NEW DEAL CIO COALITION IS GIVEN DEFEAT

By United Press
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 18.—John L. Lewis' bid for political power in Pennsylvania failed today, despite a coalition of the New Deal and the Committee for Industrial Organization.
Lt. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, was endorsed by Democratic Chairman James A. Farley. Kennedy conceded the Democratic gubernatorial nomination to Charles Jones.
Kennedy's acceptance of the defeat and substantial leads by other Democratic organization candidates apparently meant a clean sweep by the primary ticket backed by State Democratic Chairman David Lawrence.
Gov. George Earl had a substantial lead over Davis Wilson, the C. I. O. candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination.
Farley called upon Democrats who supported Kennedy to unite in support of the regular Democratic candidates.

Improvement Upon Road to Nimrod Is Started by W. P. A.

Improvement of the old salt tank road from Highway 23 west from Rising Star for 13 miles to Nimrod, one of the oldest roads in the county, and a portion of which was used as a freight wagon route from Brownwood to Breckenridge, has been started under a Works Progress Administration project, announced County Engineer A. F. Taylor on Wednesday.
The project, involving $46,546.64, calls for widening of right-of-way, straightening of curves, re-grading, new drainage and graveling.
The project, sponsored by the county, will employ 109 men for eight months. A total of 71,040 man-hours are involved.
Frank Gryder for the W. P. A. and Carl Hill for the county are project superintendents.

Judgment of $500 Goes Against Firm In Accident Suit

Judgment of $500 has been rendered by 91st district court for B. F. Anderson and wife against Phillips Petroleum company and Joe Wood, it was announced Wednesday.
Anderson alleged that his wife, Dorothy Anderson, was injured while riding in an automobile which figured in a collision with a vehicle owned by the defendant company and operated by Wood.
The accident, it was asserted, occurred in 1934 while the woman was riding in a car from Rising Star to Cross Plains.

Conference Of Methodists Ends In Ranger Today

The Cisco District Conference of the Methodist Church, which has been meeting at the First Methodist Church in Ranger, yesterday and today, came to a close this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.
Some have declared it to be one of the most successful in the history of the District.
The Conference opened Tuesday afternoon with a devotional by Rev. J. W. Sharbutt, of Dublin, and a Communion Service by Rev. J. B. Curry, the Presiding Elder, in which the Superannuates and other preachers assisted.
One highlight of the afternoon session was the reports from the twenty-five pastors, on the work of their respective churches. These all showed a marked advance for the first six months of the present Conference Year. 486 new members have been added to the membership of the Church, with a net gain in membership of 287. The Ranger Church led the District, both in the number of additions, and the gain in membership. It was reported that $7,531.00 had been raised this period for improvements on church property, and the paying of church debts. The churches at Ranger and Stephenville both reported that their church property has been cleared of all indebtedness, during this period. There has also been a substantial increase throughout the District in Church School membership and attendance.
The Tuesday night program was in the form of a Banquet, with 217 representatives from the churches, and a number of visitors, present. Following a splendid musical program, the address was brought by Dean Roy G. Roger, of McMurray College, of Abilene.
The Wednesday morning session began at 8:30, with a devotional by Rev. Floyd Thrash, of Cross Plains, and included a business session, the Layety Hour, with the election of Lay Delegates to Annual Conference, the Local Preacher's Hour, and then the Aldersgate Hour. In the latter service, Rev. S. L. Culwell of Stephenville, brought the devotional message.
Lunch was served at the church, and the afternoon session was taken up with reports from the various boards and committees of the Conference.
Among the visitors attending the Conference, were Rev. and Mrs. T. E. Bowman, who served this church the past two years, and who are now living in Cleburne.

Whitewright Father Seeking Lost Youth

The sheriff's department has been requested to aid in the search for Mallie Joe Denton, 25, son of J. L. Denton of Whitewright, who disappeared recently.
The father, in a notice, stated that the son was last seen while at Floydada and had told citizens there he was going to Clovis, N. M. Five feet and 10 inches in height, with dark hair and eyes, Denton was driving a 1933 Chevrolet sedan with license numbers of 418-849.

LINER FOUND WITH ALL NINE ABOARD DEAD

By United Press
SAUGUS, Calif., May 18.—A missing $80,000 Lockheed airliner, with all its nine passengers dead and their bodies burned, today was found crumpled against Stone Mountain, 20 miles north of here. None of the passengers, three men, four women, two babies, escaped.
The plane, missing since Monday enroute to St. Paul, Minn., apparently crashed with terrific force and burst into flames.
Deputy sheriffs reached the scene quickly and started removing the bodies.
Walter Peterson, a rancher, discovered the wreckage.

Road Contractors Refuse Contracts on Roads in Mexico

EL PASO, Texas.—Since the expropriation of foreign-owned ranches and oil properties by the Mexican government, El Paso road contractors have refused to take contracts for work in Mexico.
"The expropriations have scared us out," a spokesman for the contractors explained.
"The contractors are afraid to move valuable machinery into Mexico because of the possibility that it might be seized by the government."
El Paso firms had hoped to get some of the contracts in the extensive highway program which the State of Chihuahua has planned for the next two years. One of the biggest projects in the program is the construction of the 230-mile link between Juarez, across the border from El Paso, and Chihuahua City, capital of the state. But El Paso firms have refused since the expropriation of the oil lands to bid on this work.
Any firm which accepts the contract will be handed six million pesos ($1,680,000) as soon as building equipment is moved into Chihuahua, it was announced, but not even this inducement has resulted in bids by El Paso companies, it was said.
A contract for the work was let by State Treasurer Angel Martinez in August, 1937, but it has been dropped, local contractors said. The contract, which called for hard-surfacing of the 45-mile stretch from Juarez to Porvenir, giving farmers a route to the Juarez market, was let to the Compania Mexicana Constructora, S. A., of Mexico City. The company changed its mind, however, and work has not been started.
Mexican officials also are seeking a United States firm to grade and hard surface the road from Porvenir, 50 miles east of Juarez, to Villa Matamoros, south of Chihuahua City. A contract for this work originally was let to Compania Mexicana de Pavimentacion, S. A., but it also has been dropped.

Japanese troops battled a desperate Chinese rear guard in devastated Suchow today, while their general offensive spread out all along the northern front.
Suchow, strategic city along the Lughai railway, was stubbornly defended.
In Mexico, President Cardenas sought to end threats of internal strife by retiring Gen. Saturnio Cedillo, who was rumored to be planning a rebellion in San Luis Potosi state, and by making a personal tour of the troubled area to "restore tranquility."
The United States, seeking to maintain its good neighbor policy, despite Mexico's suspension of relations with Great Britain, was threatened with diplomatic troubles in Brazil. The government-controlled German press opened a bitter campaign against Americans.
In Washington, President Roosevelt signed the $1,157,000,000 naval expansion bill, putting America in the lead of the world's greatest rearmament race.
In Great Britain, former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who split with Prime Minister Chamberlain, was reported to have rejected an offer to become first lord of the admiralty.

Softball Season Tickets Will Be Sold After Friday

A decision was made today to sell season tickets for the remainder of the softball season, the tickets being made available for a man and his wife and dependent children at a saving over the regular price of admission.
Season tickets will be sold, beginning Friday morning, for 40 cents a family per week, with the first and last weeks being paid in advance. The holder of a season ticket must then renew his ticket each week or it will be voided.
It was pointed out today by Tom Yonker, president of the Ranger Softball League, that a saving of 20 cents a week could be made for a man and his wife by purchasing the season tickets, while if there are more in the family the saving would be greater. The tickets would admit the family to all games played during that week, and the saving would, therefore, be even greater.
Regular admission of five cents will be made for everyone over 12 years of age, and an additional five cents for grandstand seats where season tickets are not purchased.
Tickets will be sold throughout the coming week at the Guaranty Ice Cream Parlor upon payment of 80 cents for the first and last weeks, and the tickets must then be renewed by a payment of 40 cents each week at the softball park gate.

Controlling Soil Blowing In Dust Bowl Is Predicted

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Possibility of controlling harmful soil blowing in the dust bowl area within a few years has been foreseen by the Department of Agriculture expert who coordinates the work of all the agencies attempting to reclaim America's lost lands in the Southwest. "In the Southern Great Plains region as a whole, about six million acres should go back to grass" said Roy L. Kimmel, coordinator of the Southern Plains in a coast-to-coast radio address arranged by the American Wildlife Institute. "Our best scientific information indicates that with good fortune in the way of favorable moisture conditions, and skill in handling the job, it will take four or five years to put a grass cover back on those lands." Kimmel, who directs the reclamation work from his headquarters in Amarillo, said that about 26 million acres can be profitably maintained in cultivation, given a reasonable degree of improvement in farming practices and reorganization of the farms into proper-sized units. Reclaiming the dust bowl will require a combination of individual measures, of Federal Government measures and of State Government measures, according

It's just one undraped scene after another for Dorothy Lamour, Paramount's pulchritude-plus maiden. You're looking at the shapely brunette as she appears in "Her Jungle Love," a technicolor feature booked at the Arcadia theatre here Friday and Saturday.

Canada to Restore Old Fort Erie, Razed Three Times

By United Press

FORT-ERIE, Ont.—Neglected for more than a century, old Fort Erie—erected originally as a protection against Indians—is being restored by the Canadian government as a historical monument.

Located near the Canadian end of the International Peace Bridge, the old fortress virtually has been destroyed by vandals, curio seekers and early 19th century settlers who carried stones away to build homes, barns and even a church. According to John Tielger, in charge of the restoration work, the Canadian government plans to rebuild the one-time stronghold with such authenticity "that a British general of 1770 could come here from Valhalla and feel at home."

Historians and architects have put in years of research in connection with the restoration program. Their search through the archives of the British war office in London resulted in finding plans of the old fort, which will be followed in reconstructing the landmark.

Strategically located at the mouth of Niagara river, the original fort, built of wood, was erected in 1764. It was destroyed by a storm 15 years later. Again the fort was built, but this second one also was demolished by a raging storm.

When the fort first was built there was no thought of an international boundary, as both sides of the river were British territory. It was the first permanent settlement at the source of the river.

A third fort on the same site was started in 1805, but was still unfinished when the War of 1812 broke out. The partly completed fortress was seized by American soldiers, who made it a strong fortification. The British laid siege to it in 1812, but Gen. Peter A. Porter of Buffalo, N. Y., houses, barns and even a church.

broke the attack, taking British artillery to spike any further attempts at seizing the fortress.

If for they left, the Americans blew up a part of the fort, probably thinking it would prove a nuisance to the new villa of Buffalo.

In recent years, the fort site has been used as a rock garden, with only a few monuments and bronze plaques to commemorate a scene of military valor and daring.

When completely restored, the fortress will contain two buildings well protected by about 600 feet of stone wall.

SOQUEL, Calif.—H. F. Knudsen has something new in the way of animal life only he is not quite sure what it is. His best bet is that it is the result of crossing Mongolian pheasant hens with Millefleur bantam roosters. He doesn't know whether it will crow or lay eggs.

THE FARMER TAKES A WIFE—Unionville, Conn.—John Joseph Lorencik, 22-year-old farmer, and his bride-to-be, Henrietta Wilhelmna Pieper, 70 years old, a practical nurse, happily pose for their picture. They said she was too old for me to marry, that I ought to find someone nearer my age," Lorencik said. "Well, I know lots of that kind of girls, and what would I have? Someone who has me out all night until 3 in the morning, running around."

BETTER BABIES' BETTER BABIES—Twenty-five years ago these young mothers, then infants, received awards from the newly established Better Babies Bureau of the Woman's Home Companion. Checking up after a quarter century, the magazine's editors find that these former better babies are among many who now have better babies of their own. Left to right they are Mrs. Richard Meissner of Racine, Wis.; Mrs. Albert Holt of Duluth, Minn.; and Mrs. Florence Reed of Ozone Park, N. Y. The editors cite these as living examples of improvements brought about by food and drug and similar legislation, as well as improved health knowledge.

BERYL MELBORN—heroine; she wanted to be a pilot.
LARRY LA FARGE—Jackie's mother; she wanted a son-in-law.

Yesterday's grimly awaiting news of Roger. Jackie really calls the airport. The news is that searchers have found Roger's wrecked ship but not Roger!

CHAPTER XV

AS long as she lived Jackie would never forget that night and the following day. For during those hours the girl who had been Jacqueline Dunn died and a woman was born, a woman who learned the real meaning of life, who faced not only life, but death as well, and the dark despair of what a living death could be.

Roger's ship had been found, the beautiful silver plane, its motor smashed against a lonely mountain side, its left wing crumpled like a discarded piece of paper. But aside from the engine and parachute—and a splash of blood here and there—no single trace of Roger could be discovered.

It was believed that the pilot, though undoubtedly seriously injured, had managed to climb out and get free of the ship, fully realizing the danger of explosion and fire.

The papers passed Roger up as the hero who rode his ship down, instead of bailing out. Until the very end he had tried to save the $25,000 plane. By so doing he had, in fact, saved his trial flight from ending a total failure, for the paragraph, containing the vital records of the speed and altitude, had remained intact. It revealed that Roger had broken all records for altitude and speed and had added another page to the glory and future of aviation.

"As though that mattered," Jackie said to Mac. "As soon as she could get there, she had driven out to the field again. "As though anything mattered except that they must find Roger."

At least he was alive since his body had not been found, trapped in the cockpit. So that now hope shone like a silver star once more.

It had been almost midnight when the ship had been discovered. The searchers had diligently increased their forces and zeal, hoping to find Roger before night settled down. In the thick underbrush of the high range it would not be easy, at any time, to find a man—or his body. But after darkness had descended the task would be doubly difficult.

"They'll find him," Mac assured Jackie. "Maybe not until daylight now"—it was midnight in the little tower and as yet no word had been received—"but they're bound to find him, Jackie. He could not have gone very far, you know, and even after night, they'll send up flares and Roger will see them, or hear them calling."

"If he can answer," Jackie said. Roger had been alive when the ship had cracked up, but that did not mean he was alive now. That last message from him had come through around six o'clock in the morning; 15 hours had elapsed since then. If those blood stains meant he had been badly cut, he might have bled to death by now. Or he might have been internally injured. Although it was late May, the nights were damp and cold in the densely wooded Alleghenies, so that the long exposure, without food or medicine, might prove fatal, too.

But she would not give up hope. Not even after that long night had finally come to an end, and a dawn broke that was filled with despair, the silver star of hope almost vanished.

"He can't be dead . . . he can't be . . ." Jackie repeated over and over to herself all through the following day. She must hold on to that thought so grimly, so faithfully that it would be answered, like a prayer.

Jackie could think of Beryl now in pity and sympathy, all her resentment against this other woman, all her anger and jealousy swept aside. For Beryl had loved Roger, though Jackie alone had known that. Jackie, who knew now, too late—that she, too, had loved him.

FOR this was the awakening, the growing into womanhood that came to Jackie during those agonized waiting hours. She knew that she had loved Roger from the first. She had tried to put up a defense, not only against love itself, but against him. She had thought that love need not hold any place in her life. And now she saw, with this sudden, terrible clarity, that without it—without Roger, life could hold no meaning, nothing except emptiness.

Oh, she was glad now that Mac had managed to slip in that word or two, and that almost the last words Roger had heard had been "Jackie sends luck—and love."

For as Roger had known, with such clarity, too, that that had not been pretense—that he had her love with him.

Though it had not brought him much luck—or the fact that she had worn his pin, Jackie knew now she should not have accepted it. Not in the way she had in anger, in pretense, her heart steeled against him.

Oh, if only Roger could be found in time, so that in some way she could make all this up to him, prove to him how big, how fine her love would be for him.

Prayers sometimes are answered, Jackie's was. Though she was not to know, even then, in her rejoicing, in her thanksgiving and great relief, that her prayer—with all its promises—was to be put to still another test.

ROGER was found that day about four o'clock. He had managed at last, through a long and painful process, to reach the side of a road and to attract the attention of a passing motorist. He had lain unconscious during most of the night, weakened from loss of blood, from a severe head wound; chilled and thirsty and hungry. He had managed to half crawl, half drag himself through the heavy underbrush, only a few feet at a time. He had seen the planes searching for him, circling high over head, heard the shots and some distant shouts from the ground, but he had been unable to shout back in response.

His condition was critical, the reports said, but there was hope for his recovery. He had been rushed to the hospital at Phillipsburg.

It was only when she read this last that Jackie burst into tears, a wild fit of weeping that was beyond control. She had held back those tears so long. She had tried so hard to be brave, to hold on to that faintly shining star of hope.

Now, at last, she could let go, find relief in the basin of tears, healing for her spirit—such joy, such gratitude, as she had never known could exist within one human heart.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Colic—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!
The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks punk. A more recent movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those great old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Dr. and Mrs. L. R. Gray are leaving today for an extended trip east. Mrs. Gray will stop in Dallas and Greenville, while Dr. Gray goes on to Philadelphia to attend the 150th session of the Presbyterian general assembly. The occasion will mean a great celebration for Presbyterians.

Commissioners from every state in the union and from many foreign countries will attend the assembly, in number about 1,000, besides the visitors.

The first general assembly in America was held in the first church, Philadelphia, in 1789, just three weeks after George Washington was inaugurated the first President of the United States. A deeply spiritual message was sent to the new President, and a fine answer was returned. These papers have become historic.

At the time of the first assembly there were 15,000 members of the Presbyterian church. Now, even after the many divisions, there are 2,000,000 members of the parent body, and about 3,000,000 in all the various divisions. Naturally, this sesquicentennial assembly in the city of brotherly love, will be regarded as one of the outstanding events in religious circles.

On the evening of May 24th, the church will join in the 200th anniversary of "heart warming" of John Wesley, statesman-evangelist, and father of the Methodist church.

Dr. Gray expects to visit Washington, New York and Boston before his return.

Johnson Shades Robinson In a Pitching Duel 1-0

By Tommy Smith

For nine innings, R. V. Robinson and TeePee's Jack Johnson hooked up in a tight pitching battle that saw the game go into extra innings at the end of the ninth with the score tied 0-0. During those first nine innings, Johnson had struck out 17 and had allowed only one Killingsworth batter to hit safely.

C. Stuard fled to shortstop to open the K-C half of the tenth and Reese and Greer followed with flies to Laughry and Vaughn, respectively, to retire the side.

Daskovich got a hit after Johnson went out, and came on around when Dixon's hard hit line drive to right field was juggled by Smith, providing the margin of a victory for TeePee.

Johnson was in rare form, passing only three, and had the Killingsworth boys completely under his thumb most of the way.

For Robinson, the game must have been a heart-breaker to lose. He matched Johnson's hurling for nine innings, only to see it slip away in the overtime inning.

Songs of Clerk Are Tried by Tenor of Metropolitan Opera

By United Press

BUTLER, Pa.—A 25-year-old shoe store clerk nightly sits at his piano pounding out original composition because Joseph Bentonelli, Metropolitan tenor, has given him a "new starting point."

Howard Green, who does his composing after hours of clerking in his father's shoe store, wants to develop an individual style and "make my own way."

He redoubled his efforts at music composition after Bentonelli premiered one of his original songs.

Green, who began studying the piano when a boy of 9, has been sending his compositions to Bentonelli since 1936. His first, titled "The Lament," was received with encouragement from the tenor. "The song is usable," Bentonelli wrote. "I am not certain, but I think I should like to program it some time if the occasion arises."

Several weeks ago, Green sent "You are the Evening Cloud." He heard nothing from Bentonelli but while vacationing in Mexico, the tenor was singing Green's song before the New York Musical Club and at the American Bankers' Association convention in Oklahoma.

"His singing is the starting point for me," Green said, when told that his song had been sung by the well-known tenor. "I want to develop an individual style, and make my own way. This is the greatest encouragement I could get."
