Dr. W. C. Palmer To Be Buried In Ranger Saturday

Dr. Walter C. Palmer, prominent Ranger physician, surgeon and civic leader for the past 19 years, died in a Ranger hospital Thursday afternoon, following a major operation performed Tuesday. Up until a short time before his death hospital attendants were hopeful for his recovery, his death coming suddenly about 4 o'clock.

Dr. Palmer was born in Street, Ill., Aug. 26, 1880, and came to Ranger in 1919 after several years of active service overseas during the World War.

When the war was over he moved, with his family, from Chicago, where he made his home, to Ranger, where he lived until the time of his death.

Dr. Palmer was one of Ranger's most active citizens during his 19 years in the city. He was the first post commander of the Carl Barnes post, No. 69, American Legion, was the first president of the Ranger Lions club, was first president of the Ranger Country club and one of the first directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce and was a member of the Masonic lodge.

Changes Are Made At Courthouse by Engineer Clement

Two improvements and changes at the courthouse in Eastland were noted Friday. Peter Clement, courthouse engineer, rearranged office equipment in the assessor department of C. H. O'Brien's office and plans to repair the floors. The re-arrangement makes for more light in the office and is more convenient for the employees.

A water fountain from the fourth floor was re-installed on the basement floor. Located on the fourth floor, where jurors are quartered, the fountain there was not used often.

LESS COTTON IS FORECAST FOR THE YEAR

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The Department of Agriculture today reported that cotton in cultivation on July 1 totalled 26,904,000 acres, compared with 34,471,000 a year ago, and a 1938 farm program allotment of 27,527,508 acres.

Decreased in acreage from last year were reported in all states, with the greatest reductions west of the Mississippi River. The acreage is the smallest since the department began keeping records in 1909. It was 78 per cent of last year's total.

Four-H Dairy Team Winner of Third at State-Wide Parley: Eastland county's dairy demonstration team, composed of Elbert Bennett and Neil Eaves of Kokomo, won third place in a preliminary state contest at the 4-H short course in College Station this week, according to information received Friday from Assistant County Agent Hugh F. Barnhart.

ASK BALLOTS: Edna Lee Hicks, W. C. Spoon, Mrs. R. W. Williams, D. M. Cooper and Roy E. Farley are the names of additional persons who have requested absentee ballots or have already voted in the July 23 primary, it was announced Friday by County Clerk R. V. Galloway.

BLAZING THE HOMEWARD TRAIL

When singers of spirituals chant about the "Glory Road" they may visualize something as beautiful as the photo above, showing a brilliant spectacle of illumination along New York's George Washington bridge and its approach. But it was scarcely a glory road for the thousands of Gothamites in the streaming caravan of cars whose headlights produced the effect. For they were reluctantly blazing the homeward trail across the Hudson river to return to work after a week-end at summer resorts.

X-Ray Expert Is Named Official at National Meeting: Mrs. Fred Maxey of Eastland, who returned this week, was elected chairman of the executive committee of the National X-ray Technicians at the annual convention held at Madison, Wis. The convention next year will be held in New York City.

Just a Joke; Lost Is Found

Home in bed was blond screen actress Ula Love, above, while her Hollywood agent sent police out on a wide-spread search by reporting her "missing." The agent said he "feared foul play" because Ula hadn't reached Hollywood from Memphis. Ula's mother said of course she hadn't reached Hollywood—because she hadn't left Memphis—and commented that "it must have been a publicity stunt we don't know anything about."

ROOSEVELT IN FIRST SPEECH ON HIS TOUR

MARIETTA, Ohio, July 8.—Under a blazing Ohio sun, President Roosevelt called upon the people to elect "forward looking" representatives to run their government. A crowd estimated at 100,000 heard the chief executive fire his first shot on those battle fronts where the new deal is being challenged in primary contests.

Personalities Rather Than Issues Dominating Race for Governor

By United Press
By Gordon K. Shearer
By Press Staff Correspondent

Personalities rather than issues have dominated the race for governor so far. The issue of old age assistance plays an important part in the race, it will be decided by the voters. The issue of old age assistance is the issue about which the candidates have displayed the strongest interest. It is the issue about which there is most difference of opinion among the candidates and among the voters.

Preacher Plans to Resume His Calling After Prison Term

By United Press
HOUSTON, Texas.—C. Edgar Eskridge, Baptist minister who murdered Police Chief Ed J. O'Reilly at Orange on May 29, 1935, plans to resume his calling when he is released from prison.

Once a swaggering vice crusader, Eskridge has been a bookkeeper at Clements prison farm in Brazoria county since his conviction here two years ago. District Judge Lanston G. King, who heard Eskridge's trial and sentenced him to five years imprisonment, visited the prison farm the other day and talked with him.

"When I get out of here," Eskridge told Judge King, "I plan to go to Tennessee, Georgia or Kentucky to carry on my work."

Eskridge is imprisoned with 500 negroes, all first offenders over 25 years of age. Before the killing, Eskridge had visited prisons often to pray with the felons.

He was deeply interested in crime—especially murder—and often preached on the subject. When the notorious Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker were slain in Louisiana five years ago, he drove to the scene.

Crime interest resulted in the murder of Chief O'Reilly. Clad in a 10-gallon hat and high-heeled cowboy boots, with a gun slung from his hip, Eskridge accompanied officers on gambling and vice raids in Orange county.

Eskridge's activities led to a disagreement with O'Reilly. The minister drove his auto to a street corner where O'Reilly was talking with a friend, and shot the officer to death.

TeePee Swamps Gordon 16 to 2 In Game Thursday

BY TOMMY SMITH

TeePee drubbed Gordon 16-2 while Jack Johnson was pitching three-hit ball Thursday night. Two of the three Gordon hits came from the bat of first baseman Varner, nee catcher Varner of the Elks.

Segars, Gordon hurler, wasted no time getting himself in a hole by walking the first two to face him and all hands were safe when Varner booted Martin's grounder. Nixon then forced Martin, Delmasco scoring, and Pittman's fly to right brought Lewis, who scored five runs, in with the second tally. Holmes skied to left, ending the inning.

Wildness likewise cost Johnson two runs in the third. After Mercer lifted to right, Bielencki and Zimicki strolled and Varner's triple to right sent Bielencki and Zimicki home. Johnson then walked Gibson and Merriman but fanned Lovera, swinging, to retire the side.

TeePee came right back with two in their half of the third and after that, the game wasn't even close. Dust swept across the infield and into the grandstands during most of the game.

Johnson and Segars together issued seventeen bases on balls—nine and eight respectively—but Johnson counteracted his wildness by striking out fifteen. Segars struck out none.

No game is scheduled for tonight, but on Saturday night the Methodists of Eastland play Killingsworth under the lights here. It will be Killingsworth's second game of the week and a win will give them two straight. Game time is 8:30.

The box score:

He Set British Blood Boiling

The British army has learned that it is a "gross breach" of parliamentary privilege for them to put an M. P. on trial, even if they think he has disclosed official secrets during debate. So decided Parliament's Committee on Privileges, after member Duncan Sandys, above, complained that Attorney-General Sir Donald Somervell had threatened to prosecute him, and that the army had summoned him for trial. Sandys had raised a question in the House of Commons regarding the inadequacy of British anti-aircraft guns.

Crossfire Authority Costs Taxi Driver

By United Press
REGINA, Sask.—Whether to obey the law and be arrested, or refuse and meet the same end, was the perplexing situation which faced Guy Shirley, Regina taxi-cab driver.

Shirley was driving four Royal Canadian Mounted Police constables back to their barracks. Time was short before their late leave was to expire.

"Step on it," the constables ordered. Shirley sped toward the barracks.

A Regina city constable stopped the speeding auto. The following day, Shirley paid $4 and costs for speeding.

Old Secrets Found In Cornerstone of Odessa Courthouse

By United Press
ODESSA, Texas.—Thirty-four-year-old secrets were given up here when the cornerstone of the old Odessa county courthouse, built in 1904, was broken open. The building is being razed, and has been replaced by a new four-story building.

Two envelopes found in the cornerstone contained five playing cards. They were left by "Poker Joe," a frontier character of the time, old-timers said. A copy of the Odessa Times of July 29, 1904, contained this prophecy:

"Prof. V. D. Gassaway of the U. S. Geological Survey, while prospecting in the Odessa territory, has discovered unmistakable evidences of petroleum and natural gas that will doubtless be developed in the future."

● SERIAL STORY INTERNE TROUBLE BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
TRAN DEARBORN—heroine, student nurse. She has into love and trouble when she met DR. BOB BEN HLEY—hero, handsome young intern. He had trouble, too, keeping up with brilliant DR. STEPHEN SARGENT—head surgeon. Dr. Sargent's problem was something else again.

Yesterday: Tran blunders into the emergency operating room on her first day in the hospital and is ordered out. Very shortly she is to need the benefit of prayer!

CHAPTER II

WITH burning cheeks Tran fled down the corridor—away from those cruelly amused male voices in Emergency. For, although nothing was further from her ethical code than to eavesdrop, she had heard. . . Her resentment was entirely directed toward the home-ly, dark young intern who had snickered. As for Top Sarge, of course, no one would have thought of questioning his right to be caustic, any more than if it had been a law of nature. He was "Top Sarge." Nevertheless that "feather-brain" did rattle.

"Well," he gasped. "If it isn't our little Utility again!"

In the end, it was the homely young intern from Emergency who set her feet in the right path. He came dashing around a corner just as she hastily shut the door to a private room which she had opened by mistake.

There had been a rather unpleasant moment just after she had opened that door. The patient, a florid blond lady, had sat up in bed and demanded in a shrill, lyric soprano, "For God's sake—is this a private room, or a subway station? All I want is a little peace. Heaven knows I'm paying enough for it."

SO it was that as young Dr. Benchley hurried around the corner she ran directly into his arms. "Well!" he gasped. "If it isn't our little Utility again! But say—whatever named you missed a bet. He should have made it 'Agility.'"

For Pete's sake, kid—this is a hospital not a race track. You'd better get back where you belong."

Nevertheless he staidied her, grinning companionably down at her till she got her breath. . . His grin somewhat mitigated her resentment. It transformed his dark face from an interesting ugliness to a flashing charm.

As a matter of fact, she found herself suddenly liking him so much that she slyly failed to notice that he was still supporting her; and although she took her cheeks firmly between her teeth, her eyes became starry wells of mischief.

"How about yourself?" she demanded. "After all, this isn't Emergency either, is it?"

"Dr. Sargent," he said with dignity, "got so much interested in fishing for that bullet himself that he sent me out to take a telephone call for him."

"Just a couple of errand boys, aren't we?" Tran said.

She owed him that one for snickering.

He acknowledged the thrust with a crooked grin. Then, as an elevator whirred in the shaft behind them, he released her hastily, and thrust his hands into his pockets as if to keep them out of temptation.

"Say, listen, Agility," he admonished in a lowered tone, "don't let old Sarge get you down. He's a good egg really; but with half the females in this hospital making passes at him, you can't blame him for getting a little scratchy when he finds a new one breathing down his neck."

"Really?" Tran said with delicate venom. "Well, I can't imagine any one pursuing him from personal motives—unless she was looking for a chance to put poison in his soup."

"You wait. In no time at all, you'll be swooning with adoration when he passes, like all the rest of them," said Dr. Benchley, grinning down at her, his hands still in his pockets.

Then as a door opened down the corridor, he said swiftly, "Listen, Agility, if Miller misses you and sends out a search party, you might as well turn in your apron. . . For your information, I just passed her little flock going into K-6. . . If Miller asks embarrassing questions," he called softly as she turned away, "the old one about having a nose bleed may work."

TRAN sped off down the corridor. K-6 was the Women's Surgical ward.

By good luck the door stood open. Tran slid in like a slim gray wraith and joined the little group of aproned girls following Miss Miller's crisp white linen down the long room.

Miss Miller might have modeled for a Red Cross poster as the ideal nurse. She was erect and trim, blond and coolly lovely as a snow maiden, with quietly watchful blue eyes, slim, beautiful white hands, and an air of serene detachment which had won for her the nickname "the icicle." . . . Miss Miller was not a regular nursing instructor; but as a nurse, she was recognized as tops. Rumor had it that she was Dr. Stephen Sargent's favorite nurse—a rumor, Tran knew, which gave her enormous prestige throughout the hospital.

Now, "the icicle's" cool, quiet voice was explaining the organization and management of the long white ward, through which they were passing.

Meantime, on either side of the long aisle, the ward nurses—some graduates in their trim white uniforms, caps and white shoes, and a sprinkling of student nurses in gray striped dresses and white bibbed aprons—lined up at respectful attention as Miss Miller passed. That was because here Miss Miller was supervisor, and consequently senior nurse.

It was all rather like a military inspection. Tran found herself feeling absurdly small and insignificant as part of so much pomp and circumstance—and more than a little uneasy, even while she managed her most convincing expression of grave, respectful attention. . . Had Miss Miller missed her?

SHE was not long left in doubt. When it was over, and Miss Miller had marched her double line of gray-clad girls back to their quarters, she summoned Tran with a lifted eyebrow and a backward inclination of her smooth blond head. The rest fled away with carefully restrained glances of curiosity and pity which were by no means lost upon Tran. . . She had been seen then.

"The icicle" began crisply, "Now it's no use wasting my time with the one about stopping to tie your shoelace and getting lost. No," she went on as Tran half opened her lips, "nor the bromide about having had the nose bleed, either. They both grew whiskers years ago. . . Besides, I'm not even going to ask you where you've been. Because I know."

"I'm sorry—" Tran began. But Miss Miller raised a slim hand for silence.

"I should prefer," she went on, "to let the matter rest between us. After all, it's no credit to me to have girls in my charge openly defiant of discipline. But unfortunately I am not the only one who saw you follow Dr. Sargent into Emergency. . . I'm not even asking you why you did it. You can explain that to the Director of Nursing. I have repeatedly noticed in your attitude a tendency to frivolity which has no place in the nursing profession." . . . Miss Miller was one of Tran's superiors who had frequently found those uncontrollably dancing eyes of hers vaguely disconcerting. . . "I might warn you," she went on, "that you will not find anything in Miss Armstrong's displeasure that you can laugh off."

It was just after Tran had finished dissecting a particularly juicy and loathsome frog in the zoology laboratory next day and had gone to her room to clean up that the summons from Miss Armstrong came.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—The year's most sensational rumor has been killed off by the General Motors announcement of operating schedules. The rumor, believed and repeated in the highest places, simply was that the big three automobile companies were going to close down until after election.

FROM Palo Alto came a report that Herbert Hoover had explained to Leland Stanford professors that the industry would fold up until after elections, delaying decisions on new models and postponing fall openings, because of its uncertainty and fear.

CORRESPONDENTS who kept trying to check these and other versions could be sure only that the industry would produce relatively few cars in the next two or three months because of heavy inventory, that there was inside pressure for postponement of fall openings until January and that many interested persons—including certain automobile men—had engaged in a lot of loose talk.

Now General Motors announces that its plants will close on an average only three weeks longer than the usual annual shutdown for inventory and model changes. Which means that things less for Washington hot and bothered about.

Ex-Student Tells Of Advantages Of Junior College

BY TOMMY SMITH

Let's look at Junior College from the perspective of the potential student. Upon graduation from high school, what plan has the average graduate? If he is going to carry his education a step higher, he begins to look around for an institution suitable to his pocketbook, as well as suitable to his taste. When he finds these two elements combined, he says "that's where I'm going to school." And when this combination can be found in the town where he lives, the odds are two-to-one he will lean toward the home college. Here's why:

1. His living expenses will not be increased by college if he is already living in the city where the college is located.

2. If the college has no tuition and only requires the student to pay a few incidental fees, he receives the same training for half the cost.

3. He can have the same friends thru his two years of junior college as he has had during his other eleven school years. Assuming that these three reasons, along with other reasons that would vary with the individual, have induced the student to spend the first two years of his advanced education in junior college, what advantages has the junior college graduate after completing the two year training period? This, of course, will depend upon his plans after junior college graduation.

If he intends to be job hunting, he is armed with two years of valuable preparation that he would not have had otherwise. And these two years can easily mean the difference between a position and unemployment.

College Tax Will Pay Dividends In Serving Youths

By voting the 20-cent Junior College tax on Saturday, July 9th, the citizens of Ranger Independent School District will show their confidence in the value of the local institution and in the service it renders young people. This progressive action will inspire greater confidence on the part of people in other sections of the county.

Several citizens of other cities in Eastland county have voiced this sentiment. They have stated that if Ranger will get behind their Junior College and maintain it they will give it better patronage and support than they have in the past.

If the citizens of the Ranger District do not vote this maintenance tax then it stands to reason that sooner or later there will be a college opened in some other city of the county and a county wide tax will be voted. If this occurs the people of Ranger Independent School District will pay the same 20 cent tax but it will go to support a junior college in some other city.

The value of Ranger Junior College locally is further emphasized at this time by the fact that the following graduates of the 1938 Ranger High School have signified their interest in and intention to attend the home institution. Others will no doubt be added as the time for opening approaches:

Anna Ola Bradford, F. P. Bradsher Jr., Dorothea Jean Bruce, Claribell Coffman, Mary Lucille Davis, Carl Aiken, Ross Elrod, Mabel Falls, Rita Gallagher, Ruth Hazard, Dick Hodges, Rossie Hodges, Annetta Fay Huffman, Shakeeb Dakour, Gladys Larson, Dan Milmo, Rita Mooney, Wesley Norris, Geraldine Pirkle, Lucy Ready, Alpha Lee Robinson, Frances Usery, Edith Mae Taylor, Braswell Vantress, Pickens Weaver.

TIN CAN COOK INJURED

By United Press

SAN RAFAEL, Cal.—When the nation begins to live entirely on canned goods, as sometimes is predicted, it may be necessary to give husbands instructions even in the simple art of serving canned goods. In the absence of his wife, Wesley J. LaVigne put a can of tamales in water to boil. The water soon boiled away, and just as LaVigne rushed to rescue the tamales the can exploded. He went to a hospital.

'Spite Fence' Down, Cost Was $30,000

By United Press

CINCINNATI, O.—A "spite fence" erected years ago by a Cincinnati man who hated apartment houses has been torn down. When protests failed to prevent erection of an apartment next to his residence, the owner erected a 20-foot fence to shut the building from his sight. The fence didn't hide the building completely but it did keep the "anti-apartment" man from seeing the structure from his front windows.

The apartment owners then brought suit against their neighbor because the fence shut out the light from the lower floor of the apartment and approximately $30,000 was spent in fighting the case in court.

Campaign Speech Halted by Angelus

By United Press

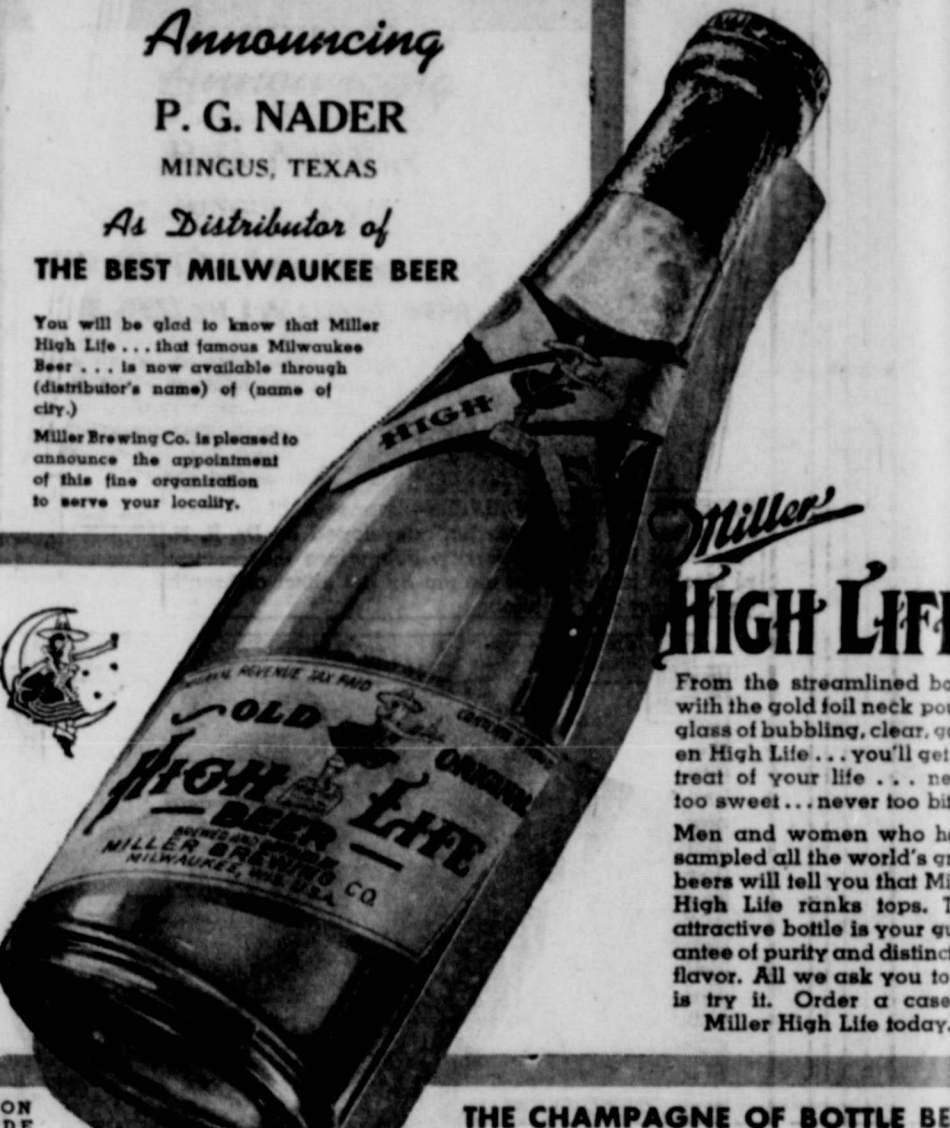

CHICOUTIMI, Quebec. — A thousand persons listening to a campaign speech here knelt in prayer as the bells in the village church tolled out the Angelus. Jean Nil Jean, the speaker, stopped his address and knelt on the platform. A newspaperman sitting nearby knelt beside him and recited the Angelus in a loud voice. The audience intoned it in chorus.

When the bell tolling ceased the political campaign was resumed.

Wreckers are now demolishing the old home as well as the "spite fence." This is wiped out the last vestige of a neighborhood feud.
