White, at 70, Tosses a Kiss to the Future

When William Allen White, the famed Emporia editor, was 65, he wrote: "Lady Luck has been good to me. I fancy she is good to every one, only some people are dour, and when she gives them the comethither with her eyes they look down or turn away and lift an eye brow. But me, I give her the wing and away we go."

And now, at his 70th birthday (Feb. 10), the Kansas sage is still giving Lady Luck the wink, for Lady Luck to William Allen White is the world and all its precocities. He has lived almost all his life in Emporia where he was born, yet no figure in newspaper life has ever gained a greater or wider fame. He began "speaking his mind" through his editorials before he was 30; he has been doing it since and that mind has never been bound by the limits of Emporia. He has liked to think of himself as a little bit crazy, for he always held that there was no insanity in a man's life so devastating as utter sanity. "Logic," wrote White, "is an addiction that drives men into acute melancholia and makes dumb bunnies of its devotees."

If William Allen White is insane then this country needs more dementia. A staunch Republican, he has broken with his party only when that organization became, in his views, too sane. He fought for Theodore Roosevelt and against Franklin Roosevelt, and when the latter won, wrote:

"We are going on a great new adventure. . . . The dam gave way which has been lowly filling for 40 years, fed by the waters of Bryanism, of La Follette's Wisconsin insurgency . . . the waters of the New Deal cover the earth."

White's faith in Kansas and the United States has marked his writing, but simpler things than politics more often take his attention. He prefers to write placid, quizzical editorials on the town drunkard, a quarrelling married couple, a girl in trouble, or the roast that wouldn't brown properly. He is the epitome of Main Street, if Main Street means the everyday things of life in the everyday fashion of meeting them.

At 65 Editor White remarked that he was giving the past a shameless, characteristic gesture, while he threw kisses at the future. After 70 he will probably continue to toss his kisses as long as he has a Kansas-bred arm to raise and a world in audience.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN
CLYDE L. GARRETT

Federal Housing Bill
The Administration's housing bill recommended by the President as the special session in November last, is now a law. Both houses of Congress approved the joint conference committee report on the bill.

Equal Rights
The Senate committee on judiciary will hear a proposal for a constitutional amendment declaring "men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction," and that "Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation." While the Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution provides equal suffrage for women it does not go far enough and so the new amendment is proposed.

Highways
President Roosevelt recently recommended that the federal aid states for highways be cut down to $125,000,000 annually. House committee on roads has been hearing debates on a bill continuing present federal program of $218,000,000 annually. The arguments against curtailment of federal aid is that it would disrupt state plans, affect safety, retard farm-to-market transport, curtail road construction generally, cause diversion of gasoline and registration fees away from highway use and menace war-time communications.

Social Security
Approximately 890,000 men, women and children received public assistance at some time during the past fiscal year in states cooperating under the Social Security Act. The analysis indicates that the social security program is taking over, to a significant degree, obligations formerly borne by relief agencies, and in some instances is complementing other forms of public aid to hold homes together and protect the integrity of family life.

Federal Housing
Notices were sent out by the the board's 323 field offices, a card for this purpose designated as "Employee's Request for Change in Records," may be obtained. Corrected account number cards will be sent to anyone who reports her change of name.

Widow Pensions

Under a bill reported favorably to the House by the committee on pensions, widows and orphans of World War veterans would receive pensions based on service of veterans, regardless of whether they were disabled or not. Eligibility of a widow would depend on marriage to the veteran before 1941; if childless the marriage must have been by July 3, 1931. Veteran must have served at least 90 days between April 6, 1917, and July 2, 1921, and at the time of the signing of the armistice, he must have been in uniform. A widow would receive $22 a month and $6 a month for the first child with $5 a month for other children under 16 years of age.

Credit Basis

A plan to put the country's existing money supply to work on a credit basis is being studied and devised by President Roosevelt. He believes that this is a better method than one of borrowing and spending by the Government in order to create more money.

Wheat

Another wheat crop in excess of domestic needs is likely in 1935. This opinion is based on the assumption that the winter wheat crop will not be materially less than indicated on Dec. 1, and that the spring wheat crop will be no lower than the small harvest of 1934. Winter wheat production was tentatively indicated at 630 million bushels. Weather conditions between Dec. 1 and harvest time, however, may cause production to differ considerably from this indication. If the winter wheat crop should turn out to be 630 million bushels and if the spring wheat harvest should approximate the 10-year (1928-37) average, the total wheat crop would amount to about 820 million bushels. Even if the spring wheat crop should be as small as in 1934 the total harvest would still be about 720 million bushels.

reckless prank you're up to, think twice. Such things can lead to trouble."
 "It's no prank," Polly said. "It's an escape from danger."
 The old man's face grew grave. "Then it's well I've contrived with skill." He refused pay for anything save the wig itself and wished her bon voyage.
 That night when the dress and bonnet had been delivered, Polly was obliged to send for the innkeeper and porter and tell them of her intent. She showed them dress, bonnet and wig, assuming a high-handed aggressiveness she was far from feeling.

"When I leave here tomorrow morning," she said, "I'll be disguised as an old woman for reasons entirely my own. I assure you no harm will come to anybody because of it." To forestall any qualms of conscience on the part of either, she hastily overpaid her tavern bill and tipped the porter.

NEXT morning, what appeared to be a tall, bent old woman, ragged and uncommunicative, came into the stable yard of the inn to take conveyance on the Deal coach. She was followed by a mongrel dog and by a porter bearing her trunk.

As the latter helped her into the coach he said, "Watch yer dog, old dame. He's a frisky one." He lowered an eyelid to show his enjoyment of the situation, for he was a good-natured Devonshireman who relished a joke.
 "Mind your manners!" retorted the old woman, frowning severely. "Get along with you!" Her mouth twitched oddly.

"Not till I ask ye about a letter," said the porter. "Here 'tis. This came from Lon'on last night, but not by regular post. The driver carried it down. He remembered about it this mornin', sayin' it was to be delivered to a young lady by name of Chelsey. Now your name be Chelsey, but it's been a time since ye were young..."
 "Give it here!" said the old woman and whacked him smartly across the shoulder with her staff. "It's for my niece. Her eyelid, too, lowered discreetly, in mute apology for the whack.
 As the coach jolted out of the cobbled stable yard and gained the highway, Polly Chelsey examined the letter with curiosity. She did not recognize the cramped feminine hand-writing of the address, but supposed it must be from Mrs. Toby, belatedly wishing her bon voyage.
 She had a more pressing matter to think about. The driver would soon be asking his passengers where they wanted to be set down, and Polly had not chosen her destination. Even yet her only beacon was that phrase of Jerry's: "some where short of Deal there's a wretched fishing village where this smuggler puts in..."
 "Will I know the place when I see it? she was asking herself. Her fingers were automatically breaking the seal of the letter, and opening it. And now she began to read. By the time she had reached the second line she was sitting erect, gripping the paper.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH BOONEY BUREW

WASHINGTON—Affairs in the Department of Interior are even more preposterous than usual and it looks as if Secretary "Honest Harold" Ickes, in liquidating the office staff of Undersecretary Charles West, has managed to liquidate his pet project—the proposed Department of Conservation.
 This is a rather complicated and involved story, but it does none of the Secretary's interest for that. Also, it involves the future of Ickes, with which an increasing number of New Dealers are concerned.
 The clean-up of West's office staff was about as conspicuous a slap in the face as a cabinet member could give a subordinate. It was one of the most astonishing incidents in the history of the New Deal and is commonly referred to with adjectives more stinging.
 Charlie West was Roosevelt's chief liaison man with Congress. He was undersecretary of the Interior, with nominal duties, in order to give him an office and salary with which to operate.
 The arrangement appeared to be satisfactory to Ickes, who with the help of his assistant and administrative officer Ebert K. Burlew seemed to have no trouble running the department.
 But West began to think that he was the victim of Ickes' Burlew espionage and wiretapping and he became very vocal about it. He was no more bitter in his criticisms of Ickes and Burlew than many other of Ickes' under-officials have been, but West didn't care who knew it. It appears he even started a little investigation of alleged wiretapping on his own.
 Ickes has his story about that and West has his, but in the upshot Ickes summoned West, bawled him out unmercifully and ordered him from his presence.

Dangers of Kite Flying Explained By Tesco's Head

With the kite flying season at hand, Texas Electric Service Company issued Wednesday its annual appeal to parents to warn children flying kites to keep away from electric power lines.
 "That the innocent pastime of kite flying can be exceedingly dangerous is brought out forcibly by the fact that many fatal accidents occurred in the year just past because of children getting their metalized kites tangled in power lines," according to J. E. Lewis, district manager of Texas Electric Service Company.
 "Too often children use metal wire in the place of string on their kites and when this wire comes in contact with a power line the result is instantly disastrous. Even plain kite strings sometimes carry current, especially if the string is wet. The best kite, regardless of how the string is built or what kind of string is being used, is to see that it is flown in open spaces where no power lines are located," Lewis stated.
 "If a kite should become entangled in power lines, be sure that children do not climb the poles or use long sticks to try to get the kite down. Call our company office and a trained line-man will be sent to rescue the kite if it is possible to do so."
 Employees of the electric company will pay their annual visit to local schools shortly and will make a detailed explanation of the dangers of flying kites near power lines.

Y. W. A. Members Pay Visit to Shut-Ins

Members of the Y. W. A. of First Baptist church gathered at the church this week for a short business session followed with visits to shut-ins. The first visit was paid to Harvey McGown, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. McGown who recently underwent a head operation at Scott-White hospital, Temple. A Valentine box and program kit was presented under the direction of the sponsor, Mrs. Frank Hicklin. From the McGown home the members drove to the home of Bernice Stevens, and complimented him in the same manner. His confinement is attributed to injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

The Y. W. A. membership is made up of young women of Ranger, many of whom are business girls, while a number of others are more domestically inclined. The type of study is interesting and varied. Once a month the entire meeting period is given to industrial work, which always proves profitable. Activities at this time are carried forward under the leadership of Miss Mona Robinson, president, and sponsor, Mrs. Hicklin, whose work connects her with many departments of the Baptist church.

Ranger Methodist Church Leads At Attendance Count at Cisco Area Banquet

With every department of the local First Methodist church functioning with renewed interest and enthusiasm based on the fine directorship of the pastor, the Rev. G. Alfred Brown, increased attendance is noted at all services and meetings. Giving emphasis to this inspiring condition for the early part of the new year comes with Ranger leading the attendance count when the Cisco area banquet was held at the First Methodist church at Eastland, Tuesday evening.

The Rev. S. L. Culwell, pastor at Stephenville, called attention to the lively and wide-awake group of workers, in turn Ranger gained mention when the Rev. Mr. Curry, presiding elder, totaled 23 members present, leading the delegation of out-of-town visitors.

The banquet was the Cisco district's first of 1932. Over 200 attended.
Ranger's visitors were: Rev. and Mrs. G. Alfred Brown, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ratliff, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Deffbach, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cooper, Jr., and Miss Vern Vivian Cooper, Mrs. Mills Davenport and Messrs C. D. Boy Rescues Girl in California Flood

Amidst high wind and high water, chivalry was much in evidence as rains, blizzards and gales ravaged California. The picture above, taken in one of the main streets of Watsonville, shows a gallant assisting a young damsel from her stalled car into his rescue boat. The Pajaro river had flooded the town after a bordering levee broke. Three weeks of rain put most of the streams in the state well over flood stage. Thousands of acres of fertile valley land were under water, and property damage was enormous.

Woman Judged as Dead In '98 Lives For Forty Years

FREMONT, Ohio.—The death of Mrs. Lulu Codrith Sturdevant at the age of 66 brought out the story of her "first death" 40 years before.
In 1898, Mrs. Sturdevant was pronounced dead of typhoid and spinal fever. She was laid out in a casket.
Shortly before the funeral her husband—the late Warren A. Sturdevant—noticed a movement of her body. He hastily pressed a spoon on her tongue. Her normal breathing was restored and she lived to tell her story for 40 years thereafter.
Mrs. Sturdevant, in telling her experience, said she could hear her husband and relatives talking and mourning her death. But she was powerless, unable to move, speak or otherwise indicate she was alive.
