Meroney, secretary, made an inspection trip along highway 89 on Friday, and Saturday reported that rapid progress is being made on paving the highway. "It has been stated a number of times," Woods said Saturday, "that work is being held up on the highway. It is rumored that other towns are delaying the work as much as possible, and that the highway work has been shut down completely. We found, on our inspection tour, that these rumors are unfounded. The two found that 16 miles of the highway have been paved, and that crews are now working on another five-mile stretch. The party was allowed to travel over several miles of the completed highway, and reported that it was the best pavement they had seen being laid in some time. According to the contractors, the work is progressing at a rate of about one mile per week. Some delays were encountered for a time because the highway engineers had part of the grading work done over in order to make the highway as nearly perfect as possible, it was stated. As soon as the present stretch of five miles of paving is completed work will start on the last 25-mile stretch. This last section is expected to be started within a week or ten days. Estimates were that with time allowed out for the normal rainfall, that the entire highway paving project would be completed and ready for use the latter part of March. The paving being put down is a heavy rock base with a concrete topping.

A Hopeful Outlook for the Fall Trade

So many business predictions go wrong that everyone hates to make them any more. Yet the desire to plan for the future and to try to estimate that future is so strong that it always overcomes the reluctance born of past disappointments.

The fact that almost every surveyor of the business scene today looks ahead to higher business levels in the fall tempts even the pessimistic to be hopeful. Here are some of the indications on which the observers agree pretty unanimously:

The income of farmers, despite the drop in cotton prices, is expected to approach 1929 levels, and in purchasing power it may even exceed 1929, because farmers will be able to get more for their money than they could in those days. Even a drop in cotton prices might not be an unmixed evil if U. S. prices came nearer the world level and thus enabled the United States to regain some of the world cotton trade which has been gradually slipping away from us.

Steel operations continue to hold up at high levels at a season when they usually decline. Despite lower purchases by the auto industry, other buying holds it up in good style. Automobile output itself holds up in a manner that has surprised many in the trade, the slight decline being less than is usual at this time of year.

Sales of six leading mail order houses will come close to a billion dollars this year, not only an increase of 21 per cent over last year, but far greater than those of 1929. This is another of the national enterprises which is actually breaking through 1929 highs, the objective that must be attained if anything approximating the 1929 kind of prosperity is to be reached.

The outlook for better farm purchasing power as a stimulus to increased fall business is aided by factors like this: Farm mortgage debt is far lower than during the 1929 era, and pays a far lower rate of interest. Farmers' taxes are still perhaps 30 per cent lower than they were eight years ago. This better status of the farmer has been revealing itself in a firmer status of farm values than has been seen since 1932.

Thus, in the fall season when business activity tends to slump off somewhat, there is every reason to expect this year that business will hold up splendidly or even gain somewhat. All of which augurs well for the future, and gives hope that super-1929 production levels lie ahead that will make some dent in the unemployment problem. For in making a big dent in that problem lies the solution for all the others.

Even the Russian children seem to be getting the "liquidation" idea, judging from the report that 200 of them successfully executed a mass parachute jump.

LUISE RAINER AND PAUL MUNI INTERPRETING THE COURAGE AND FORTITUDE OF CHINA IN THE SCREEN'S STIRRING "GOOD EARTH"

O-Lan, the obedient and docile wife, loyal to her husband in adversity and success... Wang, the plodding peon turned into an overlord overnight... these are the characters around whom Pearl S. Buck evolved her unforgettable narrative of the Chinese race... Luise Rainer and Paul Muni bring them to the screen with a warmth and poignancy that makes them not just screen shadows... but flesh-and-blood human beings! The Arcadia gets the film Monday.

Jameson and her friends, who were very beautiful and most long before this had also become our friends, we stopped in at Rockefeller Center and enjoyed the N. B. C. tour. The guide took a party of us through the broadcasting studios and explained in detail how programs are sent over the air from this most wonderful of all broadcasting stations. We saw through glass sound-proof partitions an audience of 1,500 attending a broadcasting program. We also saw the musicians in the performance of their parts, but we could not hear a sound. As there are no windows to any of the many studios in Radio City, artificial lighting is required at all times, and an air-cleaning system is constantly purifying the air. We were told by our guide that the air of New York City is by weight 25 per cent soot and dirt. He also showed us small pipes of these impurities that had been removed from the air, as well as the efficient air-cleaning system that had done the work. It required about an hour to complete the tour, all of which was most interesting and highly instructive.

Just as we emerged from the 70-story R. C. A. building, in which the N. B. C. tour was made, large headlines in the evening papers proclaimed the death of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., which occurred at his Ormond Beach, Florida, winter home that morning, May 23, 1937, at 5:05 a. m., Eastern Daylight Time. We were struck by this coincidence, as part of his immense fortune, long ago passed on to his son, was the foundation upon which Rockefeller Center was constructed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The Queen Mary arrived at its dock at the west end of 50th street this morning, May 24th, at about 8 a. m. We reached the pier about 9 a. m., to enjoy our first look at this most recently constructed leviathan of the sea. It is 1,018 feet long, 118 feet wide and is a sight to behold. Great crowds were already on hand, and hundreds of taxis were lined up four and five abreast, to carry off the incoming passengers. It was most interesting to watch the passengers emerge from the docks with their baggage and the taxis speed away with them. It was also most interesting to go into the docks and watch the customs officials as they checked over the baggage of the passengers. This beautiful ship carries 3,000 passengers in addition to its regular crew of 1,300. It has already, on one occasion, accommodated a greater number of passengers than 3,000. We were told that we could visit this magnificent ship the next day, and so, after feasting our eyes upon it and its surroundings for nearly two hours, we left. We determined, though, to return the following day and go on it.

From the Queen Mary we proceeded to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, which is located in the east central portion of Central Park and faces Fifth Avenue from the west. This is one of the most complete and most interesting art museums in all the world. Although we were pretty tired when we arrived, its many interesting and attractive features soon revived us, and we went from one room to another, enjoying the innumerable works of art. A restaurant is operated in its basement, and excellent food is served, but at rather high prices. We especially enjoyed an exhibit of wonderful paintings by the great French artist, P. A. Renoir. His "Madame Charpentier and Her Children," as well as his "La Fillette Attentive" and "La Petite Margot Bezaud"

Penney's Free Show Will Be Presented Here On Thursday

The "Back to School Free Picture Show" being sponsored by the J. C. Penney company will be played next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The name of the picture is "Penrod and Sam" and the story was written by Booth Tarkington and is especially screened for children and school kiddies. Mr. Cooper at Penney's says he wants all the kids to have one of the free tickets, that he has over two thousand to give out and the only request or rule is that all children must be accompanied by their parents to the store for the free tickets. This is very necessary says Cooper. "I must know if the children have the permission of their parents to get the free tickets, so kiddies, please bring your mother or dad with you so that you can get your free ticket." The show will begin promptly at 10 o'clock next Thursday morning and all children are urged to be in front of the Penney store by 9:30 so that a line of march can be formed to the Arcadia. In this way lots of time will be saved and no confusion will result in handling the large crowd of children expected to see the show.

One of the Two Water Buffalo In U. S. Will Be Here

It has been said that "All Races of People have one kind of animal that belongs to it." This can truly be said of the Chinese, for the Chinese Buffalo has played an important part in the life of the race, through all known history.

To the Chinese Farmer he is indispensable, for he is able to thrive on less and rougher food than any other beast of burden, is the only animal that can walk and pull a plow through the soft ground of the rice paddies, acts as guardian of the children, and often during the cold months, his body heat is all that keeps the humble dwellings above the freezing point.

In 1933, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer imported several of these remarkable animals for use in their production, "The Good Earth." They are the only ones in the United States today.

In conjunction with the showing of the picture, Hil, mighty leader of the herd, is being taken on a personal appearance tour of the country. He will arrive in Ranger with his caravan of Chevrolet trucks on Monday, Aug. 23 at 2:30 p. m., and will be on exhibition at the Arcadia Theatre from 2:30 p. m. to 6 p. m.

IT MAY BE THAT WE ARE WRONG

This column contains timely items, suggested by the citizens of Ranger and are published at their request. They do not, necessarily, represent the opinions or editorial policies of the Times, but are written at the suggestion and request of its readers.

This column is rapidly developing into a place where the people of Ranger can air their troubles and grievances, real or fancied, without causing trouble for themselves. It is developing into a means of passing the buck to the newspaper, and if the paper can be of any assistance in getting some of the troubles corrected, we are glad to take the brunt of the criticism that comes after these grievances are aired.

The latest, from one who apparently has been caused much annoyance by cows being staked in his front gate, was left in the Times office Saturday morning. It is passed along, as is, in the hopes that it might be the means of eliminating further offenses. The letter follows, verbatim and in toto, with the exception of the signature:

"What we would like to know is there no law against cow pens in people's front yards? When your friends come and you are ashamed of the odor from them, and not satisfied with that they are allowed to stake their cows in your front gate.

"Please tell me why the city taxpayers of this town have to put up with that? Do we have any law or not? And what is the use of laws and city mayors and officers if we are not protected from these things."

No doubt if the attention of any police officer in the city, the mayor or any city commissioner or the city secretary was called to the fact that cows are parked in front gates it would be remedied. It is impossible for the city officials to find each offender, but when they are pointed out, some action, no doubt, will be taken.

Men who have complaints neglected to report them to the proper authorities, but when reported they are usually corrected quickly.

CHAPTER IX

THREADING his way recklessly through the traffic of the city streets, Bob hurried to Police Headquarters, where he looked up his friend, Steve Carnahan. More than once Steve had given him the lead for a good plot in exchange for a cigar and a few minutes' adroit questioning.

Now Steve removed his feet from the battered chair in front of him and looked up with interest as Bob pushed open the door.

"Hi!" he greeted him. "What's on your chest so early in the day? Another deadline to make? Or is the beautiful heroine about to be fed poison?"

Bob grinned, handed over the cigar, and perched himself on a corner of the desk. "They're sure handing her something that may prove to be poison," he answered. "That's why I came down to talk to you."

Steve pushed his hat over one ear and screwed his face into what he considered a literary frown. "Snoot," he ordered in his best official tone.

"That yarn you were telling me about the guy who came over from London with that Egyptian piece for the Museum, remember?" Bob began. "You know, the one who brought in some stuff of his own duty free. Hidden in the old statue, wasn't it?"

"It was, and how!" Steve puffed out his chest and settled back in his chair. "That's what comes of spending the public's money on some old wreck of a thing that ain't got as much real value as that cigar."

BOB lit a cigarette. "Culture and art, man. A lot of folks would be out of jobs, if they didn't have such things to rave about. I know. I went to an artist's party recently and heard 'em go on about composition, line and color, until it'd make your L-I-S-T just to listen. But about this statue for the Museum—did you find out the shipper or had he been tampered with and the fellow who did it?"

"Yes and no," answered Steve. "You see this fool thing was bought from a reliable firm in London that gets such things for museums and collectors, and a man came along with it to be sure that it got here okay. That's where the smuggling part comes in. The statue was of some silly-looking Egyptian god, Osi—

"Osi?"

"That's the boy. It wasn't very big and was carved out of some kind of soft stone, awfully dingy and streaked-looking. Why anyone'd want it, is beyond me."

"There's where the arty part of it comes in," Bob suggested.

Steve nodded. "I guess so. Well, it seems this guy who came along with it, had a little racket of his own on the side, buying up or stealing jewels on the other side and sneaking them in here past our customs. That's why he got a job with this outfit that shipped things from London. No one would ever suspect the representative of such a reliable house. Because of this setup his scheme had been working fine. But he finally stubbed his toe on this statue thing."

"HOW come?" prompted Bob to hurry the story to the end before Steve might be called out.

"He hollowed out a hole in the bottom of the thing, put the uncut stones in there, and plastered it over so slick you'd never suspect. If one of the men hadn't knocked it against something when he was putting it in place and knocked off a hunk of the plaster, they never would have caught on."

"Did you snag the man?" asked Bob.

"That's the no part of it," answered Steve. "Of course now if I'd been on the job, he'd not have slipped through my fingers like he did there. But somehow he got wind of what had happened, and just blew without anybody ever finding a confounded trace of him. You can see the fool statue down there in the Museum now. It's still got that hole in the soles of its feet."

"What did the fellow look like?" Bob leaned forward eagerly. "Was he tall and dark?"

"Sure, but so are plenty of people. That fellow who came with the statue had a scar across one side of his face in front of the ear. You'd think he'd be easy enough to pick up on account of it, but nobody's got him yet."

"A good facial surgeon could fix that so it wouldn't show," Bob suggested.

"Maybe, but he'd have to be really good. The scar was a bad one. We've checked on this guy as far as we could, and find he's an Italian with a police record in his own country. Not an Indian Rajah or a Russian nobleman or any of the other things he's passed himself off as."

"SUPPOSING he had had the scar removed, do you think you'd know him if you saw him in the shadow box, for instance?" asked Bob.

Steve took off his cap and ran his fingers through his thin hair. "Not sure, of course, but I believe I would. Ain't anyone on the force can identify like I can. I've proved that. Even if the guy hasn't been mugged yet." Which boast Bob happened to know was true.

Immediately the image of Professor Bracey rose before his mind's eye, the thin-lipped cruel eyes with their heaving black brows. If there was any mark of surgery on his face, the long sideburns which he effected would cover it. Very clearly now Bob remembered the day he and Steve had been sitting on a park bench discussing some police procedure and the man, he was afterward to meet as Professor Bracey, had strolled past them. He had noticed at the time the piercing look the stranger gave them.

Just then Schmatz had sniffed inquiringly at his heels. With an oath the man had kicked viciously at the dog but had missed his mark. The terrier had not forgotten, even if Bob had. Could it be?

"You say his specialty is jewels, Steve?"

"I'll say it is. He knows all about 'em. Little stu' don't ever interest him. It's the big ones or nothing. If someone should swipe one of those big babies out of the King of England's new crown, I'd think this guy was at the bottom of it. He's likely over there now probably has cleaned up on the coronation crowds."

Bob did not answer for a minute, then he asked casually, "I should be able to pick him up there'd be a sizeable reward, wouldn't it?"

"Enough to keep me in cigar for a week or two," Steve grinned. "Why? Know where you can lay your hands on him? Might be some of your story detectives or him. They can do such a lot of things the real force would never think of. But let me in on it, if you do."

"Maybe I will, Steve," Bob told him soberly.

Peasants Rely Upon Wine As Forecaster

VIENNA—When an Austrian peasant wants to know whether he can safely undertake some field work, requiring sunshine, in the next days, he descends into his cellar and puts his ear to the wine barrels.

To him, wine is not a luxury. It is on his daily bill of fare, the laborers also receive their ration of wine with their dinner.

But wine is not only food and drink, and occasionally a banisher of care to him, but also a barometer which he considers infallible.

It is known that when the wine stands in blossom in the yards, the wine in the barrels becomes restless in its cask and begins to sing. This phenomenon has not yet been explained. Nor does one know why, long before man and animal have the faintest presentiment of the coming event, the wine in Sicilian cellars becomes riotous and announces, thereby, the impending volcanic eruption.

A change in the weather in Austria invariably is preceded by bubbles rising in the wine barrels. They produce a faint noise which one can perceive by putting an ear to the wood.

To the Austrian peasant, the wine is a far more reliable announcer of weather changes than the finest barometer.

This peculiar quality of wine is being scientifically investigated. Some scientists believe it has to do with atmospheric electricity, especially with short waves, while others are inclined to ascribe the strange behavior of the wine to chemical influences.

The Senate okay's a 10-cent loan on cotton. But the farmer can hardly get relief workers to pick it for that.

"Science metaphysics, as revealed to spiritual understanding, shows clearly that all is Mind, and that Mind is God, omnipotence, omniscience, omniscience, that is, all power, all presence, all Science. Hence all is in reality the manifestation of Mind" (page 275).

RELIGION OF A NATION

Text: Exodus 25:1-2, 8-9; 29:45-46; 40:34-35

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

DOES a nation need religion? That is the great question that is confronting America today, at a time when vast numbers of people seem to have lost interest in the religious faith and practice of their forefathers.

Even in many cases where people continue association with the church, and attend its services regularly or irregularly, they have lost that sense of devotion and the recognition of religion as the commanding interest in their lives that was more common a generation ago.

Of course, to offset this, one could point to a deep reality and intensity of religion that is very marked, though it may not be so widespread. There was plenty of faith in ancient Israel, even in the darkest days, as Elijah was reminded when he spoke of himself as the only one who had not bowed the knee to Baal; and there is plenty of faith in our modern America, despite the apathy and indifference of the many.

BUT does a nation need religion? If a nation has wealth, prosperity, provision for pleasure, and freedom from want and suffering, does a nation need more?

The value of this lesson is the answer that it gives to that question from the life of ancient Israel. As one surveys the thrilling and tragic story of the children of Israel as recorded in the Old Testament, one realizes at once that prosperity and self-sufficiency are not enough.

It was in the prosperous days of Israel that the nation, not realizing it, was facing its direst peril. It was in the abundance of wealth that the poor were forgotten, and that the strong used their power to oppress, and aggrandize themselves.

Israel had to learn, in the experience of extreme defeat and suffering, that there are things in a nation's life that cannot be measured just in terms of outward prosperity.

No people is free from want and suffering. No people is free from deep spiritual wants, though these may be disregarded and neglected when everything seems full of sunshine, and there is no cloud either in the heart or upon the daily way.

Instantly and inevitably in the deeper experiences of life, men have turned to some power higher than themselves. But the need that men have felt at such times is just as much a need, if they would but realize it, at all times.

PERHAPS the greatest thing that the Old Testament contributes to human life is this conception of a nation or people chosen and sanctified.

The great mistake that the false leaders of Israel made was in assuming that God's choice of the Israelites was arbitrary. The fact was that God's choice involved responsibility. It was in the nature of a call. Any people is chosen who will do God's will. Modern Americans are just as truly called of God as were the ancient Israelites. The same obligations and responsibilities are theirs if they will but realize it.

Moses had a sound conception of human life and society. He knew that at the center of any system of social welfare and prosperity there must be a sanctuary in which a people concentrate themselves to high ideals and right living.

We have our national sanctuaries today, places made sacred by the service that men and women rendered in the past, but we need a deeper sanctuary which represents the highest consecration that we can give to God and to our country, not to use their power to oppress, and aggrandize themselves.

Israel had to learn, in the experience of extreme defeat and suffering, that there are things in a nation's life that cannot be measured just in terms of outward prosperity.

But listening to some of the stories about the finest runner of the day, you would suspect that Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons sold Seabiscuit down the river without giving him too much of a chance.

Certainly, Mrs. C. S. Howard got a bargain in Seabiscuit at $8000. But only a few days before the wife of the San Francisco automobile dealer purchased Seabiscuit from Ogden Mills, the son of Harl Tack could have been claimed for $5500. That was exactly one year ago when he won the Mohawk at Saratoga.

Today Seabiscuit couldn't be bought for $100,000.

SEABISCUIT won $28,975 before his third year was out, missed bagging the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap by a nostril, and since has won seven rich purses to swell his total for the year to $142,825. He has established track records in his last two outings, the most recent one in the $70,530 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

But don't think that Fitzsimmons, one of the greatest of trainers, didn't labor with Seabiscuit at the barrier and with and without blinkers.

Thoroughbred made handlers regret sales long before the first pari-mutuel ticket was printed. They arrive—find themselves—just like human beings.

A. A. Baron grabbed Top Row out of a $3500 claiming race, and grossed $200,000 with the little son of Penn's and his dam, and since has won seven rich purses to swell his total for the year to $142,825. He has established track records in his last two outings, the most recent one in the $70,530 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

You Can't Advertise Today and Quit Tomorrow

You're Not Talking to a Mass Meeting . . . You're Talking to a Parade!

BRUCE BARTON

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights . . . it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent a year. Advertising - made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however, favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertisement paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half-finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he quits successful, he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously—or perhaps reluctantly is a better word . . . THE BALD TRUTH IS THAT THESE RELUCTANT SPENDERS ARE, AS A CLASS, THE REAL OVER-SPENDERS IN ADVERTISING!

Miss Sarah Taylor, formerly of Ranger, became the bride of Dr.
Charles H. McCollum, of Fort Worth, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in a pretty ring ceremony read at the attractive home of Mrs. Annis Wallace, 2333 Daisy avenue, Fort Worth, with the Dr.
Carnell officiating.

The bride chose for her wedding gown a handsome dove gray with navy accessories. Her corsage was fashioned of orchids.

The wedding party was made up of immediate members of the families and group of close friends.

in charge of the ladies-ready-to-wear department at J. C. Pen-

After a honeymoon trip Dr.
and Mrs. McCollum will be at home, 2806 Sixth street.

Congratulations are being received by friends in this section of the State where they both are known.

CHURCHES

ST. RITA'S CATHOLIC CHURCH

S. E. Byrne, rector
Today is the fourteenth Sunday after Pentecost. Masses today are at 7 and 9 o'clock, a. m.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament this evening at 7:30.

Masses each day during the week and 7 and 8 o'clock.

The contrast between uncondi-tioned trust in God and the continual worry about one's immediate temporal interests is the theme of today's Mass. August is the time of harvest and the liturgy bids us
look out upon the fields and flowers and from them learn more deeply the truth that all things are in God's hands.

The Introit speaks of God as protector. It asks God to "look in the face of thy Christ." This is, of course, the reason why we may be confident of the protecting care of God. It is not because we have done anything noteworthy by our own power, but because we have been incorporated into the Mystical Body of Christ. God the Father loves and protects us because He sees us in our relation to Christ. This indicates a course of action for the Christian. He should try to understand his dignity as a member of the Body of Christ rather than shut himself up in the tower of his own egotism and inferior his days in fretting.

The public is cordially invited to attend all Masses and other devotions at St. Rita's church.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Morning Worship 11 a. m. At this hour we will have a layman
from Breckenridge, Mr. R. E. Lee, a Commissioner from the Presbytery of Abilene, to the General Assembly at Columbus, Ohio, to make a report of that meeting. Mr.
Lee will tell us about the progress of the church, what it is doing,
and what is our duty concerning
it. Not only Presbyterians but all Christians will be interested in
Mr. Lee's message. Be sure to hear him.

We are looking forward with great interest to the Fifth Sunday
Conference for Presbyterians
Young People which meets here
on August 29th. Former Conferences in Ranger have been largely attended. The church must get ready for this one. A meeting of the Church Session is called for next Wednesday night, to arrange the details. Further announcements at the church this morning.

Vacation season will soon be over. Let us get ready for a vigorous fall campaign for the Master and for the Church.

Blue Ribbon, C-type, long fleece, registered Angora goat of the Junction Goat Show, recently bought by J. F. Donley to head the herd of Donley Bros. goats on their ranch near Ireland, Texas, in Coryell county. The goat is now located on the "Red" Donley farm near Ranger and will be taken to Coryell county in few days.
Donley said Friday he expected to get in the registered goat business in a more substantial way and next year he would have a number of billies sired from the Junction animal for sale. John Thurman, manager of the Terrell ranch bought four bucks from Donley and will move them to his place near Staff.

Art of Tobacco Chewing on Decline Over the Nation

ATLANTA, Ga.—The fine art of tobacco chewing promised to become a lost art today as the number of chewers in the nation
declined steadily and there was little hope of rebuilding the chewing tobacco market.

Officials of major tobacco companies reported an increasingly sharp decline in chewing tobacco sales this year.

At the same time, big company
buyers in Georgia's tobacco belt laughed at the decrease in demand for chewing tobacco and blamed
it on paved streets and speedy automobiles.

One buyer with a large Virginia
company said, "A man just naturally doesn't like to expectorate on a paved street." He said the expectoration necessitated by tobacco chewing was not so noticeable on dirt streets and roads, but that modern paving was making tobacco chewers self-conscious.

He also pointed out that chewing has its disadvantages. A wagon, he said, is the proper vehicle in which to chew tobacco if you must ride while chewing.

Other buyers in Georgia—most of them from Virginia and North Carolina—said today's younger generation was being encouraged to smoke cigarettes.

A few years ago, a young boy in a small rural village did not reach manhood until he could chew and squirt tobacco juice
through a knothole ten or more feet away.

Now, however, the buyers report, that when a chewer died, the chewing tobacco industry loses another customer and there are few replacements.

attitudes a public health problem
and also the necessity of its more general recognition.

Undulant fever is so named because of the wave-like variations in temperature. The symptoms include rise in temperature, loss
of weight and strength, chills, sweat and joint pains. The disease has rather a low mortality rate, but is important because symptoms may persist for a number of weeks and even months before normal health and strength are restored," Dr. Cox explained.

In Texas, the goat, horse and cows are the usual spreader of this disease. The germs of undulant fever enter the body through the mouth or skin. Therefore, care should be used in handling animals known to be infected and dairy products from the same sources should be pasteurized, if used. More men acquire this disease than women and adults seem more likely to have it than children. More cases are found in the rural areas than in cities.

Prevention of undulant fever is based upon the detection of the disease in live stock and the elimination of the infected animals from the herds. Dairy herds should be tested for Bacillus abortus.
This is a task that cannot be accomplished in a short time. Pasteurization of milk will prevent the spread from this source.

Frequently, there is much alarm
in a community when undulant fever is recognized there. However, there is little cause for apprehension, as many people are not susceptible to the infection.
The disease will probably never appear in Texas as an epidemic;
however, to the unfortunate who contract it, it is a most discouraging experience both from the stand point of the patient's well being and the family economics.

It Stalin calls them for it, those Russians at the North Pole will have a melting defense for having left the post of duty.

Malta Fever Being Reported In State

AUSTIN—Undulant or Malta fever, a disease contracted from cattle, hogs, or sheep which are infected with contagious abortion, is being reported fairly regularly
through Texas, according to State Health Officer, Geo. W. Cox.
This indicates the fever con-

School In Berkshires Reverses Vacations

By United Press
PERU, Mass.—Peru children
are going to school in midsummer
while most other children are enjoying their summer vacation.
Because of the snowdrifts in the Berkshire hills, farmhouses are often isolated, and the one-room school house is closed from Christmas to March 1.

Nothing is too trivial for a hobbyist to collect, which might mean that the tax man just might his rounds for fun outside regular working hours.
