. Every member and friend of the church should hear him. Evening worship, 7:30 p. m. A sermon by the pastor on "The Essence of Religion." Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p. m.; Elven Rapp, president. Junior Christian Endeavor at 3 p. m.; Mrs. H. D. Smith, sponsor. Ladies' Auxiliary, Monday, 3 p. m., at the residence of the pastor, 715 Sixth street. Regular Bible lesson will be studied. It is hoped that a large audience will greet Dr. Oehler on Sunday morning. The pastor is also anxious that every member shall hear the message at the evening hour, 7:30. There is a Christian view of life, as against other views; we may be far from being Christians merely because we accept and embrace that view in a casual, detached or philosophical sense. We are truly Christian, truly religious, when we are impelled to spend and be spent to make the Christian view effective in the whole of life. The church is God's organized effort to bring all men to that viewpoint, and to that life.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

H. H. Johnson, Pastor Sunday School, 10 a. m., with Garland Montgomery, superintendent. Glad to note increased interest in Bible School as well as all other lines of church work. Preaching, by the pastor, 11 a. m. Subject, "The International Convention." Come and hear this report. Every member of the church should be present this morning. Communion just before morning sermon. I WANT TO GET SOME PRACTICE BEFORE TH' GAME, SO YOU TRY TO TACKLE ME, AN' TRY TO STOP ME FROM GETTIN' THRU WITH TH' BALL.

COME RIGHT AHEAD - I'LL DO MY BEST!

OH, YOU JUST GRAB HIM AROUND TH' LEGS, MOSTLY, HUH?

YEH, THAT'S IT - NOW TRY IT AGAIN

YOU AINT SUPPOSED TO DRAG A PLAYER BACK TO TH' GOAL - WHEN HE'S DOWN, THAT'S ENOUGH!

OH, WELL, I - WELL, TRY IT AGAIN

I DIDN'T KNOW FOOTBALL WAS GETTING TO BE SUCH A LACE AND LAVENDER GAME!

IT AINT - BUT YOU'RE JUST PLAIN DUMB, THAT'S ALL - YOU GOT TO KNOW A LITTLE SUMP'N, T' PLAY FOOTBALL!

The Willets

GOOD NIGHT, GOOD NIGHT!

THERE'S A SCIENCE TO THIS GAME - IT AINT JUST GRAB AN' RASSLE - USE YOUR HEAD A LITTLE, TOO - NOW, I'LL TRY IT AGAIN

DID YOUR SIDE WIN?

NO, NO, TH' GAME AINT TILL THIS AFTERNOON - I WAS JUST GETTIN' A LITTLE PRACTICE WITH LIL, BUT SHE DOESN'T KNOW TH' FIRST THING ABOUT FOOTBALL! NOT A THING!

WHY SHE MUST KNOW A LOT - SHE'S DONE AS MUCH TO YOU AS ELEVEN PLAYERS WOULD!

ANOTHER ONE!

Hallowe'en Party Entertains Intermediates at Church

The basement of the First Methodist Church was gaily decorated in the Hallowe'en color motif Friday night, for the party honoring the intermediates of the Sunday school, and was pleasantly hosted by Mrs. J. M. Bond, assisted by Mrs. C. E. May and Mrs. S. P. Boun.

Games were played by the merry group of children with refreshments served to 18 at the close of the evening.

Ranger Guests Attend Eastland Tea

Mmes. Saunders Gregg, M. H. Hagaman, Leslie Hagaman, John M. Gholson and O. L. Phillips were numbered among out-of-town guests who attended the smartly appointed tea, given at the home of Mrs. Bula H. Connellee at Eastland last week.

The courtesy named as honorees Mrs. Scott W. Key of Houston and the house guest of Mrs. Connellee, Mrs. Thomas Butler.

Mrs. Littlefield Continues To Show Improvement

Mrs. Ans Littlefield, who underwent major surgery at the City-County Hospital some two weeks ago, continues to show improvement and soon will be able to be removed home.

Quitting Party

Among informal social happenings of the week just passed was a quilting party held at the home of Mrs. M. M. Poyner, Breckenridge highway.

At noon a delicious chicken luncheon was served from neatly appointed tables.

Prizes during the quilting were awarded Mrs. J. C. Sims and Mrs. Dee Anderson.

Present were Mmes. Anderson, Sims, W. H. Butler, James, Jesse Dawson, A. L. Poyner, Tarrant, and the hostess, Mrs. Poyner.

Visiting Sister, Mrs. J. Scott Blair, Before Going Home, South America

Mrs. P. D. Ellison, remembered by her many Ranger friends as the former Clara Rush, and who taught at Young School, is visiting in the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Scott Blair, and family, before going to her home at Maranca Berman, Colombia, South America.

Shower Tendered Bride

Last week's informal social courtesies included a prettily appointed miscellaneous shower tendered the recent bride, Mrs. Ray Kennedy, who before her marriage last Saturday, Oct. 12, was the former Miss Pauline McGowan, popular among the younger set.

Mrs. Tessie Stokes, assisted by her co-hostess, Miss Pauline Berrier, entertained at the home of the former, which was attractively decorated in the Hallowe'en color motif, with added tones given from clusters of roses and asters.

The happy hour brought for diversion games of novel nature, climaxed with the serving of a dainty refreshment plate also carrying tints of the color theme.

Those invited named Mmes. A. Hardin, J. A. Jones, Jack Terry, Paul Taylor, Jack Tutker, Ietta

Kidnap Suspect Is Optimistic

Confident that she will be acquitted on the first day of her trial on charges arising from the kidnaping of Mrs. Perry Stoll, Louisville society leader, a year ago, Mrs. Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., is shown here in a new picture. Her husband still is at large, despite a nation-wide hunt. His father will go to trial at the same time Mrs. Robinson faces the court.

Fine Missionary Program Is Offing Monday

For members of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church, one of the finest lessons to be heard this season is in the offering for Monday afternoon at 2:30, with South Hodges in charge.

The life of Henrietta Howell Shuck, "America's First Missionary to Go to China," will be interestingly unfolded, with continued discussions to follow this opening chapter.

Splendid attendance has been noted at each of the meetings this fall and it is hoped that many will hear the above program.

Beery's Daughter Gives a Luncheon Party For Elephant

As a concession to Carol Ann's earnest pleas to have "Anna May" up to her house for lunch, Wallace Beery staged a luncheon for the famous elephant at M-G-M on the set of "Shaughnessy's Boy," now showing at the Arcadia today.

"Not a day went by that Carol Ann didn't hound me to take her to see 'Anna May,' or to at least say hello to her," declared Beery.

"Then she got it into her head that she must have the animal to the house for lunch—out in the garden," she says.

"I didn't think the citizens of Beverly Hills would like the idea of having an elephant about," said he, "so I compromised by having 'Anna May' entertained at lunch by Carol Ann at the studio."

pital, is making a rapid recovery, according to a letter received by Mrs. McRae Saturday morning.

Mr. McRae is now at the home of his daughter in Fort Worth and plans on returning home within the next 10 days.

His friends here will be pleased to learn he is doing so nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Crossley Attend Art Banquet At Breckenridge

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Crossley were numbered among out-of-town guests who attended the Le Petit Art Club's banquet staged at Breckenridge Friday night in the basement of the Presbyterian Church.

Honor guest and speaker of the evening, the world's renowned portrait painter, Douglas Chandor. A turkey dinner was prepared by the members and served to some 160 guests.

Son Named Bervin Beery

Reports Tell of Canadian Giants

By United Press
VANCOUVER, B. C. — Sasquatch men, remnants of a lost race of "wild men who inhabited the rocky regions of British Columbia centuries ago, are reported roaming the province again.

After an absence of several months from the district of Harrison Mills, 50 miles east of Vancouver, the long, weird, wolf-like howls of the "wild men" are being heard again and two of the hairy monsters were reported seen in the Morris Valley on the Harrison River.

Residents of the district tell of seeing the two giants leaping and bounding out of the forests and striding across the duck-feeding ground, wallowing now and again waving swamp grasses.

The strange men, it was reported, after emerging from the woods came leaping down the jagged rocky hillside with the agility and lightness of mountain goats. Snatches of their weird language row escape of an Indian at the same spot last March. A huge rock narrowly missed his canoe while he was fishing and looking up, he said he saw a huge and hairy monster stamping his feet and gesticulating wildly. The Indian escaped by cutting his fishing tackle and paddling away. The same Indian declares the Sasquatch twice have stolen salmon which he tied in a tree outside his house out of reach of dogs.

The latest appearance of the monsters was peaceful. They avoided the trails usually used by the people of the valley and molested neither cattle nor human beings.

People who have reported seeing the giants on their rare appearances described them as "ferocious looking wild men, nine feet tall and covered from head to toes with thick black hair."

Big Bean Stalk Rivals Famous Legend of Jack

By United Press
DETROIT.—One of the first Australian beans on the North American continent, is growing at the rate of one inch a day in a back yard garden plot in Roseville, Mich.

The bean, produced by Louis Jeffries, a disabled war veteran, has attained the length of 31 and one-half inches and is 10 and one-half inches in circumference.

Jeffries' vegetable prodigy is one of two on a vine produced from seed sent to the veteran by a friend in New Zealand.

"The soil is different here and the climate is too cold," Jeffries remarked to questioners. "I expect enough to provide a square meal before they stop growing."

Jeffries, an electrician before the World War, has been able to work only as a watchman since he was disabled in service. He has devoted his spare time to developing unusual vegetables, fruits and hybrids in his small garden.

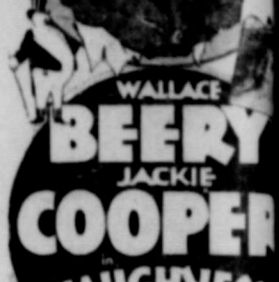

The Australian bean, pale green in color, grows to a length of five or six feet in its native soil. It is highly esteemed as food.

ELECTS 3 PRESIDENTS

BREWSTER, Mass.—The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church here couldn't decide who they wanted for president, so elected three. The presiding trio are Mrs. Susan Baker, Charles M. Wyman and Mabel Morse.
