The new grass greens were used for the first time on Oct. 25 of last year, and Sunday they were in perfect condition. It is expected that more and more golfers will be playing the course throughout the spring and summer because of the excellent playing conditions.

Olden Establishes A Track Record In Past Four Years

By scoring 65 points to win the Class B track championship of Eastland county Saturday, Coach Herman Scruggs established a record for the coach that has probably never been equaled by a Class B school in the state.
Here is the record Scruggs has set as a track coach during his regime at Olden, which is a record for any coach to envy:
1935—Olden won the Class B track championship of Eastland County and went to the State Class B Track Meet at Denton, winning fourth place.
1936—Olden won the Class B track championship of Eastland county and went to the Class A district meet at Breckenridge, finishing in third place against Class A competition. Later the track team went to the State Class B Track Meet at Denton, winning the state championship.
1937—Olden won the Class B track championship of Eastland County and again finished third in the Class A district meet at Breckenridge against Class A competition. At the Class B State Meet at Denton the track team again won first place, making two years in a row the school had won the Class B State Championship, and the third year in succession it had finished among the first four.

WOMAN STOOD BY WHILE TWO WERE KILLED

By United Press
ALAMOGORDA, N. M., April 4.—A youth wanted as an army deserter was arrested today and questioned concerning the slaying of Mrs. Weston Frome and her daughter, near Van Horn. The sheriff would not confirm reports that bloodstains were found in his car.

By United Press
EL PASO, April 4.—Roy Whitwood, investigator for the district attorney, said today tests made during the autopsy of Mrs. Weston Frome and her daughter failed to show the women had been attacked.

By United Press
VAN HORN, April 4.—Authorities said today that evidence at the scene of the murders of a society matron and her beautiful daughter indicated that a woman stood by while her male companion tortured and criminally attacked the victims.
After the brutal attack on Mrs. Weston Frome, 46, and her daughter, Nancy, 22, the assailants fired bullet wounds into the heads of both women.

District Attorney Roy Jackson of El Paso said after an inspection of the lonely wastelands six miles east of here, that the murderers were a man and a woman and that it was his theory they intercepted Mrs. Frome and her daughter when their tire blew out. The women were on an automobile trip from Berkeley, Calif., to South Carolina.
"My theory," Jackson said, "is that a tire on the Frome car blew out. A man and woman in a black coupe stopped. The man changed a tire, pulled a gun and ordered the car driven into the brush six miles from here."

Jackson's theory was based on stories told by persons who saw the coupe following the Frome car Wednesday afternoon. The women's bodies were found Sunday night. The abandoned Frome car was found near Balmorhea, 50 miles east of here.

The assault was vicious, Jackson said. It was learned that Miss Frome was criminally attacked and indications were Mrs. Frome was likewise abused. Bits of flesh found under Miss Frome's fingernails, bits of a man's hair in her hands and a man's handkerchief she held were studied at Austin at the State Public Safety Department laboratories.

Frome, assistant sales manager of the Atlas Powder Company, came here Saturday by plane.
Hope of finding the slayers descended largely on finding the belongings taken from the women and the appearance of their traveler's checks.
Governor Allred posted a reward of $1,000 for arrest of the slayers.

A Fine Example of Nazi Honor

Hitler hates everybody who opposes him and many who don't oppose him, and the powers that are trying to stroke his ruffled mane might consider the case of Laszlo Fodor, who committed the twin atrocities of being born a Jew and of drawing cartoons to the left of the extreme right advocated by the Great Man.

Fodor was not mistreated physically by the Nazis and was not sent to a concentration camp. So perhaps a dispassionate examination of his story is all the more possible.

Fodor fought four years in the Austro-Hungarian army, coming up through the ranks to a commission as a lieutenant. Germany was at that time glad to have the support of such men, even if they were of Jewish blood.

After the war, Fodor went to Berlin as a political cartoonist and editor. His success was quick and soon he had organized his own newspaper syndicate. He prospered. Then came the Nazi fury. Hitler's storm troopers kicked Fodor out of his office, told him to get out of the country. They allowed him to take his wife, his passport, and some clothes with him. The Nazis took over Fodor's syndicate, which at that time was making about $100,000 a year. They are still operating it.

Fodor went to Zurich, Switzerland, where, before Hitler, he had banked $10,000. With this he started a new syndicate, but costs were high and he moved the business to Vienna. At that time Fodor couldn't conceive of a situation where Mussolini would allow Hitler to take Austria. Who could?

Fodor built another successful business in Vienna. The Nazis moved in again. This time they confiscated everything. Fodor was in New York when he got the news. Now 40 years old, he must start over again. This time he will try the United States. And he will have just about every American who knows his story in his corner.

So that is just one of many. There is no sign that the Austrian Jews will receive better treatment than the German Jews. The wave of suicides among the race indicates how much mercy they expect from the Great Man.

Vienna has been a city of great culture and accomplishment. There were many Jews in high places in her famous medical schools and clinics. Jews were largely responsible for the fame of Viennese opera, music, and theater. Those great Jews will consider Laszlo Fodor comparatively fortunate, for he was thousands of miles away when the booted terror marched in.

But aside from the democracies' feelings about the fate of the Austrian Jews and the other groups which find disfavor with Der Fuehrer, what are the democracies to expect when they attempt to deal with Hitler? They have the case of Laszlo Fodor as an example.

Turtle Tinting Is A Home Industry

SCHRIEVER, La. — Turtle painting has become more than just a fad in Louisiana. It has grown into an industry. One family alone paints and decorates the shells of 200,000 turtles annually and ships them to Northern novelty stores.

A turtle art center and started shipping the gaudily painted little reptiles to curio stores all over the country.

The turtle painting season starts when millions of turtles hatched in the swamps begin to swim around and climb on logs and overland. They are caught by the hundreds by small boys wishing to earn pocket money, and sold to painters.

turtles will live for years if cared for properly and never grow in captivity. They are caught when scarcely larger than a silver dollar and remain that size no matter how well fed.

The Thibodeaux family turn out as many as 2,000 painted turtles a day during the season and each member of the family has a special task to perform in preparing them for painting and shipment.

Travelling Caddy Praises the Golf Course in Ranger

George (Happy) O'Brien, 40, who has been caddying since he was seven years old, and who has toured three continents in his wanderings, stopped off at the Ranger Country Club Saturday to do some plain, fancy and expert caddying.

O'Brien, who was born in Boston, says he is competing for a prize of $1,000 by financing his own tour through his caddy fees. He is known as the world's most famous travelling caddy.

He left Boston June 1 and has been to New York, Seattle, San Diego and is now on his way to New Orleans, then by boat to South America, England, Ireland, Scotland and France before returning to New York, which he must reach by June 1, 1938 to win the prize.

O'Brien is not allowed to use trunks or travel by bus, but must hitch hike everywhere he goes, except where boat trips are necessary. So far he has covered 35,000 miles and has caddied for 55,000 famous golfers, including Bobby Jones, Walter Demaret, Gene Sarazen, Jimmy Demaret and many others. He has collected 297 scrap cards from famous golfers, which he keeps in a scrap book.

He stated Saturday that the people of Ranger should be very proud of the local golf course, stating it has the best fairways he has seen since he left California. He said he particularly liked holes five, seven and nine.

Ranger To Have a Clean-up Week With Everyone Helping

This week, April 3 to April 10, has been proclaimed by Governor Allred and by Mayor Hall Walker of Ranger as Clean-Up Week. By Governor Allred it was proclaimed clean-up week throughout the state of Texas and by Mayor Walker it was proclaimed clean-up week for Ranger.

And indications are that Ranger is going to make a concerted effort to really clean up. It was one of the suggestions at the recent chamber of commerce banquet that a cleaner Ranger would be a more attractive Ranger, and the suggestion has fallen on fertile ground.

Mayor Walker stated today the city commission, at its regular weekly meeting Tuesday night, would go into the details of a thorough clean-up campaign and action would be started Wednesday morning, with the remainder of the week being used to clean-up premises, streets, alleys, vacant lots and every place that needs to be cleaned.

The city commissioners are not taking the responsibility of cleaning up the town, but are sponsoring a movement and are urging that everyone in town clean up around their own premises. A real clean-up campaign has not been conducted in Ranger in several years and an effort is being made to have the town as clean as possible by the end of the week.

The cooperation of every firm, every organization and every individual in town is being urged and all are expected to do their part toward making this a cleaner Ranger.

Easter Seals to Be Sold in Ranger By Legion Auxiliary

Heralded by an official proclamation by Governor James V. Allred, the sale of Easter Seals for Crippled Children commenced throughout Texas April 1st. The Governor, who bought the first Easter Seal, has proclaimed the week of April 4th to 11th as Crippled Children's Week in Texas.

Sale of the seals in Ranger is being conducted by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Carl Barnes Post of the American Legion.

Abe Goldberg, Port Arthur philanthropist, who is in charge of the state organization for the sale of seals, announces that more than 100 Texas counties have been fully organized and are ready for the campaign. The goal in Texas is $50,000 to aid crippled children, and the campaign is under the auspices of the Texas Society for Crippled Children, of which Charles F. Ashcroft of Sulphur Springs is president.

The proclamation of Governor Allred setting forth the purposes of the Texas Society is as follows:

"WHEREAS, the Texas Society for Crippled Children, whose voluntary unselfish service in behalf of the unfortunate crippled children of our State is one of the outstanding humanitarian movements on this decade; and

"WHEREAS, this fine organization is conducting its 5th annual sale of Easter Seals from April 7th, 1938;

"N O W, THEREFORE, I, JAMES V. ALLRED, Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby proclaim the period from Monday morning, April 4th through Sunday night, April 10th, 1938, as Crippled Children's Week in Texas and call upon a generous public to give liberal support to this great humanitarian work through the purchase of Easter Seals."

Millions of Easter Seals, selling at a penny each in sheets of one hundred, have been distributed throughout the state to organizations and individuals interested.

The seals this year are in yellow, blue and white, showing a crippled girl watering an Easter lily.

State Easter Seals sales headquarters are at 326 Wilson Building, Dallas, and any person wishing to buy or sell Easter Seals in counties not yet organized is asked to write them immediately.

Texas Working Out From Under Deficit

AUSTIN, April 4.—Texas already is beginning to work out of the huge $17,000,000 general revenue fund deficit piled up during depression years, state treasurer Charley Lockhart said here today.

Besides reducing the deficit in the general fund, special taxes have provided increased aid for old age assistance, highway construction and for schools.

Welcoming a British Warship

Contrasting significantly with strained relations between armed forces in other parts of the world is the friendship apparent in the pictures above, showing U. S. sailors standing by to welcome the British battle cruiser H. M. S. York as she put into the Washington, D. C., navy yard for a five-day visit. The York is the flagship of Vice-Admiral Sidney Julius Meyrick of the Royal Navy, shown in the top photo with Rear Admiral George Pettengill, right, commandant of the navy yard, as they reviewed British marines aboard the York shortly after the cruiser docked.

A Fine Example of Nazi Honor

Hitler hates everybody who opposes him and many who don't oppose him, and the powers that are trying to stroke his ruffled mane might consider the case of Laszlo Fodor, who committed the twin atrocities of being born a Jew and of drawing cartoons to the left of the extreme right advocated by the Great Man.

Fodor was not mistreated physically by the Nazis and was not sent to a concentration camp. So perhaps a dispassionate examination of his story is all the more possible.

Fodor fought four years in the Austro-Hungarian army, coming up through the ranks to a commission as a lieutenant. Germany was at that time glad to have the support of such men, even if they were of Jewish blood.

After the war, Fodor went to Berlin as a political cartoonist and editor. His success was quick and soon he had organized his own newspaper syndicate. He prospered. Then came the Nazi fury. Hitler's storm troopers kicked Fodor out of his office, told him to get out of the country. They allowed him to take his wife, his passport, and some clothes with him. The Nazis took over Fodor's syndicate, which at that time was making about $100,000 a year. They are still operating it.

Fodor went to Zurich, Switzerland, where, before Hitler, he had banked $10,000. With this he started a new syndicate, but costs were high and he moved the business to Vienna. At that time Fodor couldn't conceive of a situation where Mussolini would allow Hitler to take Austria. Who could?

Fodor built another successful business in Vienna. The Nazis moved in again. This time they confiscated everything. Fodor was in New York when he got the news. Now 40 years old, he must start over again. This time he will try the United States. And he will have just about every American who knows his story in his corner.

So that is just one of many. There is no sign that the Austrian Jews will receive better treatment than the German Jews. The wave of suicides among the race indicates how much mercy they expect from the Great Man.

Vienna has been a city of great culture and accomplishment. There were many Jews in high places in her famous medical schools and clinics. Jews were largely responsible for the fame of Viennese opera, music, and theater. Those great Jews will consider Laszlo Fodor comparatively fortunate, for he was thousands of miles away when the booted terror marched in.

But aside from the democracies' feelings about the fate of the Austrian Jews and the other groups which find disfavor with Der Fuehrer, what are the democracies to expect when they attempt to deal with Hitler? They have the case of Laszlo Fodor as an example.

Turtle Tinting Is A Home Industry

By United Press

SCHRIEVER, La. — Turtle painting has become more than just a fad in Louisiana. It has grown into an industry. One family alone paints and decorates the shells of 200,000 turtles annually and ships them to Northern novelty stores.

The family here of E. G. Thibodeaux is typical of those who have taken to turtle painting as a pastime and source of revenue.

The Thibodeaux family started painting turtles and decorating their shells like collegiate raincoats three years ago. They turned the shed in their back yard into a turtle art center and started shipping the gaudily painted little reptiles to curio stores all over the country.

The turtle painting season starts when millions of turtles hatched in the swamps begin to swim around and climb on logs and overland. They are caught by the hundreds by small boys wishing to earn pocket money, and sold to painters.

The Thibodeaux family has evolved a system of painting the turtles which lasts indefinitely. The turtle is not allowed to go near water for three days, then given two coats of bright paint, then a design is painted on the shell and a coat of shellac follows.

The turtle is then packed in wet moss in an individual box and shipped. The painters explained that the turtles will live for years if cared for properly and never grow in captivity. They are caught when scarcely larger than a silver dollar and remain that size no matter how well fed.

The Thibodeaux family turn out as many as 2,000 painted turtles a day during the season and each member of the family has a special task to perform in preparing them for painting and shipment.

When the season is over the Thibodeaux family returns to its tasks of farming and other jobs which assist in the decorating go back to their old jobs of sign painting or whatever.

It is estimated that nearly 1,000,000 painted turtles are shipped annually from Louisiana swamps. The Thibodeaux family alone ships 200,000. There are three capacity operating turtle "pantries" in New Orleans.

That smooth suggestion comes from Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio. So do these equally springlike hints for better living.

MEL KOONTZ—FAMOUS HOLLYWOOD ANIMAL TAMER—WRESTLES WITH A FULL-GROWN LION!

HERE'S MEL KOONTZ alone in the cage with four hundred and fifty pounds of lion. The huge lion crouches—then springs straight at Koontz. Nerves cool as ice, Mel meets the charge head on. Man and lion clinch. On-lookers feel their nerves grow tense. But Mel is master of the beast. No doubt about his nerves being healthy!

And, as Mel points out, one big difference in Camels has to do with healthy nerves. Mel says: "No matter how many I smoke, Camels don't frazzle my nerves."

"I'll say it makes a difference to me what cigarette I smoke"

SAYS MEL KOONTZ TO PENN PHILLIPS

PEOPLE DO APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCO IN CAMELS

THEY ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

AFTER MEL KOONTZ had been schooling tigers for a new movie, Penn Phillips got to talking with him on the difference between cigarettes. Koontz gives his personal slant on the question, above. And millions of other men and women find what they want in Camels. One smoker tells another: "Camels agree with me—all around!"

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCO — Turkish and Domestic.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

by Elinore Cowan Stone

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE MAIDWELL—The stand-in for George Thorvald. Constance is a girl who loves money.
HILDEGARDE THORVALD—George's sister. She is a girl who loves her brother.
DR. ROGERS—The doctor who meets his most difficult case.

"I do, indeed," Constance told him. "The rest of my public seemed to think I was doing a grand job."
 "Well," George Thorvald told her. "It was your sense of humor that wrecked you. You saw that Camilla Wynne is really—well, just funny—and the harder she tries, the funnier she gets. And having a sense of humor you couldn't help making her just as funny as she really is. . . . If you want to know, finding out how funny Camilla is was the best thing that ever happened to me. . . . Do her for me again now, that's a good girl, and make her funnier than you ever did before. Make her as funny as hell. I need a good laugh."
 So Constance did Camilla Wynne as she had seen her in some of her most heart-breaking—and funniest—moments. . . . George Thorvald cackled with weak mirth. Then Dr. Rogers came quietly into the room.
 "Dr. Rogers," she said suddenly. "I'm not really needed here any longer. I think I ought to go."
 He was leaning over busy with the fastenings of his bag, and he did not look up or speak at once. Then he echoed "Go?" vaguely, as if the words did not mean anything to him. "Why—if staying is inconvenient for you, I suppose we ought not to ask you to stay any longer. . . . But Mr. and Miss Thorvald are your hosts, not I."
 "It was not going at all as Constance had planned it. There were a number of things she had been planning to say to him—before he came out, laughing and looking years younger, as he so often did after a few minutes spent in Hilda's serene unhurried presence.
 After that evening Mark Rogers came to the house less and less, and when he did come he never made any occasion to speak to Constance alone.
 She said to Hilda one day, tentatively, "Does Dr. Rogers ever take time to live—to have any real life of his own—like other people, I mean?"
 Hilda laughed quietly as if at some secret thought, and said, "I should say that Mark is one of the most intensely alive people I know. Of course, since you've been here, he's been rushing around picking up the pieces that flew while he was away—you know—people who go sick but who wouldn't call a doctor if he got back. . . . And you have to know Mark pretty well, anyhow, to understand him. He's—well, he's absurdly shy about things that mean a lot to him."

 He did turn up about lunch time the day Constance had begun to wonder whether she was to see him again before she left.
 He accepted Hilda Thorvald's invitation to eat with them with a matter-of-fact, "Fine! I've got my slate fairly well cleaned up today for the first time. I may not have to run out in the middle of the soup."
 As Hildegarde Constance Derek, and Mark Rogers lingered over their dessert—Ernest Thorvald was off on one of his day-long tours of inspection about the ranch—Hilda said, "Since you seem to be living a life of pampered luxury today, Mark, why not stick around and get acquainted with your mother for a change? She telephoned that she was coming out this afternoon. Vincento's gone to town; he's bringing her back."
 "Well," he smiled with the special smile he seemed to keep for Hilda—"so Mother's caught up with me at last! I've hardly seen her since she got back from the east last night. I didn't dare. I knew she'd be bursting with news she just had to get off her chest—and you know there's no stopping Mother if you once let her buttonhole you."
 Constance thought enviously. Why can't he treat me that way? Instead of acting as if I were something that had lit on his nose, and might bite him at any minute. They had hardly got up from the table and gone out into the patio when the car drove up outside, and Mrs. Rogers sailed in upon them, plump and beaming—and voluble as ever.
 "My dear Hildegarde!" she began, "how terrible about George! I came the first minute—!" Then she saw Constance, and her jaw dropped. "Why," she cried, "this can't be—but it is, isn't it? My dear Miss—only I suppose it's Mrs. Manthorn now, of course, isn't it? . . . So the girls at Bartlett's were right! And you two are really married after your interrupted honeymoon?"
 (To Be Continued)

Yesterday! One day after weeks spent at the bedside of her patient, George Thorvald, Constance was asked to hear him say, "I can't live on this way any longer."
CHAPTER XXII
 "The trouble," George Thorvald went on with a faintly embarrassed air, "is that this is too like taking candy from a baby. It's been a lot of fun for while; but I haven't the heart to let you go on with it. . . . You know Camilla Wynne, you know."
 "You mean you've known it all along?" Constance asked between her teeth and chagrin.
 George Thorvald sobered at once.
 "Sorry," he said. "No, just after I got to remembering a few things. . . . And I did hear nurses talking one day when I thought I was asleep."
 "Wonder," Constance said, "if any of the things you remembered were the things that first night, in unmistakable terms, that you did love me any more, and that I'd been really bright I'd have guessed it long ago?"
 "Did I now?" There was a flash of sardonic amusement in his sunken eyes. "Do you know probably think better of that latter time. . . . Oh, don't worry, I'm going to make love to you presently. I'd hate to cut in on Dr. Rogers. . . . Yes, I've found out, too. . . . He went on with Puckish twinkle, as Constance's eyes widened. "A fellow picks up a lot of interesting information when he's lying here this way. . . . I don't forget you're not dead yet, do you care?"
 "Are you sure?" Constance said, "that you aren't running a temperature?"
 "No, a chance. Right now, I'm the sanest person in this house. The nonsense is burned out of me. . . . But I sort of like your kind of insanity. You're going to stay around here for a while, aren't you?"
 "Not much longer, I imagine. I certainly don't need me any longer; and I was brought here—" legislature in session from August 24 to Oct. 22, 1914.

 Gov. James E. Ferguson had no opportunity to call a retirement session. He was ousted during the early part of his second term. Gov. W. P. Hobby had the legislature in special session from Sept. 21 to Oct. 2 before he left office.
 Gov. Pat M. Neff called no special session in 1924. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, who succeeded Neff, had a special session the fall before her term ended. It was not a session to clean up her program but an emergency session to validate bond issues for Texas roads. The issues had been found faulty and the credit of Texas securities was impaired.
 Gov. Dan Moody, who defeated Mrs. Ferguson, was followed by his own highway commission chairman, Ross S. Sterling, and called no clean-up session.
 Mrs. Ferguson defeated Sterling in the 1932 Democratic primaries. He called two special sessions before going out of office. Both lasted the maximum thirty days.
 If Governor Allred calls a special session in an attempt to finish up his program, it is not likely to be convened before the middle of November. Should legislators more favorable to Allred's plans than the present members be nominated in the summer primaries, he likely would wait until after the general election so the new members could sit. It is pretty generally conceded that a new legislator is entitled to his place as soon as he can reach Austin with a certificate of election, although some contend old members cannot be ousted until the end of the year.
 Allred's fight has been chiefly with senators. The result of the senate elections will be watched particularly for their effect on a possible fall session.

Session Seems Likely Since Allred Not to Run Again

 AUSTIN.—Probability of a fall session of the Texas Legislature has been increased by Gov. James Allred's decision against seeking a third term.
 The wise ones about Austin believe his retirement forecasts a session. A retiring governor generally has some unfinished business he seeks to push through the legislature before he leaves office, they recall.
 Records sustain them. Few governors since 1910 have omitted a retirement session. Gov. Tom Campbell had two special sessions in close of his term. The legislature worked on a program he initiated from July 19 to Sept. 1910. Campbell's successor, O. B. Colquitt, with his two years about to expire, had the

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—This Congress will do nothing fundamental about the railroads, worrisome as the problem is. There "isn't time."
 Nevertheless, it is likely that the railroads soon will be used in a new pump-priming program which will have the double objective of helping the roads temporarily and pouring a few hundred million government dollars into private industry. This proposal to advance federal loans to the roads to finance equipment purchases and maintenance has become increasingly popular in and around the White House.
 Railroad experts estimate that the carriers could pump out from six to eight hundred million dollars in their private "public works" program quite rapidly, with great stimulus to industry. Many of the roads are "practically falling apart," some officials say, as the result of a long period of skipping maintenance in order to keep up bond interest payments—a process especially accentuated in the last year.
 Preliminary discussions indicate that money would be made available primarily to those roads which would be essential key lines in any program of reorganization and consolidation.
 It may be recalled that Securities and Exchange Commissioner John W. Hanes, himself a Wall Street investment banker, recently warned that investment bankers must meet industry's needs for capital lest the government be forced to enter the field "to keep the national economy going." Credit of the railroads is so poor that hardly a railroad could borrow a nickel from private sources.
 HIGH Commissioner Paul B. McNutt's radio speech in opposition to early independence for the Philippines was at least indirectly significant of the administration's intention to maintain a firm attitude in the Far East.
 McNutt came to Washington with the idea that he would have to sell President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull on the proposal that the United States should keep her hands on the Philippines until the indefinite time when war clouds across the Pacific had drifted away.
 He was surprised, according to his own private account, to find them both holding his own point of view. But Roosevelt insisted that the first move or statement come from the Philippines. (Agricultural lobbies in Washington, vociferous for Philippine independence, must be considered.)
 Whether McNutt then went ahead on his own responsibility is not yet entirely clear, but the prompt favorable comment of President McNutt in Manila at least suggested prearrangement on that end. And McNutt has been so obviously anxious to preserve friendly personal relations with the White House that it is most likely he had F.D.R.'s whispered approval.

FLORIDA, Fla.—From Jimmy Archer to Bill Dickey, Bucky Grimes pitched to a number of fine catchers in his long and exciting whirl down the baseball boulevard, but the manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers names Jimmy Wilson, but Jimmy could hit well the world series of 1936 and 1937, as the daddy of them all.
 The same Wilson is now putting up with the Phillies, with whom he started his National League career.
 "I pitched to better hitters than Wilson, who called his shots in enough and do everything in back of that bat just a little better than anybody else," says Grimes. "I've seen him out front ready to field a bunt almost before the ball left the bat."
 Monte Weaver reported to the Washington camp in improved health, and Bucky Harris has high hopes that the scholarly pitcher will regain the form that helped the Senators to a pennant in 1933.
 Toiling for a poor Trenton club, Joe Krakauskas, large southpaw recruit of the Senators, led his league in strikeouts.
 THEY'RE building a $100,000 baseball park of white concrete at Ocala, a central Florida town of 8000. . . . There will be only 1200 grandstand seats. . . . The place has no club, semi-professional or otherwise, nor is one being formed. . . . The city put up the $30,000, the government the rest.
 The Phillies could use the park, but in its present location it is just another way to spend the taxpayers' money.
 Rick Ferrell traces his poor season with the Boston Red Sox and the Nationals last year to a broken hand and a split thumb. He promises to thoroughly demonstrate that the Senators are not among the many outfits suffering for the want of catching. After a winter in Miami, Goose Goslin looks like a broiled lobster.
 Next to cutting up in the coaches' box, Nick Altrock prefers to ride in airplanes. Mike Cochrane is another baseball figure who is keenly interested in aviation. Buddy Myer celebrated his 35th birthday by hitting a triple and a single and providing the day's fielding heroes as the Senators outlasted the St. Louis Cardinals.
 ON the scoreboard of the Washington-St. Louis National exhibition game was this advertisement: "Each home run made by a Senator entitles him to a full course Spanish dinner at the Cervantes Spanish Restaurant." The first Nat at bat, Mel Almada, hit a homer. . . . He is a full-blooded Mexican whose ancestors came from Spain. . . . Almada, Harris, and other Senators say that Mickey Owen was calling for bean balls when Almada tangled with the Cardinal catcher the other afternoon. . . . That isn't nice, especially when the boys aren't playing for keeps. . . . In losing to the Nats, 15-13, the Cards made more runs than they have scored during the past four years of exhibition games against the Washington club.
 The Nats have whipped the Cards five times in six exhibitions in the past two springs. . . . General Crowder, who closed a brilliant pitching career with Detroit, now owns three minor league baseball clubs and just about everything in Winston-Salem, including a feed store.

Travelling Caddy Praises the Golf Course in Ranger

George (Happy) O'Brien, 40, who has been caddying since he was seven years old, and who has toured three continents in his wanderings, stopped off at the Ranger Country Club Saturday to do some plain, fancy and expert caddying.

O'Brien, who was born in Boston, says he is competing for a prize of $1,000 by financing his own tour through his caddy fees. He is known as the world's most famous travelling caddy.

He left Boston June 1 and has been to New York, Seattle, San Diego and is now on his way to South America, England, Ireland, Scotland and France before returning to New York, which he must reach by June 1, 1939 to win the prize.

O'Brien is not allowed to use trains or travel by bus, but must hitch hike everywhere he goes, except where boat trips are necessary. So far he has covered 35,000 miles and has caddied for many famous golfers, including Bobby Jones, Walter Hagan, Gene Sarazen, Jimmy Demaret and many others. He has collected 297 score cards from famous golfers, which he keeps in a scrap book.

He stated Saturday that the people of Ranger should be very proud of the local golf course, stating it has the best fairways he has seen since he left California. He said he particularly liked holes five, seven and nine.

While in Ranger he caddied for Rex Trewer, who played a round with H. H. Vaughn. From Ranger he goes to Mineral Wells, then to Fort Worth and Dallas on his way to New Orleans.

Easter Seals to Be Sold In Ranger By Legion Auxiliary

Heralded by an official proclamation by Governor James V. Allred, the sale of Easter Seals for Crippled Children commenced throughout Texas April 1st. The Governor, who bought the first Easter Seals, has proclaimed the week of April 4th to 11th as Crippled Children's Week in Texas.

Sale of the seals in Ranger is being conducted by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Carl Barnes Post of the American Legion.

Abe Goldberg, Port Arthur philanthropist, who is in charge of the state organization for the sale of seals, announces that more than 100 Texas counties have been fully organized and are ready for the campaign. The goal in Texas is $50,000 to aid crippled children, and the campaign is under the auspices of the Texas Society for Crippled Children, of which Charles F. Ashcroft of Sulphur Springs is president.

The proclamation of Governor Allred setting forth the purposes of the Texas Society is as follows:

"WHEREAS, the Texas Society for Crippled Children, whose voluntary unselfish service in behalf of the unfortunate crippled children of our State is one of the outstanding humanitarian movements on this decade; and

"WHEREAS, this fine organization is conducting its 5th annual sale of Easter Seals from April 7th, 1938;

"N O W, THEREFORE, I, JAMES V. ALLRED, Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby proclaim the period from Monday morning, April 4th through Sunday night, April 10th, 1938, as Crippled Children's Week in Texas and call upon a generous public to give liberal support to this great humanitarian work through the purchase of Easter Seals."

Millions of Easter Seals, selling at a penny each in sheets of one hundred, have been distributed throughout the state to organizations and individuals interested. The seals this year are in yellow, blue and white, showing a crippled girl watering an Easter lily.

State Easter Seals headquarters are at 326 Wilson Building, Dallas, and any person wishing to buy or sell Easter Seals in counties not yet organized is asked to write them immediately.

Texas Working Out From Under Deficit

AUSTIN, April 4.—Texas already is beginning to work out of the huge $17,000,000 deficit piled up during depression years, state treasurer Charley Lockhart said here today.

Besides reducing the deficit in the general fund, special taxes have provided increased aid for old aid assistance, highway construction and for schools.

Welcoming a British Warship

which have been placed in front of several of the Ranger stores.

The clothing thus accumulated will be collected by the members of the auxiliary, and will be taken to the WPA sewing room, where the garments will be repaired and altered.

After the clothing is repaired it will be distributed among the needy families of Ranger.

Anyone who has clothing of any kind has been urged to remember to bring it to town with them, and drop it in one of the barrels.
