NEGOTIATIONS IN CANADA'S STRIKE FAIL

By United Press
TORONTO, Apr. 10.—Negotiations toward settlement of the General Motors strike at Oshawa, have been broken off for the time being, Premier Mitchell announced today.

The government troops attacked from three sides, seeking to encircle the hill. Clouds of thick smoke arose as the artillery fired into the rebel trenches from three points.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The United Automobile Workers of America organizer, General Motors refused to consider demands of the UAW for the union be recognized as sole bargaining agency for sales of the Canadian plant.

Drys to Hold Mass Meeting Tonight At Ranger Church

Tonight at 8 o'clock a community-wide meeting will be held in the Methodist Church, at that time Jeff Davis, noted Texas dry leader and speaker, will be the principal speaker. Rev. H. H. Stephens, pastor of the Central Baptist church, will preside.

The announcement of the meeting reads as follows:

"Many people seem to think that the prohibition and local option movement is dead. But as long as the Bible, the text-book of the Christian faith says 'thou shalt not' good government is going to use the same expression.

"When men like Jeff Davis speak for good citizenship men sit up and take notice. They are interested, entertained and usually they are convinced that the best and safest forms of society lie in the moderate use of all things helpful and the total prohibition of all things hurtful.

"Hear Mr. Davis tonight and decide for yourself where the truth is found. An election is coming on and voters want to cast their franchise for the best interest of the county."

JEWELER AIDS RANGER CHIEF HERE FRIDAY

Quick action on the part of Ken Umberson, Ranger jeweler, and good police work on the part of Chief of Police Jim Ingram of Ranger Friday afternoon, solved an Oklahoma City jewelry store robbery on which the detectives in that city had been working all week without finding a clue leading toward its solution.

At noon Friday a man entered the Umberson jewelry store and offered for sale a platinum setting for a ring, with 27 small diamonds mounted in the setting. Feeling that the ring mounting was stolen when it was offered for sale for $5, Umberson made a counter offer of $3, which was accepted. He looked the man over carefully, and when he heard someone tell him that his bus was waiting, he notified Chief of Police Jim Ingram.

The police chief rushed to the jewelry store, but the westbound bus had left. He telephoned the chief of police in Abilene and gave him a description of the man. When the bus arrived in Abilene the man was not aboard, but the bus driver remembered a man answering that description getting off at Baird. The Abilene chief started toward Baird and met the man between Baird and Abilene, placed him under arrest and notified Ranger officers.

FLAY MERONEY MISSING FROM HOME A WEEK

Flay Meroney, brother of J. E. Meroney of Ranger and former salesman for the C. J. Moore Auto Mart in Ranger, has been missing from his home in Corpus Christi for a week, it was revealed today in a telephone conversation between J. E. Meroney and the district superintendent of the Pittsburgh Valve and Pump Co., for which he worked.

According to information obtained Saturday Meroney had left his boarding house in Corpus Christi Saturday to go for a company check for $187.50, but at the place where he tried to cash it there was not enough money on hand. The proprietor endorsed the check and sent Meroney to another company to get the cash. At that time there was a man with Meroney. He has not been seen or heard from since, though his car was found by police in Jackson, Miss., late this week.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Valve and Pump Company said Saturday that they believed he had met with foul play and all hospitals and Jackson areas were being checked, as were hospitals along the route.

Meroney was for several years employed by an oil company in South America and while there contracted a fever, which left him, subject at times to severe chills. It was hoped that he might have contracted one of these chills and entered a hospital somewhere.

The company official said that Meroney was one of their best salesmen, and that all of his accounts were in perfect order and he was afraid that he might have been hijacked and killed.

London Is Fighting Influx of Beggars For the Coronation

LONDON—Beggars are flocking to London from the four corners of the earth, hoping to reap a rich harvest during the Coronation celebrations, officials of the London Mendicity Society say.

"The Coronation is too good an opportunity to be missed," they said. "Most of the beggars are fakes, and the profits they make are unbelievable."

Regarding the fakes, it is reported that in certain London localities babies may be hired by Catholics at from 12 to 60 cents a day depending upon the condition of the infant. A hungry, ragged one is more expensive as it produces more pity—and coins.

Another unwelcome influx against which Scotland Yard already is taking precautions is that of pickpockets. Local characters are being jailed and ports are being watched to intercept those from abroad.

Gout Victims Are Showing Increase

ROCHESTER, Minn.—Gout has survived the depression in the opinion of Dr. P. S. Hench of the Mayo clinic.

"Cases of gout at the Mayo clinic have increased since the repeal of prohibition," Dr. Hench said "but excesses of alcohol and food cannot be considered the cause of this centuries-old malady."

"Contrary to common opinion, gout is not caused by too much food and liquor, but from excesses of alcohol and food there may result flareups in symptoms and gouty arthritis."

The common assumption that gout has disappeared is erroneous, the physician said. On the average, three or four new cases come to the Mayo clinic each week.

Dr. Hench said that X-rays are helpful in confirming the diagnosis of gout only fairly late in the disease and that in making a diagnosis early a "gout conscious" physician and a "gout work together closely.

RANGER MAN SHOT AND KILLED IN ABILENE FRIDAY IDENTIFIED IN ATTEMPTED BUTLER EXTORTION

Fred Mahan, until recently a resident of Ranger was shot and almost instantly killed in Abilene Friday night while he was allegedly attempting to burgle a house there. Saturday Chief of Police Jim Ingram stated that the youth had been arrested in Ranger on several occasions in connection with burglaries.

Patrolman Johnny Boyd and Ray Faircloth of Ranger, who were in Abilene to return a prisoner held there, started Saturday morning that they had gone to the hospital in Abilene Friday night and identified the man shortly before he died. He died while the two from Ranger were in the hospital at 10:30.

An account of the shooting which appeared in an Abilene paper Saturday morning, follows:

A bullet which Holland Hope, ministerial student at McMurray college, said he fired when a window peeper, fleeing from his home, disregarded his command to stop proved fatal last night to a man identified by police as Fred Mahan, alias Mahon, alias Mohan.

Identification was made by a photograph in the city police files. Hope and his wife identified the picture as that of the man at whom Hope said he fired. Police said their records showed the man had served two years in the state penitentiary from Palo Pinto county, for theft, and a jail sentence in Oklahoma City for witness tampering.

Womans' Crusade Holds Lesson for Pessimists

No one can look at the state of the world today without finding a great many reasons for dark pessimism. We seem to be so completely at the mercy of the massed forces of greed, stupidity, and might that no one person can do very much to improve things.

And yet there are persons in this world whose lives are a living proof that no entrenched evil is entirely secure against a devoted individual who dares to follow an ideal; and every so often we get a comfortable reminder of their existence.

A few days ago, for example, a large number of people sent messages to the town of Westport, Conn., congratulating Lillian Wald on her 70th birthday. Miss Wald, old and in retirement now, has done things which ought to bring hope to the most despondent.

It was back in 1893 that Miss Wald, graduate of a nurses' training school and a women's medical college, became appalled by the things poverty, congestion, and ignorance were doing to the slum dwellers of New York's lower east side, and decided to do something about it.

What she did was to establish the now famous Henry Street Settlement. She organized a visiting nurse service—the first one in existence anywhere—and made her settlement house, as a writer recently remarked, "the focus of a beneficent infection."

Down the years, ever since, the organization she founded and guided has done a human service whose value it is impossible to estimate. No one knows how many lives have been saved, how many thousands of discouraged slum dwellers have been given a chance at decent living, how many men and women have been saved from degradation and turned into good citizens, how much plain human happiness has been created out of nothing, because of this woman's work.

"Work" is the word for it, too. Miss Wald had no resources but her own determination. She had to argue and plead with politicians, to coax money out of people who add it—it was said at one time that it cost $5000 to sit next to her at a banquet, so energetic and persuasive was she in her quest for funds. She had to battle the worst of all the world's enemies of reform—public indifference—for long years after year.

But she did all these things, did them over and over again, and infused the spirit to go on, doing them into everyone who worked with her. And if New York has had a more completely useful citizen during the last 40-odd years, it is hard to think who it might be.

Now the point of it all is that this woman's life is a living rebuke to all pessimists. Single-handed, young, and unknown, she set out to tackle one of the greatest problems of modern life.

She didn't solve it, of course—who could have expected that? But she did make a life-sized dent in it. She did prove that it would yield to a determined attack. And she did prove, everlastingly, that we are not at the mercy of the powers of darkness unless we fold our hands and forget to fight.

Ranger Man—

(Continued from page 1) drow peeping. He had been picked up for investigation in Abilene. Hope appeared at police headquarters and made a statement. Officers said he would appear today before the county attorney, make a statement, and be released. No charges will be filed, they said.

Mahan was identified today as a Cisco laborer who was charged last August with attempted extortion of $3,000 from Samuel Butler, Eastland oil man, and brother of Gen. Smedley Butler.

Police said Mahan, an ex-convict from Palo Pinto county, was released under $1,000 bond last October.

Butler, president of the Arab Oil corporation, received a letter last August, demanding $3,000 for "protection" of his children, one a high school girl and the other a college student.

Obedient instructions, Butler tossed a satchel, supposedly containing the money, from a train leaving Cisco. Officers accompanied Butler, threw a lighted flare from the train, but the man waiting to seize the satchel escaped from other officers who were following the train in automobiles.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and Cisco officers arrested Mahan Aug. 17, and charged him with attempted extortion in the federal court at Abilene. Mahan previously had served a prison term for theft in Palo Pinto county.

Hope said he had found footprints in the flower beds at his residence, 1660 Avenue A, for the past three days. Last night he hid in the back yard and watched for the prowler, he declared. About 9 o'clock a man walked past him and continued to the house, he said.

Hope's account of the shooting continued thus: "I had never seen the prowler but had noticed his tracks in the flower beds under the north and west windows. About 9 o'clock tonight a man came up the alley and passed right by me. I waited until he stooped over and was peeping through the north window. I shouted, 'You're just the man I'm watching for.' He started running and I shouted 'stop.' He did not stop and I fired at him. I aimed at his legs. He was about 20 yards away when I fired."

When the man fell Hope called to his wife to call a doctor, but stopped her and told her to call the police, he related.

Hospital attendants said the bullet entered the man's left back, piercing the stomach and went through the left lung. He died at 10:30 p. m. in Vendrick Memorial hospital, an hour and 20 minutes after being wounded.

Hope's weapon was a .41 calibre pistol.

Jeweler Aids—

(Continued from page 1) to Abilene and returned the man to Ranger, where he said his name was Garland Eugene Rose of Drumright, Okla. Saturday morning, in the presence of Chief of Police Ingram, Patrolman Guy Pledger, City Secretary R. A. Jameson, Ray Faircloth and a representative of the Ranger Daily Times, he dictated and signed a statement in which he admitted that he and another man robbed the Terrace jewelry store in Oklahoma City.

The man had in his possession when arrested several trinkets he admitted were stolen in the jewelry store robbery, including a gold Dutch windmill, about half an inch high; a gold stagecoach about the same height; a watch chain with a pistol for a fob, which appeared to be worn; a small gold bear ring on a gold chain; a small gold pipe with a ring on it to fasten on a chain; a small gold shoe, about half an inch long, two mechanical pencils, a pocket knife, pocket comb and $4.17 in bills and change.

Chief Ingram notified the chief of detectives in Oklahoma City, who said that they had been working on the case without finding any solution. He said that he would send to Ranger for the man immediately.

Umberson stated Saturday morning that the ring mounting he bought was worth approximately $300.

The statement of Rose, dictated Saturday morning, was as follows: "My name is Garland Rose. I live in Drumright, Oklahoma. My age is 21 years. I have lived in Drumright all my life. I left Drumright March 29, 1937, and went to Oklahoma City, looking for work. I visited relatives.

"I met Lowell Williams. Monday night, April 5, 1937, we planned to do a job and get some money. While walking around the streets of Oklahoma City we came to Terrace Jewelry Store and decided to 'kick it in.'"

"I kicked the glass and we both reached in and grabbed and left. This was about 2:00 o'clock a. m. We then went to Lowell Williams' house and spent the rest of the night. Each of us kept what we got.

"Tuesday morning we went to town together. We planned to meet at the Green Lantern Wednesday night. I had been questioned by two men whom I took to be plain clothes men. Lowell did not show up. I left town Thursday at 1:00 o'clock p. m., and went to Dallas, Texas,

'Immortal Stone' Placed Into Open

The cornerstone of the old county courthouse from which Old Rip was removed several years ago was being set in foundation on the outside of the present building Saturday.

The cornerstone has been in the basement of the courthouse, often the target of tobacco chewers. Judge W. S. Adamson said the commissioners court decided to move the stone into the open in order that many may view it. He said many inquiries are received as to the original stone and the curious had formerly been directed to the basement to view the object. It is now located on the north central side of square.

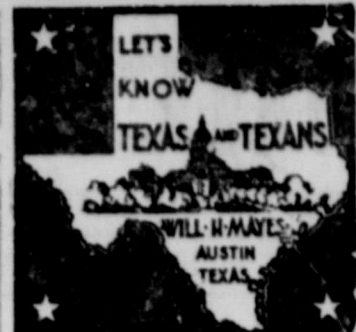

On the front of the cornerstone are the names of former officials. They are B. F. Chastain, county judge, and commissioners H. K. Martin, W. V. Garrett, C. E. Anderson, G. W. Graves. The name of John A. White is listed as contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Blowers of Denton, formerly of Eastland and Ranger, have announced the birth of a nine-pound daughter, Mrs. Blowers, the former Mary Cox, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed T. Cox Sr., of Eastland.

$120,000,000 Heiress a Bride

Getting the soup on for dinner will hold no terror for this beaming bride—Mrs. George Strawbridge, the former Margaret Winifred Dorrance, heiress to the $120,000,000 canned soup fortune of the late Dr. John Thompson Dorrance. She's seen driving away from the church at Radnor, Pa., with the happy bridegroom, son of a Philadelphia banker and noted as a gentleman jockey.

Dalhart Is Making A Comeback After Ten Lean Years

By United Press

DALHART, Texas—Dalhart is making a "comeback" from lean years that almost upset municipal financial balance, Mayor Frank Farwell said today.

Farwell said it was probable that the "white way" street lighting system will be restored in the business section and a long-sired asphalt street be laid in the Dalhart residential area. For years, the utility company has been providing free street lighting in residential areas.

Early in 1936, the city found itself delinquent in payments of $401,000 bonded indebtedness. Creditors refunded the principal, took $10,000 in interest part of which was paid at value and agreed to accept cents on the dollar for the maturing interest if all delinquencies would be pledged to payment.

Under this arrangement the city has cut its interest bill $8,250 and save an estimated $100,000 through refunding the bonds. This week, $12,000 was paid on bonds due in 1941, bringing the city a substantial amount.

Austin, Texas.

I enclose 25 cents in coin secured by post, for a copy of the "Centennial Book."

Text includes: "1937 Ford V-8 owners pay less for their cars, pay less to run them, and travel first class all the time! Basic reason is the V-8 engine. Eight cylinders give smoother performance. V-type construction is the most modern on land, sea, or in the air, and permits a much more compact power-plant. Space saved under the hood means more room in the body, and more comfort. This year's V-8 engine is offered in two sizes, 85 horsepower for top-notch performance. 60 horsepower for rock-bottom economy. The latter, available in five body types, makes possible the lowest Ford prices in years and the greatest gasoline mileage in Ford history. To this choice of V-8 engine sizes, add the other Ford first-class features—Center-Poise Ride, Easy-Action Safety Brakes, all-steel body, advanced design—and you'll realize why the Ford V-8 is the quality car in the low-price field. Advertisement for "THIS CURIOUS WORLD" by William Ferguson. Features an illustration of a tulip and a skunk. Text includes: "IT TOOK HOLLAND FIFTY YEARS TO RECOVER COMPLETELY FROM 'THE GREAT TULIP MANIA,' OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY, DURING WHICH SPECULATORS PAID AS HIGH AS $2,500 FOR A SINGLE TULIP BULB. THE SKUNK PRODUCES THE 'FOULEST ODOR' OF ANY KNOWN ANIMAL! OTHERS OF THE WEASEL TRIBE, TO WHICH THE SKUNK BELONGS, GIVE OFF LESS CONCENTRATED ODORS. THE PREHISTORIC 'WINGED LIZARD' HAD A KITE-SHAPED SKIN AT THE END OF ITS LONG TAIL, WHICH ACTED AS A RUDDER. ABOUT 300 years ago, Amsterdam became the center of a wild orgy of trading in tulip bulbs. Tulips changed hands at fabulous prices, people spent all their savings for fancy bulbs and shares in tulip companies. But in the last two centuries, the tulip has made up to the Netherlands all that it cost them when the crash came."

TRAILER ADVENTURE

By Nard Jones

© 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARtha HUPPAIN and BETTY HAYNES pick up GERRY BRAD, handsome young, kitchen boy, on their way to the west coast in Sacramento the new Alameda coach. At the Coast Beach camp, where Neal was to meet a friend, the JACK SPEDDON, Neal disappears from the trailer and Speddon admits Betty. After repeated pleas to Ned, Betty, Martha meets Neal again. He goes to San Francisco with her to search for Betty but protests against calling in the police. He tells her, this might mean Betty's death. Martha, greatly worried, sends herself down to look for Neal, but she cannot know whether to trust him.

Finally, Neal returns from San Francisco. Neal tells Martha he loves her, but she knows that this man under the circumstances who he means involved in Betty's disappearance. So she plays her own game, returns his love, and at the right moment awakes into a biting scold, calls police, and has Neal arrested. He submits to arrest without refusing Martha's offer.

Martha heads on north in search of Betty and at the state boundary she learns that Speddon has been charged out of the state by officials, but there was no woman with him!

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI

NEVER would Martha Brittain be able to remember clearly the night and day following her discovery that Speddon had gone north without Betty Haynes—the night and day which took her from the California border to Portland, that busy metropolis of northern Oregon.

Afterward she knew that if it hadn't been for the shock of the news at the border she wouldn't have gone on north at all. Cool and sober judgment would have made her stay on, since the traffic officer seemed so certain that Betty had not proceeded with Speddon into the north. But oftentimes Providence steps in to take a hand, to make mortals relinquish their cool and sober judgments. Betty was to believe that this must have been the case during those bleak 48 hours after she left the California border, those hours when she seemed to have driven on blindly, without consciousness and without reason.

But she would never forget the moment which brought her into grim reality—a moment of surprise that struck her like a dash of icy water. It was a slim white sign-post which she slowed down to read, her mind struggling from its fog. At first the word connoted nothing, and then she took in its meaning. Even then she could not believe it, was inclined to think it the roadside trick of some itinerant wag. She stopped at a roadside stand a little farther on and asked the freckled little shopkeeper how far it was to Portland.

"About 14 miles, lady. Just keep on goin' the way you are."

Then she knew that the sign had been right. She had driven—somehow—more than 200 miles across a western state, and yet she remembered no more than a handful of scattered moments from it! While the freckled urchin gaped curiously, Martha sat silently in the coupe trying to remember, trying to collect her shattered bearings.

The words of the California state patrol officer drifted back to her. "I looked in the record book and found Speddon's name and his license number. He was okayed through—and nobody was with him."

NOBODY was with him. That was what had paralyzed her reason. It had struck her suddenly that Betty was dead—and then, mercifully, all reason had grown dim. She had functioned like an automaton. Martha remembered stories of soldiers in the Great War, of how when death was all about them, and their eyes were seeing frightful carnage, they went on without knowing or caring—as though God in His wisdom were protecting them in that awful hour from something which might drive them into an insanity worse than death.

But now as she sat there, slowly reclaiming her grip upon reality, she saw that the officer's words might really be the first ray of light that had pierced since the moment she knew Betty was not going to return to the trailer. Perhaps Betty had escaped, or Speddon had led her on before crossing the border. In that happy event, her first move would be to get in touch with Martha.

With a start Martha realized that, according to Sloss' itinerary, she should have made several stops before reaching Portland. But now the best she could do was to go on to Portland and wait for Betty's message there.

Consulting Sloss' itinerary, Martha read, "Rose City Trailer Haven, Portland, Oregon." Sliding the book back into the pocket of the coupe, she shoved into gear and was off for Portland.

She had no sooner registered at the Rose City Trailer Haven than the alert woman proprietor said, "I think I got a letter for you. It's addressed in pencil and kind of smudged—but I think it says 'Martha Brittain'."

"Let me see it!"

The woman fumbled among the disarray of a dusty desk. "Here it is. Is that your name on there? It's terrible writing."

"Yes," Martha cried ecstatically,

"it's mine." For she recognized the writing, as scrawled and hurried as it was, as Betty's. And the postmark was Eureka!

Opening the envelope, she drew out a piece of cheap notepaper which had obviously been tightly crumpled before being folded and inserted. The penciled scrawl was dim and smeared—but there were characteristic letter formations. Martha was certain that this message, at last, was from Betty Haynes herself.

"It's—I can hardly make it out. Can I have a little more light, please?"

Reluctantly the woman turned another switch, while Martha smoothed the paper flat upon the table. Time after time she tried to follow the thought of the few penciled lines after the more clearly legible "Dear Martha—"

But the best she could make of it was this:

Dear Martha—

... no danger right now but Speddon just carrying ...

... Ciznik in Seattle ...

Try as she might, Martha could make out no more than those words. Betty's was usually a fine hand, and Martha knew that only great hurry or terrible fright could make her mail a letter such as this. And the pencil and cheap paper were unlike Betty's.

Swiftly Martha took up the paper and stuffed it into the pocket of her jacket. "If there's a message for me here, please hold it. I'm unhooking the car from the trailer and going to the police with this!"

In less than three-quarters of an hour she had again told her story to the law. But this time she had a genuine clue, a piece of evidence. The attitude of Joe Marshall of the Portland bureau was much different than that of Sloss at Los Angeles and the dubious desk sergeant at Eureka. But then Detective Marshall had before him this piece of paper which seemed to interest him strangely.

"I think what she's saying here," he told Martha, "is that she's in no immediate danger, but that Speddon is carrying her along for safety."

"For safety?"

Marshall nodded. "Afraid she'd talk if she got away. That's bad. And what makes it twice as bad is that Speddon was headed to see a guy named Ciznik in Seattle. Johnny Ciznik. He looked at Martha oddly a moment without speaking. Then: 'If she wrote this from Eureka, and didn't come across the border with Speddon, I got a hunch she's been murdered!'"

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Perhaps it is impossible for anyone to be entirely unprejudiced as to sit-down strikes and the defiance by workers of a court order demanding their withdrawal from the Chrysler automobile plants in Detroit.

Yet it is possible to be violently prejudiced on either side, and it may be that the best way of reaching a reasonably detached attitude is to read side by side the extreme views, in opposition to each other, of those who have shown themselves most steamed up over the issue.

Anyone who wants to study the issue from all angles might do worse than to begin by looking at: 1. Telegraphic protest to the Senate by President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, and other Boston citizens. 2. Letter by chairmen of the Chrysler sit-down strikers to Governor Murphy.

"ARMED insurrection of law, order and duly elected authority is spreading like wildfire," says the Lowell group. "It is rapidly growing beyond control. What determined action by the governor of Michigan several weeks ago, or a few words of counsel by the President, would have ended summarily, now challenges the supremacy of government itself."

"No question of the right of labor to liberal wage and healthful working conditions is involved. This is universally conceded. The issue is far more vital. It dwells any other issue now agitating the public mind; it attacks and undermines the very foundation of our political and social structure. If minority groups can seize premises illegally, hold them indefinitely, refuse admittance to owners or managers, resist by violence and bloodshed all attempts to dislodge them, intimidate properly constituted authority to the point of impotence, then freedom and liberty are at an end, government becomes a mockery succeeded by anarchy, mob rule and ruthless dictatorship."

NOW listen to the Chrysler strikers, as they expressed themselves prior to the agreement for evacuating the plants:

"Our employers have refused to recognize the principles of collective bargaining, so we have resorted to the only weapon we have to make them abide by the law."

"We have suffered for years in these plants of the Chrysler Corporation. We haven't been paid wages enough to support our families in decency and health."

"We have seen each year an increase in the speed of the line. And still the foremen and the gang leaders stand over us and demand more and more production."

"Last summer hundreds of us fell like flies on the job because the heat and speed of work were more than we could stand. And it wasn't until we threatened to strike that the management slowed down the line."

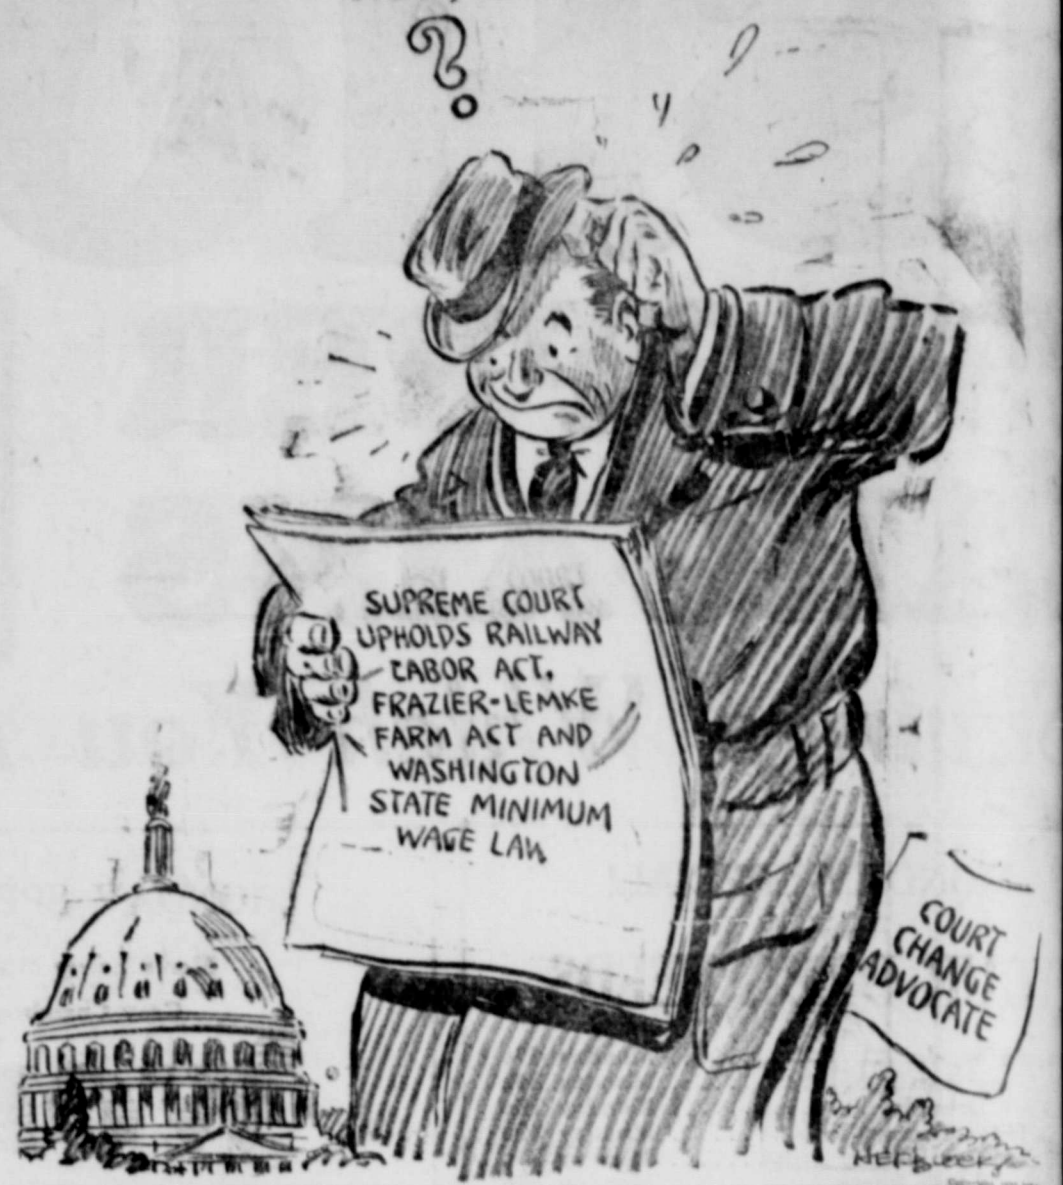

"Last fall thousands of us were discharged in violation of our seniority standing. We had to threaten to strike then to get rehired."

"While we were exercising our right to organize, we were opposed by one of the most vicious and unspeakable spy systems ever established in industry. The Chrysler Corporation retained an agency that hired criminals and ex-convicts to do their filthy work. This is a matter of public record. We were subject to intimidation by foremen and petty bosses. Our members were fired for no other reason than that they had joined the union. These things that they did to us were lawless."

"Then when we had built our union, in spite of these obstacles, the Chrysler Corporation refused to recognize us. And this refusal was a lawless act."

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Next?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, April 11.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he" (Jeremiah 31:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. But is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel" (II

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man's individual being can no more die nor disappear in unconsciousness than can Soul, for both are immortal. If man believes in death now, he must disbelieve in it when learning that there is no reality in death, since the truth of being is deathless" (page 427).
