Men Have To Support Women Out of Work

Every so often some honest gentleman discovers that there aren't enough jobs to go around among all the men who want jobs; and after taking thought he announces gravely that too many women are working, and that the world would wag more smoothly if the ladies would all hurry back to the kitchen and let the men have their jobs.

This peculiar attitude has not made a great deal of headway in America, so far. It has become an article of faith in Germany, and the corridors of Berlin office buildings are breezy with the swish of skirts as stenographers, crubwomen, and modistes head for home to make room for the menfolks.

One of the best answers to this proposition was furnished the other day by Miss Charl O. Williams, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Miss Williams simply pointed out that, if men displace women in the working world, the most immediate result will be that men will have a great many more women to support than they have now. For the woman who gives up her job to live at home has to have a home to go to, and if he can't pay for it herself someone else must; and if the man bores the ladies out of offices and factories, that's a little matter they won't be able to overlook.

Consider an ordinary man of today. He has a wife and she supports her, as he naturally expects to. He has an unmarried sister, and she earns her living as somebody's stenographer. He has a maiden aunt, who supports herself by working as a filing clerk.

He has a grown daughter, and she pays her way by working in a department store. His wife's sister, unmarried, looks after herself by virtue of a job in a real estate office.

That isn't an uncommon set-up. To a greater or less degree, it probably applies to the vast majority of male wage-earners in America.

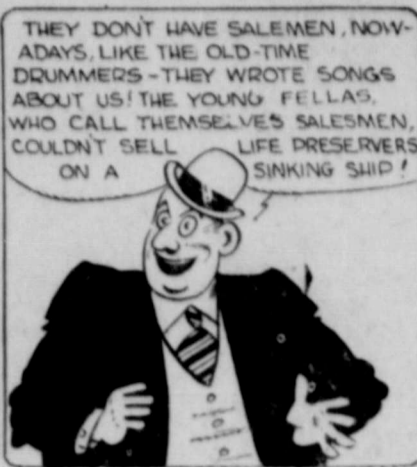

Consider what would happen if a nation-wide program of replacing females with males in the wage-earners' ranks should be put through.

This gentleman, in addition to his wife, would have four other women to support—and he would have to go on doing it to the bitter end, too, consoled only by the fact that it would be easier for his son to get work as, say, a beauty parlor operator, if he wanted to.

The working woman pays her own way in this world. The men ought to be the last people on earth to want to see her made a dependent again.

Compulsory Spanish Urged For a School

By United Press
McAllen, Texas.—The McAllen Chamber of Commerce is seeking the compulsory study of Spanish in Texas high schools through an act of the legislature. Resolutions passed by the civic body recite that not only do border cities, but every community in Texas of any size have Mexican citizens. Knowledge of Spanish will provide thousands with possible employment in Latin American countries; that Mexico, being the United States' greatest potential market can be better cultivated as a friend and customer if Texans have some knowledge of the language of the nation south of the Rio Grande.

Ace Abbott and Pat Dowdy Meet On Elks Program

The Elks matchmaker has arranged another good card for the program at the Elks wrestling arena for Monday night, Dec. 9. The 45-minute preliminary will see the return of Ace Abbott, the McMurry College athlete who pleased the wrestling fans in his first appearance here. Ace is pitted against a newcomer in these parts, Pat Dowdy, former amateur champion of Oklahoma. Pat has been wrestling professionally for the past two years. He is of the rough and ready type. The main event is a two best out of three falls with a two-hour time limit. Charlie Heard, the San Antonio speed ball, takes on Eddie O'Shea. Heard was booked here last week but due to injuries he was unable to appear. He will be here Monday night without fail. Heard has a number of new tricks with his feet that the Elks fans have never seen. He well deserves the name of Speed Ball.

Matches start promptly at 8:30 p. m.

Drunk Driving War Is No Idle Threat

DALHART, Texas.—Announcement of Sheriff Harvey D. Foust several weeks ago that Dalhart had declared unrelenting war on drunk driving, was no idle threat.

Four have already been indicted during the current district court term. Leniency on a former indictment was revoked, a fine imposed, a suspended prison sentence pronounced and the offender prohibited from driving a car for a year.

One of those indicted was W. (Doc) Stone, special traffic officer. The city council a few days later dismissed him. Mayor Kendall said it was "because of finances."

Cheers for Calumet's New 10¢ Can—and perfect, never-fail baking!

"I never had baking troubles with Calumet—and I save time!" says Mrs. Jack Caskey, 880 Aviation St., Memphis, Tenn.

"Four new 10¢ cans makes me feel very thrifty!" says Mrs. Nancy E. Williams, 499 Moreland Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

"It's real quality at a saving!" says Mrs. K. J. Tobin, of Beverly Hills, Ill. "I've never had a baking failure with Calumet." Why does Calumet give such "luck"? Why is it different from other baking powders? Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick one for the mixing bowl—a slower one for the oven. This Double-Action is so perfectly balanced and controlled that it produces perfect leavening. Calumet is a product of General Foods.

All Calumet prices are lower! Calumet is now selling at the lowest prices in its history... The regular price of the Full-Pound Can is now only 25¢! And ask to see the new, big 10¢ can—a lot of good baking for a dime—with Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder.

Gas Ranges Prove Interesting
 Yesterday afternoon a large group of women composed of Rangewives, and a number of friends from surrounding cities, for a demonstration of the new gas ranges, under the direction of W. F. Wheat of Dallas. Interestingly presented feature for the furniture exchange.

Exclusive features of these ranges demonstrated in a valiant showing how meals may be prepared in a more economical manner with this new and improved range.

First Chambers range was years ago upon a revolutionary idea. Heat that ordinarily goes into the kitchen was stored in the range itself for cooking. The new Chambers range, with its up-to-date features, still is revolutionary, for no other type of gas range cooks on retained heat—with the gas turned off, according to the demonstration.

The entertainment was one of unusual value and interest and the Rangewives and their associates were highly praised for the presentation and favor given them.

Attractive prizes were given away at the close of the program, attended by some ninety women, some fifteen from Eastland.

W. M. S. Members Hear Foreign Missionary Speaker
 A group of members of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church spent Wednesday afternoon in Eastland where they attended a special lecture at the local church given by Mrs. Lockett, a foreign missionary who has done extensive work in Africa.

The hospitality committee of the host church served tea at the close of the brief social.

Those from Ranger were Meses. Lee Mitchell, Webber, G. W. Thomas, Addie Williams, R. W. Jahn and W. A. Lewis.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST—Pineapple juice, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, cinnamon rolls, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Spanish rice, frye bread, orange and raisin salad, prune whip, milk, tea.
DINNER—Hot beef loaf, horseradish sauce, scalloped potatoes, baked squash, endive with French dressing, cottage pudding, milk, coffee.

Chill Cranberry Juice
 Use bottled cranberry juice and keep in the refrigerator until ready to serve.
 The cranberries will have to be made last, but with all the packaged wafers and canned and bottled fruit, it's no trouble at all.
 The oyster ramikins can be made ready, all but the eggs, early in the day. When you need them, add beaten eggs, turn into paper baking cups and bake.
 Prepare the fruits early and chill for several hours.

Oyster Ramikins
 One quart small oysters, 1 cup diced celery, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1-2 cup water, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1 cup cracker crumbs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, salt and pepper.

Apple-Mince Pies
 One package mince meat, 1-2 cups water, 2 cups sweetened apple sauce, pie crust.
 Choose a rich, juicy apple such as Macintosh or Northern Spy for the sauce. Break mince meat into pieces. Add water and stir until the lumps are thoroughly broken. Bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly, and boil a minute. Cool. Line individual pie pans with pastry, fill almost full with mince meat and spread apple sauce over the top in an even layer. Cover with top crust and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F.)

Mrs. Lee Mitchell and W. A. Lewis Freeside Over Splendid R. A. Program
 Royal Ambassadors of the First Baptist church met at the church Wednesday night for one of the most splendid meetings to have been presented since the organization. Mrs. Lee Mitchell and W. A. Lewis were in charge of the program which in a highly inspirational way observed the week of prayer, and offered as the subject, "Fighting Around the World."

Walter Lee Jackson gave the devotional from Luke second chapter and twelfth verse. Topics during the lesson had to do with work being sponsored by the Baptist association in different parts of the world. Prayers were given at intervals during the hour prefacing the talk made by Mrs. Lee Mitchell on the life of Mrs. Lockett, the missionary, who has done much in the field of development in Africa. The local chapter carries her name, and lessons are observed at various times during each year.

Clarence Cunningham gave a piano solo, "Silent Night" and each boy came forward with their Christmas offering for world-wide missions.

Those present for the program were Albert Bradford, Clyde Cunningham, F. P. Brasher, Jr., J. H. McElvain, John Pack, James Pack, Billy Hodges, Walter Lee Jackson, Billy Smith and Billy Bankston.

Italian Marshal Maps Campaign

With the tightening of Ethiopian defenses apparent on all fronts, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, new commander of Italian forces on the north, is confronted with the most difficult part of the campaign to conquer the African kingdom. He is shown surveying the far flung battle line south of Eritrea.

Two Months of Italians' Slow Progress in Ethiopia

The relatively slow progress which Italy's invading armies have made in the first two months of their Ethiopian conquest is shown by this map. Since Oct. 2, when the Italians first pushed over the border from Assab, they have advanced about 80 miles in the northern area and about 125 miles in the south, though bombing planes and reconnoitering forces have made deeper forays. Slowness of the campaign is regarded responsible for Marshal Pietro Badoglio's taping over chief command from Gen. Emilio de Bono. Absence of any major battles in the first two months indicates Ethiopians are adhering to their announced plan of drawing the invaders into the interior with little resistance until the Italians reach points for the best defense by untrained warriors.

CENTRAL TEXAS CONFERENCE CHAMPIONS

ARLINGTON, Texas, Dec. 5.—Here are the North Texas Aggies of Arlington, Central Texas Conference champions for the second consecutive year by virtue of their 16-3 victory over the John Tarleton College Playboys here last week. The Aggs won six consecutive conference victories this year.

Under a new coach, J. G. "Klep-to" Holmes, formerly line coach at A. & M. College and last season with Alamo Heights High school of San Antonio, the Aggs developed this year into one of the greatest offensive aggregations in the history of the college. They defeated every conference foe by a margin of at least two touchdowns.

several years ago to experiment with ways of adding this hydrogen. Finally, a way was developed to pulverize the coal, mix it with some materials that hastened the reaction, heat it, and introduce hydrogen gas under pressure.

Oil resulted, and last year one plant in Germany produced more than 180,000 tons of "coal gasoline." It can be marketed successfully in Germany, because the nation has no petroleum.

England, dependent on imports for its petroleum, has put $20,000,000 into a coal hydrogenation plant at Billingham. The plant is expected to produce 150,000 tons of gasoline a year.

After considerable study, Dr. Storch is convinced that American scientists, with the European method as a basis, will be able to make some improvements that will lower the cost of production, making a reality of what has been a dream for many years.

Ship Steward Has Collected Signatures
 LONDON.—One of the world's greatest autograph books belongs to Frank Moss, chief steward of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain.

In its pages are the signatures of royalty, famous naval and army men, titled people, artists, authors, bishops and stage and movie stars, which he has collected during seven voyages around the world.

Moss, who is now in his 25th year of sea-life, has been with the Empress of Britain ever since she made her maiden voyage.

Sea of Oil May Be Under Entire Surface of Earth
 TULSA, Okla.—The entire world may have a sea of oil underneath the earth's crust, varying in depth, according to oil men who are spending millions of dollars in geophysical exploratory work over an area extending from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico and from eastern oil fields to the Pacific coast.

Explaining why they are seeking more oil with a condition of over production facing the industry, the major oil companies, who have been increasing their holdings, report that improved business conditions and the increase of leisure time is expected to increase the consumption of oil.

When the Drake well was first drilled in 1859 near Titusville, Pa., oil was found at the depth of 69 1/2 feet. At that time, no one thought oil would be found in the west at depths of a half mile, but it was.

As discoveries of these depths were made no one thought of finding oil at a mile and a half. But it was and now the explorations are reaching depths of two miles. As pools of this depth are discovered and used there may be future drilling to find oil at depths of three and four and even five miles. Thus, every state in the union becomes a prospective oil state.

U. S. Will Study Ways of Making Oil Out of Coal
 PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Research, prompted by the rapid depletion of oil reserves, will be started here upon completion of a proposed machine that will squeeze gasoline and motor oil out of coal.
 The machine, advocated as a necessity by scientists and natural resources experts for many years, will be among the first of its kind ever built.
 According to Dr. H. H. Storch, who is in charge of the work, 100 pounds of pulverized coal, poured into the machine, will emerge in the form of crude oil—90 pounds of it. By distilling this thoroughly, the scientists can get as much as 75 pounds of gasoline.
 The cost of the gasoline will be about 14 cents a gallon. Dr. Storch believes, however, that the cost may be reduced to 10 cents a gallon or less after a year's research.
 According to present standards, of course, such a price would young man is a stranger to me." "But not to me!" Mrs. Cameron said. "It's that young scamp Scott Stanley. Think of his acrobatic coming here! Further re, I've been hearing things about him. He's a regular roguing woman, stealing her hair, making sure he keeps his own haven't had my ears open for long. Well, I'll soon break this for you trembled from anger and disappointment. It was a girl that boded no good to any of her sister knew. Aunt Ellen's sister went out to Dana. The years had changed Agatha some respects. Aunt Ellen's fight, but the indomitable will fighting fire were still there. Sit down," Aunt Ellen urged. "I'm not so excited. Why should I worry just because she goes to dinner with him?" "Why does she want to be going out with him? And why isn't she with Paula Long, who's been waiting for him ever since he finished high school? Paula's money would start him in his medical practice. What does he mean, dirt poor and just starting out, hanging around Dana who's as poor as a church mouse, too?" "Unanswerable logic. Ellen Cameron said miserably, contemplating her sister's words. Why hadn't Scott (she thought of the name) done the sensible thing and turned to his wealthy Paula? If he could look into the past, he would know there was more than one reason why he wouldn't be welcome in this home. And then he probably would muddle things for Dana. Dana was beautiful and poised, well-fitted to rule graciously over a splendid home. "I'm growing mercenary, too," thought gentle Aunt Ellen unhappily. It was almost impossible to live in a house with her sister and not be infected by the possession virus. . . .

MRS. CAMERON endured it as long as she could—seeing the shabby gray roadster parked in front of her home, replacing Ronnie's large and expensive one. The gray car was an affront. A defiance. A challenge. Mrs. Cameron accepted that challenge one afternoon. She took the bull by the horns. (In her own language) and drove her shaft home so delicately, so diplomatically that Dana did not at first feel the full force of the blow. "A very nice young man," Mrs. Cameron said as Dana came into the house and Scott's car moved away. Elsewhere Ronnie was receiving the silent congratulations of scores of mothers who were taking heart again now that the young million are was once more heart free. "Ronnie was a little too smart for old Mrs. Cameron," they said. "Guess he saw which way the wind was blowing and got out before she had him tied up tight with a wedding rope." Mrs. Cameron sitting on her porch the next afternoon looked up and saw Scott's car stopping. Her brows drew together ominously.

Aunt Ellen had warned her sister. "Don't drive or threaten Dana. I don't believe she would stand for it." Neither did Mrs. Cameron believe Dana would be moved by threats. She planned to use them only as a last effort. Threats, if necessary, but persuasion first. It was not a pretty picture—the picture of poverty her grandmother drew for Dana. And there were elements of truth in the portrayal that startled even such a courageous girl. "I know you're not in love with Scott Stanley," Mrs. Cameron said vigorously. "You're too sensible. But there's danger in seeing too much of him." . . .

WHAT IS NECESSARY TO ACHIEVE SUCCESS
(By Billy Hines)

If the question, "What is necessary to achieve success?" was asked, the answers might par beautifully with the number of writers who tried to answer it, which is just as it should be, for this is a problem which must be studied and solved by everyone for himself. However, the answers would tend to revolve around the circle of the essential qualities, which are, willpower, surroundings, management, and interest. Our success within our own hands, mind, and might, and it is up to us to make good use of what we have, for we alone are responsible for the kind of success we are making. No one can make a success for us, nor can anyone possess our willpower.

Why are so many people begging their meals today? Is it because they do not have the willpower that it requires to make a living for themselves? We must consider surroundings as an essential quality to success for even though people are always talking of originality, what do they mean? As soon as we are born the world begins to work upon us, and this goes on until the end. After all what can we call our own except strength, energy, and will? If we were to give credit of all we owe to great predecessors and present surroundings, there would be but a small balance in our favor. No matter how we were reared, unless we possess the willpower to stand up for ourselves, we will adopt bad habits as well as good habits from our friends, books, and methods of entertainments. We should learn to manage whatever we undertake to do in a way that we can get all the good out of it that is possible. Therefore management is often the cause of failure. If we have no interest in our work we will more than likely manage it in the wrong way. Therefore interest is another great essential to success. Failure is sure to follow, if we do not take ourselves in hand and force our minds and wills and desires to yield to control. Loss of interest, effort or determination will end in absolute failure.

ROGERS' GREATEST FILM AT ARCADIA

ROMANCE, RACE THRILLS FEATURE ROGERS FILM

Will Rogers' last—and greatest—picture, "In Old Kentucky," comes Saturday to the Arcadia Theatre.

Adapted from the play whose humor, sunny romance and tingling horse race drama have made it a favorite of three generations of Americans, "In Old Kentucky" stars Rogers in a role that presents his rich down-to-earth character in its most lovable light.

Sam Hellman, famous humorist, and Gladys Lehman adapted the play to the screen in a modernized form, but preserved all of its drama and its rich comedy of character and incident.

In the picture, Rogers enacts a shrewd and genial trainer of horses, whose homely philosophy and keen wit sets right all the troubles of the impulsive people about him.

Russell Hardie and Dorothy Wilson play the romantic youngsters of "In Old Kentucky." She is the daughter of old Charles Sellon who is feuding with Charles Richman. Although his daughter fights to win Hardie for herself, it is Rogers' shrewd aid that finally brings the boy to Miss Wilson.

Rogers' able assistant in the picture is Bill Robinson, the tap dancing genius, who teaches the comedian enough of his foot artistry to win a handsome widow, and thus provides one of the comedy punches of the picture.

Although "In Old Kentucky" is full of humor and drama in the feud situations and the wrangle with the crazy rain-maker, it reserves its great thrill for the pounding climax in which racing thoroughbreds pound down the stretch carrying romance and drama in their saddle.

Louise Henry, Alan Dinehart, Esther Dale and Etienne Girardot are the principal supporting players in "In Old Kentucky," which was directed by George Marshall.

HEPBURN STRUGGLED LIKE "ALICE ADAMS"

Katharine Hepburn, starring in "Alice Adams," did not rise to fame as the result of luck, but as the culmination of long, arduous work and the stubborn clinging to an ideal.

Three times before she won fame on Broadway she tossed starring roles to the winds deliberately, rather than recede from her ideals.

America's favorite drama and America's favorite actor meet in the Fox picturization of "In Old Kentucky," which stars Will Rogers, opening Saturday at the Arcadia Theatre.

Her explanation is that she believed that if she could express herself she would succeed, but that if she followed blindly the dictates of directors and played a part in a manner she could not feel, that her performance would be shallow and lacking in the vital spark that differentiates a fine actress from a technically perfect performer.

As to her work, she trained her voice under the best teachers, mastered the art of the Russian ballet to attain grace and poise, and worked three seasons in stock companies to get experience in a variety of roles, before attempting Broadway.

"Alice Adams," which is the Booth Tarkington story of a girl whose ambition and struggles were similar, gives Miss Hepburn one of the outstanding characters of her career. It is an RKO Radio Picture, showing Monday and Tuesday at the Arcadia Theatre.

Cardenas Completes One Year As Head Of Mexican States

MEXICO CITY.—Citizens General of Division Lazaro Cardenas, "the friend of the Indian," completed today one year as president of the United Mexican States. Already Cardenas has made history in Mexico, for in his seventh month in office he assumed many of the powers which ex-President General Plutarco Elias Calles had been wielding extra-constitutionally during past administration.

One year ago today General Cardenas was inaugurated for a term of six years. Previously the term of office had been four years, but rare was the president who completed the stipulated period of his administration.

Cardenas had the political sagacity of tying-up his six-year administration with a "Six-Year Plan," which had the sponsorship of the National Revolutionary Party. Its main planks consisted of rehabilitation of the Indian distribution of land to the Indians by an intensification of Agrarian Reform; extensive road-building and construction of schools; and the implantation of Socialistic Education.

A policy of strict enforcement of the church laws has been officially announced, although in the beginning of his administration it was believed that Cardenas might be rather lenient in connection with the Catholic problem.

The split between Calles and Cardenas in June was nothing less than a "bloodless revolution." For more than 10 years Calles had been political master of Mexico. He was president from 1924 to 1928. When General Alvaro Obregon, then dictated the selection of Emilio Portes Gil, a prominent lawyer, as his successor.

When Portes Gil's term as provisional president was about to expire, Calles chose the engineer and diplomat, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, as president. But when Ortiz Rubio showed signs of independence, Calles forced his resignation and in turn chose General Abelardo Rodriguez as president to complete Ortiz Rubio's unexpired term.

Mexico and Calles himself expected that situation to continue indefinitely. People turned to Calles at all critical times, as, for instance, when he actively returned to office in 1929 as Secretary of War to put down the Escobar revolution.

The power of Calles, however, began to be challenged when it came time to pick a candidate to succeed Rodriguez. Insiders declared that Calles' candidate the General Manuel Perez Trevino, unofficially credited with having helped Calles oust Ortiz Rubio in exchange for the promise that Perez Trevino eventually would become president.

The person challenging the official program of succession was young General Lazaro Cardenas, who had made a record for himself as good a soldier, good administrator and governor of Michoacan, and a man respected for his honesty and austerity. Cardenas was minister of war in President Rodriguez's cabinet. He found active support for his candidacy for the nomination by the national revolutionary party among numerous senators and deputies.

When Cardenas' candidacy became so popular, Calles wisely dropped the plans to make Perez Trevino President. Thus, when the party convention met at Queretaro, it was made to appear that Cardenas was Calles' choice. Cardenas, therefore, not only was easily nominated, but was easily elected president.

During the first months of Cardenas' administration nothing happened to indicate that Calles would lose his unofficial title as "Supreme Chief of the Mexican Revolution." Calles continued to live on his beautiful estates at Cuernavaca, enjoying the excellent climate there, free from the disadvantages of living in Mexico City with its altitude of 7,349 feet.
