The Consumers Cry for Lower Prices

When 12,000 people will gather of a spring afternoon simply to talk over ways and means of ending the depression, that is a good sign for American business.

The meeting, arranged by a group of New York City department stores and held in Madison Square Garden, was a consumers' rally movement of prices and a resultant upsurge of buying, the idea being that the wheels of industry will start turning once the public starts buying.

Those grounded a bit more thoroughly in their economic theory might be inclined to discount the statement of Fannie Hurst, who as chairman of the meeting declared: "There is enough T. N. T. in this group to dynamite the log-jam of industry."

But the fact remains that the small consumers constitute one of the vital forces in any move toward business recovery. If the small consumers all over the country really start buying, prosperity just can't help rounding that corner.

But in New York City, as everywhere else, the consumers are demanding that merchants cut prices in order that the public can afford to buy more. That of course is not so easily done. In New York, however, some of the larger stores have announced price reductions in the hope that increased purchases will offset the lower profit margins.

Speakers at the meeting called for maintenance of present wage levels along with the price cutting. That's a good trick if it can be done, but it has been a major headache for the economists for a long time. When they find out how to boost wages at the same time that they are pushing prices down, the depression, recessions, slack periods and all the rest will be things of the past. There are quite a few students of the problem, however, who doubt that such a happy ending is possible.

Pennsylvania's Gov. George Earle told the meeting that confidence is no good without action. And that is very true.

When consumers start taking action there is likely to be action all along the line. And the gathering of 12,000 in the big town is a good indication that a not inconsiderable part of the buying public intends to excite a bit more action in this business of exchanging goods and services.

'VICTORY IS IN SIGHT'

THE AGONY OF JESUS

BY FATHER S. E. BYRNE
St. Rita's Church, Ranger

THE TRIALS OF JESUS BEFORE ANNAS AND CAIPHAS

"I adjure thee by the living God, that Thou tell us if Thou be the Christ the Son of God. Jesus saith to him: 'Thou hast said it. Nevertheless I say to you, hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of the power of God, and coming in the clouds of Heaven.'" (Matt 26: 63-64.)

The agony of Our Lord in the Garden was followed by His arrest and His trials before Annas and Caiphas. That the evangelists attached great importance to these trials is evident from the fact that all four evangelists related their circumstances in measured, yet dramatic terms.

Jesus was first led to Annas, the former high priest. Though in accordance with the law of Moses the high priesthood was for life, Annas had been deposed by the Roman governor, Valerius Gratus, in the year 18. Notwithstanding this public deposition, the wily old man had succeeded in keeping the high priesthood in his family and had managed to remain a factor in public affairs. This explains why Jesus was first led to Annas. However, in accordance with weighty scriptural authorities, both ancient and modern, Jesus' appearance before Annas was only a preliminary to His trial before the actual high priest, Caiphas. Realizing this, Annas "sent him (Jesus) bound into Caiphas, the high priest" (John 18: 24), under escort of guards to the Temple and servants of the Sanhedrin.

When Jesus came to the palace of Caiphas, the members of the Sanhedrin, hastily convened for that night session, had not yet arrived. While awaiting their arrival, the high priest subjected Jesus to a preparatory examination. He questioned Jesus in hope of drawing out compromising statements. The questions related to the disciples and the teachings of Jesus. Not heeding the question about His disciples, Jesus answered concerning His doctrine: "I have spoken openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogues and in the Temple, where all the Jews come together; and in secret spoke I nothing. Why askest thou me? Ask them that have heard Me what I spoke unto them; behold, these know the things which I have said." (John 18: 20-21.)

Words such as these were becoming one who was conscious of His perfect innocence as well as of His unquestionable superiority. They showed the utter irrelevance of the question on the high priest. Caiphas felt it and dropped the question. However, one of the court attendants who stood nearby rudely struck Jesus a blow, saying: "Answerest Thou the high priest so?" Had Caiphas done his duty as presiding judge he would have rebuked this meddlesome servant. The meek Savior said instead: "If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but, if well, why strikest thou Me?"

Meanwhile the members of the Sanhedrin had arrived and the trial proper soon began. Although all idea of dealing out justice had been brushed aside, although the members of the high council were in the plot with Judas and had previously agreed on putting Jesus to death, they wished for the sake of appearance to go through the form of a trial so that they might obtain from Pilate a sentence of condemnation to death or at least permission to carry out their own sentence.

First, the witnesses were to be heard. Instinctively we think of witnesses for and against the accused. Not so in the case of Jesus. As St. Mark tells us (14: 55-59): "And the chief priests and all the council sought for evidence against Jesus, that they might put Him to death, and found none. For many bore false witness against Him, and their evidences were not agreeing. And some rising up, bore false witness against Him, saying: 'We heard Him say: I shall destroy this temple made with hands, and within three days I will build another not made with hands,' and their witness did not agree." Therefore, in accordance with the law of Moses, their testimony was of no value.

Moreover, their testimony did not agree with the facts. Christ had not said that He would destroy the Temple of Jerusalem. Referring to the Temple of His body, He had said: "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up" (John 2:19). In these words Christ had signified that, if they would destroy the life of His body (which He truly called the temple), in three days He would raise His body from the dead. Unworthy of notice were the falsehoods uttered by these witnesses, and Christ did not deem them worthy of a simple denial.

Caiphas, angered by his failure to incriminate Christ through the testimony of witnesses, resorted to another tactic. Standing in the midst of the assembly with affected solemnity he said to Jesus: "I adjure Thee by the living God that Thou tell us whether Thou be the Christ, the Son of God" (Matt 26: 63). This was an official adjuration uttered by the highest dignitary of the theocratic government of the Jewish nation. Though its motive was dishonest, the adjuration was addressed by the chief to those who sat in the seat of Moses. Many a time had Jesus declared that He was the Son of God. This was the first time He was asked to assert it under oath, and He answered, using the most emphatic form of affirmation in Oriental languages: "Thou hast said it." And He continued His affirmation by declaring before the Sanhedrin the majesty of the Son of God in the kingdom of His Father: "Hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of the power of God, and coming in the clouds of Heaven" (Matt 26: 64).

"Then the high priest (feigning mingled feelings of grief and horror at the imputed blasphemy) rent his garments, saying: 'He hath blasphemed; what further need have we of witnesses? Behold, now you have heard the blasphemy. What think you?' But they answering, said: 'He is guilty of death.'" (Matt 26: 65-66.)

Right after the death sentence had been pronounced against Jesus a most revolting scene took place. Whilst everywhere, except sometimes amongst barbarous people, persons condemned to death are looked upon as entitled to respect and even reverence, Jesus was abused in a most shameful manner. The men who held Him mocked and beat Him, spat in His face, blindfolded Him, and asked Him, saying: "Prophecy, who is it that struck thee?" And many other things spoke they against Him, reviling Him.

Seven hundred years before Christ, Isaiah, in prophetic vision, had clearly foretold this outrageous scene when he put on the lips of Christ these words: "I have given My body to the strikers, and My cheeks to them that plucked them; I have not turned my face from them that smote me, neither have I hid my face from them that spat upon me." (Isaiah 50:6)

Easter Cruise

BY MARION WHITE

Obadiah turned towards the lights of Hamilton. The mile and a half seemed an incredible distance across this stretch of inky-black water, and Joyce stared back with misgivings at the security of the Empress, so quickly disappearing from their reach. She sat quite still, holding her breath, and hoping that Mr. Jones could find his way around these impenetrably black waters.

"Obadiah," Dick said presently, "do we have to go all around the buoy? You'd save half a mile going in straight."

The boatman hesitated. "The water's pretty shallow in spots, boss," he pointed out. "These are all coral reefs..."

"I know. But your boat doesn't draw much water, does it?"

"Two feet. Maybe I can cut across up past the water tower. I know my way there."

"Good. We're on our way to the Mid-Ocean Club, and that's an hour's drive."

SO beyond the water tower, Obadiah turned out of the channel and headed straight across the harbor. To their left, the buoy sounded its warning toll.

Dick settled back, slipped his arm through Joyce's. He felt her shiver.

"Cold?" he asked solicitously. She shook her head. "No—not very. I guess I'm afraid of the dark."

Suddenly their pilot throttled the engine down; swerved the boat quickly. "Comin' close to a reef," he said, pointing out a dark patch to the right. "It's low tide now."

They proceeded cautiously, skirting the reef which projected above the water for a length of 10 or 12 feet. Then, out in open water once more, he let the engine out. Hamilton was still almost a mile off, and around a sharp peninsula, the Empress was out of sight.

"We're almost there," Dick said, reassuringly. "We'll be at Mid-Ocean—"

There was a jerk, a terrific grating, and in that instant Joyce felt icy water surging up to her ankles.

Obadiah cried out pitifully: "We're struck, boss! We're struck!"

Now the water was pouring into the boat, its bottom ripped wide open. Dick had Joyce in his arms.

"We'll have to swim," he said quickly. "Back to that small reef we just passed. Don't be afraid, Joyce." He pushed her, gently.

the Son of Man shall be sitting on the right hand of the power of God." Then said they all: "Art Thou then the Son of God?" Who said: "You say that I am." And they said: "What need we any further testimony? For we ourselves have heard it from His own mouth." And they condemned Him again to death.

Caiphas said of Jesus that He had spoken blasphemy because He had declared Himself the Son of God. How could Christ have been guilty of blasphemy in proclaiming the Divinity He enjoyed in the bosom of His Father from all eternity, and of which He had given undeniable proofs times without number? Christ had not been guilty of blasphemy, but Caiphas certainly did blaspheme when he brazenly denied that Divinity of which he had seen and heard so many evident proofs. The name of Caiphas will forever remain a synonym for unjust judgment. Simultaneously he branded himself as the arch-blasphemer of all ages.

In our lives may we, in imitation of our Divine Master, bear with patience contradictions, hu-

Boating Now Major Activity at Big Dam On Colorado

AUSTIN, Texas—Boating has returned as a major Colorado River activity since completion of the Inks and Buchanan dams. A motor boat and two sail boats already have been placed upon the big storage basin above Buchanan Dam. Several speed boats including one "cabin job" are whirring about Inks dam. In them passengers can ride from the huge concrete walls of Buchanan dam down to the first power plant, whose turbines are turned by the water from Inks Dam.

A number of boats are being built at the dam site. An agency has been opened in Austin for motor boats, sail boats and canoes.

Completion of Marshall Ford Dam and rebuilding of the Austin Dam will provide two more good boating courses along the river. The University of Texas may add rowing to its sponsored athletics when Austin Dam is rebuilt.

Other boats are arriving daily. W. E. Stevens is the earliest "skipper" at the dams, with yachting cap and a fleet. He is arranging for a regatta on April 10.

Col. Connie Mack went fishing for a catcher. The Athletics liked wide-open and hospitable Lake Charles, and will return there next spring.

The shoulder trouble which handicapped Lee Ross in 1937 has disappeared. George Caster, the knuckle-baller who formerly had no windup at all, now takes one occasionally. Chubby Dean is at Durham, waiting for the Athletics and for proud flesh on the tip of the index finger of his pitching hand to heal. Dario Lodigiani attended high school in San Francisco with Joe DiMaggio.

COLONEL MACK sees the Joe Kuhel for Zeke Bonura swap as a good one for both the Chicago White Sox and Washington. Kuhel completes a polished Pale Hose infield. Bonura gives the Nationals needed right-handed hitting power. Mack and Oscar Vitt, new chief of the Cleveland Indians, differ in the handling of pitchers in the spring. Vitt contends a pitcher should go more than seven innings until the season starts. Harry Kelley went 11 innings against Beaumont and nine against the New York Giants early in the training season.

Long may they wave.

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Chairman Pat Harrison and his Senate Finance Committee may be kept busy explaining a hurried leap to "relieve business" which would have the effect of increasing the total corporation tax burden by around 10 per cent.

The committee substituted a flat 18 per cent rate on corporate profits for the House proposal of a 20 per cent tax with four cents deductible for each dollar paid out in dividends—known as the "20-16 plan."

Corporations with net incomes of less than $6600 would pay a smaller tax under the committee bill than under the House bill. So would corporations which distribute little or none of their profits through dividends.

But corporations above the $25,000 mark, which distributed considerable sums of earnings through dividends, would pay more in taxes than they would under the present law. And corporations earning between $6500 and $25,000, even though corporations earning less than $25,000 are given special "relief" provisions, would pay more than under the House plan.

And the net result would be that all corporations would pay the Treasury $75,000,000 more than they would if the present corporate surplus tax law were retained and $7,000,000 more than the House plan would levy. Treasury estimates on which both Senate and House rely say the present law would bring in $873,000,000 in corporate income taxes for 1938. The House plan $851,000,000 and the Finance Committee bill $948,000,000.

THE Securities and Exchange Commission has just dropped charges against a New York public accountant accused of misrepresenting himself as an SEC officer—a charge which, if proved, would have disqualified him from practice before the commission. Evidence was largely based on a conference between the accountant and two corporation officials. SEC found the charges not substantiated.

The record shows that most of the Baltimore conference of Oct. 12 took place in the bar, and that each of the persons present had two or three alcoholic drinks, the SEC found solemnly. "This circumstance does not inspire great confidence in the memory of the witnesses as to exactly what was said on that occasion."

In contrast to most SEC proceedings, the trial was fairly lively. An SEC lawyer, prosecuting the charges, offered evidence as to the accountant's "braggadocio."

"All you're charging him with," said Commissioner Jerome Frank from the dais, "is super-egotism. You wouldn't disseminate a lawyer that would you? You might disseminate the bar!"

"And the bench?" suggested the SEC lawyer.

Later Frank suggested that the accountant might have been misunderstood.

"Haven't you ever been misunderstood?" he asked the attorney.

"I'm married," was the reply.

Softball Players And Managers to Meet On Tuesday

Attention was called again today to the meeting of softball managers and players, to be held Tuesday evening at the office of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting has been called in order that rules for the Ranger softball league may be determined for the coming year and plans made to start the season. All who are interested in softball, either as players or managers, are urged to attend in order that business details may be completed. Fans who have any suggestions that might lead to the popularity of the sport, or who have suggestions concerning rules that might improve the league, are invited to attend and give their suggestions.

Fox Hunting Poor Sport Compared to Hunting Bobcats

AUSTIN, Texas—Fox hunting is poor sport compared with riding with hounds on the trail of a bobcat or mountain lion, Gov. James V. Alfred has found. "You get the same thrill of the chase," Alfred said, "and the added zest of a hard-fought battle between dogs and cat at the finish." Several times the Texas governor has ridden after the hounds on such chases. So far the dogs have run down only bobcats. But he hopes by persisting to be in on a chase for a mountain lion. Not that the bobcat chases are tame affairs. Cats grow as large as a mountain lion. On Alfred's last hunt 12 dogs ran down a cat so large and courageous that it refused to be treed but battled in the open. Trained dogs are used in these chases. Luther Snow of Raymondville has a pack so well instructed that it will follow only a cat trail. Rabbits, coyotes or other animals fail to draw the dogs. In pursuit

Some of the survivors of a terrific dust explosion that razed through the huge $4,000,000 New Orleans public grain elevator are pictured above being helped down ladders by rescuers. At least four men died and over a score were burned and injured by the blast of flame that tore sheet metal to shreds, stripped some of the men and rocked nearby homes.

Dallas to Stage a Long Good Will Tour

DALLAS—A special train carrying 64 Dallas business men, a 25-piece band, several entertainers and technicians will leave here April 24 on the 37th annual Business Tour. F. Z. Williams, general chairman, announced today. Twenty-eight Southern Oklahoma, North and West Texas cities will be on the itinerary of the tour. In each city the party will parade and stage a band concert and entertainment program. In the four cities at which night stops will be made, Dallas will be host at dances for which the local chamber of commerce will make arrangements.

the dogs bay like foxhounds. At the finish they fight courageously against fangs and claws. If the cat is treed, it is roped with a lariat, but large cats frequently fight it out with the dogs on the ground. They usually select a cactus thicket for their last stand.
