At the peak of the relief load next month, he said, 450,000 others, who would be discharged unless more relief funds are supplied, would continue on WPA jobs. Williams estimated the rolls in March will reach 2,500,000, the highest in almost two years.
The American Federation of Labor meanwhile estimated that 829,000 workers lost their jobs in industry and agriculture between Nov. 15 and Dec. 15, 1937, making a total of 9,355,000 unemployed during December.
The federation predicted that unemployment would be higher for January. The federation said the government is providing approximately one job for every four persons laid off by industry.

Three Years of Chain Store Taxes Are Declared To Be Payable Now

AUSTIN, Tex.—Three years of taxes under the chain store tax law are immediately due and payable, Comptroller George H. Sheppard announced today as he was advised from the Dallas Court of Civil Appeals that the long litigation involving this tax has ended.
The Dallas Court overruled a motion of chain store attorneys that certain phases of the case be remanded to the Dallas District Court, where the law suit started two years ago, for trial, to construe a minor phase of the law.
Enforcement of the law was enjoined in Dallas in January, 1936, just two days before its effective date.
When the Supreme Court last fall upheld the validity of the law and construed its provisions, Comptroller Sheppard immediately began preparations for collection of the tax. Enforcement awaited the formal entry of a judgment in the trial court which was accomplished today.
Sheppard emphasized that every store of every character in Texas must pay a tax, regardless of whether it is a member of a chain, excepting only a limited few which are specifically exempt by the terms of the law.
"We anticipate little difficulty," Sheppard explained, "in locating all chain units; but it may not be generally understood that every person selling goods, wares and merchandise is by the terms of the law subject to the occupation tax. Goods, wares and merchandise cover almost every conceivable form of selling. Regardless of whether these merchandising units are members of a chain, they must pay the filing fee of fifty cents a year for the three years, and the minimum tax on one unit, which is $1 per year a store. Hence, every single store in Texas, excepting those specifically exempt, now owes under the chain store tax a minimum of $4.50, and $1.50 each year thereafter.
"It likewise must be emphasized that this tax applies to wholesaling units as well as retailing units.
"We have tried to foresee the questions which will arise; many already have been submitted to the Attorney General for legal opinions, and some of the questions have been answered by that official. It is our intention to enforce this law fairly and sympathetically, with full consideration of complications, such as we already have discovered.
"As an instance of the puzzling problems, the law exempts from any tax, filling stations which sell only petroleum products and service automobiles. The phrase "service automobiles" was submitted to the Attorney General for construction. Gist of his ruling was that if accessories are sold, the tax applies. Hence, the station which sells such products as tires, parts, and similar articles is subject to the tax.
"Similar complexities are met in the exemption for 'wholesale and/or retail lumber and building material businesses engaged exclusively in the sale of lumber and building material.' The word 'exclusively' in this definition requires the collection of the tax from every merchandising unit selling any article other than actual lumber and building materials.
"The other exemptions in the act are less difficult. Only one business—that of selling textbooks—is exempt under the provision exempting businesses 'now paying an occupation tax measured by gross receipts. The exemption for oil well supply houses is self-ex-

Early Season For Fishermen Is Seen At Corpus Christi

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas.—While the rest of the state and nation shiver through a hard winter, sportsmen of the Corpus Christi section are preparing for the opening of an early fishing season.
Fishing observers at Port Aransas, tarpon capital of the Gulf, anticipate the season's first invasion of tarpon in waters of this section this week. Anticipation of the invasion, which will probably be the earliest in history, is prompted by reports that a school of jackfish, half a mile long and a half mile from shore, moved in one day last week.
Such movements of jackfish usually do not start until the latter part of March, local fishermen say. With the early influx of jackfish, the anglers anticipate a large school of tarpon soon.
The arrival of the season's first tarpon is expected to bring a heavy influx of fishermen to this section to compete for the honor of catching the season's first tarpon.
The leaping, fighting tarpon, one of the mightiest of game fish, is found at his best in the waters near Port Aransas and every year lures hundreds of sportsmen to this section.
Favorite "stomping ground" of the tarpon is the jettied entrance to the Corpus Christi ship channel at Port Aransas. The jetties extend two miles into the Gulf of Mexico, and old timers say the tarpon bumps into the rocks on his migrations north or south. Deciding he has reached "the end of the line," the tarpon remains in these waters until time for the fall migration to begin.

16 MILLION IS ADDED TO WAR FUND REQUEST

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President Roosevelt has asked Congress to add $16,850,000 to his previous budget request of $500,000,000 for the 1938 fiscal year war department expenditure, it was revealed today.
The White House revealed that Mr. Roosevelt transmitted his recommendation in a letter to Speaker William Bankhead Feb. 7th.
Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia of the House naval affairs committee, announced today he will add a statement to the $800,000,000 naval expansion bill, reaffirming America's policy of maintaining fleets for national defense and not for aggression.
At the same time Vinson disclosed that the policy provision will open the door for U. S. participation in international agreements to limit naval armaments.
Vinson revealed a draft of the proposed provision while questioning Major General Johnson Hagood, retired army officer, on the program for a 20 per cent naval expansion. Hagood, agreeing with recommendations of Admiral William Leahy, demanded, however, a definite policy in the navy authorization measure.
The naval affairs committee voted 14 to 2 against summoning Arthur Krock, New York Times correspondent, to testify.
Rep. Ralph Brewster of Maine had moved that Krock be summoned to disclose the source of an article he wrote, saying he had been "expertly informed" that an understanding existed by which the United States and British fleets might help each other in case of war.

Scout President

Committees for 1938 have been appointed by Russell B. Jones, above, who presides for the Comanche Trail Council in an unusually active year in this West Texas division of Scouting.

Committees Are Named by Head of Comanche Trail

BRECKENRIDGE.—Russell B. Jones, president of the Comanche Trail Council, Boy Scout of America, has named the council chairman for 1938. Their activities will cover the Boy Scout work in eight counties of Central West Texas from Lampasas on the south through Stephens on the north.
The president's report for the year reflected a healthy gain in Scouting for the area. The year ended with 854 active Scouts, and 272 leaders. Jones stated that a continued gain in 1938 is anticipated in all three branches, Cubbing, Boy Scouts, and Senior Scouting. Jones said that the 1938 activities call for 1900 Scouts in all branches. The 48 units in the council will be supplemented with new units, as proper leaders are found and trained. "Our problem is adequate leadership," stated Jones. "The boys are ready. We plan this year to have an active leaders' training schedule. Frank W. Braden, of the Senior Scouting section of the national office, will be here during the last of February to consult with the officials on the 1938 program," added Jones.

POINT RAISED ON FARM BILL IS OVERRULED

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Vice President Garner today overruled a point of order against revisions made by the senate and house conferees to the McNary-Boileau amendment to the farm bill.
An appeal against the ruling was taken by Sen. Ryan Duffy of Wisconsin. The senate sustained Garner's rejection of the point of order 48 to 31.
The point was raised by senators from western livestock states, who contended revisions in the amendment would result in new competition to livestock, poultry and dairy farmers.
They declared identical amendments were placed in the house and senate bills and the conferees had no authority to revise the provisions.
Garner held the conferees had authority because of the procedure used by the senate in considering the farm bill. When the bill was received from the house all except the enacting clause was stricken out and the senate bill substituted.

Streets Can Be Made Safer—If We Will

Many and many a city has conducted sporadic traffic drives to try to cut down the terrible toll in dead and wounded that automobiles are taking every day.

And many of them wound up at the end of 1937 to find that, to their surprise and horror, the toll was higher than it had been the year before, despite all the campaigns and viewings with alarm.

But a few other cities got a different answer, and it is worth while to inquire why. Beaumont, Texas, furnishes one of the most heartening examples of what can be done by a community that really wants to do something about the problem.

At the close of 1936 Beaumont was fourth from the top of the list of "killer" cities.

Its people were ashamed and alarmed. They decided to do something about it.

At the end of 1937, Beaumont had cut off a larger percentage of its traffic toll than any other city in the country. Accidents had been cut 62.8 per cent, from 881 to 341. Injuries had been cut 20.9 per cent, from 254 to 201. Deaths had been cut 72.7 per cent, from 22 to six.

That is a record of which any city might be proud, but the best thing about it is that no trick methods were employed, no special machinery or facilities used that are not equally available to any other city.

A safety League was organized, and 7000 individuals signed up. A monster parade opened the campaign, and support was enlisted from practically every organization in town.

Three lines of attack were launched at once, all coordinated under direction of the Safety League. The first was a giant publicity campaign in which the newspapers played a leading role, but in which nearly 100,000 pieces of printed matter were distributed, and radio, movies, pictures, and posters used.

There were engineering studies and improvements in signals, signs, elimination of traffic hazards, and the whole mechanical side of safety.

The police eliminated ticket-fixing, operated a sound truck, specially investigated causes of accidents.

None of these things is new. Most cities have tried one or all of them. But where Beaumont excelled was, first, in rallying exceptional public support, and, second, in pressing the campaign without a let-up through the entire year. The two-week campaign that has every motorist on his toes and then is forgotten had no place in the Beaumont picture.

It can be done—this job of cutting down accidents. And it doesn't take any fantastic or expert measures. What it does take is what Beaumont gave it and what any city can give it. That is a widespread determination never to let up a minute until results are obtained.

Mental Disorders In State Real Problem

AUSTIN, Tex.—Mental disorders today represent a real problem and it is estimated that more than fifty per cent of all hospital beds are filled by persons suffering from mental or nervous diseases, declares Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

It thus appears that modern civilization is exacting a terrific toll. High speed living, with its cruel exactions upon nature, is responsible for a large part of the trouble. But improper personal conduct must also shoulder much of the blame. The fact is that nearly fifty per cent of the patients entering hospitals for mental disorders are there because of organic or toxic causes.

Pecan Workers Riot At San Antonio

By United Press
SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 11.—San Antonio's pecan workers strike continued tense today as police dispersed pickets and arrested many on charges of unlawful assembly. During excitement several tones were hurled at police squad cars.

Auto Industry Gives $500,000 for Safety During 1938

DETROIT—Approving a budget of approximately $500,000 as the motor industry's contribution to 1938 highway safety, the Operating Committee of the Automotive Safety Foundation met in Detroit today and reaffirmed its determination to continue the national program inaugurated two years ago. The funds will be disbursed in grants to a dozen national organizations through the Foundation which acts in matters of highway safety for the makers of cars, trucks, buses, parts, accessories, tires and the finance groups of the industry.

Specific projects are to be carried out with motor industry collaboration by: American Automobile Association; American Legion; General Federation of Women's Clubs; Harvard Bureau for Street Traffic Research; National Congress of Parents and Teachers; National Safety Council; Highway Education Board; National Grange; International Association of Chiefs of Police; Northwestern University and the National Education Association.

Emphasis of the integrated national movement in 1938 will be placed on local application of safety measures through a standard highway safety program for states, by means of which local units of government will be afforded a more substantial opportunity of utilizing the effective methods, technique and facilities being supported by the national program.

Paul G. Hoffman, President of the Foundation pointed out the need for the expenditure of more public funds for highway accident prevention and said that more of the special motor taxes being levied by states should be devoted to sound measures of Education, Motor Vehicle Administration, Legislation, Enforcement, Engineering, Technical Personnel Training and Research, which are the seven points of the model state program now being urged for general adoption by national groups with total membership exceeding 8,000,000 persons.

Camera's Eye Spots Disaster as It Happens

The industry's 1938 financial contribution will be used principally to: train traffic engineers at Harvard; train traffic police at Northwestern and several other universities; provide educational films for the American Legion and the National Education Association; to work for rural safety through the Grange, Farm Bureau Federation, 4-H Clubs and other agricultural bodies; install accident prevention bureaus in police departments; provide teacher training facilities for the educational system; help promote the national safety contest among cities and states; collaborate with federal and state highway and motor vehicle enforcement and administration officials in all matters relating to accident prevention, and to promote the adoption of standard driver license laws in all states now lacking adequate statutes in this respect.

River Pavement To Curb Floods

RESERVE, La.—A "super-highway" of asphalt paving for the bottom of the Mississippi river, the muddy channel is being laid here as part of the century-old fight to keep floods under control.

Utilizing a million-dollar floating industrial village, United States army engineers are applying a mile-long 500-foot wide blanket of asphalt along the Mississippi's bank and bottom where this village and its valuable industrial and agricultural properties are exposed to the river's relentless sweep.

Similar stretches of "pavement" have been laid throughout the 2nd New Orleans engineering district—a total of 9 1/2 miles, or 250,000,000 square feet, since the process was perfected in 1934. Approximately $5,250,000 has been expended thus far on the work, which is intended to halt undercutting of levees and riverbanks and thus prevent cave-ins.

Plans are now underway, sponsored by Louisiana's Gov. Richard W. Leche, to obtain a greater apportionment of Federal funds for riverfront construction, as the engineers call the pavement-laying.

Considered an outstanding example of engineering ingenuity, the highly mobile "floating village" that does the work is unique. It consists of a giant, double-deck, mattress manufacturing barge, the world's only floating asphalt mixing plant, a fleet of 30 barges, two floating hotels, supply boats, tugs, excavators, power plants and mixers—all controlled by a crew of 500 workers.

Chief in point of interest is the mattress plant. Mounted on a barge 260 feet long and 45 feet wide, it utilizes two giant asphalt paving machines, two steam shovels and two huge hopper cars to manufacture and apply the paving material.

The mattress is identical in appearance with the ordinary "black top" road, but thinner and softer for easier handling and better adjustment with the river bed conformation. It is made in units 218 feet long and 30 feet wide, each firmly joined to the preceding one so as to form a continuous sheet 218 feet wide which reaches from slightly above the water's edge to and beyond the point where the water is deepest—an average of 480 feet offshore.

Pouring, tamping and finishing are done automatically by giant machines which move along the barge's deck. After each section has been cooled from its 350 degrees Fahrenheit working temperature to 120 degrees by a strong water spray, the entire barge is moved farther out into the river. This maneuver simultaneously launches the finished section and feeds additional reinforcing mesh and steel cable into position for the next batch from the barge's lower structure.

Use of asphalt pavements solves an old problem in the continual flight against the river. Originally huge mats of interwoven willow branches were tried. They quickly disintegrated. They were succeeded by expensive interlocked concrete segments, but the steel reinforcement exposed between blocks corroded too rapidly. Since all such reinforcement is now buried in the waterproof asphalt, the present mattresses are expected to last indefinitely.

The British colonial secretary facetiously suggest perhaps Britain should offer Ireland to Italy for colonization. Well, that would be one way of taking it down a peg—if he tried it.

One Negro Burglar Runs Into Another

HOUSTON.—A badly frightened negro was apprehended by Policemen J. E. Kent and Cal Morgan as he fled from a residence.

"I went there to rob that house," he stammered, "but there was another negro already robbing it."

Kent and Morgan entered the house and found another frightened burglar. They took both the negroes to jail.

Why worry about the future of China? With Chinese armies destroying everything as they retreat, and Japanese troops finishing the job as they advance there soon will be no China left to worry about.

Looking back over the period of years of Piggly Wiggly service, we are mindful of our first store in Eastland, a small beginning, but with a determination to render the best of service for convenient shopping and, above all, to give the people the greatest values for their money in all their food needs.

The month of February, 1919, will always be a pleasant memory, because at that time we began to cultivate our friends in this entire section and by their patronage and loyalty to us, we have gradually developed a food service that we are tempted to say is the best that modern methods could apply at this day. For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK

CAST OF CHARACTERS
POLLY CHASE, heroine, in London when war broke out.
JERRY WHITEFIELD, hero, the man who saves her through Cabell Banks, privateer captain.

Yesterday: Pronged by the impossible game, Jerry is knocked unconscious. His last thought is of Polly.

CHAPTER IX
WHEN Jerry Whitefield opened his eyes he was not conscious of himself as a person but only of a cramped body and bruised head that ached intolerably.

It was only when he became aware of himself as a personality that surprise gripped him. This was Jerry Whitefield that ached and lay in the darkness of a ship's hold. . . . Where ought Jerry Whitefield to be? What ought he to be doing? . . .

"—Unicorn and Crown," he mused aloud. And then, "Polly—Chelsey—"

He arose to his knees and began to pound the planks above him, frantically. A voice somewhere near in the darkness said, "Stop it, you fool. Don't scratch His Majesty's pretty planks." The voice had a Yankee twang, but it was kind.

"Who are you?" Jerry asked. "Here we are?"

"Cabell Banks from Boston, lieutenant of America. We're definitely below decks on a big sloop called the Sunrise. British ship, I believe—or have you caught on?"

"God help me!" Jerry muttered. "I doubt if he does for a while. Lie down and think things over. You've got plenty of time."

"JERRY lay down, heavily. To ease his throbbing head he put his arm beneath it. "If you know how I got here, he mused impatiently at his unseen companion, "then tell me and have it over with."

"You came rolled in a blanket," he heard Cabell Banks say. "Very cozy. A couple of pressmen brought you down an hour ago, and four men stowed you down here. I opened after my bedtime, you say. I'm not allowed on deck after sundown, so I didn't know what happened. But I've got to gather you up, a choice of London street fight."

"There was a long silence filled with laboring thinking. Then a voice, heavy with the dialect of an outraged Yankee: "Don't fight! There was not a fight. I was hit on the head from behind and went out."

like a candle. I'd walked into a dark side street, like a fool, to help a woman."

"Ah, my unseen friend, my fellow countryman, how naive!"

"If that's a French word," Jerry complained, "don't use it. I'm as good a sailor as ever hauled a rope or steered a course, but I'm not educated. . . . It appears you are."

"Yes and no," said Cabell Banks, and he could be heard shifting his position in the darkness. "I studied the classics at Harvard. Also the French language, mathematics, and astronomy. But I'd not learned how to shave with a razor or how to relish wormy ship biscuits. No, nor how to sleep without a mattress. It appears that while British rules the seas, every young man about to take a voyage should master these subjects."

"You talk like a drunk man," Jerry stated.

"I'm not drunk, but low-spirited and glad to have an audience. I've had two days of my own company, if I calculate right."

"How did you get here?"

"I WAS on the Hardy, a small merchantman out of Boston that had just cleared Ostend. On the day news of the war reached the North Sea, an English ship-of-the-line came down on us from one direction and this brig sloop Sunrise from another. The ship-of-the-line—I learned afterward she carried 110 guns—signaled to the sloop to take us. Navy courtesy, you might say, or else we were too small for the big ship to bother with. She stood by while the Sunrise went through the formalities of asking who we were, where from and where bound. Then the brig's captain gave us choice of surrendering or having our decks raked. Our skipper wisely chose the former course, and so we were not raked or boarded. They brought us in to the London docks like a hen 'tending in a chicken. I take it we were the first prize of the war."

"Where's the rest of your crew?"

"They were all pressed into service yesterday on a water tank sloop that was about to start to the West Indies."

"What do you expect them to do with you?"

"Exchange me for the first English officer that's captured by the United States. I told them how much money my father has."

"Has he got so much?"

"He owns more merchant ships than any man in Boston. The little Hardy was one of my father's brigantines. I was taking a cruise on her to show my opinion of Mr. Madison. A Virginian's got no right ordering Boston to close her port."

"Be's our President."

"But merely a Virginia farmer. . . . However I get the point now I've had some time to think. He was hoping to punish England by his embargo. . . . What are your political views?"

"I've not got any. . . . Can I have some water?"

"Yes. There's a small keg of it here. Stale but wet. Wait a minute—I'll defy orders and light the lantern."

THIS he did, but so awkwardly that Jerry, in his feverish thirst, almost cursed him for his slowness. When he had handed the cup of water and had drunk it empty, Jerry looked at his benefactor. He saw a slight, fashionable-looking youth, as ugly as Puck, with aristocratic features and a sardonic expression, but with eyes that were surprisingly boyish and friendly. It was the eyes that made Jerry like Cabell Banks without reservation.

"Banks," he said, "my name's Whitefield. I've got to get out of here. Tonight, I mean. There's a girl . . ."

"That one you mentioned?" this with malicious humor.

"No," said Jerry impatiently, "not that one. An American. Polly Chelsey from Connecticut. We're going to be married when I can take her home to America. She's waiting for me now at the Unicorn and Crown Tavern. She hasn't got a friend to her name in all of London."

"Hm-m. Very bad business. . . . Take another cup of water and quit talking. . . . Here! . . . Now I must blow out the lantern."

Jerry drank the water. "I tell you I've got to get out tonight, Banks!"

"And I tell you you can't, Mr. Whitefield. You're a prisoner of the strongest navy on earth, and the most hard-hearted."

During the ensuing hour while Jerry cursed his captors, clawed at the hatches, kicked and pounded the bulkheads, the wealthiest young man in Boston lay quietly with his eyes closed, as if infinitely bored. But when Jerry Whitefield had fallen heavily to the deck at last, spent and despairing, Cabell Banks rolled his own coat for a pillow and put it under the blood-matted head.

"If you want more water tonight," he said, "call me. But don't order port wine or roast guinea hen. We're out of both."

Crossley Will Run For Representative Of Eastland County

P. L. (Lewis) Crossley authorizes this paper to say that he is a candidate for State Representative for the 106th District, which is composed of Eastland County alone. Lewis says that he has entertained a definite ambition for some time to serve the people of Eastland County in this capacity and to try to help solve some of the many legislative problems which materially affect Eastland County, and his friends will be glad to note his announcement at this time.

Lewis is 42 years old, has spent the greater part of his life in the county, and is known as our very affable and efficient District Clerk, and as such has won for himself the confidence and esteem of not only the court officials, but of the many jurors throughout the county who have served in our district courts, and litigants whose business has brought them in contact with his office.

When asked for some statement on his legislative policy, Lewis said: "I will from time to time give my views on public matters, and during the next few months I expect to wage an active campaign throughout the county and will make it my business to draw from my friends and the people generally their ideas, needs and legislative wishes with the view of being able to more effectively represent them in the legislature, if elected. No public official can properly represent his constituents unless he has a personal acquaintance with and understands the needs of his people and their problems, and I invite the entire citizenship of the county to come to be not only with their constructive ideas, but with their complaints and our much criticized 'imperfect administrative machinery' also, to the end that a more practical and more economical administration of the affairs of our state may be had."

Lewis is known to be conservative by nature, and his friends rest on his assurance that the taxpayers problems will be dealt with as nearly in accordance with their wishes as is possible, to their entire satisfaction.

NAZI army officials have instituted a campaign of "silence training" to prevent soldiers from giving away military secrets. Presumably they hope other nations will not follow suit.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Despite all the confusions and contradictions which continue to afflict everyone concerned with the recent White House conferences and utterances, it is possible to brush enough debris out of the eyes to see certain elements of change in the government-business situation.

In trying to peer into the future, which has become increasingly difficult, most observers fail to assay developments of the immediate past.

The conflict between the administration and "Big Business," which will continue regardless of conferences and co-operative gestures, has produced victories or gains on both sides. The most notable business gain has been in the field of taxation. The House bill modifying the corporate surplus and capital gains taxes is painful to Roosevelt's less conservative advisers, and it is likely that the Senate will lean even further toward demands for drastic modification or repeal.

But some of the uppermost and innermost New Dealers, although chagrined by the tie-up of the Roosevelt program in Congress and recognizing the seriousness of the depression, insist that on the whole they are well pleased by events and trends of the first weeks of 1938.

The vociferous demand of "Balance the Budget!"—which was a potent slogan for Roosevelt's opponents—has not been heard at all during the recent White House conferences with business men. Secretly, the President feels he can convince certain captains of industry and finance that he can beat them in any name-calling contest, and that his popular following supports him in any attack on big business.

NOTABLE progress is claimed for the New Deal power policy. Despite all the furor over the President's subsequently modified suggestion that all holding companies should be abolished, the net result is a rather striking change of attitude.

The celebrated "death sentence" in the public utilities holding company act now seems relatively mild to the business community. The TVA issue has shifted to a question of how the government will buy private power facilities. The drive to shoot down TVA has sagged, in other words, and now the question is simply one of expanding TVA.

Since most of the simon-pure New Dealers believe that the "power fight" is more important than ever, these developments and recent Court decisions favoring administration power policies elate them considerably.

TWO liberals have replaced two conservatives on the Supreme Court and a definitely liberal majority holds sway.

That it is easier to appease conservative anti-New Dealers than it was late last year was indicated by the appointment of Stanley Reed "instead of some radical." Reed, for all practical purposes, was just as New Dealish as anyone the President could have appointed.

A PHI BETA KAPPA scholar, with a West Point background, assumes the duties of football coach at the University of Oregon next fall.

And the results should be very interesting when Gerald A. (Tex) Oliver starts moving in Pacific Coast Conference circles.

Oliver played his first big-time football at West Point after the World War, under "Cap" McEwan. He gained entrance to West Point via the examination route after many months with the doughboys in Europe.

This big six-footer has coached the grid game nearly half of his 38 years. And the Pacific coast is not new territory. For four years he was stationed at San Diego high school and then put in seven more at Santa Ana high school, sending many a prep star to coast schools.

At Santa Ana, from 1930 to 1932, Oliver's high school charges won 27 straight games. This reputation landed him at the University of Arizona where in five years his football teams won 32 games, lost 11 and tied four.

During the 1937 season, the Wildcats won eight games and lost two. Notable victories were over Kansas, 9 to 7, and Oregon, 20 to 6. It was the beating his team gave Oregon that brought him attention at Eugene.

FOLLOWING his West Point days, Oliver attended summer sessions at Stanford and University of Southern California, where he earned his B. A. degree in 1930. He also earned a Phi Beta Kappa key, which bespeaks his scholastic record.

Romani, Don Lash and Forrest Towns in regard to appearance as special performers.

Preliminary information has been sent to 500 colleges and 100 high schools. Entry blanks will be mailed Mar. 6.

Born in Atlanta, Nov. 21, 1899, Oliver received his early education in Georgia but starred as a high school athlete in Houston and El Paso, Tex. He was a four-sport letterman in interscholastic competition, participating in football, basketball, baseball and track.

On his first visit to Eugene, Oliver impressed everyone with his keen sense of humor and fluent manner of speech. He proved that even the life of football coach needn't be too serious.

Monday morning quarterbacks—those ever-helpful alumni who meet on Mondays to diagnose Saturday's errors—fail to worry him. "In Tucson we had a chap called 'Town Cats'—about 300 of 'em—which met once a week and discussed the games. We showed pictures and had a lot of fun!"

He admitted he borrowed the idea from Minnesota's Bernie Bierman, and that it kept the wolves from growling if he led a close game!

OLIVER has another plan to aid in his "public relations." It's a "football clinic," to which the public is invited to witness passing, running and punting contests.

The contests create a lot of interest in the team," he claims, "and the public learns to know the players personally."

As to his particular style of play, Oliver characterizes his coaching as "versatile attack," and lets it go at that.

In offering Oliver a three-year contract at $6000 annually, Oregon broke a long precedent. At the present time, Oliver is president of the Pacific Coast Football Coaches' Association.

The cow" is at the chuck-box
Whistling "Hellies in the Green",
Making baking-powder biscuits, boys,
While the pot is boiling beans.
The boys untie their bedding,
And unroll it on the rug,
For they are in a monstrous hurry,
For the supper's almost done.

"Here's your bloody wolf-bait,"
Cried the cook's familiar voice
As he climbed the wagon wheel,
To watch the cowboys all relax . . .

. . . This life is not so sumptuous,
I'm not longing for a change,
For there is no place so homelike
As a cow camp on the range.

The cowboy on the range and the city dweller in his home share at least one thing in common—a love of Admiration Coffee. Billed over a camp fire or brewed in the latest coffee-making device, this favorite coffee of Texans everywhere has a tempting deliciousness that cannot be excelled. After all, the TASTE of a coffee is what counts most, and Admiration's sparkling, invigorating flavor appeals alike to the out-door man or to those who work in city offices or live at home. Try a pound today—so many Texans can't be wrong.

This is one of a series of advertisements finding inspiration in the authentic, original cowboy ballads. Selections are from the John A. Lomax collection.

Junior College Is Loser By a Small Score at Abilene

The Ranger Junior College basketball team played the Hardin-Simmons freshman team at Abilene last night. The Rangers were leading at the half with a score of 19 to 8. However, their small number of players were unable to stand up against Hardin-Simmons' fifteen available players. The final score was 47 to 41 in favor of Hardin-Simmons.

The Rangers' starting lineup was Hugh McCall and Wesley Norris, forwards; Alvis Wood, center; Woodrow Wilson and Frank Clement, guards.

Woodrow Wilson, the Rangers' high point man, made a score of 16 points, the highest score made by any one player on either team. The Decatur Baptists will meet the Rangers on the Ranger court next Monday night.

Vice Ring Picture Moved to Columbia

Following on the heels of recent sensational headlines which ripped the lid off one of the most amazing vice syndicates in this country, comes now a motion picture that dares to tell the truth and reveals with astonishing frankness the vicious workings of the giant octopus that destroyed the happiness of many an American home.

A very unusual and decidedly different picture is "Gambling With Souls," which played to great crowds yesterday at the Arcadia theatre and which will show at the Columbia today. The picture was transferred from the Arcadia to the Columbia in order to make room for "The Hurricane," which had been previously booked. The producers of this film have turned out an excellent adaptation of a real-life story which was widely read in the newspapers of the country and much commented on.
