ALLRED ASKS MORE LEASES BE CANCELLED

By United Press
AUSTIN, Feb. 8.—Gov. Allred today called on the attorney general to cancel nine more oil leases awarded by State Land Commissioner William McDonald.

The leases are in the Gulf of Mexico, off Jefferson County.

The governor asked suits to set aside the awards on all tracts in that area awarded to I. E. Harwell and associates, with the exception of one tract upon which a well is being drilled.

Allred's letter to the attorney general's department reviewed the recent hearing of the senate committee investigating land affairs and criticized the awards as giving the bidders a "free ride in a gamble for a fortune," by paying only $1 an acre in cash and other payments in oil. In accepting the bids he said the land commissioner turned down $103,200 in cash offers.

Yesterday Allred asked cancellation of a lease in Laguna Madre.

HULL SAYS U. S. NAVY HAS NO FOREIGN TIES

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in a letter read to the senate today denied that the United States has any alliance with a foreign power concerning use of the American navy.

Chairman Key Pittman of Nevada read to the senate a letter from Hull which answered three questions raised in a resolution by Sen. Hiram Johnson of California.

The resolution, designed to clarify rumors there was an understanding with Great Britain, has asked whether there was any agreement with any power, whether the use of the navy, or whether there was any agreement for the U. S. to patrol certain waters in emergencies.

"The answer," Hull informed Pittman, "to all three questions is no."

Hull's answer came as senate tension increased over foreign affairs and defense plans. The senate foreign affairs committee was warned that continuation of the present trend in foreign affairs will "end in war" in which democracies will be at a disadvantage.

Admiral William Leahy meanwhile told the house naval affairs committee that battleships, while best of all modern defense weapons, could be sunk by aerial bombs or torpedoes.

Leahy, chief of U. S. Naval Operations, explained that modern battleships could be sunk only if "struck often enough in the right places." Vulnerability of super-dreadnaughts to aerial attacks, long has been argued among naval officers.

The administration's rewritten farm bill came up in the house amid shouts of "gag rule" by its opponents. The bill's most bitter opponents conceded that the crop control measure would be passed by nightfall.

How Would the People Cure the Depression?

The United States is a democracy, and the people are supposed to run it, through their chosen representatives. But just how directly the influence of the people is felt in Washington and the various state capitals is open to debate.

When crises arise, the President holds long and anxious consultations with his official advisers; Congress engages in wordy debates; industrialists, statisticians, college professors, and other experts harangue congressional committees with their ideas for remedies.

In such times, one wonders what the people think. What would the man on the street do if he suddenly were placed in power? What does he think the President ought to do, for instance, to cure the "recession"?

Questions like these make doubly interesting a recent experiment in which a Philadelphia newspaper undertook to find out what Mr. Average Man would do if he were President.

Reporters interviewed scores of persons, of every profession and every economic level. Their replies were interesting and illuminating—even more so, perhaps, because some of the suggestions appeared impracticable.

One man, a minor C. I. O. official, said he thought state lines ought to be wiped out to prevent destructive competition between various areas.

A woman, a drug store clerk, said she would see to it that automobile financing charges were reduced.

A paperhanger thought the cure for the slump would be to get John L. Lewis and William Green together and force them to make peace between the rival labor factions.

One student said he would raise most of the import duties if he were chief executive.

Another said he believed the President "doesn't know a thing" about the real economic problems, and should talk things over more with business men.

A taxi driver said that if he were President he would make every employer guarantee a living for a certain number of years for every worker displaced by labor-saving machinery.

A candy man said he would not allow any employer to fire an employe unless his books showed without question that he was losing money.

Whether any of these schemes would aid return to prosperity is not the question. What the survey shows is that nearly every citizen has ideas, and very definite ones, about what should be done.

Whether our democracy functions properly depends on how closely elected officials listen to those ideas, how carefully they weed the good ones from the bad, and how conscientiously they strive to translate the good ideas into workable legislation.

PRUNING HOOKS INTO SPEARS

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Now the New York Stock Exchange knows what it is likely to get from the Securities and Exchange Commission as operated under Chairman William O. Douglas.

The SEC has just whammed down on bear raiding and short selling by ordering that short sales be made only at a price above the last transaction in the stock concerned. SEC did this, however, on no more information than that which the exchange itself already had gathered.

After studying short sales for two sample weeks last fall, the Stock Exchange made a statement which appeared designed to dress up facts and figures to make them prettier than they really were and to bury some of the most significant phases.

Finally, the Stock Exchange statement said, the figures would be turned over to the Twentieth Century Fund for analysis, and the SEC could look at them if it so desired. SEC members looked on that as a back-handed slap and promptly went to work on their own analysis.

Marion County Makes Own Laws About Elections

By United Press

JEFFERSON, Texas.—Marion county, which has shown its contempt for conventions on several occasions, has started another political campaign that ignores the laws of the state of Texas.

The rules for conducting elections are laid down by the state legislature, but only 253 of the 254 counties in Texas obey them. Marion county makes its own rules. It has followed its own private system since 1898, and "The Citizens' County Executive Committee" recently announced it would do so again.

In the other 253 counties, the first primary will be held on July 23. But "The Citizens' County Executive Committee" blandly ignored this legal date and announced that Marion county would cast its ballots in April.

This defiance of prescribed rules started 40 years ago, when the citizens reached the end of their patience with politicians who got themselves elected by throwing drinking parties for negro voters. On April 29, 1898, the "Citizens' County Executive Committee" held its first meeting in the Jefferson Commercial Clubrooms.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
NEA Service Staff Writer

GLAMOR can be a personal matter. Like a broiled lobster or mushrooms under glass, for example. Or even a tray of afternoon tea—tea just for one in the live-alone-and-like-it manner. Invalids come by such things naturally, but I often wonder why the hale in body but fatigued in spirit shouldn't have a touch of private luxury now and then.

Your private ranching or your sociable tea hour will be sweeter for a cup cake or two. Self-Indulgence Cup Cakes (Serves 4 to 6) 1-3 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2-3 cups sifted pastry flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Two cups granulated sugar, 2 egg whites, beaten stiff, 1-2 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-2 cup boiling water. Mix sugar and cream of tartar and cook in boiling water, to make a syrup. Pour the syrup into the whites, a little at a time, beating constantly. Beat only till light and creamy. Add vanilla. For your own tasty selfishness.

Freezing of Valley Produce Is Urged

By United Press

WESLACO, Texas.—Dr. F. C. Blanck, chief of the foods research division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has predicted that quick freezing of Rio Grande Valley produce should become an important industry.

Dr. Blanck, who has just completed an inspection trip over the valley, said that extensive tests have shown that no food value was lost in quick freezing or canning of fruits and vegetables. "The quick freezing industry is so new," Blanck said, "that it is impossible to tell whether it will make the greatest inroads against canned goods or fresh vegetables. There is considerable apprehension in the foods industry as to which will be affected most."

IN THE warehouses Mr. Pinnix has managed in Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, 46,000,000 pounds of tobacco have been sold. Farmers travel many miles to bring their crops to Mr. Pinnix's warehouse for sale. Reason is that they respect his tobacco experience and business integrity. So surely Mr. Pinnix's views are worth your respect, too.

"At every market I've ever attended," says Mr. Pinnix, "Lucky Strike has bought the ripest, mellowest tobacco offered. That's why I've smoked Luckies ever since I first became a warehouseman 20 years ago."

Mr. Pinnix's statement is borne out by sworn records which show that, among independent tobacco experts—auctioneers, buyers, and warehousemen—Luckies have over twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CASE OF CHARACTERS
POLLY CHELSEY, a Londoner, was brought to the United States by her father, JERRY CHELSEY, who runs the Channel Hotel in New York City.

Yesterday Jerry plans to bid Polly a tearful goodbye, for he is to go to France to see her. He will be in New York for the night and will be in a taxi on his way to the Channel Hotel.

CHAPTER VI
OLD Oliver Dart did not always sit in his study. Often his shaggy legs took him through the streets on long walks—sometimes down to the water front where, looking at ships and sailors, he was pleasantly reminded of the time when his warehouse used to ship tea to the colonies.

It was not to remind himself of other days, however, that he set out for the river this morning. He went on an errand regarding one Jerry Whitfield, American seaman, who had visited him in his study last night.

"A bully!" he muttered. "An upstart! An enemy to England!"

An hour later old Dart, who knew his river front, was seated in a mean tavern that smelled of the sea and bad rum. The clothes he wore (he had borrowed them from his porter) did not betray him as a man of property, and so he could sit unnoticed in a corner, pretending to sip grog while studying his fellow men. When he finally spied a large man with a torn ear and a broken nose, carefully mended, he beckoned to him.

When the man arrived he said to him, "Sit with me, friend. I'll buy you grog!" and he drew up a stool invitingly.

After the second glass of hot watered rum had been downed by his new acquaintance, Oliver Dart tested his shrewd guess. "I'll wager you're the best man the press-gang's got! With your muscles, now, and your chest—"

The torn-eared one did not deny his calling. In fact, he clarified it. "Never a man I've been set on 'as ever got away from me," he stated with professional pride.

"It seems dear," Polly said, calculating the equivalent in American money. "About two or three dollars, isn't it?" She had barely fifty dollars to her name and she knew Jerry had less. "He may even raise his price in mid channel, Jerry," she speculated with concern.

"YOU can count on me keeping him to his bargain, Polly. Just rely on me and don't worry. The Channel's narrow. Once we reach France, we're safe. We'll be in time to catch Tim Chelsey's ship at Cherbourg. Then home, Polly! Home! Do you realize what that means?"

"It's going to mean more to me than it's ever meant before," Polly said. Then she confided, quite without self-consciousness: "I'm going to live in Lyme! There's a Mrs. Pell there with three handsome daughters, all well married, who can never remember to ask me to any parties except sewing circle. It used to anger me when I was young and foolish."

"What are you now?" Jerry asked tenderly. "Aren't you just 18?"

Polly laughed. "Yes, but I've learned wisdom and patience early. It used to hurt me, seeing the other Lyme girls say age going to S-ministry and embroidering samplers at the front window while I had to study at home with Dick and roughen my hands scrubbing floors and kettles. . . . Yes, and helping my father mend fish nets and sails."

"My poor Polly! And you with as good blood as the finest of them!"

"I'm not bitter about it!" declared Polly honestly. "Never a night's passed but I've thanked God I was able to take my mother's place. But Jerry, I WILL be proud to walk down the street of Lyme on your arm and introduce my husband to Mrs. Pell!"

Jerry felt that he loved Polly Chelsey more deeply with each new revelation of herself. She was complex and full of infinite variety. Though mature in body and dignity, her shining youth darted out at times in ways as amusing as this child's feud with cruel Mrs. Pell, the village snob who had hurt her.

"I must try to make it up to her," Jerry told himself.

Ambition stirred him. The thought, "A ship of my own!" rang through his mind like a clarion call. . . . But first there was this war. . . . One's country came first. One's flag before one's sweetheart. . . .

They went into the public room and had braised beef for dinner, because it was cheaper than guinea fowl, and even Jerry, the munificent, had begun to count pennies.

FORTUNATELY for the racers, the boom in fancy skating in North America dovetails with the practical collapse of speed skating. And with the speed skating door virtually closed, many veterans of the speed sphere have turned to fancy skating to keep the cash register ringing.

Norval Bappte, perhaps the greatest all-round skater who ever lived, and his wife, Gladys Lamb, didn't wait for the speed recession to set in. They have been touring the rinks as fancy skaters each winter for 15 years. When in the '60s the amazing Bappte returned to speed skating briefly and held little shy of the marks he held while generally recognized as professional champion.

Falling as a hockey player, Everett McGowan, former international amateur champion speed skater, remained on the sidelines for several seasons due to inability to arouse the public to racing. But now he is touring rinks and night clubs with a feminine partner in a figure, trick, and waltz skating routine.

BOBBY McLEAN, who held the amateur and professional speed titles, has been active for 20 years as a fancy skating soloist. The squatty McLean was first to pour a coating of chemical ice over a night club floor or stage and whirl about on the small space.

Finding interest in speeding falling like the temperature in his native Adirondacks, Edmund Lamy, former international amateur champion teamed with his partner, Fernie, and Claude and they presented their merger of thrills, chills, and spills, which included leaping over barrels, at various rinks.

Bobby Hearn was active as a speeder for 20 years before making his initial appearance as a trick skater and clown with a carnival in 1936. Bill Small, one of the first comics to go black face, originally was a disciple of speed. Thurston Allen, a veteran among feminine speeders and a former international amateur titleholder, has been polishing off the rough edges to include fancy skating.

Heleen Chandler, one of the best of the current fancy skaters, had visions of topping her sex as a racer.

Sonja Henie, whose three Olympic and 10 world figure skating championships brought her Hollywood and wealth as an ice ballet star and motion picture satellite, had a yearning to bug the feminine speed title of the Scandinavian peninsula.

Practically all of the present popularity of fancy skating, both as entertainment and exercise, and the lavish presentations and ballets, can be attributed to the Hollywooding of the remarkable and versatile Miss Henie and her icings.

Sonja Henie made America ice conscious. She opened a new field to thousands.

Review of Suits Is Urged By Lawyers

By United Press
DALLAS. — A review of law suits before they come to trial was proposed by the Dallas Bar Association to speed up court action and lower litigation cost.

J. Woodard Rodgers, new president of the Dallas Bar Association, outlined the proposal at a recent meeting. The association adopted the proposal as part of its 1938 goal.

Under the proposed system, one of the judges scheduled to hear the case would review it about two weeks before it was set for trial.

"Those which obviously were not ready for trial would be postponed without useless petitions that now are being run into the records," Rodgers said.

Facts on which opposing attorneys agreed could be stipulated, Rodgers said. Then the cases when called to trial could move more swiftly.

"Such action would save the public great sums of money and would be a great aid to attorneys," he said.

In 1844 he made a visit to Washington largely in the interest of annexation.

Q. What three causes led to the United States war with Mexico?
A. (1) The annexation of Texas (minister Almonte asked for his passports immediately after passage of the annexation resolution); (2) Claims of American citizens against Mexico for damages; (3) Dispute over the boundary between the United States and Mexico.

Q. When and where did the first Congress of the Republic convene, and when was Houston inaugurated president?
A. The first Congress, composed of 14 Senators and 32 members of the House of Representatives, convened at Columbia, the temporary capital, Oct. 5, 1836. David G. Burnett, the ad interim president, resigned the morning of Oct. 22, and Houston was inaugurated at four o'clock that afternoon.

Q. What four American presidents fought in the United States-Mexican war?

A. Gen. U. S. Grant, and Gen. Zachary Taylor for the United States; Gen. Jefferson Davis of the Confederate States of America; Col. Mirabeau B. Lamar of the Republic of Texas.

Q. At what battle in Mexico did President Lamar distinguish himself?
A. At the Battle in Monterey, where he led the charge that brought victory to the United States forces and won for himself honorable mention from Col. George Wood for his "gallant bearing and lofty courage."

Q. Why did Lamar resign from the regular army in Mexico?
A. Although he held the rank of lieutenant-colonel, he was left virtually without a command, and becoming impatient at what he regarded as the purposely planned delay in getting proper recognition, he resigned.

Q. What military service did Lamar render after resigning from the United States Army?
A. He organized a company of Texas Mounted Volunteers (Rangers) and was stationed with this corps by Governor Henderson at Laredo to protect the frontier from Comanche Indians and Mexican marauders.

If you knew that your constipation was caused by something left out of your food, wouldn't it be just common sense to put that something back?

Your trouble may be caused by nothing more than this. For the most common kind of constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the bowels—you need some food that passes on through the stomach without being digested.

Bootlegging Not Wholly Destroyed

True enough, the worst phase of bootlegging, when rival gangs fought it out in the streets of our big cities, and bribery and collusion were taken as a matter of course, seems to have passed with repeal.

But the bootlegger is still with us. Last year the enforcement division of the Alcohol Tax Unit of the U. S. Treasury seized 16,142 stills, with a mash capacity of 2,709,749 gallons. In connection with those raids 12,365,224 gallons of mash were seized and destroyed.

During 1937 there were also 29,477 people arrested for federal liquor law violation, and in 695 major liquor conspiracy cases investigated, 2104 defendants were convicted in court.

That indicates a very considerable amount of bootlegging even in the face of legal liquor, and proves all over again the only thing that is certain about the liquor problem; it is never completely solved.

In the days back before the World War, the dries were certain that national prohibition would solve the problem once and for all. And after 10 years of that, even a great many ardent dries were convinced that the final answer had not been found.

In 1933, wets were jubilant, and gave assurance that under proper legal restriction all would be well, and the problem would be settled forever. Now, already, only five years later, we face a reviving prohibition movement on a national basis, together with a gradual legal drying up of local areas.

Certainly we ought to have learned by now that no single law, no single plan is going to solve forever a human problem that has been with us at least since the days of Noah.

Constant and temperate application of all we can learn by experience, the broadest education of the individual, gradual yet persistent efforts to temper and control the worst phases of the problem as they arise—these offer a better hope for the future than any dogmatic "one-shot" solution offered by extremists of either persuasion.

Rubber Making in U. S. Is On Rise

By United Press

NEW YORK — Research chemists in the United States are credited with putting this country in the lead in an international race for development of synthetic rubber-like materials.

Dr. H. L. Trumbull, writing in the chemical and Metallurgical Engineering magazine, declared the competition among the world's major powers is heightened by the fact that every great industrial nation depends for its supplies of raw rubber on sources thousands of miles away.

While chemists in this country have been developing synthetic substance, scientists in other nations have been engaged in a scramble to produce similar materials, Dr. Trumbull said. He declared that only in Germany and Russia have there been any achievements which compare with those in the United States.

"German chemists have produced a material known as 'Buna rubber' and this substance has for months been specified in place of natural rubber in goods purchased by the German government," Dr. Trumbull said.

Buna has been made available in several grades, each of which in some respects is said to excel natural rubber. The imposition of an import duty of 1 mark per kilo on crude rubber is said to be for the purpose of raising money for additional factories for synthetic rubber production in Germany, which the German Government hopes within the year may attain a volume of 27,000 tons.

The Russians are reported to be making synthetic rubber from alcohol. Published results show that their product is inferior to natural rubber.

"In the United States, scientists have developed several rubber-like material which are finding a wide variety of applications.

"A recent advance of importance is the production and fabrication of Koroel, a novel synthetic composition in many respects resembling cured rubber," according to Dr. Trumbull who as manager of the chemical laboratories of the B. F. Goodrich Company, aided in its development.

"It does not require vulcanization to give it elasticity. It withstands long exposure to ozone and oxygen, and is practically unchanged after two years in sunlight. It is more inert than rubber to the action of corrosive chemicals, even with standing prolonged

Hearing Testimony May Fill Box Car

By United Press

DALLAS, Texas — Interstate Commerce Commission Examiners A. H. Mackley and George J. Hall were considering chartering a box car when they start back to Washington with evidence they obtained in a freight rate hearing here.

Begun last Nov. 8, the hearing was scheduled to end about March 1. Storage and preservation of evidence has already become a problem. Several witnesses have testified for three or more consecutive days, and one was on the stand a full week.

Officials said this was the longest ICC hearing staged in Texas. It was authorized for investigation of freight rates from Midwestern to Southeastern points.

immersion in chronic bn in concentrated nitric acid.

"This novel elastic material seems designed to be used to best advantage where rubber is not at present being used.

"Another synthetic material is known as Neoprene. In many ways this product, developed in the DuPont laboratories, resembles rubber more closely than other of the newer synthetics. It has found many interesting applications and served the rubber industry as a raw material which may be used in compositions with or without rubber.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox

WHAT an almanac to a woman! In February it might be broccoli souffle. Or a Martha Washington chicken pie. Both these recipes are given in the 1938 Woman's Almanac, a small volume packed with fern-vana. Each month has its hints, and some rather full-sized recipes.

Broccoli Souffle (Serves 4)

Three tablespoons butter, 5 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, a little salt and pepper to taste, 1 cup shredded cheese, 1 1/2 cups chopped cooked broccoli, 2 eggs. Melt butter in saucepan, stir in flour, then slowly add milk. Add cheese next and stir until cheese is melted. Add chopped broccoli and seasoning. Beat egg yolks and add. Cool mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff, then fold into the cooled mixture. Bake in moderate oven (315 degrees F.) for one hour, serving from the baking dish. Better list this for your Lenten recipe collection. Lent begins Wednesday, the second of March this year.

Washington Chicken Pie

The recipe in Martha Washington's cook book called for a young chicken, boiled and allowed to cool. The bones were removed, sliced onion, some celery and parsley were put in the broth, all boiled one-half hour, then strained and returned to the chicken. A half pound of fresh mushrooms sauted in butter was added. Very short pastry was made, rolled thin and fitted into a casserole, the chicken and gravy placed in this, sliced hard cooked eggs on top, and over all was fitted a crust having a vent in it. The edges of the two pastries were crimped together and then the pie was baked until the crust was brown.

This "book of facts, for by and about women" gives this menu for a February luncheon: "Tomato and celery juice, mushrooms stuffed with crabmeat au gratin, new string beans, creamed celery, rye rolls, Melba toast, raw vegetable salad bowl, hot gingerbread, apple sauce, coffee."

Homesteaders Pay Total Tax of $7,000

By United Press

DALLAS, Texas — Subsistence homesteaders in Texas paid more than $7,000 in state and local taxes last month, it was announced today by W. A. Canon, regional Farm Security Administration chief.

In addition they paid $14,915 to the federal government as regular payments on their homesteads. Purchase installments and taxes paid to date were: Beaumont Gardens, Beaumont, $832 taxes and $2,647 purchase; Dalworthington Gardens, Arlington, $1,392 taxes and $3,740 purchase; Houston Gardens, Houston, $2,571 taxes and $6,768 purchase; Three Rivers Gardens, Three Rivers, $1,076 taxes and $1,759 purchase; Wichita Gardens, Wichita Falls, $1,529 taxes, first purchase payments due Nov. 1, 1938).

The subsistence homesteads were first constructed and owned by the federal government, but a year ago were transferred to occupants, one reason being to make them subject to state and local taxes.

The Texas projects included 340 houses of from three to five rooms, with land plots ranging from three to six acres.

They're wearing fur bathing suits in Florida now. Just in case the weatherman fails to read the winter resort advertisements, perhaps.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.
A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." ## Dog Is Proficient As Juggler, Using A 12-Foot Board

ABERDEEN, Wash. — Ross Bates wouldn't be surprised at anything that Copper might bring home.

Copper is a Belgian shepherd, smaller than the type known as police dogs. The dog already has carried home shiplap, two-by-fours, and other pieces of lumber.

He uses them in a self-taught juggling and balancing act with which he amuses himself for hours at a time. At present he is using a piece of shiplap 12 feet long, but will do his trick with any stick of this or greater length. Copper lifts one end of the board in his mouth and slides his teeth along it until it balances. Then he twists his body and gives the board a little toss, maneuvering so the lumber drops on his shoulders. He shifts his position until the board balances on his shoulders and walks as far as he can without losing the load. When the board falls off, he starts all over again.

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK
Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER VII
Polly and Jerry held hands while they watched the colorful changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace. They stood with shoulders touching while they leaned on the timbers of London Bridge, gazing down into the Thames. They looked into each other's eyes as they fed the pigeons before St. Paul's Cathedral. Yet they talked of everything but love.

"London takes my breath away," Polly said as they neared the inn at day's end. "I'm right proud my mother's people were Londoners." Jerry nodded. "England's a wonder, all over. I'm proud of having English blood myself. But England's too arrogant. America will have to lick her again."

"Hush, Jerry! You'll be overheard. . . . Who's that woman waving to you?" "Where, Polly?" "Across the street. . . . Look! In the blue bonnet. She's just got out of a hackney coach."

"I don't if she's waving to me," Jerry said. "She was a pretty thing. . . . She's becoming dressed and having a gay air. Jerry lifted his hat and bowed while his tanned face turned crimson. "She mistakes me for somebody else, I reckon."

"If I knew her," Jerry replied brusquely. "I'd say so. I've got no taste for mysteries."

THEY both looked at the rather shabby public vehicle out of which the young woman had just stepped. The driver was a large man in a cabby's uniform. Had they been closer, they would have seen that he had a torn ear and a nose that had been several times broken and carelessly mended.

"Well, Jerry," Polly argued. "You don't look like anybody else I've seen in London. I'd not confuse you with other men. No woman would. Of course that girl knows you! You've met her somewhere. I reckon you've paid her compliments, or she wouldn't be speaking to you so—"

"So how?" It was an irritated challenge.

"So like she had some claim on you. She looked square at you! What's more, you bowed to her, Jerry Whitfield!"

"Of course I did. Just to be polite."

"But you smiled at her!" "I didn't!" "You did!" "No!"

"No, I won't," Jerry retorted angrily. "I didn't meet any of them, but there were at least three I used to clap for. And one night I sent them bouquets, all three of 'em!"

"Well, then, there you are!" cried Polly triumphantly, but not enjoying the triumph. "Did you put a card in, or a note?" "No, I didn't, but I wish I had. Just to give you something to carry on about!"

WHILE this argument was in progress they had entered the inn, passed through the public bar, and ascended the stairs. At the door Polly took out a large key from her pocket and inserted it in the lock. "Won't you come in?" she asked tartly. "I'd like to hear some more of your adventures. They must be wonderful."

She threw open the door, and Jerry followed her in, for the quarrel was in that exhilarating state of fermentation when neither wished to abandon it. He walked to the window and looked down on the street while she closed the door.

"Hain't she come out of the shop yet?" Polly inquired, removing her bonnet before a looking glass. "I thought her dress was right gaudy for the street. Maybe she's gone in to buy something more suitable."

Jerry whirled about and seized Polly's hands. He drew her near to him, so that their faces were close. "You're a jealous little cat,"

CLEVELAND—Until a few days ago, Carmen Di Bartolomeo was an obscure middleweight shuttling between Cleveland and Hollywood. Di Bartolomeo—ring name Barth—was a part-time fighter at that, for he has been doing small bits in pictures. A rather brilliant amateur, Barth, the professional, was until very recently faithfully trailed by hard luck. Then, suddenly, he became a child of fortune overnight. Three things combined to give Barth, now 25, a 15-round world middleweight championship contest with Freddie Steele in Cleveland's Public Hall, Feb. 19. First, Barth took a 10-round decision from Eric Seelig on a Christmas Fund card in Cleveland in early December. Second, Fred Apostoli stopped Steele in an above-the-weight affair in New York, Jan. 7. Third, Monseigneur Joseph F. Smith was badly in need of money with which to open a couple more soup kitchens. Had Steele not been halted by Apostoli, he hardly would have considered a title bout with Barth in Cleveland. Indeed, Cleveland would not have wanted it, for few would have conceded Barth a chance. The popularity of Monseigneur Smith and his cause will sell the auditorium's 11,000 seats, which, scaled from $1 to $5, will mean a $42,000 gate.

WASHING TON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—The other day, as the President prepared a message calling for a huge armament increase, a few men and women remembered the "Ford Peace Ship" expedition to Europe in December, 1915. Ridicule was heaped high on the Oscar II and its earnest passengers as they sailed away. Little effort was spared to make the expedition appear a silly, crackpot venture. Today, as the world prepares, perhaps, for another and probably more terrible great war, it seems somewhat less absurd than the continued slaughter which followed its failure. Anyway, the voyage was recalled here by a small group which gathered when Madame Roska Schwimmer, the Hungarian feminist who persuaded Henry Ford to support it and accompany it, and Mrs. Lola Maverick Lloyd, her associate in a ceaseless campaign for world peace, had a reunion party with Washingtonians who made the trip. "Everything happened," admits Mme. Schwimmer, "including many ridiculous things." Ford, who had refused to change his clothes after a big wave swept over him, became ill and left the group at Christiania. Enthusiastic receptions and big meetings in the neutral countries followed. But single taxers and other troublesome members of the American party surged to the fore and things began to fall apart. Mme. Schwimmer collapsed under the strain. The Stockholm conference made studies and planned tracts. Ford kept financing it until August. The whole peace venture lost him $400,000—about 1 per cent of the price of a first-class battleship. metropolitan city until the forces of law and order called a halt and wiped out one of the most shameful blots on the escutcheon of that city. Advance reports on this picture describe it as a powerful indictment against crime, vividly depicting in an unexpurgated manner, revealing the devastating influences that hang over every unsuspecting woman who is foolish or weak enough to seek riches and luxury that lie beyond her normal reach. An imposing array of screen names fortifies the cast of "Gambling with Souls," including Martha Chapin, Bryant Washburn, Wheeler Oakman, Gaston Glass, Ed Keane, Florence Dudley, Robert Fraser and Vera Steadman. The picture will be shown at the Arcadia Thursday and the Columbia Friday. Eastern movie scouts interviewed 52,000 hopefuls in 1937, but sent only 56 to Hollywood. ### Judge Patterson Is Heard On Rotary Program Wednesday

C. E. May was in charge of the Rotary program Wednesday and prefaced his remarks by stating that February was always a month of birthdays and that one would naturally go back to the days of the pioneers of this county, the men who had a part in its building and progress. He said that he was glad to introduce Judge B. W. Patterson a son of one of the pioneers of Eastland county.

Judge Patterson brought the club a program on the jury system when the State was a republic and today. He said that in the old days the district judge, sheriff and district clerk prepared the names of every male inhabitant and from this list a jury was selected. It was the purpose to see that every citizen served on the jury occasionally.

In 1876 the system was changed and the tax assessor would list the names of all tax payers and from this list the juries were chosen.

Then the jury wheel came, when the lists were chosen by spinning

Today the jury commission is in operation and all juries are selected by a commission not less than three or more than five. Judge Patterson stressed the importance of jury service and said that when a man was selected as a jury it was his patriotic duty to serve. In this way crime can be lessened.

Visiting Rotarians were A. H. Henderson, Olden; B. W. Patterson, Eastland; J. C. McAfee, J. W. McKinney, R. L. Ponsler, Lee Heltzell, Cico; O. D. Dillingham, Abilene.

H. P. Earnest will be in charge of the program next week.

Chinese officials insist China's finances are sound. But not as sound, probably, as they have a yen for them to be.

Baptist Men Given Supper On Tuesday

The men of the First Baptist Church were entertained with a chili supper Tuesday night at the church when 115 gathered for an entertaining program.

W. T. Walton was toastmaster and called upon H. L. Baskin, who spoke briefly on church records. A quartet composed of Clayton Hunt, Frank Hicklin, B. R. Lamance and Weaver Aishman, presented a vocal number, "The Old Rugged Cross," followed by a brief talk by Dr. R. H. Hodges on the subject "Remember the Sabbath." Nath Pirkle was also called upon for a few remarks.

A questions and answers contest was staged by A. W. Warford, with five men being in a tie for first place. It was decided to line them up in a "beauty contest" with the ugliest man winning. E. N. Varner was awarded the prize, a huge stick of candy.

Remarks by Rev. Charles T. Tally, Jr., pastor of the church, and a benediction by the pastor, closed the meeting.

Forty-five pounds of chili was given by Sig Faircloth and Admiration coffee was served, together with Schooley's doughnuts and hot chocolate.

Farm Profits Grow Through Chemists' New Discoveries

By FRED BAILEY United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON — Department of Agriculture chemists have added millions of dollars to farm income through discovery of new and wider industrial uses for farm products.

Some of the most important recent discoveries reported by the department were production of starch from sweet potatoes, extraction of tannin from hemlock bark, conversion of egg-white foam into dried egg-white and new fertilizer mixtures.

The department through its bureau of chemistry and soils, also is making extensive experiments into causes and treatment of hay fever, according to Henry G. Knight, chief of the bureau.

A study of 300 patients at a Washington hospital, the bureau said, failed to detect the presence of allergen, a substance in the protein of certain foods thought to be the cause of hay fever, hives and asthma, in the milk of cows fed rye-grass tops.

Last year more than 1,000,000 pounds of sweet potato starch were produced commercially by a method developed by the bureau. Knight said that by using surplus and culls of a number of starch-bearing crops such as white and sweet potatoes, that a substantial portion of the 300,000,000 pounds of imported starch could be made from domestic products.

A study of storage problems resulted in discovery of a method by which sweet potatoes can be dehydrated quickly at low cost. The dried product thus can be stored indefinitely without loss of starch, enabling sweet potato factories to operate during the entire year instead of a few months during the harvest season.

The bureau last year discovered new and improved methods of making sorgo and sugarcane syrups. A malt process prevents slow boiling, scorching, jelling and "clabbering" of sorgo syrup. A method for making an improved sugar cane syrup that does not "go to sugar" also was developed by the bureau.

A study of hemlock bark as a source of tannin, a product used in tanning leather, is under way. About five tons of bark were required to make a ton of powdered extract valued at $88 to $110. Knight estimated that tannin in the hemlock bark now wasted in Washington and Oregon has a potential value of $3,000,000 a year.

The bureau discovered a process whereby sodium chlorate, a weed killer for which the farmer now is paying from 9 to 10 cents a pound, can be produced at 4.9 cents a pound.

Egg-white foam, a waste by-product of the egg-drying industry, can be converted into dried egg-white as a result of a process whereby citric acid and an acid solution of enzyme pepsin are added, the bureau reported.

St. Lawrence lighthouse when marooned by a storm. They were rescued by a government steamship after nearby Quebec residents noticed the light out. Langelier said, "I had not eaten for five days, and there was no water left." The veteran lighthouse keeper described the mental anguish endured. "I was afraid of the boy," he said, "because he would walk out of the lighthouse and watch the waves I thought he would drip in."

Abilene Man Hunts A Meteorite He Saw

ABILENE.—Charles W. Sanger of Abilene was hunting a meteorite as a souvenir of a spectacle he witnessed recently.

While driving along a road south of Abilene he was blinded by a flash of light. A ball of fire rushed horizontally across the sky to crash to the ground and explode. Sanger said violet and green lights streaked upward. So far, efforts to find particles of the meteor have been fruitless.

Michigan is instituting a study of credit on the installment plan would be providing information on how to make the payments.
