FARM INCOME IN SOUTHWEST EXCEEDS 1936

Set at Best Since 1929 Result Sharp Rise in Crop Value

By Carl Lundquist KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The greatest farm income for southwest states since 1929 appeared likely this year but some labor difficulties here late in the year added to the general business recession. The best grazing season in years brought an increase of 145,881 in cattle receipts on the open market and 26,703 in calf receipts. Grain fed cattle were scarce and packers concentrated on grass fat offerings, grazed selections bringing the highest prices since 1929. Prices turned down late in the year as demand eased. Against this hog production was at the lowest ebb since Kansas City was established as a major market, showing a loss of 329,294 in the open market under 1936. Since corn essentially is used in large scale production of choice pork, many raisers found it impossible to continue in the swine business with feed prices the highest since the war. Sheep and lambs were in larger supply due mainly to the large increases in native farm flocks. Scarcity of choice beef—reflected in higher prices for beef cuts in retail markets—is shown by the fact that packers' purchases of cattle and calves decreased despite the increased open market receipts. This mainly was because a great portion of the receipts were for stocker and feeder cattle which go back to other farms for fattening and finishing rather than to the slaughter houses. Wheat receipts at the five interior southwestern markets—Kansas City, Hutchinson and Wichita, Kas., Omaha, Neb., and St. Joseph, Mo.—in the first 10 months totaled 167,613,000 bushels compared with 118,118,000 last year. Receipts were the best since 1931 but marketings were 25 per cent under the 10 year average as many farmers stored grain hoping for higher prices. Corn receipts in the reserve district were 51.3 per cent smaller than 1936. Late in the year there was a diminution in business in the district but wholesale sales for 1937 are estimated 6.3 per cent higher than 1936, retail sales were 5.1 per cent higher and department store sales 4.7 per cent higher. Employment in the district showed a gain of 2 per cent in the year to October while payrolls showed an increase of 6 per cent.

Pneumonia Is a Seasonal Disease Health Head Warns

AUSTIN, Texas.—Pneumonia is a seasonal disease, in that the incidence and mortality is much increased during wet, cold weather, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. It is more prevalent and serious in towns where contacts with people are common. Pneumonia is always dangerous but it is especially so to persons in a run down condition. This accounts for the number of cases following illness with some other disease. The germs that cause pneumonia are spread by careless coughers, sneezers, spitters, and the things that they thus infect. The first symptoms are usually a severe chill and fever, a very sick feeling, loss of appetite, rapid breathing, and a heavy sensation in the chest. Sometimes coughing brings up blood from the inflamed lungs. Any of these signs should be the signal for going to bed at once and sending for your doctor. The familiar rules of the prevention of other respiratory diseases apply to pneumonia. These rules should become personal habits and not be put on off at times of prevalence or absence of disease. Persons should avoid careless coughers and sneezers, even if you have to be rude. Wash your hands thoroughly before each meal. Keep your hands, pencils, money and other such things away from your mouth and nose. Get plenty of fresh air day and night. Exercise and eat in moderation and wear clothing suitable for the weather. Pneumonia ranks second as a cause of death in Texas. In 1932 almost six thousand persons died of this disease. It should be remembered that contagious and infectious diseases cannot be decreased or eliminated without the cooperation of the people and that means that people who are sick with contagious or infectious diseases should be isolated and visited as little as possible by relatives and friends.

COOPERATIVE RESPONSE SEEN BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Close friends of President Roosevelt said today that the chief executive hoped for a cooperative response from business to his message as an aid in fighting business recession. The source declared that the reaction to the congressional message may go a long way toward determining what the president will say at the Jackson Day celebration Saturday night. Mr. Roosevelt was said to feel that the door was open to business cooperation with the administration. The description of white house views was presented as congress contemplated possibility a major inquiry into business conditions, particularly those affecting anti-trust problems. White House aids reported hundreds of messages and telephone calls had been received on the congressional message and they were almost entirely favorable. Tomorrow congress will receive Mr. Roosevelt's annual budget message. The next communication to congress will possibly be an appeal for a larger navy and later he plans to propose anti-trust legislation. Presidential friends described the president as feeling he is leading a fight for an overwhelming majority of business men. This majority was pictured as being "squeezed from the top" by less than 1100 huge corporations which produced 65 per cent of the nation's consumable goods. Following the budget message the house and senate will get to work on the program which Speaker William Bankhead hoped would be completed in April. First item on the senate program will be debate on the anti-lynching bill, which faces a filibuster. Senate Minority Leader Charles McNary of Oregon believed President Roosevelt's message implied a desire to amend the Wagner Labor Act and place greater responsibility upon labor unions.

Congressional Right to Look Ridiculous

The proofreader is a noble person with whom, unfortunately, people who have nothing to do with writing and printing never get acquainted.

In ordinary newspaper offices, a proofreader is preternaturally wise, scholarly little cubbyhole and devotes himself to the melancholy task of ferreting out errors of grammar, spelling, fact, punctuation or topography in the works of the hired hands.

The bash young gentlemen of the press have a way of speaking of him as "the comma hound." As creative souls, they get irritable when their mistakes in the matter of names, addresses and historical facts are called to their attention but at bottom they know that the proofreader saves them from looking ridiculous, full many a time and oft.

All of which is by way of introduction to the fact that Uncle Sam has a set of proofreaders on his payroll. They go over the matter which is printed in the Congressional Record—can one imagine a more soul-killing task?—and the most recent complaint about them centers about the fact that they do their job too well.

Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas makes the complaint. In a letter to the Government Printing Office, he protests that the federal comma hounds make congressmen look wiser and more learned than they really are. He ought to know, for he admits that they recently performed that favor for him.

Speaking from the floor of the House, Mr. Maverick referred the other day to David and his coat of many colors—an error which, if spread on the records, would have branded him forever either as a man with a poor memory or as a distressingly inept student of the Bible. But the proofreaders saved him when the speech got printed, it spoke of Joseph, not of David.

A little before that, continues Mr. Maverick, a congressman spoke of Lieutenant Hobson's feat of sinking the Merrimac in Manila Bay—an error of fact to the extent of some 10,000 miles. But the proofreaders came to the rescue, and in the Congressional Record the Merrimac was sunk where it belonged, in Sanitago Bay.

This sort of thing, says Mr. Maverick, is common. Congressmen are saved daily from all manner of ridiculous errors by these G-men of the proof press. The Texan says he once knew a congressman whose grammar was exceptionally, ludicrously bad but in the Record he always sounded like a college professor, so alert and canny were the proofreaders.

Which seems to us to be too bad. Our vaunted freedom ought to include the liberty of a congressman to make a spectacle of himself whenever nature so moves him. There never has been any tradition that our congressmen were models of erudition and classical English the tradition, indeed, goes the other way. (Consult, for instance, the legendary "Change the Name of Arkansas?" speech).

CAST OF CHARACTERS: LINDA BENTON—Hostess, sister of a famous singer. HARRY TRENT—Her fiance, a famous singer. MIRANDA TRENT—Harry's grandmother, a "strong woman."

in spite of having been brought up like a china mantel-piece, you had backbone enough to go out and carve yourself a slice of the world? When Linda would have spoken, the old lady cut her off with an imperious gesture. "For if," she pursued, "you had known anything about me, you would have understood that the one thing I cannot stomach is a helpless nobby-pamby. . . . And even if I hadn't had to take my hat off to you for the way you faced down that pack of curiosity seekers the other day, I should never have thought of questioning my grandson's choice."

Linda smiled a little dubious smile and knew that she would never be afraid of Miranda Trent again.

ONCE back in the old house, it seemed to Linda as if she had never been away—except that that bare, dried-up Christmas tree no longer shed needles in the front parlor.

The days settled naturally into the old routine—only with a difference. Old Miranda began to consult Linda more and more about the details of their daily life.

"For after all, my dear Linda," the old lady said, "in due time this house will be yours. You must learn to administer it as a Trent should."

With the sturdy common sense that was so inescapably a part of her, Miranda Trent knew that come famine, flood, or earthquake, life must go on after a fashion. It was perhaps the greatest kindness she could have done Linda to keep her busy.

Not that life with old Miranda was a bed of roses—or ever could be. But Linda was learning to be amused rather than hurt when the old lady's weakness for the telling phrase got the better of her kindness, and her caustic tongue ran away with her.

One evening, almost a week after Linda's return, old Miranda looked up to say, "Why not tune into your friend Tony's program? Perhaps the elephants will sing. . . . Do you know, I'm not at all sure he hadn't already picked his elephants that last night."

a trained elephant; it was a troop of singing canaries.

LINDA was just about to snap the radio off again when an excited voice broke in, "Ladies and gentlemen, we interrupt our regular program to bring you a special broadcast from Panama. I am not sure, but I think there is news from the lost Aurelius expedition. . . . Just a moment please."

It seemed an hour that Linda sat trembling, with her finger nails biting into her palms. Then another voice called: "Hello! hello, the United States of America! This is Station WJB with some news which we hope may mean the end of agonizing suspense to many there at home. The members of the lost Aurelius Scientific Expedition have been located in the Central American jungle where their plane was forced down almost two weeks ago."

"In spite of the hardships the party have endured, all are in excellent condition with the exception of the pilot, Lieutenant Rust, who was slightly injured in the landing, and who has been brought by plane into Bilbao. All other members remained in the temporary camp they established after their plane crashed. Supplies and equipment are being carried to them by boat and pack trains to supplement the emergency rations carried by the plane that made the rescue."

"And now, ladies and gentlemen, we want to introduce the daring young United States Navy pilot who made this spectacular rescue. . . . Captain Trent is naturally very tired, and is not anxious to talk about his amazing feat; but I think he has a message he would like to send to those at home."

Then Barry's voice: "I only want to send New Year's greetings to—two who may be listening up there—to my grandmother, Mrs. Miranda Trent, and to my—my wife, Linda Benton Trent." He hesitated, then added abruptly, "Well, that's all, I think."

"Oh, but, Captain Trent," the announcer put in, "there are still so many things we aren't up to date on, even down here. For instance, we know that your plane was completely demolished by that storm you ran into; yet you landed a plane in that jungle and flew Lieutenant Rust out in it. I hope you won't mind telling us at least where you came up with that second plane?"

Q. What was the general purpose of the adoption of General Teran's military and colonization measures? A. To prevent, by resort to military force if necessary, efforts on the part of the United States and of Anglo-American settlers to secure control of Texas and to encourage the settlement of Texas by Mexicans and Europeans. Teran did not recommend the suspension of the 1824 colonization law, and at the request of Austin succeeded in getting the Austin and DeWitt colonies exempted from the objectionable provisions of the new law these being the only American colonies in which the contracts had largely been fulfilled.

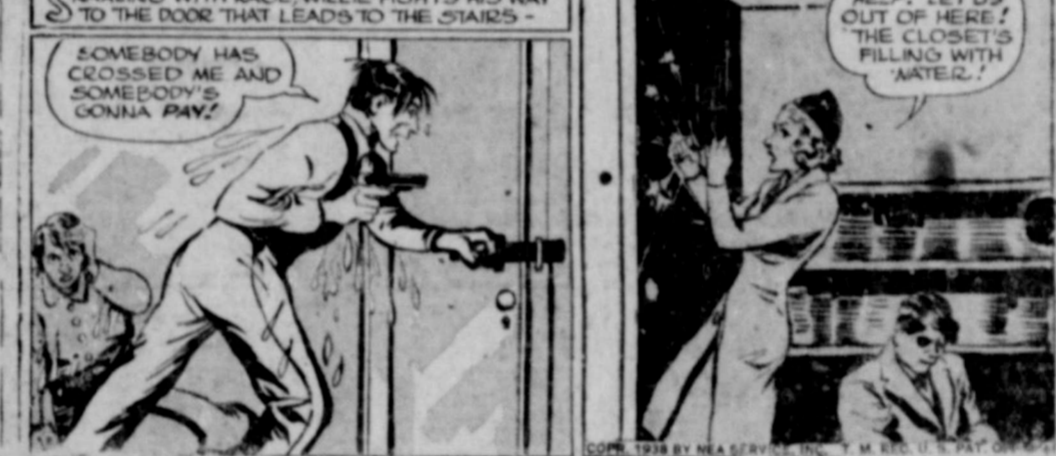

Q. What inducement did the State of Coahuila and Texas offer unmarried men to marry Mexicans? A. While unmarried men were allowed grants to only one-fourth as much land as married men received, those who married Mexican women were granted one-

Golden Wedding Knot Is Re-Tied. By United Press ATLANTIC CITY, N. They were first married half a century ago in Kiev, Russia. The husband is a retired tailor. The fond mother who wouldn't let Johnny go out for football is now showing him how to break through tackle at the bargain counters.

Q. What Texas lawyers were sent to Mexico to represent Austin? A. Peter W. Grayson and Spencer H. Jack, both able lawyers went to Mexico City, with petitions for Austin's release from the ayuntamientos throughout Texas, reaching there October 14, but they were unacquainted with Mexican legal procedure, and had to employ an attorney to represent them.

Marchie Marches

Marchmont Schwartz and his bride, the former Rose Marie O'Donnell of Omaha, following their marriage in the Log Chapel of the University of Notre Dame, where the current head coach of Creighton University was an All-America halfback in 1931.

NEW YORK—Celebrating the 20th anniversary, the board of governors pitched a party for Frank Calder, who has been present since the circuit was founded. On Sept. 28, 1929, all restrictions were removed from forward passes in all areas. The penalty shot, a spectacular addition, was changed only this winter to give the shot-making player a better chance. There also were moves to curb the icing of the puck.

Another thing the powers that be have neglected to correct is the problem of ties. There are altogether too many of them. The great majority of the customers dislike to be sent out into the cold night following 10 minutes of overtime during which the combatants get so close to a decisive result that they did in the regulation hour.

WHY not one short or long, as the case may be, sudden death period? In other words, let them skate it out. The folks might be a little late for breakfast on rare occasions, but they would enjoy it, and that would be the magistrates' and athletes' first thought.

ONE of the principal reasons for the tremendous interest in baseball year in and year out is that there practically always is a winner. The three areas of the ice, the forward pass in the center area, and kicking the puck in the center area all came into existence in the season of 1918-19 to mark the most sweeping changes. In 1921 it became permissible for goalers to pass forward in defensive areas. On Sept. 24, 1927, legislation was effected whereby forward passes could be made in attacking zones. On Sept. 28, 1929, all restrictions were removed from forward passes in all areas. The penalty shot, a spectacular addition, was changed only this winter to give the shot-making player a better chance. There also were moves to curb the icing of the puck.

JACK CLEM (right) is a salesman, and a good one too! He says: "I usually sell ideas to other people. But I'm the one who got sold on Prince Albert 'makin's' tobacco. Most of my customers smoke P. Say, Murray Benton (left) comes back, "if everything in your sample case was as good as Prince Albert, you'd fill up your order book in no time. Look at the way these P. ## "I Have Called You Friends"

A lesson which shall linger long in the minds of members of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Christian church marked the first program of the New Year Monday afternoon, with the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Marion Thomas. Mrs. L. N. Egan, leader, based her topic, "I Have Called you Friends" on a beautiful poem which she recently composed.

Devotional was said by Mrs. Glen Simmons and others having interesting part were Mrs. H. E. Johnson, Mrs. E. T. Matthews, and Mrs. J. C. Carothers. Mrs. L. E. Herring, president of the society presided over the business period and all church night was announced for Thursday of this week at 7:30 o'clock. Pie and coffee will be served and friends of members are invited.

When Mrs. J. C. Carothers acts as hostess at her home Desdemona boulevard Thursday afternoon, to the society honor guest will be the State secretary, Mrs. J. C. Hart.

Present for Monday's program were: Misses E. T. Matthews, L. E. Herring, L. N. Bryan, Glen Simmons, J. C. Carothers, R. S. Dudley, Raymond West, W. E. Johnson, and Miss Ethel Adams.

Following is the poem which was so impressively interpreted throughout the lesson chapters:

To our friends, we should always be true,

For we need them all the way through;

When sorrow and sadness comes to our home

We look for a way to the friend on the throne.

Jesus is a friend on whom we can depend,

While thinking of Him our time is well spent

He watches over us through the night while we sleep;

No other one is so gentle and sweet.

He gives us strength day by day to work and travel along life's way.

He sends the sunshine and the rain, Also the flower that bloom in the spring.

He is our friend at all times, why should we not listen to his voice as it chimes.

He gives us light that we may see, the way to follow in steps with three;

Now let us all be friends that are true, for Jesus is our friend all the way through.

Let us work and pray when we are together,

This way we can be friends forever.

The following story furnished by Mrs. R. O. Kretzschmar, of Austin, will be of interest to many in Ranger since all local branches of the organization accomplished much during the past year and have a splendid program of work for 1938.

The forty-eight members of the Board of Managers of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, presidents of the State Teachers Colleges of Texas and other prominent educators and leaders in child welfare work will gather here (at Austin) Jan. 11, for the ceremony incident to laying of the cornerstone in the new Texas Congress home at 480 West Eleventh Street.

The home is a headquarters building for the Texas Congress and has been occupied by the State office force since the latter part of November.

Coincident with the January meeting of the Texas Congress Board of Managers here, the cornerstone-laying ceremony is scheduled for 11:30 o'clock in the morning of January 11. The home will be open to the public for inspection, beginning at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Edmund Heinsohn, pastor of the University Methodist church, Austin, will pronounce the invocation.

Mrs. Will T. Decherd, chairman of the building committee, will present the building to Mrs. M. A. Taylor of Bonham, State Congress president. Mrs. Taylor will make a short address following which she will present the past State Congress presidents, Mrs. Ella Caruther Porter, Dallas, founder of the Texas Congress; Mrs. Chalmers Hutchison of Fort Worth; Mrs. F. W. McAllister of San Antonio; Mrs. E. A. Watters of Fort Worth; Mrs. S. M. M. Marrs, Austin; Mrs. C. E. Maddocks of Ranger; Mrs. Moyes Darling Smith of Austin, and Mrs. A. F. Wood of Athens. Each past president has been invited to bring a short message.

Mother singers of the John T. Allen High school P.-T. A. will present several numbers to complete the program.

The past presidents of the Texas Congress and the present president together with members of the building committee, will place some of the mortar when the building architect, Roy L. Thomas, and the contractor, Scott Yonnas, both of Austin, lay the cornerstone.

The ceremony will be broadcast over Radio Station KNOW, beginning at 11:40.

The luncheon sponsored by the Austin Council of Presidents will honor Congress board members and other guests at 12:30 in the Junior Ball Room of the Union Building on the University of Texas campus. Attendance at the luncheon has been set tentatively at between 150 and 200 persons.

Mrs. C. E. Maddocks and Mrs. F. E. Jacobs are members of the state board of managers and will attend the above services.

New Year Announces Mrs. J. A. Johnson President of W. M. S.
Twenty-two members of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Methodist church pledged their open resolutions at the Monday afternoon meeting which gives true promise as being a splendid year. Program theme for 1938, "Methodist Women and the World-Wide Community."

Subject for yesterday, "Our Gifts for World-Wide Missions," Mrs. J. A. Johnson is the new president, succeeding Mrs. C. E. May, who merits much praise for her fine efforts during the year closed. Mrs. Johnson prefaced the lesson with an inspirational talk and the scripture was given by Mrs. Don Mimsiek of Olden. "Workers in China" was well discussed by Mrs. Williams of Staff. Budget report was offered by Mrs. Ray Campbell. Mrs. Jimmie Burrage, in her able manner, talked on "Our Dollars at Work in the World." It was voted to serve the young people's league at Sunday's evening service. Jan. 11 will be given over to business and bulletin conducted by Mrs. J. A. Johnson and Mrs. F. E. Jacobs.

County Council to Convene in Ranger
The Eastland County council of parents and teachers will meet in Ranger Jan. 8, in the high school auditorium, at 2:30 o'clock. The council is composed of officers and representatives from eighteen associations in Eastland county. Mrs. L. C. Cash of Pioneer is president, and will preside. This particular meeting should be one of the outstanding sessions of the month.

Texas Government
Thursday Afternoon the 1920 club will gather in the Colonial room, Ghoshon hotel, for the program, "Texas Government," with Mrs. W. L. Jackson as better speech leader, and Mrs. Carl Hill co-leader of the topic to be discussed. Members are looking forward to a year of constructive study and members are asked by the president, Mrs. J. W. Ducker, to be present for the first program of the new year.

First District Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers Conducting Educational Feature
The First District of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers is conducting a series of weekly broadcasts over station KTAT. Outstanding educators from the district's seventeen counties are taking part on these programs. Ranger's contribution will be heard during the month of February. Eastland and Callahan counties have been assigned the month of March. Programs are to be planned by Mrs. D. Ball of Cisco. Only recently Aubry Jameson of Breckenridge, formerly of Ranger, was heard in a most splendid talk.

Saving Association Members Will Meet
C. E. May, secretary of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Ranger, announced today the directors of the company met Monday afternoon and decided to hold a breakfast Saturday morning, Jan. 15, at which time the annual report would be read and directors elected for the coming year.

The meeting will be held at the Paramount hotel at 7 o'clock in the morning, and a breakfast will be served to members present.

Rambling With The Rambler

BY WAYNE WALLACE

There is really very little difference between individuals and the nations the individuals collectively represent. Frequently people do things that are wrong, thinking very little about it at the time; yet they immediately resent the same thing done by a neighbor. The past few years have given us a good example of this, not as concerns individuals but rather as it concerns nations.

Anyone that has ever read the history of England and France knows that these two nations, as well as others, have robbed and cheated lesser nations out of their lands and possessions. Yet today, when other nations do the same thing they raise the loudest howl about the injustice of it. They must have a reason for doing so. Wonder if it cannot be traced back to—

January 18, 1919, some two months after the Armistice had been signed, representatives of the conquering powers met at Paris to draw up a treaty for terms of peace. This treaty, compiled for the most part by Wilson, Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Orlando, was presented to Germany on June 28, 1919, in the great Hall of Mirrors in the palace at Versailles. The contents of this treaty imposed the most severe terms of the German people. Besides restoring Alsace-Lorraine to France it also asked the vanquished nation to surrender all of her colonies, which were divided up among the Allies, that is with the exception of the United States, according to promises made in the secret treaties during the war. Although this treaty contained many other clauses for the punishment of Germany still it is noteworthy that it was drawn up with an eye for gain. They not only punished Germany; they also humiliated her by robbing her, a then helpless nation, of her possessions. And England and France, certainly had a big hand in it.

The article is by no means written in defense of unjust aggressors but merely to show that Germany, despite the fact that she also pulled stunts of a like nature, does have some cause for grievance and to show that other nations are not quite as innocent as they would have us believe. In view of which it does not seem imprudent to predict that Germany is, sometime or another, going to try and get her lost colonies back or, at least, their equivalent. This may explain why England and France, in particular, are so disturbed on this subject. They have several of them in their possession and they do not want to lose them. All of which would be of little interest to us except for one thing, and that is the fact that these two nations are on the spot as far as Germany is concerned and they know it. They would feel a lot safer if they had more help, especially since Hitler has a pact drawn up between Italy and Japan, and, apparently, are determined to draw us into some sort of an alliance with themselves in order to help cope with the situation.

IT'S ICE WORK IF YOU CAN TAKE IT

Ice cold cuties are Jacqueline Gladney, left, and Lorraine Hilliard, a-dunking off Seaside Heights, N. J. "Hot dog! Ain't we having an ice time?" they shriek. But the splashed pooch seems to feel differently. Insignia on the mermaids' suits proclaims their membership in the Pelican Island Polar Club.

France is in accord with England in whatever she does; still it is the latter that will cause this country her greatest worry. For one reason or another many of our leaders have evinced an interest in Great Britain out of all proportion to what she deserves. Perhaps it is because we speak, practically the same language and our customs are somewhat similar.

Yet it is well to remember that England forfeited any right we may have owed her shortly before the evolutionary war and has done nothing since to regain it. In fact, if we may judge by her present attitude, we are of interest to her only in proportion to what she can get out of us. Only recently in the House of Lords, a member said in effect that if England expected help from the United States she ought to pay some on the war debt she owes this country. Yes, pay us, not because it is a lawful debt she has contracted, but because she might need our help. But back to her recent maneuvers with regard to this country.

Despite the fact no one felt the nine power Conference held at Brussels would turn out to be anything other than a flop, England most of all; still it went through on schedule. Was it because Great Britain thought the time was ripe to inveigle us into her foreign difficulties? After this farce failed to do anything other than show the American people were not interested in England and her foreign entanglements, she immediately set out to establish a "reciprocal" trade agreement between herself and the United States; Secretary of State Hull and Prime Minister Chamberlain sponsoring it. Just what the formula of this agreement will be is doubtful; still there is one thing that we can be certain of and that is that it will be to Great Britain's advantage. England has never been known to slight herself.

However, to sum up the situation, the most encouraging thing about it is the attitude of the American people in becoming involved in foreign entanglements. We are against war and anything that might cause us to become participants in one, and have expressed ourselves on this subject in no uncertain terms, that is the majority of us.

The foregoing might also lend some credence to the theory that the anti-Communist treaty drawn up between Germany, Italy and Japan will eventually be scrapped as both Italy and Japan shared in the Versailles treaty. This and the fact that treaties don't mean anything for those countries anyway.

For the present, however, they need each others help and will probably stay together.

A side glance: "The stern war lords of the Rising Sun," sounds like a sentence out of an imaginative book about a strange planet; yet it is but a reference to Japan and her generals. Another name that has the same fictitious ring to it is "the land of the Midnight Sun." It is such applicable names as these, however, that lends some color and appeal to our every day life.
