LOWER COURT BILL PASSED IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The senate today approved a bill for reorganization of lower court procedure as a substitute for the original supreme court enlargement program. The shell of what had been the most controversial measure of the entire Roosevelt administration, was whipped through the senate without a roll call. After brief arguments and minor amendments, Vice President John Garner suddenly banged his gavel and declared the question was on passage of the bill. When there were no objections he declared the measure passed without even a voice vote. The measure offered as an amendment to a house bill, goes back to that body for concurrence. The foes of the original court program, having forced abandonment of the proposal for additional justices on the supreme court, took precautions against a house move to revive the administration measure. Approval of today's bill concluded six months of bitter controversy that split the democratic party and gave the administration its most severe reversal. The senate has approved a resolution authorizing a committee to study the need of further legislation, particularly in regard to retirement of justices, and to report next January.

Crop Insurance Bill Approved by House Committee

WASHINGTON, August 7.—The house agriculture committee today reported favorably the wheat crop insurance bill, which is backed by the president and designed to protect growers from crop losses. The bill already has passed the senate. The bill would apply, beginning in 1938. Under it the farmer would pay his premiums in wheat. He would collect his insurance either in insurance or in market cash value. Crop insurance is distinct from general crop control. Agriculture committees under present plans would hold hearings throughout the farm crop and report back crop control legislation for enactment, either at the beginning of the next regular session of congress or at a regular session. A project house has been allotted Eastland county youths for this year. It is located on the school campus. Eight vacancies in the house must be filled from the county by Wednesday or the extra accommodations will be those of out-of-town youths. Youths who had representatives at the meeting or were there to give intention to participate in the plan were: Jack Gray, Billy Jake Joyce, Claude Chastain, and W. R. Robert, all of Rising Star; L. A. Dolberry, Robert Henderson, Cleo Key, Rex Gray, Andy Taylor, Jack Gourley, Wesley Lane, Ben Clatt, Roger Arnold, Max Robinson, Bill Lane, James Hill, General Siebert, Clyde Ford, all of Eastland; W. Carl Robert, Freer; Jack Morris, Crane; Barto Watson, Ranger, and Roy Usery, Carbon. Morris and Robert are formerly of this county. County Agent Elmo V. Cook was in charge of the meeting. Others showing an interest of the plan were George I. Lane, county Resettlement Administration supervisor, and Harry K. Westerman, assistant conservation agent. ### CHINESE WAR SETTLEMENT IS UP TO JAPAN

NANKING, China, August 7.—The foreign office announced tonight that the Chinese-Japanese dispute "is subject to settlement by negotiation" if Japan is so disposed. The statement coincided with the arrival of Japanese Ambassador Kwagoo in Shanghai, from North China, and followed a Japanese naval demonstration in Hankow to show the Central China strategic Yangtze River Valley and the national capital. In Shanghai, Kwagoo received the Chinese overture coldly. He said the situation was extremely grave and "fought with dangerous possibilities." "It is rapidly nearing a catastrophe," he added that he would continue diplomatic action, however. Reports reached Peking that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, Chinese commander, had formed an air fleet and had enlisted the services of 60 foreign pilots. It was believed that if the reports proved true the foreign legion would include a number of Americans. Reports persisted, despite angry Japanese denials, that a mysterious Chinese war plane had been scouting Japanese positions in the Tientsin area. LOS ANGELES, August 7.—The Japanese consul took cognizance today of reports that 19,000 Americans had volunteered in the Chinese army to fight Japan. He said he may discuss the matter with the U. S. District Attorney to learn whether the American Neutrality Law was being violated.

In Any Foreign War—'Include Us Out'

The first job of the United States government is to see that Americans in the war zones around Peiping, China, or in Spain, for all that, are given the best possible chance to get out of there to places of safety if they want to go.

The second is to make it clear to them that if they do not want to take advantage of such a chance for safety, they remain in the danger zones at their own risk.

That is 1937 talk. Back in 1900, we went all mooney about the idea that an American must be safe anywhere in the world, and that the last ounce of American force would be exerted to make him so. That sounds dandy in a Kipling poem, but today we feel different. Even August Britain, which has done considerable sounding off about the safety of a British citizen wearing his dress suit in the jungle, has backed down from this stiff-necked dictum on several recent occasions.

Today, the question is asked with reverse English. Has an American citizen, given a chance to get out, the right to stay in a situation of danger where injury or death to him may bring down a horrible war on the heads of millions of people back home who had no interest in him or in the enterprises which led him into the danger zones?

Today we are beginning to feel that only Americans actually on public business for the government have a right to expect its protection, and that private individuals selling oil or salvation in dangerous quarters are strictly on their own.

Any one of the 1300 Americans in Peiping and Tientsin who refuses to co-operate in safety measures taken for Americans; who stubbornly insists on remaining when it is no longer safe, may be killed and thus precipitate a crisis.

But today we at home are likely to ask questions before our temperature rises in a hot demand for a war of revenge for some such "incident." We want to know what the victim was doing there? For whom? Was any American public interest affected? Did the victim co-operate in efforts to remove him from danger? Would going to war about it do any good anyway, in the long run?

Specific problems arising out of ticklish situations like those at Peiping must be solved as they come along. Most of us don't understand the details, anyway.

But the government ought to be guided by this principle regarding any pending foreign war, a principle which 99 44-100ths per cent of all Americans echo today in the classic words of Mr. Sam Goldwyn:

"Gentlemen, include us out!"

In all the furor over proposed lynch laws, never a word has been said to protect the mud splashing motorist from mob violence.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE

New Farm Purchase Act Is Explained

personnel or has designated some agency of the Department of Agriculture to execute this program, it will be impossible to refer farmers to anyone who has authority to give them detailed information."

The organization placed in charge must then set up county committees. Fisher stated. The committees will examine applications of persons desiring to finance home ownership through one of these loans and also examine and appraise the farms.

Until the committees have actually been appointed and are functioning, no applications can be approved by anyone at any place. Organization of the machinery will start with naming the three members of the board of directors of the Farmer Home Corporation, then proceed all the way down through regional or state or district to county headquarters. The bill states that all applications must be made through a county representative who shall either be the county agent or someone else chosen by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Justice, section 28, H. & T. C. survey, block 2, four miles south of Eastland, was apparently to be shut down when it struck water. Latest depth was 1,420 feet. Only show, a slight one, was at 1,290 feet.

Texas Company of Parks is to treat No. 10 D. J. Armstrong, W. J. Thomason survey, Eastland county. A total of 2,500 gallons was to be used to treat the formation from 2,486 to 2,524 feet. Present production was six barrels of water to three barrels of oil. Producing string was set at 2,339 feet. Water in the old well was coming in at the bottom of pay.

Loans will be made only for farms large enough to constitute an efficient farm management unit, which will enable a diligent farm family to carry on successfully the type of farming best suited to the locality. Only farm tenants, farm laborers, share croppers and other individuals who earn or who recently earned the major portion of their income from farming operations are eligible.

Precedence is to be given to persons who are married or who have dependent families, and wherever practical, to persons who are able to make an initial down payment. Farmers who have been thrifty enough to become owners of livestock and farm implements necessary to run the farm are also to be given general preference, where other considerations are equal.

The county committee must certify that they believe the applicant will be successful in carrying out the provisions of the agreement. The committee must also certify to the reasonable value of the farm.

Size of loans shall be determined according to local conditions, but shall in no instance exceed the amount the county committee believes is the honest value of the land. Loans must be repaid within an agreed period of time not to exceed forty years, and the interest rate will be three per cent per annum on all unpaid balances. A surplus above the average annual payment will be collected in periods of above normal production or price. Reduced payments will be allowed when farm income is sub-standard. The farmer may pay out and take a clear title at any time he is able. However, he cannot make final payment or the government's interest be released prior to five years from the making of the loan, except with the consent of the secretary.

Loans are to be distributed throughout the forty-eight states, and Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, on the basis of population and the prevalence of agriculture. The bill leaves the Secretary of Agriculture, rather than the Federal Reserve Board, the authority for making appropriations for any state.

In carrying out the provisions of these loans, the secretary is to avoid expansion in production especially where it might defeat the policy of Congress in provisions of Conservation and the Allotment acts and the secretary is also to assist farmers who are established upon lands in that situation. He is to avoid breaking, except in cases where this is deemed advisable.

GOD FEEDS A PEOPLE

Text: Exodus 16:11-20; 17:3-6

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

THE symbolism of the promised land and of God's leading the children of Israel from bondage to liberty comes into every detail of that momentous march of a people.

Here in our lesson is the story of the quails and the manna, with the teaching that the Lord will provide for those who hear His word and obey His call.

Begged from heaven was this manna, and we are apt to forget, in the intricacies of modern life and in the abundant productiveness of our modern world, exploited with all the wonders of agricultural machinery, that all bread comes from heaven.

Man cannot create so much as a loaf without the help of the mystery of nature, and the miracle of the manna is, after all, no more wonderful than the miracle of our daily bread. It is a miracle simply of a somewhat different sort and different emphasis, and possibly it requires a different sort of apprehension and belief.

MOREOVER, the symbolism reaches very deeply into the realities of human responsibility. Manna was given only for the day. It was not some miracle by which everything was provided for man, with no responsibility resting upon himself. If he did not do his part in gathering the manna while it was fresh, there was none left over for the next day, for it became spoiled if they sought to keep it.

It is a great lesson in receiving and using today what God gives in opportunities and resources that we may not have tomorrow; and we all depend for the effectiveness of our journey through life upon this immediate use of all that God gives.

With the hunger for bread was the thirst for water, and thirst affected these children of Israel as it has affected the thirsty in every age. They murmured against Moses. Why had he brought them out of Egypt, that they and their children and their cattle should suffer and die?

Like the manna, the water came through the miraculous smiting of the rock. Here is the symbol of refreshing and renewing, of God's provision of leaving water for the discouraged and famished.

WE speak of this as a miracle, but it is no more wonderful than the miracle by which the water comes to us. Moreover, the water that came from the rock may have been a natural spring. It was the method of sacred writers to attribute all such things to the provision and act of God; and they were right in seeing the hand of God, where we today tend to forget all about God, and speak only of "Nature."

Our failure to see wonderment and miracle in natural processes is only because we choose to call nothing a miracle that we can explain according to usual experience and laws; but the conclusions of our experience and our laws do not explain things or account for sources of power and of blessing.

The mysteries by which man's wants are supplied are none the less mysteries because we choose to call some things "natural" and other things "miracle."

The lesson of the story of God's feeding the people in the wilderness and of satisfying their thirst is that all along the journey of life, the goodness of God and the rich provision of His grace are available for man.

STAY IN THE LOW-PRICE FIELD

BUT

STEP UP TO THE V-8 CLASS

WHEN you are asked to pay "Just a Few Dollars More" than Ford prices, go slow. Be sure you're actually getting more car and bigger value—and not just a bigger bill. It may be easy to spend more money, but it's not easy to get more car at anywhere near the same prices.

When you pay more, you should get performance at least as flashing as Ford performance. You should get at least an 8-cylinder engine. You should get positive brakes that will stop the car at least as quickly and smoothly as Ford brakes do. Will you get all these?

Will you get at least as much room? Most cars that boast a little longer wheelbase, waste space under the hood with a much longer engine. The Ford V-8 gives you room in the body where you can use it.

Check claims. Get facts. Make sure that any extra amount you plan to pay brings you corresponding extra value above the price of the Ford.

Finally, remember that the real reason why more than a million 1937 Ford V-8s have already been built is that America recognizes it as an outstanding car and the outstanding value for 1937.

L. H. Flewollen Writes An Interesting Account of His Trip to Many Famous, Historical Sites which was to take effect on June 2, 1937, and he was wondering if I would be interested in the place. I told him I hadn't given the matter much consideration, but would take it under advisement. Judge Garrett is full of wit and humor, and is a friend worth having.

The next morning I went alone to Judge Garrett's office, and accompanied him over to the Capitol through the tunnel. As we chatted in one of the Capitol's halls before parting, he introduced me to Hon. William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House. Mr. Bankhead is a fine-looking man, and was very affable. I sat in the House gallery while Judge Garrett located Congressman Maury Maverick from San Antonio, with whom I used to be in the university at Austin and also at the First Officers' Training Camp at Leon Springs, Texas.

I next went over to the Senate gallery and enjoyed watching the Senate in session. It was most interesting to locate the various senators by aid of a diagram which is furnished each visitor by the doorkeeper. The proceedings here are more orderly than in the House, and one can hear practically everything that is said.

Before returning home, I drove again into the beautiful Arlington National Cemetery and located the grave of William Jennings Bryan. He and his wife are buried side by side on one of the highest points in the southern part, from which you get a splendid view of the Washington Cathedral. Their bodies rest in a most beautiful place, and on his monument is inscribed: "He kept the faith."

After lunch we all four went to the Smithsonian Institute. It is a most marvelous museum, although we were all too tired to really enjoy it as we should have. We were informed that if one went there each day in the year and spent one minute looking at each object for eight hours each day, it would take him eighty years to see all of its interesting features.

That night, after dinner, we enjoyed meeting and knowing the son of our host, Mr. Donald Pettes, and his wife, who called to see us. As they had come through our part of Texas in the summer of 1936, on their way to the Carlsbad Caverns and the Grand Canyon and Salt Lake City, we

RANGER I. O. O. F. LODGE FOUNDED JULY 21, 1892

Ranger lodge No. 350, I. O. O. F., was organized on the 21st day of July, 1892, in the old school building on Marston street, where the Ranger high school is now located. District Deputy Grand Master J. M. Hudman, assisted by Patterson and Whiteside of Cisp, and Hammons and High of Eastland, instituted the lodge by authority of a dispensation issued by Grand Master R. M. Chapman.

First officers of the lodge: J. H. Terrell, noble grand; J. W. Barber, vice grand; S. J. Dean, secretary; C. E. Terrell, treasurer.

The lodge met in this building until Aug. 1st, 1893, when they rented the second story of a building known as the Hagaman building, on Locust street in Ranger. We understand this building is on what is now Main street, and is the property of Dr. A. K. Wier, and the first floor is occupied by the Star Dry Goods company.

After using this building for a year for many years, the lodge again moved, this time to North Main street, in 1921, where they met until they purchased the building they now occupy on Elm street.

First initiation in Ranger lodge was on Aug. 19, 1892, when W. R. Hodges, W. C. Miller and W. A. Young were initiated into the order. On Oct. 14, 1892 W. H. Blankenship was initiated.

We find this brother still lives in Ranger, as well as K. L. Page, who became a member Dec. 4, 1894. With the exception of J. S. Dean, who was a charter member, we know of no other members who were in the lodge in the early nineties who are still here living.

Present officers of the lodge: A. L. Stiles, noble grand; Ray Todd, vice grand; Joe Calder, secretary; Fred Witt, treasurer.

I.O.O.F. Secretary Has Easy Way to Think of Birthday

One Ranger man says he never has any trouble telling just how old he is as his birthday comes on the same day the I. O. O. F. was chartered and put to work in Ranger. That is none other than Joe Calder, secretary of the local lodge. "Uncle Joe" says he was 20 years old the 21st day of July, 1892, the same day the charter was given to Ranger. He also says he has another way of keeping track of his birthday and that is he was nine years old the same day Sam Bass was killed.

"Uncle Joe" has had quite a varied experience in the wild and woolly west in the early days, and knows more history of Billy the Kid, Pat Givison, the man who killed the Kid, Sam Bass and other early day characters than any man in this part of the state.

Calder was quite a pistol shot in the days of yesterday and tells many interesting experiences of romance and history of the old west.

Letter from Former City Secretary Is Received In Ranger

The following letter has been received by the City employees from R. A. Jameson, former secretary, from Lake City, Colo.:

"It is 4:30 p. m., and I am sitting by the fire. Yes it feels good, too. At night we sleep under double blankets. They are hardly enough. One night we had a heavy frost.

"Yesterday when we moved over from Creede, we went over Slungulion Pass. (Yes that is its name), 11,361 feet above sea level. There was snow on the mountains around us. Sunday we were over this pass and it sleeted hard—ground almost white.

"Went fishing this morning—brought in eight rainbow trout. Must have thrown back at least 15 that were too small. (7 inches is minimum). They are certainly a scrappy outfit. It has been raining a good deal and the water is too muddy for good fishing.

"You should see me splitting wood—rowing a boat and running around at fishing. I am certainly gaining strength fast. But I have a long way to go. I have not had a coughing spell in the day time in over a week and at night. I get a good night's sleep, 9 and 10 hours each night. It is certainly gratifying. A few months of this and I will be like a new man. And no serious worries. My chief worry is—will it be good fishing tomorrow?"

"The speedometer on my car shows that it has travelled 8500 miles since June 1st. And not a flat tire. (Knock on Claude White's head for me).

"Lake City is an old mining town sitting down between the mountains. You can shoot a nigger shooter almost any direction and hit a mountain, but you can't shoot to the top—they are too high. The mountain scenery is very beautiful. I certainly enjoy it all.

"Do hope this finds each and everyone of you well and getting along all O. K.

With kindest regards to each of you and love to Dixie, I am,

Yours,

R. A. Jameson.

Also tell O. G. hello and that I think of him often.—R. A. J.

ODD FELLOWS HISTORY DATES BACK TO EARLY DAYS INTO ANTIQUITY

By Joe Calder, Secretary
Ranger I. O. O. F. Lodge

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows originated somewhere in the dark past, but no historian, so far as we know, has left any record showing when and where, the definite time and place, this institution, as such, had its beginning. This fact has been the cause of much idle speculation and has become the parent of a number of ingenious theories, with reference to the first establishment of the order, some of which attempt to show that it had an existence, though under some other name, at a very remote period in the history of the world. Whether there is any truth in these theories or not we do not know, or care. As far as we are concerned, the order had its origin on the 26th day of April, 1819, when the first lodge was organized in America.

Could we trace the existence of the order back through the guilds of England, thence to the Roman camps and find its origin there, it would add nothing to our achievements. Had it actually been established in the days of Titus, or had Gieero, with silver tongue, thundered the merits of Odd Fellowship until the great Roman forum trembled under his power of matchless eloquence, or had the order been in existence in ancient Greece, and had Solon, Lycurgus, and Plato passed on its merits, its laws and regulations, it would have not added one thing to our greatness. Were our order as old as the bow that God set in the heavens, could it be more faithful in visiting the sick, relieving the distressed, burying the dead, and educating the orphan than it now is?

So, let us consider the order from the time it entered America, by way of Baltimore, Maryland. There were several lodges organized in America at an earlier date, but they did not prosper and soon died out.

The year 1819 will ever be remembered by Odd Fellows as the year Odd Fellowship became a new organization, in a new land and among a modern people.

While this year, strictly speaking, was not a very propitious time for Englishmen, to undertake an enterprise of any kind in the United States with the expectation of such enterprise commanding favorable attention from the American people. Only 7 years had passed since the war of 1812 between the United States and England, and only about 35 years since the close of the Revolutionary War. Such was the time, however, when Thomas Wilder and four other Englishmen planted the little sprout of Odd Fellowship on American soil that, within a space of less than a hundred years, became a giant tree, whose branches had spread over the civilized world.

On April 26, 1819, Thomas Wilder, John Welch, John Duncan, Richard Rushworth and John Cheatham met at the home of William Lupton, a tavern bearing the unique title of "The Seven Stars," and situated on the south side of Second Street, where they established by self-institution a Lodge of Odd Fellows, which has passed into history as Washington Lodge No. 1.

These were true and earnest men, realizing that they would probably meet with opposition because of the fact that their order was of English origin, and they themselves were of English birth, they tried so far as they reasonably could, to conciliate such opposition by naming the lodge after the greatest of all Americans, "Washington," thus demonstrating that they had abandoned the land of their birth and had chosen America as the land of their adoption. It seems this Lodge was some time securing a charter, having received their charter on the 23 day of October, 1820, but when it did come through it was from Duke of York's Lodge, Preston, England, and conferred a threefold power upon the body to which it was issued. By virtue of this charter or dispensation, Washington Lodge No. 1 came into existence as a subordinate lodge; as the Grand Lodge of Maryland, as the Grand Lodge of the United States.

On Feb. 22, 1821 Washington Lodge No. 1 surrendered its charter to the Grand Lodge of Maryland, and to the Grand Lodge of the United States, and what is now known as the Sovereign Grand Lodge, the supreme head of the order, came into existence.

Many difficulties were encountered from 1821 to 1830, but it seems the order went steadily forward, as the report of 1830 shows, this being the ninth report made to the Grand Lodge of the United States, Five Grand Lodges, 58 subordinate Lodges, with a total membership of 3,936.

The order had now passed its period of probation, the child had grown into a promising youth, and gave every promise of a lusty and vigorous manhood. From this time it made such rapid strides in the path of progress that the wildest dreams of the fathers of the order were more than exceeded. In the remaining portion of this article we will not attempt to follow the progress of the order, but only give a few of the more important events in its progress to the present time.

In the year 1844, 25 years after the first Lodge was organized in America, reports to the Grand Lodge of the United States then in session in the City of Baltimore, show 26 grand, 457 subordinate lodges; 11,192 initiations during the year, 40,238 members, and $72,113.81 relief expenditure.

One of the above mentioned Grand Lodges, was the Grand Lodge of Texas, which was instituted on April 29, 1841 at Houston, Texas. Lone Star Lodge No. 1, the first lodge to be organized in a foreign land by authority of the Grand Lodge of the United States, was instituted on the 25th day of July, 1838, by Jacob de Cordova of New Orleans, who later came to Texas and made this state his home until his death in Bosque county in 1868, where his remains were laid to rest until 1936 when the State of Texas appropriated funds to remove his remains to the state cemetery at Austin. Lone Star No. 1 is today one of the leading lodges of Texas, and will entertain the Grand Lodge of Texas in 1938, one hundred years after their organization.

About the year 1837, trouble began to appear between the parent order, the Manchester Unity of England, and the American branch of the order. Changes in the work, both ritualistic and secret, were being made every year or so by the Manchester Unity in England, and the order in America was not kept informed regarding such changes. The results were that when American Odd Fellows visited England, though in possession of cards and certificates issued by American Lodges, they were denied admission to the lodges of the order in England, since they could not prove themselves in the signs and work in vogue in that country. This state of affairs continued and became more serious with the passing of the years, until in 1842, when the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in the United States declared an absolute separation from and independence of the parent order, the Manchester Unity of England, and so the situation stands today. While the Manchester Unity has made but little progress, if any, the American branch of the order has spread to all civilized country on the globe.

It is needless for us to follow further the extension of the order in the United States. The reader knows that Odd Fellowship kept progress with the formation of the American Union, and, in fact, was often in the lead, since its banner was often unfurled in territories long before such territories became recognized as integral parts of the American Union and starts to represent them in the blue field of the "Star Spangled Banner."

We find that just one year after separation of the two branches of the order, the American branch went a step further and declared, this Grand Lodge has the exclusive authority to erect lodges and encampments upon any part or section of the globe. As lodges were already established in Texas, at that time a Republic, they were ready for the extension of the order to any and all parts of the world. How well this has been done the record will speak for itself.

On August 10, 1845, Wales Lodge No. 1 was organized at Montreal, Canada. In 1845 the order returned to the Mother country, and established several lodges in England. However, these lodges did not thrive, and we have made no further attempt to establish the American order in that country.

Under date of May 5, 1858 the Australian Order of Odd Fellows, Melbourne, Australia, petitioned the American Lodge for admission into the American branch of the order, and while the Grand Lodge of the United States was willing and anxious to have the lodges of Victoria affiliate with it, there was many difficulties to be overcome before this could be accomplished. It was not until Dec. 13, 1867 that Australia became a part of the American order. 1870 saw the order planted in Germany, and in Switzerland in the year following. The Grand Lodge of the Republic of Chile was chartered in 1875.

Sweden, accepted a charter from the Grand Lodge of the United States in 1884, while at a little later date, the order was established in many of the smaller countries of Europe. Mexico, Cuba, France, Japan, Newfoundland and Austria Hungary coming in, in the order named. In addition to those mentioned the order is fairly established in all the principal countries of South America, and the Pacific Islands, and some of the countries of Asia, but space will not permit the following of all, to the present time.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows today has a membership of near three million members, have paid for relief in the 119 years of its existence $290,000,000 and our permanent investment has reached the sum of $162,000,000. They stand as the largest fraternal order in the world, having several years ago, surpassed that great and noble order, known throughout the civilized world, the Masonic Fraternity.

Just as we pass through the most prolonged depression the world has ever known, reports from almost every jurisdiction, however remote, greet us with messages of love and pledges of unextinguishable devotion to the unity and posterity of the order.

BRUCE KNOTT, her husband.
PHILIP IRVING, Judith's re-

 friend.

Yesterday, 8:30 at a Colorado ranch house, Judith meets Mark Price, the author's son. She is surprised to find that she has been invited to the party. She is surprised to find that she has been invited to the party.

CHAPTER IX

AS Judith walked toward the house to see the architect she wondered what he would have to say to her. Unless she was in love with Millicent and wished her aid in promoting his suit, she could think of no help she might render him. He had not pursued Millicent through.

"Is there any place you must be in July?" he asked.

"There was Reno—but she said 'Not particularly.'"

"Then you're going to listen to me! You wear clothes like no body's business. Oh yes you do. I've noticed you in these white ducks. And the gay shirts. You give them a rhythm, a dare, a challenge! Lord, what wouldn't you do to an evening gown!"

"You've never heard of me. You wouldn't for you don't follow the fashion page. It's Paul Price, a designer just getting my start. I had a bum lung last year and had to leave and come out here. But now I'm going back for a real debut. I'm to have a part in the biggest fall showing. And you—Mrs. Irving, will you model for me? I'm made if you do, Made!"

"What must I do?" she asked.

"Wear four creations in the show. These mitts of 17 and 18, who haven't an ounce of personality, show off the doll things, but when it comes to clothes with appeal and charm for a woman of 35 or 38 or even 45, what kind of models do we get? None! A real frock hasn't a chance to be displayed well. Now with you—"

"I'll do it on one condition," she said.

"And that is?"

"That my name be kept out of it until the actual appearance. Is it a bargain?"

"It is!" They shook hands solemnly.

MILICENT'S voice, gay and suppressed, interrupted: "Judith darling, the village just telephoned. The train from the east brought the ranch a visitor who is hunting for us. He's on his way here now—do you think—do you suppose—"

Judith asked the question, too, but she was thinking of a name not that which concerned Millicent. Down the road lights of a car were visible, though the distance to be covered measured several miles as yet. Perhaps Phil had come!

It wasn't Phil who presently alighted from that car. It was Bruce. He didn't say much, but his eyes were warm and tender as they watched Millicent.

"It came as soon as the show closed," he said. "Why did you go away?"

Judith, sick with disappointment because she had dared to hope for an impossible fulfillment, went back to the veranda and Mark Price. He told her he was leaving for New York shortly to lay his plans for the fall show. She was to follow soon for modeling.

Bruce stayed on for another week. One evening a party from the ranch drove into the village to buy ice cream and see a movie. Bruce had a package of newspapers from the east. He opened the first one and Judith saw him stare.

"What is it?" she asked.

He held out the paper to her. It was her own picture that occupied three columns of the page and Bruce's was an inset. She read the head: "Actor Rushes to Best Dressed Woman." Then there followed a story of Judith's departure for Reno, the airplane's enforced landing, and a surmise that Bruce was her reason for the journey to Nevada.

"Don't worry about this," Bruce was saying. "I'll wire my press agent to correct the story. Millicent and I aren't wasting any time about getting married. I can make them understand why I came west."

But Judith didn't reply. Somehow she wasn't sure now whether she cared or not.

AT the postoffice next day Judith received a letter from Anne. "Judith, the night your airship got caught in the storm Phil heard about it before I did and called me twice during the half hour you were battling the high winds. He sounded like a worried husband. No doubt he wants a divorce and will marry Marta and be dreadfully unhappy and blame it all on you for not holding on to him. Men always blame women for everything, my dear. We might just as well steal the pudding as be scolded for it. Marta will manage to get half of Phil's money, too. Anyway, why not come home for a while?"

Judith stayed awake into one night, thinking. If she went to Reno, she couldn't take part in the fall showings that came early in August. She realized that she was glad for the delay. She did not want to hasten the divorce proceedings. She had no pride, she admitted. No pride at all. She was glad to go as long as Phil was bound to her by ring and book he could not marry Marta. Always before she had married women who held their men unwillingly.

She finally went to sleep. A knock at the door awakened her.

"Telephone, Mrs. Irving," a voice called.

She picked up the navy robe of heavy satin slipped her feet into moccasins she had bought at an Indian settlement one day, and went downstairs to the telephone.

It would be the New York press or Phil's attorney calling her, she supposed. It wasn't. It was Phil.

"Judith, you aren't being fair," he began.

Her heart that had missed a beat in happiness lost it again: "Not fair, Phil?"

"You promised to go to Reno—and you are spending your time on a ranch. And this—this business of Bruce Knight, why hadn't you told me?" He was a husband whose sense of pride and possession were hurt. He didn't want Judith but he didn't want anyone else to have her. She caught it all and the frightening tension broke. He was not entirely indifferent, then.

"Bruce came to see Millicent. He's marrying her," she explained.

"No, he isn't!"

"Yes, soon. The papers will carry it tomorrow."

"Wait a second, Judy."

She knew that he turned to relay the information to someone beyond. So she could not have even this moment with the long miles between. Marta had to be there. When Phil said again: "Judy?" she asked, "Is Marta there, Phil? Did she ask you to call?"

"Yes," he answered, reluctantly. "Is she worried because I'm delaying?"

"Yes—I mean—Judith, that has nothing to do with the subject."

"Yes it does, Phil dear. Everything! It's Marta, not you, you're called to hurt me. You couldn't be so unkind, Phil!"

He ignored that. His voice became a small boy's aggrieved shout: "Will you go to Reno?" Judith quietly hung up.

 The Golden Text is: "No man hath seen God at any time... Hereby know ye that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit." (1 John 4:12, 13).
 Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "He whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him" (John 3:34).
 The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When we realize that Life is Spirit, never in por of matter, this understanding will expand into self-comprehension, finding all in God, good, and pending as the 2<sup>d</sup> conclusion" (page 264).

 (13-4 pint)

One pint ripe tomatoes, (about 2 1/2 pounds as purchased), 1/2 cup chopped onion, 1 cup chopped celery, 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 6 tablespoons granulated sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon mustard seed, 1-2 cup white vinegar.

Peel tomatoes before chopping. After draining, add all other ingredients. Stir until mixture is thoroughly combined. Pour into sterilized containers and cover tightly. No, you don't do any cooking.

Tomato Marmalade

1-2 cup vinegar, 1 cup sugar, 1 quart chopped tomatoes, 1 teaspoon mixed spices, 1 teaspoon salt.

Mix vinegar, sugar, salt and spices together until thoroughly dissolved. Pour into shallow pan and cook in slow oven for 1 1/4 hours. Turn into sterilized jars and paraffin while hot. Green tomatoes turned into crystallized crunchy pickles is a thought offered all relish fanciers by the Home Service Division of General Electric Company. This is the recipe. Fasten it to your heart.

Crystallized Green Tomatoes

One peck green tomatoes the size of a silver dollar, sliced 1/4 inch thick, 1 cup lime to 1 gallon water. Slice tomatoes, pour the lime water over tomatoes and allow to stand 3 days. Stir tomatoes each day so that the top ones are at the bottom. Keep chilled during soaking period in automatic refrigerator. After three days drain. Then cover with water and soak one day, keeping in the refrigerator. On the fifth day, drain off clear water and cover with alum water—using 1-1/2 cup alum to 1 gallon water. Allow to stand in refrigerator three more days.

On the eighth day wash thoroughly, add water and bring to boiling point. Remove container to sink, and add 1 tablespoon softener and soak one day, keeping in the refrigerator. BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—This is the best guess available right now, and please remember it's only a guess:

Solicitor General Stanley F. Reed will be appointed to the Supreme Court to succeed Justice Van Devanter, retired.

Next best guess, perhaps, is Judge Sam G. Branton of Albuquerque, N. M., sitting in the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, leading party of eight western states. At any rate, the White House is hearing plenty from Branton's backers.

One of the worst crimes the New Deal ever committed against the country and itself was the thing it did to the solicitor-general after Felix Frankfurter had refused the post in 1937. But Reed took that office more than two years ago and has carried the brunt of defending New Deal laws before the Supreme Court, lately with conspicuous success. He argued the Wagner Act as well as the AAA case and many others.

Reed for several years was counsel for the old Hoover farm board and early in 1933 became general counsel for RFC under Hoover. He served Roosevelt ably as a legal expert in the banking emergency. He was slated for a federal judgeship in Kentucky when Roosevelt decided he should be solicitor-general. His arguments have indicated definite liberalism along with a desire to fit New Deal laws into reasonable constitutional limitations. He is 53 years old.

Branton was a liberal Democratic senator from New Mexico until Roosevelt made him a federal judge. As an ex-senator, he could be sure of little opposition to his confirmation.

DON'T fall too hard for these nice, pretty stories about harmony restored in the Democratic party. Knives are being sharpened as never before. If Roosevelt and his friends have anything to do about it, 1938 will be known to history as "the great year of reprisals," meaning that Roosevelt will not forgive or forget the scuttling of the court bill and other items of his program.

Even while Vice President Jack Garner and his Democratic-Republican coalition seemed to rub the Capitol Hill roof after giving Roosevelt's showed that he was still trying to run the works by taking Senate Majority Leader Arthur Barkley off for a year's weekend.

Senator Ed Burke of Nebraska, opposition court plan leader, got to see Roosevelt through Garner's agreement, assured the President that the Senate judiciary committee would do its best to patch up a good bill and expressed the hope that there would be no hard feelings.

Roosevelt, according to an authoritative source, merely returned, made no reply and puffed cigaret smoke up into the air until Secretary Marvin McIntyre came in to announce the next visitor.

YOUR correspondent may have erred in asserting recently that Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana would be the assistant majority leader under Barkley. Minton wants his close friend Senator Lew S. Wellesbach of Washington, to take the job. It is probable that Senator Hub Black of Alabama will be made another assistant leader and the Minton will become the party whip.
