LICENSING OF DRIVERS TO BE MORE RIGID

AUSTIN, Feb. 26.—The Texas House of Representatives passed a bill today putting future applicants on a test basis. The final vote in the house was 76 to 12. The measure was passed to authorize the Public Safety Department to station a highway patrol in each county, or to authorize the county tax assessor-collector to issue the licenses. To qualify applicants must pass tests as to eyesight, ability to read highway signs and to control a car. The house also passed a $376,000 appropriation for the livestock sanitary commission for fiscal year 1937-38. Last minute bills given the house today included a nine-cent barrel tax on oil, $2.25 a ton tax on sulphur, five cents a pound tax on carbon black and a 20-cent tax on prizes, such as those given on punch boards. Both houses adjourned until Monday. A sit-down strike by members of the house state affairs committee against additional taxes until old age pensions are liberalized, began Thursday night. The strike was launched when the committee approved a resolution to tell the governor there will be no additional taxes except for pensions. Little prospects were seen that the house would join the committee in the "strike."

Buchanan House Post to Taylor

Edward T. Taylor, 79, pictured above at his desk in Washington, became chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee, following the death of James P. Buchanan, Texas Democrat. Taylor, representative from Colorado, has been elected on the Democratic ticket 15 consecutive times since 1909, and is the oldest member of his House in point of service.

RAIN, SNOW IN TEXAS CLEAN DUST FROM AIR

Rain washed the air clean of dust over most of Texas Friday, as a late winter norther shoved temperatures below freezing in northern sections. Every weather station in the state except El Paso reported cloudiness or rain. Freezing temperatures with rain was reported at Amarillo. Thunderstorms and hail struck Dallas, where the temperature was 35. Rain was forecast for East Texas Friday night, with sleet in prospect in the northern sections. West Texas also had prospects of rain. The cold was expected to abate Saturday and Sunday.

SADDLED WITH TROUBLE

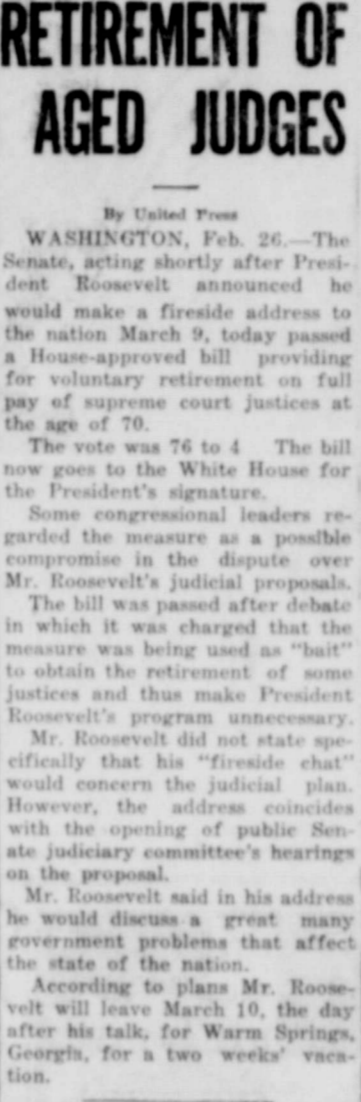

"More than anything else, I want to talk with Mr. Rosoff," Mrs. R. Norman Redwood, widow of the slain leader of the tunnel workers' union, asserted, outlining plans to visit Samuel Rosoff, millionaire New York subway contractor, who was reported to have threatened her husband's life.

SENATE VOTES RETIREMENT OF AGED JUDGES

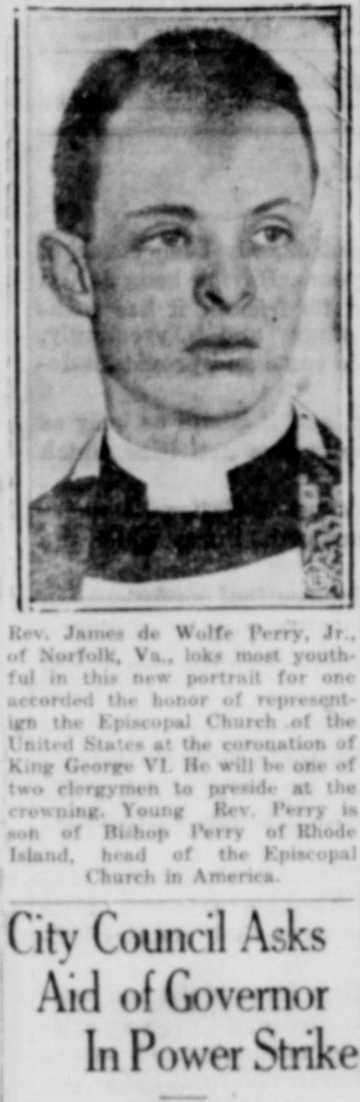

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The Senate, acting shortly after President Roosevelt announced he would make a fireside address to the nation March 9, today passed a House-approved bill providing for voluntary retirement on full pay of supreme court justices at the age of 70. The vote was 76 to 4. The bill now goes to the White House for the President's signature. Some congressional leaders regarded the measure as a possible compromise in the dispute over Mr. Roosevelt's judicial proposals. The bill was passed after debate in which it was charged that the measure was being used as "bait" to obtain the retirement of some justices and thus make President Roosevelt's program unnecessary. Mr. Roosevelt did not state specifically that his "fireside chat" would concern the judicial plan. However, the address coincides with the opening of public Senate judiciary committee's hearings on the proposal. Mr. Roosevelt said in his address he would discuss a great many government problems that affect the state of the nation. According to plans Mr. Roosevelt will leave March 10, the day after his talk, for Warm Springs, Georgia, for a two weeks' vacation.

U. S. Cleric Named Coronation Aid

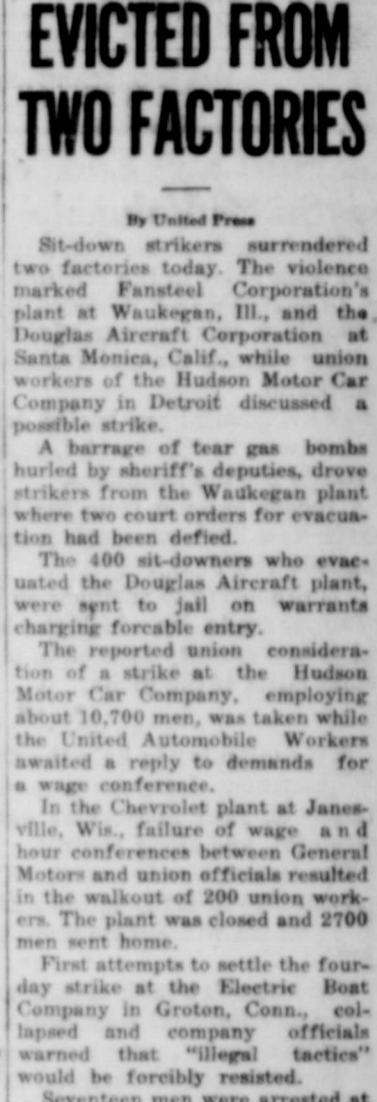

Rev. James de Wolfe Perry, Jr., of Norfolk, Va., looks most youthful in this new portrait for one of the outstanding meetings of the Episcopal Church of the United States at the coronation of King George VI. He will be one of two clergymen to preside at the coronation. Young Rev. Perry is son of Bishop Perry of Rhode Island, head of the Episcopal Church in America.

STRIKERS ARE EVICTED FROM TWO FACTORIES

Sit-down strikers surrendered two factories today. The violence marked Fansteel Corporation's plant at Waukegan, Ill., and the Douglas Aircraft Corporation at Santa Monica, Calif., while union workers of the Hudson Motor Car Company in Detroit discussed a possible strike. A barrage of tear gas bombs hurled by sheriff's deputies, drove strikers from the Waukegan plant where two court orders for evacuation had been defied. The 400 sit-downers who evacuated the Douglas Aircraft plant, were sent to jail on warrants charging forcible entry. The reported union consideration of a strike at the Hudson Motor Car Company, employing about 10,700 men, was taken while the United Automobile Workers awaited a reply to demands for a wage conference. In the Chevrolet plant at Janesville, Wis., failure of wage and hour conferences between General Motors and union officials resulted in the walkout of 200 union workers. The plant was closed and 2700 men sent home. First attempts to settle the four-day strike at the Electric Boat Company in Groton, Conn., collapsed and company officials warned that "illegal tactics" would be forcibly resisted. Seventeen men were arrested at Philadelphia after a clash between striking truck drivers, union sympathizers and guards.

Old People Will Hold a Meeting In Ranger Wednesday

Wednesday, March 3, beginning promptly at 2:30 p. m., in the Recreation building, Ranger, one of the outstanding meetings of the old people held in West Texas will be in the nature of a program in the interest of the Old Age Assistance law, both federal and state. A splendid program has been arranged for the occasion and all the old people in Eastland and adjoining counties are invited to attend. The program as outlined is as follows: Congressional singing, led by Roy Moore. Invocation—Rev. T. E. Bowman. Our Old People—Rev. H. B. Johnson. "Have I Made a Good Citizen"—W. T. Walton. The public is urged to keep the meeting in mind and all are urged to attend.

Conducted Bang's Disease Test On 4-H Jersey Cows

Dr. Ross Hodges, veterinarian of Ranger and Assistant County Agent Hugh F. Barnhart this week conducted Bang's disease tests on eight registered 4-H club Jersey heifers. All heifers tested will be placed on exhibit at the Ranger 4-H Livestock Show and subsequently at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show. Both shows open March 12. Owners of the heifers tested were Jack Walker, Alameda, five head; Glenn Justice, Flatwood, one head; James Dean, Alameda, one head; and Buster Wheat, Morton Valley, one head.

Butterfat Tests Show Big Average

A butterfat test made on the milk from eight 4-H Club registered Jersey heifers during February by Assistant County Agent Hugh F. Barnhart, reveals the animals are producing a high percentage of butterfat. The following report of the test was submitted by Barnhart Friday. Cecil Caudle 5.0% Glenn Justice 5.9% L. R. Higginbotham 5.5% Elbert Bennett 5.1% James Dean 6.9% Jack Walker 6.8% W. L. Connell 6.7% Edward Gideon 5.0% Each of the boys are keeping a daily milk weight record by weighing the milk daily. A report on the total number of pounds of milk produced during the month is turned in to the Assistant Agent at the end of each month and from the butterfat test for the month the amount of butterfat is figured. A record is kept of the feed cost and a profit or loss sheet is made on each heifer at the end of each month. Some of the heifers have produced as high as 35 pounds of milk a day. Jack Walker's heifer produced 48 pounds of butterfat last month.

Dress Rehearsal Of Senior Play Held Thursday

On Thursday evening dress rehearsal for "Girl Shy," the annual senior play to be presented at the Recreation building on Monday evening, March 1st, at eight o'clock, convinced the director, Mrs. Annie Belle Neill, that this play will be a credit to the new stage furnishings and to the spirit of the senior class. Every senior acted his role with naturalness and enthusiasm. There were no lagging parts, no awkward transitions, no long waits for changing of costumes. The climax in act 3, when all characters appeared dressed for the masquerade ball, came effectively in a blaze of color and a round of merriment. The twelve seniors in the cast of "Girl Shy" have worked enthusiastically, until each person is living his part. Thomas Thompson as Oke Stinson will keep the audience laughing during much of the two hour performance. His clowning is a natural gift and he tosses it off airily. Jimmie Ralston, as Tom Arsdale, is rather intentionally girly shy, though before the end of the play he has been won over by the attractiveness of Bobbie Lee Toliver, as Bobs Sanford.

Department Store Sales Were Above Jan., 1936 Totals

AUSTIN.—Sales measured in dollars in Texas department stores declined during January somewhat more than the average seasonal amount from the preceding month, but were substantially above those of the corresponding month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Reports from a representative group of stores show an increase in sales of 11.9 per cent over January last year, but a decline of 5.3 per cent from December. The average seasonal decline from December to January is 61.8 per cent. Cities with an increase in sales during January greater than that for the state are: Abilene, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Houston and Fort Arthur.

Mrs. M. E. Holcomb Funeral Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. M. E. Holcomb, 85, aunt of Mrs. W. F. Davenport of Eastland, who died at 11 o'clock Thursday night at her home in Cisco, will be conducted at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at the First Christian church in Cisco. Dr. J. W. Tyndall, pastor of the church, will officiate. Burial is set in Cisco cemetery. Mrs. Holcomb, a resident of Cisco for over 60 years, is the widow of Colonel O. C. Holcomb, who died over 30 years ago. Survivors include three children, Mrs. J. J. Maloy of Stephenville, Cowan Holcomb of Cisco and Jim Holcomb of Stephenville.

Boys' 4-H Club Is Formed at Gorman

Eastland county Friday had its twelfth boys' 4-H club. Interest for a club at Gorman was determined Thursday afternoon when Assistant County Agent Hugh F. Barnhart discussed "What 4-H Club Work Is and What Is Expected of a Boy When He Becomes a 4-H Club Member" at the high school. Following Barnhart's talk, Martin Sneed, president of Ranger 4-H Club, told the group "What 4-H Club Work Has Meant to Me." At a second meeting, to be set in early March, officers will be elected and plans for the year's work mapped. Those youths living in Gorman and near that city who did not attend the first meeting have been invited by Barnhart to be at the next session.

Piano Players Are No Longer Sissies

FORT WORTH.—The boy who plays the piano is no longer a "sissy." The "sissy" idea is out—definitely says Prof. Claude A. Sammis, head of the music department at Texas Christian University. "A general public snicker and a boyish grinning of teeth—accompanied by a hearty shove from grand mamas—all too often characterized the masculine species in the musical world of a few years ago," Prof. Sammis comments. "Today, the cultural atmosphere of music no longer marks a boy as a 'sissy,' but distinguishes him in the public eye." Why do boys choose music as a field for study? Well, they are musically inclined to start with, and, as one boy puts it: "There are so many good fields into which one may enter after graduation—radio, teaching, theater, public school music, or forming one's own band." "And we can't keep up with the demand for qualified men and women," Prof. Sammis adds. "Every music graduate during the past five years has found a position awaiting him, or her."

Degrees Conferred By Ranger I.O.O.F.

The I. O. O. F. of Ranger with the assistance of Breckenridge, Gorman and Cisco, conferred the first degree on two candidates last night at the lodge rooms on Elm street. Joe Calder, district deputy, in charge of the meeting, said this morning invitations had been sent to neighboring lodges in the district and a number had signified their intention of attending, but at the last moment the bad weather made it impossible for Stamford, Fort Worth and several other lodges to come. The meeting was made very attractive by the splendid meal served before opening of the lodge and which was attended by some 75 or 80 members and friends of the organization. Mmes. Stiles, Calico and Robinson, with the assistance of Mrs. Brimberry and other members of the Rebekah's served the meal.

League Can't End War, but Still Is Valuable

The League of Nations has not exactly been covering itself with glory in the last few years. Having been defied by its enemies and deserted by its friends, it has withdrawn to a quiet corner of the stage and is, seemingly, waiting only for the undertaker to come and provide a decent burial.

But it hasn't been buried yet, and it is still as busy as it ever was in those quiet, unobtrusive activities which never do get the headlines.

A recent bulletin from the League of Nations Association in New York summarizes some of the things which the league is now doing.

It is preparing to summon an international conference on the sugar trade, by which the industry may be stabilized and decent security assured to planters and workers in far-distant parts of the globe.

It is continuing to help the Chinese in their reconstruction program. League experts are busy advising the Chinese on such matters as health, finance, agriculture, hydraulics, and flood control.

The league also is enabling Chinese engineers and other specialists to study abroad and get contacts and information which will enable them to serve their country better.

The league's health organization, meanwhile, has been getting international standards set for such things as anti-pneumonia serum, staphylococcus antitoxin, and so on. Governments and commercial laboratories throughout the world, as a result, are enabled to give their people better protection against disease.

Standing alone, this catalog of activities is impressive. It is only when contrasted with the great war-prevention work that the league was designed to do that it looks small. Because the league has failed miserably in the larger sphere, the solid and substantial work it has done in the lesser one escapes our notice.

And yet, with this kind of work being done quietly, honestly, and fully, we cannot say that the league has failed. For if it is doing nothing else, it is at least giving us a constant object lesson in the value of international co-operation and mutual help.

The dictators and the war-mongers may rant and strut and rattle their sabers; all the while, these self-effacing league workers are doing their part to make men happier and life richer—doing it with a serene disregard for international boundaries, hatreds, or suspicions.

May the power of that example have its effect on us, before the world slips into the orgy of collective throat-cutting which seems to lie ahead of it.

Chaperones For Movie Dates Once Considered Proper

FORT WORTH—Turn back the calendar to the Texas Christian

University which sent a bevy of chaperones with an afternoon picture show party, and called for the smelling salts the first time a co-ed asked to go to an out-of-town football game.

Building of Floats Is Their Business

By United Press
 SAN ANTONIO — Emilie and Marmel Robin are not particularly daring, nor do they know anything of the trapeze business, but they "float" through life with an ease that is astounding.

Citizens of France and residents of San Antonio, the Robins' business is floats. They build them.

After studying art in France the Robins deserted their homeland for America—and some practical experience in costume and display designing. Their line turned to the building of parade floats.

The Frenchmen designed Casa Manana and Cavalcade at Fort Worth and Dallas respectively for the Texas Centennial Expositions in 1936. This year they are designing Fiesta de San Jacinto at San Antonio.

close of the present school year, and the contemplation of that retirement caused her to grow reminiscent recently.

In the old days, she recalls, dates were few and far between, literary societies were the only campus organizations, and an automobile ride with a boy was absolutely taboo for a co-ed.

Freshman girls weren't allowed dates at all, and the girls in their second and third year were carefully limited in their number of dates allowed. Senior girls who had maintained a good record for three years were permitted to go out with the boys twice a week—even three times if there were an extra-special occasion!

"But there was more trouble with girls ruled by an iron hand in those days than there is now with no arbitrary regulations," Dean Beckam reports.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS AND TEXANS

WILL H. MAYES, AUSTIN, TEXAS

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. Will you tell something of the old Nassau (Fayette county) farm?

A. It was a league of land near the present Round Top postoffice, bought in 1843 by Count Boos-Waldeck, who, with Prince Leiningen, both of Germany, came to Texas representing the Mainz Verein, in locating German colonists. Count Boos-Waldeck built a large two-story log house there, with adjacent cabins and barns, making it the show place of the section. Boos-Waldeck was a cousin of Queen Victoria. Many prominent Americans and titled Europeans were lavishly entertained at Nassau with races and feasts, the place being always open to distinguished guests.

Q. What finally became of the Nassau plantation?

A. The German Verein, for which society Count Waldeck bought and improved it, was unable to pay for it, and it was sold to Otto von Roeder in 1848, von Roeder having come to Texas in 1834. From von Roeder it passed into the hands of William von Rosenberg and other German families by purchase.

Q. What further Texas enterprise did Count Boos-Waldeck promote after leaving Nassau?

A. He bought and improved a large estate in Brasoria county, building a large brick residence, laying out a park and ornamenting it with costly statuary, erecting a church, constructing a large water reservoir, and putting up the first sugar refinery in Texas.

Q. What acreage in East Texas is guarded by the Texas Forest Service and what amount was burned over last year.

A. The Forest Service covers 10,620,014 acres in 29 East Texas counties, in the commercial timber belt. In 1936, 7,827 fires burned over 217,992 acres, or about two per cent. The loss in 1935 was lighter, with 62,201 acres burned, or nine-tenths of one per cent of the 6,731,300 acres then under Forest Service Protection.

Muriel Gray and Helen Hagar had well equipped sewing boxes with material for pajamas. Mary Louise May and Connie Bee Lovell had well equipped sewing boxes. After the sewing boxes were examined as to size and equipment, Cornelia Faye Stewart, assistant county home demonstration agent, carried the girls to Mildred Skaggs' home and gave a hot-bed demonstration. After the hot-bed was filled with fertilizer, Miss Stewart showed us how to plant the tomato seeds in rows 1 to 2 inches apart, dropping 4 to 5 seeds to the inch and covering with 1-4 inch dirt. Mildred will allow her hotbed to heat for a day or two before planting her tomatoes.

The officers of the club are as follows: President, Jeanette Daniels; vice president, Inez Maxwell; secretary, Muriel Gray; reporter, Helen Hagar; song leader, Nina Carmack; garden demonstrator, Mildred Skaggs; wardrobe demonstrator, Connie Bee Lovell.

The following club members were present: Nina Carmack, Muriel Gray, Helen Hagar, Connie Bee Lovell, Mary Louise May, Inez Maxwell, Ruth Peel and Mildred Skaggs.

DAPHNE BRETT, good-looking, successful young New York advertising executive, decides to rent the beautiful Connecticut estate her father left her when he was killed in a hunting accident. She needs the money after the death of her father, and the education of her younger sister, JENNIFER, who has just finished college.

Daphne spends a day house-sitting at the estate preparatory to showing it. She is almost sure to find a tenant in an undesirable family when an attractive young man she has never seen before hops over the garden wall, asks for a bit of lunch, and later comes to her rescue, offering to rent it himself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

DAPHNE BRETT saw twelve hundred dollars float out her window and was relieved. Not but what she would feel very differently when the Snyders departed and she was once more faced with the inescapable truth that she needed it badly.

For the time, she permitted herself the luxury of that relief and was glad the shadows of late afternoon filled the drawing-room when she introduced "Mr. Van Dusen"—the name had been the first to spring to her mind—to the Snyders. He might not have appeared in a brighter light so perfectly turned out in the riding clothes he wore with careless grace.

"A hundred and fifty a month!" Mrs. Snyder fluffed the lace of her jabot. "Well, I'm sure I don't blame you, Miss Brett."

Daphne's unexpected visitor, looking up from his tea-cup, glanced at Daphne and addressed himself with surprise-tinged tones. "Look here, how stupid of me! You're the people who wanted the place before I saw it?"

"Oh, no," Daphne said quickly. "That was . . . someone else who wanted to buy. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder wanted to rent for a year but I . . . I told them I had promised to give you time to make up your mind."

"There was no mistaking the appeal in her face, or the meaning of her words. The dark eyes and the bright blue eyes traveled at the same moment to the youngest Snyder and her fruitless effort to prevent a dab of sandwich filling from slipping down her pinafore with awful certainty to the handsome brocade of the sofa."

"Blue eyes addressed himself to Mrs. Snyder with the charm of a diplomatic attaché. "If I were not so selfish, I should make the now-impossible gesture of turning the place over to a lady who would lend it greater grace."

MRS. SNYDER adjusted her lace and her smile. "Did you hear that, Henry?" she asked her husband and returned to more flattering attention. "Tell me," she said, "are you by any chance related to the South Orange Van Dusens?"

Looking exceedingly regretful, he said that he wasn't. "We're Virginians," he said. "This is my first introduction to Connecticut and I mean to make the most of it."

"I'm sure you will," she said graciously. "Come along, Henry, we've got to be getting back. Anyway, we've enjoyed the visit, Miss Brett, and I'm pleased to have met

"Tomorrow," Daphne said coldly. "I am not entertaining. I'm a working girl. I shall be back in New York at my job." The information slipped out.

you, Mr. Van Dusen. Shall I tell the South Orange . . . that is, my friends, who you are?"

"By all means," he replied with a quick and dazzling smile. "I'm Derek Van Dusen."

Daphne walked to the road where the Snyders had left their car, saw them off with a mutual exchange of goodbyes and hoped that Prunella was, by now, in the drawing-room where the combination of her mother's finest silver and the presence of an unknown young man did not make for a feeling of security.

A man who would ask for a handout at the back door, turn up in strange circumstances four hours later and slip with such suspicious ease into the role of offered him of an impostor, had all the earmarks of being a dangerous character. Why was he hanging around her house all day? He didn't look like a tramp certainly with his fine clothes and manners but after all, the depression had turned up strange types. Daphne hastened her footsteps.

He was, she was relieved to see, sitting in Tom Brett's chair turning the pages of a magazine when she entered.

"Well," he said, looking up at her brightly and rising, "shall we estimate the damage?"

"There has been some, hasn't there?" she answered ruefully, and noted, surreptitiously, that all the silver seemed to be on the tray.

It hurt her eyes to see the spreading grease spot on the gold brocade, the jagged scratch on the satin surface of the mahogany table. The crumbs didn't matter nor the broken glass.

Her slender finger traced a zigzag on the table and found a companion in the finger that marked her gesture.

"It will be easy to fix that," he said and for the first time a feeling of gratitude stirred Daphne.

"I oughtn't to ask you questions," she said when they both sat down. "I ought to say 'thank you.'"

"Forget it," he said. "Mind if I smoke?"

DAPHNE shook her head and watched the practiced way in which he filled the bowl, tamped down the tobacco and applied the match. No fumbling gestures. She liked that.

He drew on the pipe for a moment and then "Shoot."

"Shoot?" Daphne had forgotten what she was going to say.

"Questions," he answered briefly. "Let's have them. Or shall I start?"

Daphne was startled and annoyed. Why should he question her?

"Did you want to rent to those people?"

"No, I did not!"

"Just as I surmised," he said. "But I don't understand . . ."

He paid no attention. "However, you should have, shouldn't you?"

Daphne wished cold tea around in her cup before answering. "No, not really," she said and was elaborately casual. No need to tell this stranger her business.

"Good! I feel better about it now." He didn't believe her but Daphne couldn't have guessed that. Or that he knew that a frag-gile girl like herself did not indulge in the kind of work she had been doing when he had mistaken her for a maid, unless she was pretty hard up. Nor did the gesture of serving tea—the Snyders escape him.

"You did a very fine job of helping me," she said and wondered how she could invite him to go.

"Oh, the Van Dusens—the Virginia Van Dusens, not the South Orange Van Dusens, mind you—go about constantly, rescuing ladies in distress with the greatest of ease."

"Yes, I noticed that," she said. "I mean the ease. What else do you do when you just 'go about'?"

"Contemplate the cosmos," he said pleasantly.

"That's approximately what I thought," she said pleasantly. "Tell me what else you thought," he encouraged.

"Were the scrambled eggs to the taste of the Van Dusens?" she asked pointedly.

"Excellent," he said graciously. "Plentiful and fresh but, my dear girl, no Worcestershire seasoning!"

"An oversight," Daphne said with a fine edge of sarcasm. "The next time you come to lunch, do let us know beforehand."

"I will," he promised. "What about tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow," Daphne said coldly. "I am not entertaining. I'm a working girl. I shall be back in New York at my job." She stopped thinking and said sternly:

"Much as the country and the open road appeal to me, it's a luxury I can't afford."

"I can't either," he said and sighed.

Daphne's suspicions were immediately confirmed in her mind. "I see," she said, conveying nothing.

"I, too, have a job in the city but I shall forget its confinement when I return to this peaceful haven," he said.

Daphne sat up very straight. Oh, why had she told him that she was not to be here?

"That's our arrangement, isn't it?" he inquired easily.

"At a hundred and fifty a month?" Her words had a smart sting.

"Certainly. I said I agreed to your terms. I'd like to take it over at once for occupancy until October first."

It rather took Daphne's breath away. It had possibilities of also taking away her problem. Against her better judgment, she threw discretion to the winds.

"Would you," she asked leaning forward so he saw the hope in her dark eyes, "would you really like to rent Brett Hall?"

"I thought it was all settled," he answered calmly.

"Then . . . then it is?"

"You'll want references, of course."

"Of course," she said, wishing she had thought of it first.

"Unfortunately they'll prove that my name isn't Van Dusen. It isn't even Derek. It's Smith," he said, looking at her reproachfully.

"How could you have missed it?"

Daphne permitted herself a smile. "It was too obvious, which you are not," she said.

She needs the money after the death of her father, and the education of her younger sister, JENNIFER, who has just finished college.

Daphne is showing the estate to some rather unwelcome prospective renters when, unannounced, an attractive young man steps into the picture offering to take the place. Liking his appearance, Daphne accepts, learns he is a "Mr. Smith" and able to pay $150 a month rental.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

"I'm not quite sure that you mean it as a compliment that I'm not obnoxious," Larry—Lawrence Hunter—Smith said.

"I did," Daphne assured him gravely and then remembered that he hadn't seen the house. "I think you ought to get acquainted with your future home before it gets too dark to see what you're getting into. Come along."

"If the rest of the rooms are like this one, I shall be happy enough," he said contentedly while his eyes traveled slowly and appreciatively around the gracious room, noting the elegance of fine woods and fabrics, the proportions and design—all eloquent of the taste of the comfort-loving person who had made them.

"They're not all like this. The rooms are as different as our family was," Daphne said as they crossed the wide hall and she opened a door.

They stopped before the portrait which hung above the hearth in the shabby room that had been Tom Brett's study. Studying the portrait of the golden-haired Margot with her two babies—one a small yellow-haired cherub, the other a grave-eyed child of six—he saw that they were indeed all "different."

The portrait interested him. Some day when he lived here, he would study those faces, reading the things he saw in the lovely and unlike lineaments. For they were all sensitive faces, the kind that can hide nothing of the natures back of them.

"This was Father's study and it is more like him than his photograph," Daphne was saying with warm affection in her voice. Larry Smith looked away from the eyes that were suddenly dim and then suddenly bright. He saw that the old-fashioned desk was closed, that dust had gathered on the fishing tackle, the guns, the sporting prints, and he understood.

"I'm going to like it here," he said.

"I hope so," she answered and led the way to the staircase. "We'll go upstairs now." She talked as they ascended.

"There are four large bedrooms and two baths. There's also the nursery and the playroom and a sewing-room which I expect you will not need. On the first floor, in addition to the rooms you've seen, there's also a smaller dining room, the library which was Mother's favorite room."

LARRY was beginning to understand why Daphne Brett—lovely name, he thought—had been anxious to rent the house. The orphan girls were hard up.

"—then, there are little rooms sort of tucked around here and there which you will discover."

STATE GETS BAD MONEY

ST. PAUL—Minnesota's Secretary of State has "taken a beating" when it comes to counterfeiters and forgers of checks.

DESDEMONA

Desdemona Masonic lodge held its annual George Washington birthday celebration at the new Masonic hall Monday night. Gifford Acres, W. M., presided. He was assisted by the secretary, A. D. Baker. There were 45 guests and 15 members present, some being friends of the Masons. Among the guests were members of the following lodges: Strawn, Ranger, Brokenridge, Lorenzo, Glenrose, Gorman and Stephenville. The welcome address was given by Rev. H. N. Baldersee, pastor of the Baptist church, after which the main speaker of the evening, Rev. H. B. Johnson, pastor of the First Christian church of Ranger, made an address. Others who made short talks were C. E. May of Ranger, W. A. McFarland of Brokenridge, district deputy grand master; Mr. Pendarvis of Gorman, Mr. Dogson of Stephenville, Mr. Goforth of Strawn, and Rev. O. D. McDonald, pastor of the Methodist church, and W. C. Bedford, a charter member of the lodge and a past worshipful master. Music was furnished by Elmer Abernathy, Homer Abernathy and Mr. Clayton. Refreshments of chili, crackers, sandwiches, pies and coffee were served.

A number of men have come here recently from Caddo to work on the gasoline plant formerly known as the Mid-Kansas, which is being dismantled and the pipe lines are being removed.

N. D. Gallagher of Cleo was here Friday afternoon. He was returning from Hamilton county, where he had been looking after the well being drilled for the Seaboard Company by himself and his partner, O. G. Lawson.

Mr. C. A. Shipping and Mrs.

Bailey Stark drove to Gorman on business Wednesday.

Mrs. Guy Patterson and children, of Eastland, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom J. Nabers, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Nabers had just moved into their new home, formerly the T. J. Henry residence.

A meeting of the Eastern Star chapter was held Thursday at the Masonic hall for the purpose of studying the work in order to keep up the number of certificate members to the number enrolled last year and to increase that number if possible. The school of instruction for this district will be held at Baird in about six weeks so the members are getting ready to take the examinations at that time. A covered dish luncheon was served at noon.

Mrs. John Gosman of Ahilene was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Roe, from Saturday until Monday afternoon. Mrs. Roe, who has been seriously ill for the past month, is improving and was able to sit up a few hours during her daughter's visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mendeshall and their daughter, Mrs. Mattie Henry, formerly of Desdemona but now of Eastland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Stover on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Anderson of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McMillan of Hornleigh visited their brother, Wiley Powers, and family, a few days last week when they came to attend the funeral of Mrs. Jim Sparks.

Mr. adn Mrs. Orville Truesdale and Melvin Truesdale attended the theatre at DeLeon Friday night.

W. F. MacDermott of Fort Worth was here on Tuesday of last week looking after his gasoline and oil business.

Mr. and Mrs. Style McEntire and little son, James Edward, returned Friday from Brownwood, where they had been all the week at a hospital on account of Mr. McEntire's injuries received when working with a casing crew at Odessa. He will likely have to remain in bed for quite a while before he recovers. They are at the home of Mrs. J. E. Derrick, mother of Mrs. McEntire.

She went back to Tom's study and settled down in his worn old chair the way she had when she was a long-legged, big-eyed child.

Daphne finished.

"I've been looking into some of them," he said calmly.

Daphne turned her face to him with a puzzled frown. "I meant to ask you that. Do you mind telling me if you are a mind reader or, otherwise, exactly how did you happen to come to my rescue?"

How did you know how I felt?"

For a second time she saw the quick and dazzling smile that illuminated his features, too irregular to be handsome.

"So you won't give an ordinary fellow a chance to borrow a little glamour?"

Daphne shook her head.

"I'll tell you then," he said. "I'll tell you the whole story. I'm spending a few days with a chap who has a camp back here near Cornwall. This morning I came out for a cross-country ramble, saw your house, was utterly charmed by it. Reluctant to leave until I had seen all of it and, having a hearty appetite, I . . ."

"I know," Daphne said and her voice was her apology.

"Since I wasn't invited to see it, I prowled. I happened to observe the arrival of your . . . guests . . . who did not, to my way of thinking, add to the picture. Fortunately, I happened also to be studying the framework of your drawing-room window where your reluctance was quite plain to be seen."

"And where you heard me mention my imagined prospect?"

"And heard you mention him," he admitted.

ing" when it comes to counterfeiters and forgers of checks. Since 1931, Mike Holm has received and had credited to his personal loss column $611 in bad checks and $549 in counterfeit money.

with taste and, undoubtedly, beauty, since he had married her. Or would he be the kind of a man who would marry a girl if she were not beautiful? Daphne felt like a fool for giving it a moment's thought.

If there were little Smiths, she need not worry about them. They'd be nicely disciplined and their father would see that her things were well protected. He had the same kind of love for beautiful things she herself had, she knew. Yes, Larry Smith belonged. She knew that he would find in Brett Hall the same things that she and Tom Brett had loved—loved every minute of the changing beauty that came with each new season. He would be, she felt, the kind of man who would wonder, as she and Tom had wondered, with awe at the miracle of each new spring and autumn.

WHEN he had gone, Daphne saw that she had more than an hour until it was time for her to dress for her return to the city. She went back to Tom's study and curled up in his worn leather chair with her knees under her chin the way she had when she was a long-legged, big-eyed child. The ghost of the little girl in a pinafore with a slipping red ribbon on her black curls sat there.

Sat there now, seeing her yesterdays and longing for tomorrows that were postponed.

It was only that they were postponed, Daphne promised herself.

There would be other summers to enjoy the hollyhocks, the warm sweet raspberries that grew along the garden walls. There would be other autumns, golden, red and fragrant with the scents of wet pine and burning leaves and good things baking in the oven of the wood stove. There would be other winters when the rolling hills, covered with a blanket of snow, would mirror the stars that brought the heavens closer to earth. And with them, peace.

Daphne shook off the thought impatiently. She didn't want peace. That was what old people wanted. She wanted only a slower tempo to her life. She was mentally short of breath at this speed at which her life was paced. But she wasn't ready for the old ladies' home at 24 simply because she was bored with night clubs and occasionally found the proportions of her small apartment confining.

What did she want? She asked the ceiling above her and knew the answer while she refused to admit it. Fun? She had that. She had beaux, parties, dates. A success? Wasn't she molding that successfully at that very moment and loving it? Money? She would like to have more because she needed it for Jennifer.

Daphne jumped to her feet. No good sitting here thinking of Jennifer. Lately a disquieting thought had intruded on her when she thought of the little sister she had mothered.

Prunella had wound the grandfather's clock. It struck seven.

Daphne hurried her dressing. A thought had occurred to her; she'd wear Tuck the hour of her arrival. Perhaps it was Tuck she needed.

"Daphne Ainsley," she said experimentally. "Mrs. Tucker Ainsley." Then, quite surprisingly, "Smith!"

Sonja Henie, Queen of the Silvery Skates, Introduces New Dance Beauty in Film Debut, "One in a Million"

SONJA HENIE'S DANCE ON ICE NEW ART FORM

OLYMPIC FIGURE-SKATING QUEEN TELLS THE WHY AND WHEREFORE

"Ice skating is not alone a sport—it is an art, too. I try to put some of the beauty of the dance into my skating. You see, at first I wanted to be a ballet dancer, and I studied ballet dancing until I was twenty years old."

Radiant Sonja Henie, holder of three world's skating honors—more than she can remember, whose first career triumph, the twentieth century Fox spectacular musical smash, "One in a Million," opens today at the Arcadia theatre, revealed as she confided the secret of her grace on the ice.

Sonja does twinkle when she talks, which non-Scandinavian friend Mrs. Henie explains easily—Sonja's grandmother was Irish. Impulsive, with expressive face and accompanying gestures of the hands, Sonja recalled how, just like any other beginner, she spent most of her first days on the ice in a sitting position.

Not long afterwards, following in the flying skate-steps of her father, the second fastest speed skater in Europe, Sonja began to win honors on the ice and her first award came when she was only nine years old. At eleven she was the Norwegian figure-skating champion.

Figure skating to Sonja being really ballet on ice, Sonja studied with the famous Russian Ballet, and a brilliant performance of dancing on ice in London resulted in a command performance for the King and Queen. Command performances for most of the monarchs of Europe followed, for by that time Sonja was twice Olympic figure-skating champion.

Fort, five feet two inches tall, weighing one hundred and ten pounds, blonde and attractive, Sonja was widely sought as a film actress, and her highest ambition, a breath-taking winter ballet on ice, is a spectacular highlight in her first picture, "One in a Million."

Adolphe Menjou, Jean Hersholt, Ned Sparks, Don Ameche, the Fitz Brothers, Arline Judge, Borrah Minevitch and his gang, Dixie Dunbar, Leah Ray and Shirley Deane are featured with Sonja in

GARBO FUSSY ABOUT "CAMILLE" DANCING PARTNERS—SAYS "IT'S ROBERT TAYLOR OR NO ONE"

Garbo has revealed she is very particular about her dancing partners.

She had an appointment with Val Rasat, dance director at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, to begin rehearsals for a waltz she dances with Robert Taylor in "Camille," coming Sunday to the Arcadia theatre.

On time, she appeared for the first rehearsal and found a male dancing partner awaiting her. Garbo looked around the rehearsal hall, and then refused to dance.

"Where is Mr. Taylor?" she asked.

Taylor, off for the day, was packing his luggage for a Labor Day week-end at Lake Arrowhead.

"I dance with Mr. Taylor in the scenes and I will dance with nobody but him," said Garbo.

Taylor was located. Garbo waited and half an hour later when Taylor reached the studio, Garbo danced . . . with nobody else but Taylor.

Dancing is but one of several surprising talents revealed by the famed Swedish star in her new characterization or the "Lady of the Camellias." For she also sings for the first time in her career on the screen, and also plays the piano.

"Camille," based on the celebrated novel and play by Alexandre Dumas, was directed by George Cukor of "Romeo and Juliet" and "David Copperfield" fame.

All-State Semi-Pro Nine to Be Picked

DALLAS, Texas—A new feature of semi-pro baseball in Texas this year will be the selection of an All-State team, A. H. Kirksey, of Waco, Texas commissioner of semi-pro baseball has announced.

The team, composed of 16 players, will be picked at the state semi-pro tournament to be held in Waco in July. These players will be eligible for the All-American team which will tour Hawaii. The players selected on the All-State team will be awarded certificates from Honus Wagner, high commissioner of semi-pro baseball.

Mount Pleasant won the Texas semi-pro title last year. The team competed in the national finals at Wichita, Kansas, where it won game and lost two.

LOUDSPEAKER CALLS FAITHFUL TO WORSHIP

SINGAPORE—The muezzin of the Masjid Sultan Mosque here now calls the faithful to prayer by loudspeaker. Instead of standing on the topmost minaret to chant his call, he now stands before a microphone, and his voice is amplified to such an extent that it can be heard more than a mile away.

Peers Are Given Wider Seats For King's Coronation

LONDON—Peers are peesesses rate 19 inches of space each in Westminster Abbey seats for the coronation of King George VI—an inch more than lesser individuals.

The extra inch is to allow for the noble's flowing robes, it was explained by officials in charge who added, "We can't allow another fraction of an inch to anybody but there should be no discomfort in the seating."

Tailors and dressmakers expressed doubt.

"Many women have 20-inch hips," one said. "The men will get by easier—their width is in the shoulders. And fat persons refuse to be packed in like sardines."

Spectators must sit silently for about eight hours during the coronation ceremonies and events leading up to it.

COUNTRY NEEDS DOCTORS

SYDNEY, Australia—New South Wales is probably the only highly "civilized" country in the world where there is an actual

ARCADIA FRIDAY SATURDAY

Port Glances. By Grayson

WITH all the harsh noise from New Orleans and Baton Rouge about phony names, run-outs, and fakes, it is obvious that Jack Torrance requires a professional builder-upper. Mike Jacobs, who has more than a rooting interest in Torrance, could page Prof. Billy McCarney right away.

The old professor would steer the hurler of the 16-pound shot to thin putting distance of the more important money in no time at all, and with a modicum of squawks, raised eyebrows, and oblique ances.

It seems strange that Jacobs didn't think of Professor McCarney as the first place, instead of sending Herb Brodie, the former light-eight, down south to get the Big Bay Window of the Bayous in all that trouble.

Taking a golden heavyweight prospect on the road and bringing in back unharmed while making steady progress is a real art and one that no other manipulator of manhandling ever mastered quite so well as Professor McCarney. The professor is as subtle as Brodie as been apparent.

Professor McCarney was making bulky biceps seem what they were not long before he bumped into the real thing in the lamented other McCarty, who was lifted from a Calgary ring to die on the threshold of the championship.

THE better minds of the manly art of mangling mugs recognize Professor McCarney's peculiar talent. Jack Kearns had the professor line up the animated bugs whose jutting jaws Jack Dempsey used as doors of opportunity. Jimmy Bronson promptly engaged the professor when he started to pave the way for Bob Martin, the J.E.F. champion.

Tex Rickard sent for the professor when he wanted something out of the ordinary made of Luis Angel Firpo, and again when Jess Willard launched his comeback. Max Schmeling wasted plenty of time around New York until he stumbled into the able hands of the professor and his then partner, Joe Jacobs.

Had not Professor McCarney been tied up with Schmeling, Bill Duffy no doubt would have hired him when Prime Beef Carnera first was unloaded on a lower Manhattan wharf.

Carnera's representatives on the Great American Sucker Tour of 930 equalled Professor McCarney's best record for digging up assorted chivvysacks, but they fell down badly where the professor stands out. They were as ruthless as the professor is gentle.

PROFESSOR McCarney is a genius at keeping young heavyweights out of danger. The professor is a firm believer in the rule that styles beat fighters. He either knows his proteges' opponents or gives them a thorough appraisal before accepting them. Jobbers and weavers and those too fast footed are out. He forages or sizable loquags who stand up straight where they can be belted and who move none too rapidly.

Professor McCarney is not only a satisfactory booking agent, but the dexterity of sock salesman. The professor can do more with a broken-down and fierce-looking wrestler in fighting trunks than any man alive. If a show is a bit below par, he already has the trade talked into letting it down easy.

Brodie can't be criticized for taking Torrance along carefully. It was the clumsy way he went about it that got him in the jam.

All fighters, especially heavyweights, require cagy guidance, at the outset. The object at first is to give them confidence. Then there is the task of establishing a reputation.

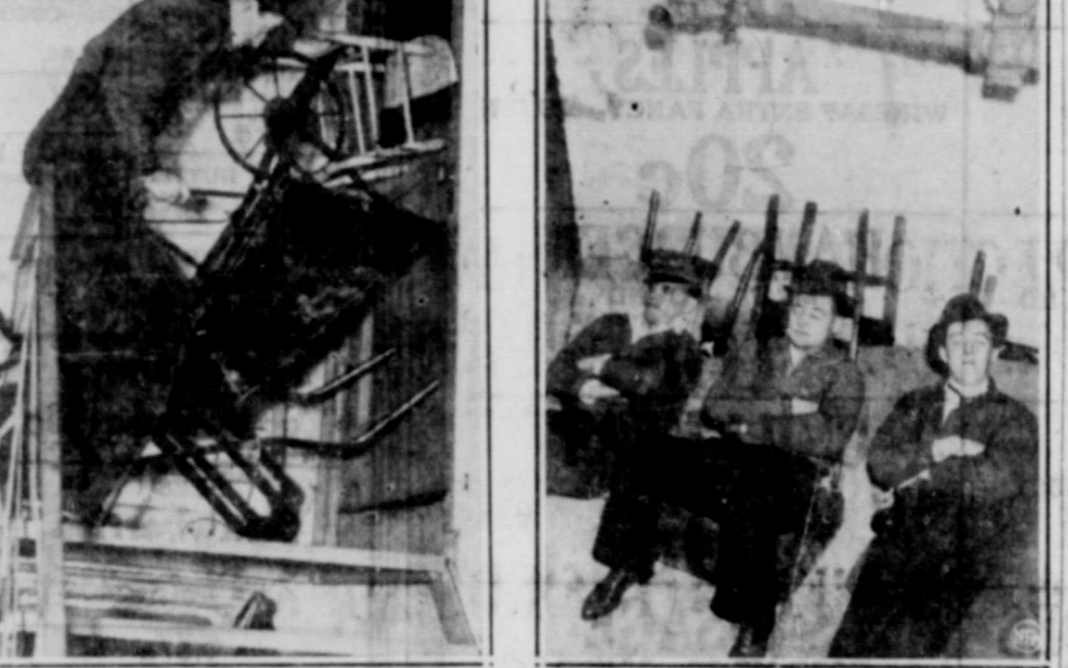

The trick is to leave the customers satisfied—and keep a jump ahead of the sheriff.

A "SLEEP-IN" STRIKE--BEHIND BARRICADE

"And no one else is going to get in to do the work!" is the determination expressed by the Bronx building service employees (at left) who barricaded the basement door to keep out possible strikebreakers after the regular staff staged a sit-down strike. But he and fellow workers stay on the job every minute—even when sleeping (right)—to give the lie to rumors that they settled differences with owners of the 112-foot building. Their action was forerunner of a series of building tieups in New York.

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The so-called era of good feeling which was popularly supposed to have set in after the election has been blown to what-for want of an uninvited better word—might be called smitherens.

Papa Roosevelt, according to all his pals, writing for the weekly magazines, was going to be conciliatory toward the conservative business element. But he has turned a backward somersault by plopping his message, proposing to revamp the supreme court and the rest of the federal judiciary, right down at the feet of those who thought he was anxious to kiss and make up.

One of the first examples of the renewed bitterness observed here came when Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas, foremost southern liberal in Congress, made a speech to the exclusive Harvard Club here the day after the presidential message. Maverick, who sat next to Frederick Delano, Roosevelt's uncle, took the topic: "College Men and Their Lack of Education." The happenings of the occasion have not been previously reported.

MAVERICK, himself a lawyer, said he had been in Washington two years and about all he had heard about liberty had been said by high-priced lawyers in application to liberty for corporations. He had heard practically nothing, he said, on behalf of civil liberties for individual citizens.

Maverick said he was still waiting to hear some graduate group speak up for academic liberty or freedom of speech, that lawyers had expanded in influence only as corporations had grown in size. Some lawyers, he declared, still thought their profession was very powerful, but the last presidential election had proved their power didn't amount to so much. Furthermore, said Maverick, the supreme court wasn't sacred.

Then the chairman, a Harvard law school graduate who practices locally, arose, livid with rage. Inasmuch as Maverick had criticized university men and suggested they were prejudiced, the chairman said, the usual period for questions to and answers from the speaker would be omitted.

MAVERICK stood up and said he didn't care what the club did, but if he were going to be treated with discourtesy, he wanted everyone to understand that he knew it.

The meeting then became a tumult and the cry, "We want Maverick," was overwhelming. Maverick made speeches, others made speeches pro and con. The secretary of the club apologized. Delano and others got the chairman in a corner and made him apologize, too.

Inaugurated for his second term, Roosevelt had his choice of repeating the oath word by word after Chief Justice Hughes, or of simply saying, "I do." He chose the former.

Otherwise, he whispered later to a close friend, he might have had to feel he was making a promise to follow the oath as it was conceived in the mind of Hughes—whereas if he spoke the words himself, he would know exactly what he himself meant.

Peggy Gracia Is Indicted by Grand Jury For Bigamy

By United Press
NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Peggy Gracia was indicted today by the county grand jury on bigamy charges and instead of a stage career she sought from a breach of promise suit she brought against David Rubinoff, the blond hat check girl, now faces a possible long term in jail.

Michael La Rocca, the man she married six months ago, was indicted on the same charge, although he protested Mrs. Cathleen La Rocca was only his "common law wife," even if she did bear his three children.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

VEGETABLES respond to friendship. An onion seems to offer for the society of a squash, and even a turnip perks up when invited to join a baked casserole.

Casserole of Vegetables
(4 to 6 servings)

Six medium onions, 6 small turnips, 1 light summer (Florida) squash, 1 1/2 cup bread cubes, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon grated allan cheese, seasoning.

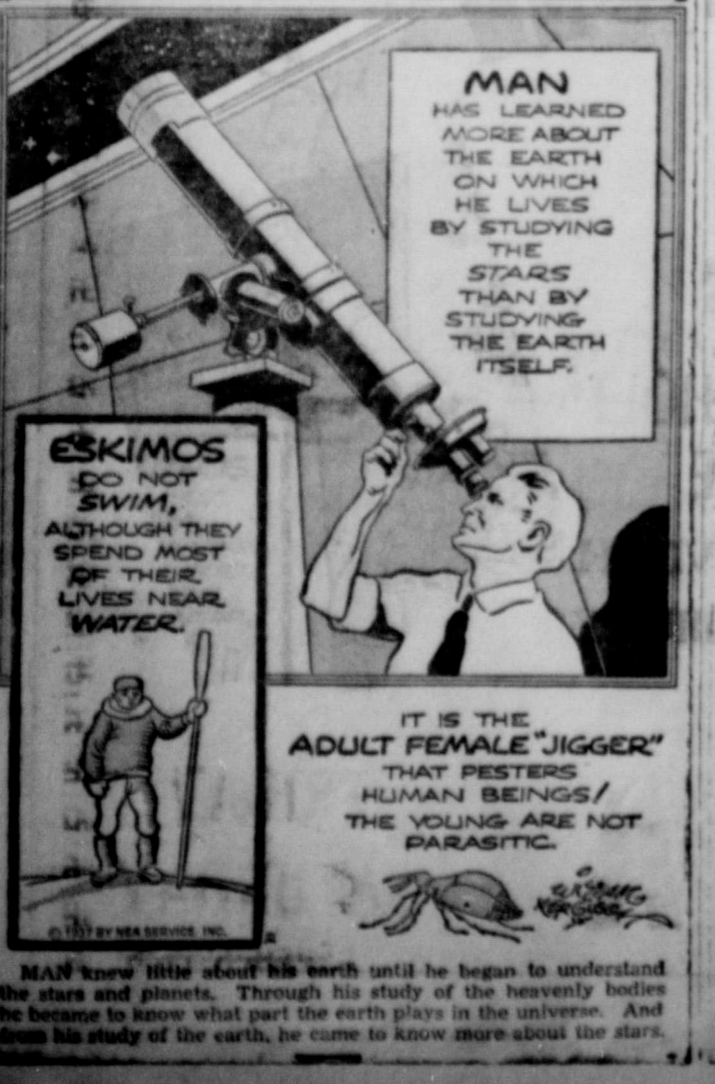

Clean, pare squash, removing seeds. Pare turnips and peels. Cut vegetables into edge-shaped pieces. Beat egg lightly, mix with bread cubes and stir in seasoning and melted butter. Butter baking dish. Fill with prepared vegetables, season with salt, pepper and dust with sugar. Cover with bread dressing moistened with meatless stock. Just top of bread dressing with grated cheese. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 2 hours. That makes an adequate main course for a meatless dinner.

The trouble with most vegetable platters is not their lack of vegetables but their lack of character. Don't regard a vegetable platter as a substitute for something else. Look at it as a very definite something in itself. Use fresh cooked, brightly vegetables and keep a weather eye out for rich color and alluring flavor. Try this combination and see how you like it: Blanched and steamed broccoli heads with golden Hollandaise sauce, an opened and buttered baked potato, 3 grilled fresh mushrooms, brightly brown, exciting in flavor, a few lightly cooked carrots, cut in strips. That is a lively dish, diverting in its range of appetizing color—from the white of the meaty potato, through the golden tones of Hollandaise, the orange of carrot, the Van Dyke brown of grilled mushrooms right up to the bright green of broccoli.

Scalloped Tomatoes With Peppers and Onions
(4 to 6 servings)

One can tomatoes, 1 green pepper, 1 onion, 1 1/4 cup bread crumbs, 1-4 cup melted butter. Drain tomatoes and chop pepper and onion. Combine melted butter with bread crumbs. Butter a round baking dish. Place half the buttered crumbs in bottom. Mix pepper, onion, drained tomatoes and seasoning. Add extra tomato liquid if needed. Place in baking dish over crumbs. Cover with remaining buttered crumbs. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) until crumbly. A luncheon or broil-chop.

Violin Recital Brilliant Social Note of Week's Happenings:

With the first number "Hunter's Chorus," Von Webber, opening the brilliant recital presented by the violin students of Margaret Hart Blanchard at the First Baptist church last evening at 8 o'clock the audience made up of friends who enjoy fine music were more than assured of an unusual program introducing Ranger and Eastland musicians.

The instructor Margaret Blanchard is having her praises sung by those who heard the program, both for her artistic ability as a decorator and also for a splendid musician and director.

The platform transformed into a scene of rare beauty was massed in a profusion of spring blossoms and greenery.

Assisting in the rendition of this musical were members of the Harmony club and Clara Juno Kimble, nimble fingered pianist, also of Eastland.

The hour brought the following program beautifully offered.

- 1. "Hunter's Chorus," Von Webber
- 2. "Dance a l' Antiquo," Fischel, "Pizzicato Gavotte," Pache, Drago Violin Choir.
- 3. "A Visit to Poland," Wecker, Lee Greer.

Bakery Strikers "Lie Down" on Job

Two girls closed their eyes for six hours of sleep while a third "lucked them in" at the Farmcrest Baking Co. plant in Detroit, where 400 men and women went on a variation of the sitdown strike, demanding more pay and shorter hours. On these cots, furnished by the U. A. W., men and women, in separate "dormitories," went on six-hour sleeping shifts.

NYA Aided 7,412 Youths at College

AUSTIN—While the National Youth Administration in Texas has helped 7,412 students to go to college this year through part-time employment, more than three and one-half times that number of students asked for jobs, Lyndon B. Johnson, Texas state director, reported to Aubrey Williams, the National executive director.

Each time two students were given jobs, Mr. Johnson said, five applications had to be rejected, since the funds allocated for part-time employment of college students in Texas provided average wages of $15 a month for 6,502 students. Some institutions, seeking to spread employment further, reduced the rate of pay per student, this fact accounting for the difference between the number of students actually employed and the quota of jobs approved.

A total of 26,555 students in Texas applied for part-time NYA jobs at 87 colleges and universities. Aid was denied to 19,143 of them, while 7,412 were given part-time employment.

The Texas ratio of applications to jobs greatly exceeds that of the nation as a whole, Mr. Williams revealed. The national ratio was 2.17 to 1.

Mr. Williams said that a summary of information received from more than four-fifths of the colleges and universities of the nation offering NYA work assistance to students revealed that applications had been made by 215,334 young men and women for 98,995 jobs, leaving 116,339 who could not be provided for.

"We cannot be certain what happened to those who had to be turned down," Mr. Williams said, "but it goes without saying that many of them either had to forego college entirely or resort to the most dire economics in order to attend."

"Experience has shown us that relatively few young people ask for student aid unless they actually need it. Those who are accepted are almost always the sons and daughters of low-income families for whom a college education would otherwise be impossible."

Mr. Williams pointed out recently that the NYA is extending help to approximately 10 per cent of the Nation's college population this year at an average monthly cost of about $1,869,000. Figures released showed that 119,583 undergraduates and 5,235 graduate students, a total of 124,818, were enrolled under the student aid program in 1,686 colleges and universities throughout the country. These totals reflect an increase of 15,817 students and 84 institutions over similar totals for a comparable period of 1935.

Black-Draught High In Quality Without Being High In Price Black-Draught is "easy to pay for" because it is so economically packed and so reliable.

But as to quality, there's nothing "cheap" about it. For instance, its principal active ingredient is the leaves of a certain species of plant that are brought 10,000 miles from where they grow to the factory where the medicine is made. These leaves from far, far away, help to give Black-Draught its well-known "laxative reliability." They could not be left out, or substituted, without real loss of good medicinal quality.

For a good, purely vegetable laxative, insist on Black-Draught. About 25 doses in each 25-cent package.
