GOVERNOR TO MEDITATE UPON AUTO STRIKE

By United Press
FLINT, Mich., Jan. 4.—Gov. Frank Murphy entered the automobile labor crisis as a mediator today, while officials of the United Automobile Workers union sought hearing on an injunction barring their members from occupying two Fisher body plants.

Pickets in the closed Fisher body plants clashed with police at Cleveland. Police Chief Cleveland Kekik was mauled by 75 men, who sought to prevent a plant manager from entering the building.
While tension increased in Michigan, Governor Murphy offered to mediate.
"I hope violence can be avoided," he said, "although many of my acquaintances do not agree that this is possible."
Representatives from 50 automobile unions in 16 cities pointed to the strike which already has closed ten General Motors plants and thrown 37,000 workers out of work. Then the workers appointed a committee with full power to call general strike unless the corporation agrees to confer on seven "conditions of settlement" demanded.

William Knudsen, General Motors vice president, announced 135,000 workers would be laid off this week because of shortage of materials. He insisted union officials should negotiate with local plant managers, not with the corporation as a whole.

HOUSTON, Jan. 4.—Striking seamen returned to work today on Gulf Oil tankers with conflicting reports of victory for both factions in the maritime walkout. With the strike broken operators looked for settlement of the two-month-old controversy.

SENATE POWER OF DEMOCRATS MAKES HISTORY

By Joe Alex Morris
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Senate convenes tomorrow to go through the formalities of opening the 75th Congress and the difficulties of seating 75 Democratic members in the chamber.
The greatest administration strength in history will bring to the upper chamber a sprinkling of new faces, a slash in the opposition strength and an increase of half a dozen in the number of seats required for the Democratic membership.
As a result, the Senate will be compelled to break its custom for the first time in 20 years and seat a dozen Democrats on the rear row of the chamber on the Republican side of the aisle. All the Democrats so seated will be newly elected members. The shift in seating relieves the crowded condition that prevailed on the Democratic side during the last Congress and fills some of the open spaces on the minority side. There will be 63 Democratic-side seats and 35 seats on the minority side.

One Seat Vacant
A comparison of the old and new Congress shows these totals:

	New	Old
Democrats	75	69
Republicans	16	25
Farm-Labor	2	1
Progressive	1	1
Independent	1	—
Total	95	96

In the new Congress the vacant seat is that held by the late Sen. Peter Norbeck, R., S. D.
The new Senate has the greatest number of administration party members on record, although the Republican majority strength immediately after the Civil War.

In the 41st Congress, in 1869, there were only 74 senators, but of these the Republicans elected 71, leaving an opposition of only 3 members. The opposition membership today totals a score.
Vice President John Nance Garner, presiding over the Senate, again will direct the formalities of getting the legislators down to work. The swearing in of new members and the routine of resolutions in regard to such technicalities as the hours of meeting each day (noon) will be passed.

A committee of the majority and minority leaders will advise the President the chamber is in session and will report back to the Senate, which will await the President's message, to be delivered at his convenience.
Fifteen New Members
Seventeen new members will have seats in the Senate—twelve of them Democrats, two Republicans and one Farmer-Labor.

They include:
Guy M. Gillette, D., Ia., who succeeded to the seat of the late Louis Murphy, killed in an automobile accident.
Claude Pepper, D., Fla., who succeeds the late Duncan U. Fletcher.
C. O. Andrews, D., Fla., who succeeds the late Park Trammell.
Prentiss M. Brown, D., Mich., who fills the seat which was held by the late James Couzens.
Allen J. Ellender, D., La., who steps into the place which was held by the late Huey P. Long and later, by Mrs. Rose Long.
James H. Hughes, D., Del., whose victorious campaign sent Daniel O. Hastings into retirement.
Edwin C. Johnson, D., Colo., who succeeds Edward P. Costigan.
Lee Known As Orator
Josh Lee, D., Okla., flowery orator, who replaces Thomas P. Gore.
Harry H. Schwartz, D., Wyo., who defeated the veteran Robert D. Carey.
W. H. Smathers, D., N. J., who crowded the towering W. Warren Barbour out of his seat.
H. Styles Bridges, R., N. H., a former governor, who succeeds Henry W. Keyes.
Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., R., Mass., scion of a famous political family, who takes the seat formerly held by Marcus A. Coolidge.
Ernest Lundeen, F.-L., Minn., who moves from the House to the Senate seat which was held by the late Thomas D. Schall and, later, by Elmer Benson.
Theodore Francis Green, D., R. I., who succeeds Jesse R. Metcalf, Republican.
Clyde L. Herring, D., Ia., who defeated the silver-shocked Lester J. Dickson, one of the most bitter foes of the New Deal.

RECOVERY HAMPERED BY STRIFE

By United Press
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—Bright hopes for continued recovery were shadowed today by conflicts between capital and labor as new deal leaders gathered for the opening of Congress Tuesday.

A caucus of house democrats late today will climax a bitter battle by electing a majority leader for the overwhelmingly democratic 75th congress which will convene at noon tomorrow.

FATHER TOLD KIDNAPED SON IS DOING WELL

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 4.—Gov. Clarence Martin today personally directed police watching highways, hampered by the heaviest snow of the season, in search of two men who relayed word to Dr. W. W. Mattson that his son, Charles, 10, kidnaped eight days ago, was well.
Governor Mattson was at state patrol headquarters in Olympia, directing the manhunt.
The cause of sudden activity was the appearance of two men at Klugler mill at Shelton, 52 miles southwest of here. One of the men told E. R. Grubbe, the watchman, that "everything is well." The man left hurriedly in an automobile. Later that night two men stopped at a cafe here and ordered food to take out.

Early today police at Seattle raided a house after a neighbor said he heard a child's cry. Deputies entered the house and emerged after considerable time with two men, about whom officers would give no information.

We Can Help in Drive to Make Streets Safe

Not very many months ago three men were entrapped in a Nova Scotia gold mine. For days thereafter, while draegermen labored heroically to save them, their plight gripped the attention of a continent, and millions of people eagerly scanned headlines, hoping fervently that the victims would be rescued.

And yet if anything comparable to this amount of interest had been focused on another problem during the last 10 years, it is more than probable that 24,000 men and women, now in their graves, would be enjoying life in the bosoms of their families.

According to the National Safety Council, this many lives would have been saved, and nearly a million injuries prevented, had the national trend in motor vehicle accidents kept pace during the last decade with the reductions achieved in states having standard drivers' license laws.

That the lives of citizens will not continue to be sacrificed needlessly on the altar of public apathy, definite campaigns are now, or soon will be, waged in at least 18 states for passage of standard drivers' license laws, or bringing of existing laws up to standard.

In 1937 legislatures will meet in 43 states, at least 23 of which have no drivers' license laws or, at best, sub-standard measures. It is believed that some type of drivers' license legislation will be introduced in every state not already having a first-class law.

While some of these may fail to go through, the council expects that the net progress will be greater than in any previous year.

Drivers' license laws will be of little benefit if they are bad ones, points out Sidney J. Williams, director of the council's public safety division.

A good law, he explains, has three essentials: examination of new drivers; suspension or revocation of bad driving; and centralization of authority in a state department. "History shows that laws without these three 'teeth,'" he contends, "are hardly worth the paper on which they're written."

Under an effective law, drivers would be tested as to vision, reflexes, knowledge of traffic laws, and other essentials; their automobiles would be examined periodically as to condition of brakes, tires, steering apparatus, and other such safety factors. And defective drivers and cars would be kept off the streets, to the vast benefit of pedestrians and responsible drivers.

An encouraging factor, as the campaigns begin, is the agitation for passage of such laws. This reveals that public and official interest in safeguarding highway traffic is increasing.

In a survey conducted recently in Oklahoma, for instance 90 per cent of the motorists questioned voted "Yes" when asked, "Are you in favor of a standard drivers' license law?"

If this sample test is an indication of the general trend of public opinion, it may not be long before the problem of the irresponsible driver will be well in hand throughout the country.

Loot In Ranger Burglary Listed By Police Chief

A list of the loot taken from the Pete Jensen home on the night of Dec. 27, was completed today by Chief of Police Jim Ingram of Ranger, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Jensen, who were away from home at the time of the robbery, but who have now returned to Ranger.

The robbery was discovered last week when a passerby, who knew that Mr. and Mrs. Jensen were out of town, noticed that the house was open. Police investigated, but were unable to determine the amount of the loot until the return of Mr. and Mrs. Jensen.

The list, as compiled, shows the following property missing: One dozen dinner knives, one dozen salad forks, one dozen teaspoons, one-half dozen tablespoons, one cold meat fork, one carving knife, one sugar shell, one dozen ice spoons, one dozen dinner forks, one dozen butter spreaders, one dozen 5 o'clock spoons, one gravy ladle, one butterpick, one carving fork and one butter knife. All the above were Reid Barton sterling silver, Francis I pattern, and were engraved with an Old English 'J' on the under side.

In addition to the silver service between two and three dozen souvenir spoons from different states, all sterling silver, one sterling pickle fork, one very old plated table spoon, were reported taken.

Another plated silver service, Patricia pattern, consisting of six knives, six teaspoons, 12 cocktail or oyster forks, six forks and three table spoons, one gold plated ear drop, black scroll, antique; one gold cuff link, engraved Old English 'J'; one small gold brooch, round, with seed pearls, quite old; one round triple-vanity; one field glass; one heavy gray suit, size 40, with two pair of trousers, purchased from Washer Brothers, Fort Worth, all were missing after a checkup was made.

Chief Ingram has notified police in cities of the state with a request that a lookout be kept for the missing articles.

POWELL, STEWART GIVE GRAND PERFORMANCE IN
"BORN TO DANCE"

That peculiarly rhythmic tapping sound which is being heard all over town today is merely the echo of Eleanor Powell who once again elicits her title of the World's Greatest Feminine Tap Dancer in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer musical spectacle, "Born to Dance," which came to the Arcadia screen last night.

Miss Powell, who first won husbands from critics and film audiences alike in "Broadway Melody of 1936," is a delight to behold, a pleasure to listen to and a tremendous treat to lovers of dancing in any form. In her first picture she proved her versatility by switching from tap dancing to ballet, in "Born to Dance" she introduces a bewildering array of routines, including even an original version of the current popular "swing" tempo.

In its music, production value and dazzling array of supporting talent "Born to Dance" in every way lives up to the high standards set by its brilliant dancing star. The songs, written by Cole Porter of "You're the Top" and "Night and Day" fame, are of the type that once heard linger on the ear for weeks after. The romantic "Easy to Love," the haunting "I've Got You Under My Skin," the catchy "Swingin' the Jinx Away," and the luring waltz number, "Hey, Babe, Hey," are songs that everyone will be whistling and humming for weeks to come.

In its magnificent settings, eye-filling ensembles, everyone of whose dancers must be a beauty-prize winner, the interesting naval backgrounds and the general luxury of the proceedings, the picture is definitely in the tradition of "The Great Ziegfeld." Dave Gould did a brilliant job of supervising the dances, and the direction of Roy Del Ruth adds immeasurably to the success of the whole.

The story of "Born to Dance" involves the romance of a small-town girl who falls in love with a navy man and almost loses him to a show girl. The personable James Stewart is the navy man, and stunning Virginia Bruce gives an outstanding portrayal as the temperamental show girl. Also scoring in a top-notch supporting cast are Una Merkel and Sid Silvers furnishing laughs galore; the lovely-voiced Frances Langford of radio fame, Raymond Walburn, Alan Dinehart and Buddy Elsen, the eccentric comedy melody of 1936.

French Village All Electrical

MAUBEUGE, France—The first electrical village, where electrical appliances are used for every household duty, has been completed in France. The experiment has been carried out in the village of Saint Hilaire-sur-Hepe near here, and the motto of the villagers is a real American one "Let Electricity Do It."

Saint Hilaire has taken a step in modernization which is contrary to every French village custom and heralds a new age where the hard-working peasant will be relieved of his excess work and be provided with leisure. There are only 300 inhabitants of this first experimental village, but every house is equipped with electric light, electric stoves, electric irons and electrical heating apparatus.

Already the housewives are proclaiming their new freedom. Cooking, cleaning, washing, refrigerating, ironing, etc., no longer weary them. Their time devoted to household duties has been cut to almost a tenth of its former length, and although the first steps met a great deal of opposition, villagers now are unanimous in their praise.

Saint Hilaire is in the rolling coal country of northern France and the electrical supply is furnished by the giant coal-fired transformers. When Leo Lagrange, French minister of leisure, inaugurated the service with an electrically prepared banquet, he announced that the government planned to extend the plan to other parts of France.

There are many snow-capped mountain ranges in France where an all-year water supply is assured. Already vast projects of electrical stations are being projected in these districts, utilizing the "white coal" of torrential mountain torrents.

Whether the government's plan for extending the electrical villages includes something on the lines of America's Tennessee Valley project is uncertain. But it seems every facility for making such a plan is feasible is present.

Van Sweringen Home On Block

CLEVELAND—The great Daisy Hill estate of the late Van Sweringen brothers soon is to be put on the block.

The famous place, regarded as one of the finest and most expensive in the country, will pass into the hands of the liquidator of the Union Trust company.

O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen were permitted to keep possession of the property while the Union Trust liquidators sought to dispose of it to the best advantage of the bank's stockholders.

When the brothers at that time asked New York bankers for $150,000 annual living expenses, they included a low estimate of $20,000 for the estate alone.

Upkeep to be High
It is estimated the prospective purchaser of the property will have to calculate on normal operating expense of $5,000 a month. This figure would vary, depending on how many horses the owner wished to keep.

The estate includes a mansion of more than 30 rooms, a fine greenhouse, some of the country's best-equipped stables, including a private water system, and a plan for an excellent golf course.

The home is outfitted with expensive furnishings and works of art. Liquidators believe the contents of the home may be appraised as low as $50,000 or as high as $200,000.

Six Caretakers Remain

The great house is deserted except for six caretakers.

VISITS IN RANGER

Herbert King, student at Furman University, Greenville, S. C., has returned to Greenville after spending the Christmas holidays visiting relatives and friends, Bob King, brother of Herbert, who is also a student at Furman, spent the holidays in Greenville, where he will study for his masters degree and accept a position on the coaching staff at Furman after graduation.

MARRYING THEMSELVES

Only a few days after two New Yorkers were married by contract, Stockton White Woodruff and Miss Nancy Irvin McAfee escaped the usual nuptial pomp by marrying themselves without aid of a minister in the old Quaker tradition at Purchase, N. Y. The bridegroom is shown placing the ring on his bride's finger during the simple ceremony, at which each said the marriage vow in the presence of four official witnesses, just as Miss McAfee's great-grandmother had done more than 100 years ago.

Except for six caretakers, R. L. Jenks, lifelong friend and business associate of the "Vans," who had made his home at the estate for many years and managed it in the absence of the brothers, has moved to a Cleveland hotel.

At the same time, the Daisy Hill company, of which Jenks is president, discharged a score of the staff of caretakers and servants.

The Daisy Hill company made a $536,000 note, which was a long-the assets of the Union Trust company. Also, a prior mortgage of $34,000 on part of the 400-acre farm, is said to be with the Cleveland Society for Savings bank. Delinquent taxes on the estate amount to $114,000.

Jesuit, 80, Goes Into Far Lands

By United Press
SAN FRANCISCO—Father Jon Svenson, past 80, one of the oldest members of the Order of Jesuits—and famous story writer and teller, has departed on another leg of his journey of life that has carried him to every part of the world and delighted millions of readers. This time, his field of travel and story telling will include Japan, India, China and Egypt.

Father Svenson believes that his talent for story telling came to him inevitably and that he has served the religious order as faithfully as if he had devoted his life to routine duties of the brotherhood.

He can remember when stories were told him by old Iceland sea captains, for he is of the stock of Eric the Red and Olaf. He can trace his Norseman ancestry back a thousand years, and among his forebears are Queen Audr and Djupudga, who were Icelandic royalty 800 years ago and the ancestors of King Olaf and Wise.

But the first things that he remembers are the old Norse tales told him and his little brother, Manni.

These tales ran something like this: "If you play a flute out at sea, you will see mermaids, and fishes will follow."

As a consequence he and his little brother, Manni obtained a punt and set out in the Arctic seas to see mermaids and fishes. In reality, what they really saw was a for so thick that they couldn't see the Arctic storm that swept their little craft with immense breakers. But when they were nearly famished and frozen a French warship saw them and picked them up.

In the early 70's a French nobleman invited "Nomi" to attend the Catholic university of Avignon. There he eventually dropped the Lutheran religion in which he had been reared, became a Catholic and finally took the orders of the Jesuit brotherhood.

But nothing could stifle the
