Work Starts On Ranger Post Office Building

BUILDING TO BE COMPLETED BY JANUARY 5

Local Labor and Materials To Be Used As Far As Possible Contractor Says

The Bonded Construction corporation of New York City, successful bidders on the construction of the new Ranger postoffice building began work Wednesday morning with George Teck, representative of the company, getting the preliminary work started.

Excavation work was started Wednesday after levels had been run and stakes driven. Stanley Legge will be superintendent of the actual construction.

Teck stated today that all local labor would be used in construction of the building as far as possible, and that all materials would be purchased locally.

The contract calls for construction of the building to be completed in 210 calendar days after June 9, the date the work order was issued. Teck stated today, which would mean that the building should be completed on Jan. 5, 1938, if the contract is fulfilled.

Bids on the building were opened at Washington on April 6, with 21 firms participating. The contract was let to the Bonded Construction corporation on May 13 and the work order issued on June 9th.

After levels had been run and the building staked out this morning, a tractor and plow began the breaking of ground for the excavation. The excavation work will require but a few days, after which the actual construction of the building will be started.

WATER MAIN FROM LAKE TO BE CLEANED

Work has been started on cleaning out barnacles from the eight-inch water main from Lake Hazman to the city water tower on Eastland hill, it was announced today by Ed Eubanks, city secretary.

The work was made necessary by the formation of barnacles in the pipe, which had reduced its inside diameter to approximately four inches, and causing a decided decrease in the amount of water that can be pumped through the main.

The barnacles also offered an increased resistance to the flow of water, which increased the amount of the monthly power bill, it was pointed out.

The entire 12,000 feet of the main will be cleaned, the work requiring about 20 to 25 days, according to estimates made by an engineer who made a survey of the water line and of its operation.

A "go-devil," a whirling steel brush, operated by water pressure, is to be inserted in the line. The line will be cut at regular distances, estimated at between 1,000 and 1,500 feet, and the barnacles and slush flushed out. The pipe will then be joined and the go-devil run through another section of the pipe. The first two 500 feet in length to determine how much scale will have to be removed, the apparatus works under the prevailing conditions.

It was pointed out today that much of the bad taste that has been noted in the city water during summer months will likely be eliminated, as the water going through the barnacle-encrusted main picks up the taste and odor, regardless of how much treatment the water is given after being pumped from the lake.

The work is expected to cut down power bills materially, as now as much pressure will be required to pump the water through the eight-inch main after it is cleaned as is now required to pump it through the clogged pipe.

No Reconciliation for Sugar Queen

When a wife returns home, there usually is an affectionate reconciliation with Friend Husband, but this was not the case when Mrs. Adolph B. Spreckels, Jr., wife of the San Francisco sugar fortune heir, as shown above, arrived in this city after a Hawaiian vacation. En route to New York, she refused to discuss a possible reunion with her husband, now in Arizona. The couple separated in April.

NATIONALISTS ARE HEMMING IN LOYALISTS

BILBAO, June 16.—The nationalist forces began hemming in Bilbao from both north and south today, in an effort to trap the Basque defendants.

On the north the nationalists threatened the rear of Bilbao. The duel operations seemed likely to develop into a nut-cracker move in which the Basque forces would be trapped between the sea and the mountains.

Indications that the loyalists intended to use dynamite in the final stand at Bilbao, were seen in many villages. It was reported Bilbao was being mined.

During the assault thousands of loyalists fled northward.

BERLIN, June 16.—Germany and Italy have decided to return to the international non-intervention agreement on Spain and to active participation in naval patrol service.

LA PALICE, France, June 16.—A French destroyer vessel and a British destroyer trained their guns on the Spanish loyalist destroyer Clear today because of a mutiny in the crew.

$17,850,000 OIL SUIT WILL BE BACK IN COURT

AUSTIN, June 16.—Texas' anti-trust law, once suspended by NRA regulations, was declared still effective today by the state supreme court.

As a result a $17,850,000 penalty suit, filed by Gov. Allred when he was attorney general, against 15 major oil companies and two petroleum associations, was remanded to the 98th district court here for trial.

Allred had charged that the defendants violated the anti-trust law as participants in a petroleum marketing code, approved by the federal trade commission.

The supreme court said "some of the rules on their faces, are strongly suggestive of a violation of the anti-trust statutes."

Particularly cited were rules prohibiting installation and loaning of filling station equipment free of charge, agreement as to what charges should be made for certain units of installation, the lease and license plan of filling station operation and the rules against donations.

The oil concerns may ask a rehearing in the supreme court.

NON-STRIKERS ASK COMPANY FOR JOBS BACK

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 16.—A delegation claiming to represent 9,000 non-striking Youngstown Sheet and Tube company employees, asked the company today to reopen its closed plant at once.

The company was expected to consult law enforcement officials before deciding the date of reopening, which would cause a show-down in the strike that began three weeks ago and has made 80,000 workers idle.

Other major developments as the seven-states strike moved toward a finish fight on the question of CIO contracts, were:

1.—Chairman Tom Girdler of Republic declines to meet tomorrow with Gov. Martin Davey of Ohio. Davey had called him to meet for a "supreme effort" at settlement.

2.—American Federation of Labor and CIO unions at Canton, Ohio, joined hands in preparation for a threatened general strike in event a citizens law and order league helps break picket lines at four Republic plants in Canton.

3.—At Johnstown, Pa., Mayor Daniel Shields appealed to President Roosevelt to intervene in the strike at Bethlehem's big Cambria plant, and CIO leaders offered to "settle the entire controversy" by a national labor relations board election.

4.—Acting Postmaster General W. W. Howes informed the House postoffice committee in Washington "that normal mail service" had been maintained to steel plants except for "a few instances where the mails were delayed."

The first signs of violence today came when a bomb was hurled inside a plant at Johnstown and exploded on company property. Later a shower of light bolts rained down on pickets from men inside the plant.

At Washington, John L. Lewis, chairman of the CIO, prepared to make his first visit to the steel strike area.

BEER, WINE SALE LEGAL AS BEFORE

Contestees Except After Court Ruling; Plan to Appeal the Case.

The May 1 county-wide election to outlaw sale of all liquors was held null and void Wednesday by Judge R. H. Atchison, Breckenridge, who presided in 91st district court in the case contesting the vote.

In Judge Atchison's judgment, he also declared null and void the commissioners' court order of May 27 which declared the result of the election.

The status of Eastland county will remain as it was prior to the election, Judge Atchison ruled. Prior to the election malt and vinous beverages up to 14 per cent alcoholic content had been sold, as they were legalized April 18 last year.

Commissioners' court, the members of which were among the contestees in the case, gave notice it would appeal to the Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals after accepting the court's ruling. The contestees have 20 days to file their appeal.

The court in its order holding null and void the election, did not give its reasons upon which its ruling was based. Beer retailers and wholesalers, who filed the suit, had alleged notices in the election were improperly posted, and challenged the validity of the ballot, asserting an election to outlaw what was legal prior to the May 1 voting should have specifically covered that issue—beverages up to 14 per cent alcoholic content—and not for and against prohibition of all liquors as worded upon the ballot.

The case, styled G. Connally et al vs. W. S. Adamson, county judge, et al, had its beginning when the contestants' attorney, Milton Lawrence, was granted a temporary injunction which May 6 prevented canvass of the vote and declaration of the result.

May 27, 91st district court sustained contestees' motion for dissolution of the injunction forbidding the vote canvass, holding it was without jurisdiction.

Judge George L. Davenport, regular jurist for the court, disqualified himself before the hearing of the case upon its merits, giving his reason because of a first-cousin relationship to County Commissioner Henry Davenport.

Earl Conner, Jr., criminal district attorney, was counsel for the contestees.

Contestants in the case included G. Connally, Ernest Halkias, Nick Nicklas, J. T. Harness, W. B. Anderson, Jim George, Nick Yotis, Roy McNamara, J. J. Litchfield. They reside in Cisco, Ranger and Eastland.

Death of Connery Blow to the Hour and Wage Measure

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The sudden death of Chairman William Connery of the house labor committee, threatened today to delay action on the administration's wage and hour bill.

A staunch supporter of legislation, sponsored by organized labor, Connery had been active during the hearings on the wage and hour measure in questioning opponents of the bill.

His death, yesterday, at the age of 48, removed from congress a major proponent of hour restricting legislation, which he believed would return thousands of jobs to private employment.

Coroner McGruder McDonald said an autopsy showed the final cause of Connery's death was a heart attack, brought on by poisoning of the stomach and intestinal tracts. He said the poisoning appeared to have been caused by food, but that further analysis was necessary.

Hearings May Reveal Facts of 'Prosperity'

There is room for much difference of opinion—room enough to park a couple of Zeppelins—about the wisdom or otherwise of the pending administration bill to set minimum wage and maximum-hour standards in American industry.

But one thing is quite certain. The hearings which go with the bill will be about as useful a course in elementary education as the American people could well ask for.

Before Congress can decide on this bill, it must go into the whole question of what our fabled American standard of living looks like to the wage-earner in the lower brackets. If, as the President has said, a third of our population is "ill-nourished, ill-clad and ill-housed," we ought to know about it. Then—whether the administration bill passes or is defeated—we shall at least know just where we stand.

In 1929, according to the Brookings Institution, nearly 6,000,000 American families—better than one family in every five—had incomes below $1000 a year. Some 12,000,000 American families had incomes below $1500 a year.

A Washington correspondent recently took these figures to Dr. Isador Lubin, U. S. commissioner of labor statistics, and asked him just what incomes of that size mean. How does a family get by in modern America on less than $1500 a year?

The average family in that income group, said Dr. Lubin, spends about a third of its income on food. That means around $8 a week for a family of four. If that sum has to be shaded very much, the family cannot afford enough green vegetables, fresh fruit and milk.

That same family will be able to spend about $4 a month, per person, for clothing. The head of the family must make a suit of clothes last two or three years. Once in four or five years he can buy an overcoat. His wife must wear dresses that sell at $5 or thereabouts.

Then there is housing. The family will spend about $20 a month on rent—a flat, half a double house, or a four or five-room frame house. Fuel, light, etc., will take $15 a month. In many cases there will be no running water. Steam heat will be a rarity. Electric refrigerators will be almost unheard-of.

These expenditures eat up most of the income. For the under-$10,000-a-year family they eat up all of it, and then some. The luckier family, up near the $1500 mark will have a little money left—for medical care, house furnishings, recreation, education and savings.

Now this is not a picture of complete destitution—but it is a picture of bleak poverty which ill-accords with our boasted American standard of living. If these Washington hearings, by adding to the details of this picture, force us to realize that even prosperous American could very well do with a much greater measure of prosperity than it has ever had before, they will be doing us a great service.

Co-Ed Wife

BY EUGENIA MACKERNAN
 CAST OF CHARACTERS
 CORAL, Randall, heroine and senior at Elton College.
 DAVID ALBRIGHT, Elton chemistry professor and Coral's husband.
 DONNA ALLEN, Coral's sorority roommate.
 HOYT MARQUIS, Coral's outside fiance.

Yesterday Hoyt comes to Elton, dates Donna while Coral is busy, and to Coral's keen surprise visits the Chemistry building with Donna.

CHAPTER VII
 IN the hurry and bustle which swept over the sorority house as the girls dressed for dinner and the prom, Coral forgot about her curiosity concerning the visit Hoyt and Donna had made to the chemistry building. Her mind was centered on a more immediate question.

If David was at the dance . . . and she felt sure he would be . . . would he carry on this quartet of theirs? Deep in her heart she hoped that somehow tonight she could get a word with him, tell him she was sorry for what had happened. Perhaps then he would forget his grievance. Yet it would be difficult with Hoyt there. If David really believed she cared for Hoyt, he would not interfere, not even ask her to dance. But he couldn't believe that, not after what had been between them.

"I wish I knew what to do," she said to herself. "I'm miserable, and so is David. I know he is! Why are we going on this way?" If only she hadn't given in to her parents, if only she hadn't asked Hoyt to the prom. Sometimes she felt that David had been right, that she had been cowardly and weak to give in to her mother's demand. But even that knowledge did not tell her what she should have done, how she could have averted the situation.

HER reverie was cut short by a voice outside the door. "Your date's here, Coral," a girl's voice said.
 Coral fastened the catch of the long blue velvet evening cape, examined the hem of her silver dress to make sure it hung evenly, picked up bag and gloves and went down stairs to meet Hoyt. His eyes lit up at the sight of her.
 "Wow! You take my breath away. You're very gorgeous to-night, sweetheart."
 She winced involuntarily at his last word. If only Hoyt wouldn't take things so much for granted. But she smiled and returned his greeting. "You look very handsome yourself!"

As they walked to his car, Hoyt said, "I've made reservations for dinner at the Crossroads Tavern, outside of town. Not knowing the neighborhood I asked Donna for a tip this afternoon and she recommended this place. It's apparently the only spot for miles where a fellow can get not only food but something besides water for his burning thirst. Is that all right with you?"
 Coral hesitated. She had never been to the Crossroads Tavern in all her four years at Elton.
 "How come? Is there anything wrong with the place?" he asked.
 "Not really. But there was some scandal or other about it two or three years ago, it's a little on the wild side, I guess."
 "All the better. Saving your ladyship's presence, college dances are likely to be a little dull. If I get a good start maybe we can put some life into the prom."

CORAL's voice was still doubtful. "I don't suppose you could cancel your reservations, could you?"
 Hoyt laughed. "Oh, Coral, what's the matter? I don't know a thing about the place, but I'd be willing to bet that there's nothing or nobody there to hurt you. Let's find out, anyway. Come on!"

"I'm silly I know," Coral smiled and added, "You're probably right. Let's be off!"
 They climbed into Hoyt's big black sedan and drove off through the twilight. The ride to the Crossroads Tavern was a tamer reproduction of the ride home from the country club a few weeks before. Coral kept silence as long as she could, but when they missed hitting a truck at an intersection by nothing more or less than a miracle, she cried out involuntarily.

"Say, you really are scared, aren't you?" Hoyt said in surprise. "That's no way for you to feel. The only fun there is in driving is in driving fast. I'll show you what I mean." He pressed his foot down on the accelerator and the car leaped ahead. Coral covered in her corner of the front seat and shut her eyes as houses, telephone poles and other automobiles sped past with dizzying rapidity. When at last the car came to a stop in front of the Tavern, she opened her eyes, her face white, her hands shaking. Without a word she opened the door and got out of the automobile.

SHE walked wordlessly toward the entrance of the Tavern, and for the first time Hoyt seemed to realize the genuineness of her fears. He caught up with her at the doorway and put a hand on her arm.

 "I was a silly ape not to understand," he said boyishly. "I should be horse-whipped for frightening you."
 "Well, as far as that goes, I suppose it was stupid of me to be so frightened, but ever since that awful accident that happened in front of our house at home last summer, I've been jittery. Let's not talk about it any more, only please drive a little slower on our way back to town. Will you, Hoyt?"
 "You regulate the speed, lady. We'll travel at any rate from eight miles to 80 an hour. Anything you say."

AS they entered the Tavern and were ushered to their table, Coral replied gayly. "Maybe the car will be glad of a little rest!"
 After they had ordered, Hoyt re-called the waiter. "Don't you want a drink to calm your nerves?" he asked Coral. "I certainly need one, and I wasn't half as scared as you were."
 Coral took one sip of her cocktail when it arrived, then set it back on the table, pushing it a little away from her. It had a sharp, bitter taste which repelled her. Hoyt, on the other hand, drank his and ordered two more in quick succession. By the time their soup arrived, Coral noted with uneasiness the rising flush on his face.

"When are you going to set the day, baby?" Hoyt asked her. "June's not far off, you know. We'd better begin to make plans."
 She tried to laugh his question away.
 His face darkened. "Why do you keep putting me off? I've had enough of that technic. Let's set the day right here and now. Or," he eyed her slyly, "have you changed your mind?"
 "Can't we let it wait a little longer?" she asked. Why couldn't he see she didn't love him? Why must he torture her so?
 "No, we can't," his voice was angry. "I want your answer now. And if you don't give the right one, well, my father can call that $10,000 loan of your dad's, and I don't mean maybe. I'll give you till midnight to make up your mind. If you don't know then, I'll know my next move, Coral, and don't think anything will change my mind."

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY. COPY, 1937 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. U. S. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF. 3-76

BY HARRY GRAYSON
 Sports Editor, NEA Service

WITH amateur drivers more active than ever, some 500 top flight trotters and pacers are being sharpened for the 1937 and 64th season of the famous Grand Circuit at Toledo, June 28.
 When the Grand Circuit was organized in Cleveland in 1873, it sported only four cities. It grew to undreamed of proportions, but with the legalization of betting and the consequent progress of the runners, the standardized game had pressing moments in more recent years. The more wholesome of the two equine racing games now is back on its feet with a bang, however, the Roaring Grand alone boasting 11 cities and 13 weeks of competition.
 Tracks must put up exceptionally high purses and provide varied racing calendars for all types of crack trotters and pacers to fly the Grand Circuit banner.
 It's a long and exciting grind, this Grand Circuit, opening once more in Ohio, as it did in '73.
 Fort Miami track, Toledo, scene of a massacre many years ago, may appear in a similar light to some of the horses getting their baptismal fire there June 28-July 3.

PROMINENT social and sports lights have turned to the sulky sport in such numbers in recent months that every Grand Circuit strip has arranged special numbers for them.
 Dunbar W. Bostwick, as an example, will be in action at Toledo and again in Cleveland, July 5-10, with his Hollywood Audrey, a fine three-year-old candidate for the rich Hambletonian Stake at Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 11. Bostwick, a six-goal polo player and expert horseman, will pilot five or six head of his own horses around the Grand Circuit.
 Handicaps of a mile or slightly more, without additional heats, is an innovation this season. The All-American and Pacing Derby, allocated to Syracuse, and worth $22,000 altogether, are examples of this new type of racing.
 Greyhound, 1:57 1/4, is certain to beat Peter Manning's world mark of 1:56 1/4 this summer, according to experienced horsemen.

TWILIGHT SONG, champion two-year-old of 1936, quite naturally is the favorite for the Hambletonian, the Kentucky Derby of the trotters. This filly is owned by William H. Strang, Jr., of Brooklyn. The fastest time turned in by a Hambletonian eligible thus far was that of Fair, which recently was clocked in 2:08 in an amateur race in which she was driven by her owner, E. Roland Harriman.
 Here is the complete Grand Circuit schedule, all dates inclusive: Toledo, June 28-July 3; Cleveland, July 5-10; Goshen (Historic Track), July 13-17; Old Orchard, Me., July 19-31; Agawam, Mass., Aug. 2-7; Goshen (Good Time Park), Aug. 9-14; Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16-21; Columbus, Aug. 30-Sept. 4; Indianapolis and Syracuse sharing the same dates, Sept. 6-11; Reading, Sept. 13-18; and Lexington, Ky., Sept. 24-Oct. 2.
 Trot 3m out.

Befogged Mind of Youth Is Cited

SPRINGFIELD, O.—Many high school graduates would do well to enter college, if only to clear minds befogged with superstition and jammed with misconception, Dr. A. J. Arnold concluded from tests given to freshmen entering his psychology class at Wittenberg College here.

Dr. Arnold said students entering college are still "victims of numerous misconceptions, fallacies and biased judgments with reference to the many accepted facts of psychology, reflecting most of the fallacious beliefs and population."
 Asking freshmen joining psychology classes to submit to examinations on their beliefs and misbeliefs, he discovered 50 per cent of more than 200 believed women have powers of institution with which men are not equipped; that expectant mothers can mark their unborn by undergoing frightening experiences; that heavers knock when to prepare for a long cold winter; that red makes a bull wild and a wild bull wilder, and that chess-playing develops powers of concentration.
 From a third to a half believed howling dogs foretell death; long slender hands indicate an artistic nature; modern civilization is almost entirely a product of the white race and if some one stares long enough at a person's back he will turn around.
 As many as 25 per cent still clung to the idea of reefering or "streamlined" chin denotes lack of "vill power"; silent men are deep thinkers; fat people are always good-natured, and you can read character by bumps on the head, or by depressions in the skull.
 "Obviously there are dangers in such weird thinking," said the psychologist. "A bull may catch up with someone fleeing in a pea-green bathing suit, and he may damage the suit; a chess-player may be able to concentrate only on chess."
 "Certainly there is much yet to be done to steer all of us past thinking that is along the sensational, the bizarre and grotesque."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The fight for control between Roosevelt and Congress has now reached the point where the President speaks privately of a "purge" of anti-New Dealists from the Democratic party and where his chief opponents in the Senate hope to humble him as Woodrow Wilson was humbled in the League of Nations fight.

There is cockiness and grimness on each side.
 In essence the prime issue comes close to being a question of whether the people elected members of Congress to do what Roosevelt tells them to do or to use their own judgment. An increasing number of members has begun to chant: "Are we nice or are we men?" Ever since Cleveland's majority was a personal victory for him and his principles as expressed in the Madison Square Garden speech, that the people who elected Democratic senators and representatives expected them to vote for his measures, that he was their voice and instrument, individual senators could not stand against him.

FACING now what is mainly a conservative effort to reduce his power, Roosevelt tells friends the court fight is a good one in which to separate sheep from goats, that the Democratic party would be better off without some of the senators who oppose him and that he is ready to campaign against some of those senators in the primaries next year.
 The court's final three decisions favoring power companies against the New Deal were a signal for renewed administration propaganda against the conservative justices.
 BUT the President's attitude is annoying a large section of Congress. The Senate has several men who want the President defeated because they are aspiring to succeed him, others who don't like the court plan and believe a vote for it is politically dangerous, some who harbor personal grudges as a result of White House snubs, and others jealous of Roosevelt's prestige as compared with their own lack of power.
 Rebellion in the House can be somewhat discounted as a possible menace to Roosevelt since leaders put out what looked like a disastrous fire started in earmarking amendments to the relief bill. Causes of the trouble still remain, however.
 Many representatives feel they have been treated more or less like pawns by the administration. Few have any contact with the President. Most of them complain that patronage in their districts has been given to senators' public works money and many southern members had received promises of school houses and other small buildings from PWA. So when lobbyists for the contractors, the steel, lumber and building materials interests and the building trades unions came along, the House was ripe to rebel and rampage. Leaders would have had a harder time getting it back under control again if mayors hadn't wired angrily to members and persuaded many business men to do likewise by assuring them that cuts in PWA party taxes.

Mills-Watson Wedding is Conducted Today

Miss Myrtle Lucille Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mills, was married to Mr. Tom L. Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Watson, of San Francisco today at high noon.
A huge basket of pink and orchid gladiolas, flanked on either side with shooting ferns formed the altar. Centering the altar stood a handsome candelabra, holding twelve cathedral tapers, which were lighted by Charles Mills, brother of the bride.

Lone Star, Elks Win Close Games Here on Tuesday

Lone Star won the first of two closely-contested softball games at Municipal Field Tuesday night when they defeated Strawn Merchandise by a score of 6 to 2, and the Elks had trouble in downing Dr. Pepper by a score of 4 to 3 in the nightcap.
Lone Star took a two-run lead in the first, added one in the third, two more in the fifth and the final score in the sixth, while Strawn was goose-egged until the fifth, when a rally brought in two runs.
Most of the large crowd of fans seemed to think that Dr. Pepper got a bad decision when a ball hit to right field, with a man on third and the Elks leading 4 to 2, was called a foul. The majority of the fans thought it was a fair ball and voiced vigorous protest.
Only two errors were chalked up in the Elks-Dr. Pepper game, while three each were credited to Strawn Merchandise and Lone Star.

The win for the Elks left them in undisputed possession of first place in the league standings.
