QUEEN MARIE OF ROUMANIA DIES MONDAY

By United Press
BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 18.—Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania died peacefully today after having suffered a series of embolages of the liver.
The 62-year-old queen, mother of King Carol II, and perhaps best remembered by Americans for her trip to the United States in 1926, had been ill for many months. Some weeks ago she was taken to a sanatorium near Dresden, Germany, and Sunday she was brought home to the royal palace.
Queen Marie's hold on the affections of her people was strengthened during the World war when she labored tirelessly in the hospitals. She had been admired before for her beauty.

Moves Against Nazi Operations

Headed by the congressional committee about to investigate "un-American activities" is Representative Martin Dies, above, of Texas. Although House liberals opposed Dies' resolution for the investigation, fearing that it would be used against organized labor, the Department of Justice set reports on the Nazi German-American Bund.

Opponents in NLRB Ouster Case

The National Labor Relations Board has agreed to hear arguments on the appeal of Clyde A. Armstrong, right, chief counsel for the Weirton Steel Company, from the ruling of Edward Grandison Smith, left, trial examiner, barring Armstrong from further participation in the board's "unfair labor practices" case against the company. Smith, chairman of the board of governors of West Virginia University, said that Armstrong was guilty of "defiant, contemptuous and contumacious conduct." The hearing was transferred from Steubenville, O., to Pittsburgh after Steubenville citizens made a mass protest against the barring of Armstrong.

Giles Claims His Opponent Dodges Vacancy Question

COMMERCE, July 18.—Bascom Giles, candidate for State land commissioner, said in a speech here today his opponent, Land Commissioner Wm H. McDonald, "is desperately attempting to dodge responsibility for the vacancy racket situation."
"It has only been the last year and a half since he has been commissioner of the land office that the situation has flourished and the state-wide outcry over vacancy racketeering arose," Giles declared.
"For 100 years the Texas land office was administered without serious criticism, but during the last 18 months there has been more criticism of the administration of the department under the McDonald regime than during all of the century before and the criticism has been justified."
Giles said that figures from the land office show that 556 vacancy applications have been filed the past 18 months and that the present land commissioner "admits" he has taken action on only a few of them.
"Granting of an actual vacancy does not create a racket," Giles asserted, "but it is the wholesale filing of vacancy applications and inaction by the land commissioner, or his methods of granting them, that does."
"Filing of a vacancy claim clouds the land owner's title and this is what the vacancy racketeers want. They can then attempt to hold-up the land occupant and make him pay them off to remove the cloud before he can sell an oil or mineral lease on his land. The practice should be stopped by the land commissioner refusing to entertain such claims, or by acting on them without undue delay."
Giles declared he always has favored bona-fide occupants having the preference right and best chance to purchase any actual vacancy discovered on his land, instead of the vacancy hunter having an "inside track" to grab the vacancy away from the land owner.

Will Administer Wage-Hour Law

The difficult task of administering the wage-hour law, first federal experiment in establishing nationwide minimum labor conditions, on the shoulders of Elmer F. Andrews, above. Long experience as civil engineer and as industrial commissioner of New York state qualify Andrews to undertake the placing of a "floor under wages" and a "ceiling over hours" in all industries engaged in interstate commerce.

CAMPAIGNS OF CANDIDATES IN LAST STAGES

A torrid Texas campaign for governor disregarded the July heat today and swung down the stretch that will end with hometown rallies for candidates and the ballot box next Saturday.
The campaign devolved into a "stop O'Daniel" drive by the opponents of W. Lee O'Daniel of Fort Worth. Whether their pleas take effect will be determined Saturday when 1,000,000 Texans name their choice.
O'Daniel took his string band into West Texas for appearances Monday and Tuesday.
Attorney General William McCraw summoned all his political cunning for a final assault upon O'Daniel. Another leading candidate, Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson, carried his campaign into the cities.

JAPS DESTROY CHINESE PLANES AT NANCHANG

A Japanese navy communication today said a squadron of Japanese airplanes landed at Nanchang airport in the heart of Chinese territory, set fire to Chinese airplanes with matches and escaped. The communication said 20 Chinese planes were destroyed, including 12 shot down in a fight over Nanchang before the raiding squadron landed.

Showers Predicted For West Texas

DALLAS, July 18.—The United States weather bureau predicted scattered showers for many parts of Texas Monday and Tuesday. Showers are in sight for extreme West Texas Tuesday, the forecast said.

FLIER CROSSES OCEAN IN A 1929 MODEL TO MAKE AIR HISTORY

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 18.—Douglas Corrigan, 31-year-old Los Angeles airplane mechanic, flew alone across the Atlantic today in a little, old 175-horsepower monoplane that cost him $900, and he maintained all the time he thought he was flying to California instead of Ireland.
That was the story he told when he took the 1929 model up in New York Sunday. Otherwise they wouldn't have let him start. With no navigating instruments, no emergency equipment and no passport.
And that was the story he stuck to when he put the old crate down on Baldonnell Airport just outside Dublin, 28 hours and 13 minutes later.
"I left New York to return to Los Angeles, but by an unfortunate mistake I set my compass wrong," he said with a straight face.
Nevertheless he fulfilled an ambition to fly the Atlantic and it finished one of the most amazing flights in history, a distance of about 2,800 miles.
He had an old ship and motor on which he had lavished hours of attention. He had 320 gallons of gasoline that cost him all the money he had. He had a couple of chocolate bars and a burning desire to follow the trail blazed by his hero, Lindbergh.
His plane wasn't even as powerful as the one Lindbergh flew to Paris 11 years ago. It looked like a baby carriage beside the machine in which Howard Hughes roared across the Atlantic just a week ago.

Politics and Oil Mingle at Hearing

AUSTIN, July 18.—Politics and oil mixed today at the state-wide oil and gas promotion hearing of the Texas Railroad Commission.
An attack by W. M. Priddy of Tyler against continuation of the Sunday oilfield shutdowns, brought spirited defense of the commission's oil regulations from Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson, candidate for governor.
Prospects for lifting the Sunday closing order at the end of the month were brightened. The federal bureau of mines' estimate of market demand for Texas oil was 1,377,800 barrels a day, or 17,500 barrels a day more than the July estimates.

Trailer Clinics to Aid In Campaign Upon Tuberculosis

WASHINGTON.—The WPA is dotting the country with a new kind of trailer—for tuberculosis patients.
The "tuberculosis trailers" are used as private hospitals in isolated areas and, in cities, as supplements to crowded hospital facilities.
Constructed by WPA and National Youth administration workers, the trailers admit a maximum of sunlight and provide isolation to prevent spread of the disease.
"Most of the trailer projects are sponsored by counties or health associations," the WPA reports, "and the distribution of cottages and care of patients is done under their supervision."
Arkansas uses 100 of the trailers in five counties, with the largest unit at Searcy, in White county. Arizona has units in four counties, with large clusters at...

Ranger Country Club Course Is Proving Popular

The Ranger Country club's golf course is fast becoming one of the most popular in this part of the state, with a large number of out-of-town visitors and transients, playing the course during the summer months.
Weldon Webb, secretary of the club, has announced that a total of 201 golfers paid greens fees amounting to $36.50 during the first half of July, in addition to the regular members of the club, who do not pay any greens fees.
Of the 201 golfers, 45 were transients, most of them playing the course for the first time.
"This is even more than played over the course during the annual golf tournament," Webb stated. "Practically everyone who plays golf here praises the course, saying it is one of the best in the country."

Twins, 54, Say Just 'Make It Two'

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—If psychologists were to summarize the lives of Ed and Bill Day, identical twins, the shortest and best description would be "make it two."
The brothers, leading almost duplicate existences, have been saying that all their lives, as they ordered hats, shoes, food. Anything one wanted, he assumed the other also desired, and ordered two.
This was easy because they wear the same sizes and weigh the same—to the pound.
They have been together for 54 years—ever since they were born, except for one period of two weeks, when they were separated long enough to pitch on different ball teams.
They share the same bed, one never turning in without the other. In the morning they arise at the same time, do their setting-up exercises in unison, take a walk together in the park, cook and eat breakfast together.
Then they leave for work together—both are foremen—and if they are late it is quite possible that in their haste they have dressed in each other's clothing—not that it makes any difference.
The Day twins never have missed a Sunday game since baseball was legalized in Cleveland. Ever since they were boys, both have pitched on ball teams and on the occasion of their one separation, one pitched for Youngstown in the Ohio-Pennsylvania League, and the other for Boston in the National League.
The brothers also seem to think alike and to agree on most matters. If one is angered, it is likely that the other also is displeased.
They tolerate one separation, however. When both ride the street cars, they take successive ones because too many people notice that they are twins and talk to them about it.

Theory of a Lost Continent Is Dying

BERKELEY, Cal.—Scientific belief in the one-time existence of "Gondwanaland," that mysterious lost continent that is supposed to have connected up South America, Africa and India, is on the wane, according to Dr. Charles L. Camp, director of the Museum of Paleontology of the University of California.
The new evidence against it, he said, has been adduced largely from the study of fossils in both the Old World and the New World, although there is still other evidence indicative that such a land bridge may have existed in the Southern Atlantic in remote ages.
Some scientists in the past, Dr. Camp explained, have held to the theory that the vertebrate fossil forms in the New World crossed on a land bridge joining the two continents in the Southern Hemisphere.
But the weight of evidence, he said, now leans toward their having crossed on some land connection between Eurasia and North America. This evidence tends to disprove the existence of Gondwanaland that was supposed to have bridged the Old and the New Worlds on the south.
The presence of certain mammal and reptile forms in North America, he said, indicates that the distribution of these and other forms began at the North Polar and Arctic areas and spread down the continental axes.

Explosion Wrecks Big Sinclair Plant

WELLSVILLE, N. Y., July 18.—A new explosion ripped through the big $12,000,000 Sinclair oil refinery today, and it was feared that the entire plant might be destroyed. Four men already were dead, 42 injured and damage estimated at several million dollars.

Ohio Town Protests NLRB Action

Carrying huge placards that express their estimation of the National Labor Relations Board, citizens of Steubenville, O., are pictured as they protested conduct of an "unfair labor practices" hearing against the Weirton Steel Co. Hung in effigy, upper left, was Edward Smith, examiner for the board. Barring of Clyde A. Armstrong, chief Weirton counsel, from the hearings precipitated the demonstration. Isadore Polier, target of many of the placards, is an NLRB attorney.

Lights Are Urged For Intersections Along the Highway

Because of several accidents that have occurred at the intersection of Highway 80 and Blackwell road at Prairie crossing in the past few days, a movement is being started to install a traffic light at the intersection.
Members of the city commission and directors of the chamber of commerce today discussed, informally, installation of lights, both at the Prairie crossing and at the intersection of the highway with Main street, where accidents occur often.
Both intersections are recognized as traffic hazards, and plans have been put underway whereby the lights may be installed. It was pointed out today that expenditure of a few hundred dollars might mean the saving of several lives.

Six of Wan an' 'Arf a Dozen of t'Other

As a relief from the weighty news of the day you might give a moment or two of thought to the matter of the famous—and puzzling—British accent.

Hollywood has been doing its best to instill a true British accent into the vocabularies of its stars; so have the radio people; and the result, in most cases, has been something fearful and wonderful to hear. And the British, in their turn, have long insisted that American-made films are unfit for empire consumption because of the dreadful American accent which pervades them.

But now it develops that the British themselves are not quite sure what is and is not good, sound English speech. Milton Bronner, European manager for the Newspaper Enterprise Association, points out that while England is in area slightly smaller than the state of Alabama, its 40,000,000 people have more accents and dialects than the entire continental United States.

Yorkshireman and Lancashireman can understand one another, with an effort; but neither has a speech like that of the native of Somerset. The London Cockney is in a class by himself. And the celebrated Oxford accent deserves a separate volume.

The upper class in London calls a bath a hawth and grass, grahns; but the upper class in Liverpool or Edinburgh will pronounce those words precisely as Americans do.

An observant London clergyman recently remarked that the upper class West End of London is really just as bad as the lower class East End. He cited, as an example, the line frequently sung in church: "Praise Him for His grace and favor."

In the Cockney East End, he said, this line becomes: "Prize Him for His grice and fiver."

And in the cultured West End the line sounds like this: "Preeze Him for His grease and Fever."

All of which, doubtless, adds up to nothing at all. But a harassed American who has to listen to imitation British accents every time he goes to a movie or turns on the radio may properly draw a modicum of comfort from it. He can go on comfortably saying "Noo York" instead of "Nyew Yohk," secure in the knowledge that at least half of England itself would probably agree with him.

Doll hats are announced as the coming thing in feminine headgear. It seems—men—that they're to go with the new skirts.

Bees, it has been announced, don't see red. What is it, then, that upsets them?

Typical Home Is Saying Goodbye to "Our Hired Girl"

WASHINGTON. — Labor-saving machines have displaced the hired girl in the typical American village home, a nation-wide survey by the Department of Agriculture shows.

"There now are statistics to show that James Whitcomb Riley's children's classic, 'our hired girl,' no longer portrays the typical in American village life," the department said.

She was the family factotum who lived in the household, cooked such good things to eat that the children loitered about her kitchen table until she chased them away with some such refrain as:

"Clear out of my way; there's time for work and time for play! Take your dough and run, child, run, or I can't get no baking done!"

In reaching its conclusion the department studied "household help" tables of 8,434 white non-relief families in 140 typical villages in all sections of the country.

"The importance of 'our hired girl' has decreased as services of commercial bakeries and laundries have increased, as canneries and garment factories have grown, and as labor-saving devices have come into the home," Dr. Louise Stanley, home economics director who supervised the survey, said.

"Then, too," she added, "many a homemaker would rather spend for a car and widen her social contacts than to spend for a maid if this means only leisure to sit on the front porch and watch the neighbors ride by."

The New England and Pacific regions were lowest in percentage of families having hired help and in average amount spent. In the former only one in twenty-five families employed help. The average of all families was $54 a year.

On the Pacific coast the percentage of such families ranged from four in the low income bracket to 45 in the highest. Hired help for the housewife was slightly more prevalent in North Central, Middle Atlantic, Plains and Mountain states.

The Southeastern village housewife, in contrast to her Northern and Western sisters, stood a very good chance of having help.

In Colorado Race

Benjamin Hilliard

ALVA ADAMS

Two self-styled New Dealers—Senator Alva Adams and Judge Benjamin Hilliard, opponents for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Colorado—sought presidential blessing as Mr. Roosevelt passed through their state on his cross-country tour. Adams opposed the court bill, but was the administration floor manager when the spending-lending bill came before the Senate. Hilliard announced his candidacy after a visit to the President in Washington.

were ill with the disease. The average duration of the illness is from six to eight weeks plus a convalescent period of about six weeks. This means that typhoid is responsible for the loss of approximately 200,000 work days each year in Texas, with the attendant loss of income over a several months period.

Early fall and late summer each year sees a tremendous increase in the prevalence of typhoid in Texas, due to vacation travel and the hazards brought to the local population by itinerant labor.

Typhoid is particularly prevalent in those sections where there is seasonal employment bringing into the area great numbers of laborers who live in tents, shacks and trailers without adequate sanitation.

The local communities have the problem of dealing with this shifting population—put squarely on their shoulders. Insofar as is feasible, the itinerant population should be immunized against typhoid and should be made to conform with sanitary regulations (particularly with regard to disposal of waste) as a protective measure to the permanent community population.

Typhoid fever can be controlled by the use of pure water, pasteurized milk or clean milk, clean foods, proper disposal of sewage, screening against the fly and destroying its breeding places, by search for and care of human carriers, and by general practice of immunization.

In selecting a place for a vacation, choose one where you know that the water and milk supply is pure. Be sure that the kitchen and dining room are screened to protect the food from flies. When camping it is best to boil water used for drinking, unless you know that it is pure. Clear, sparkling spring water is often nevertheless polluted.

Big Motorship to Transport British Food from South

LONDON—A super 27,000-ton food transport motorship, with accommodation for 525 first class passengers and capacity for 16,000 tons of cargo, is to be launched at Tyneside on July 27 for service between Britain, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

The vessel, which is to be christened the Dominion Monarch, is said by the owners, Shaw, Savill & Albion Company, Ltd., to be the biggest ship ever designed for trade with Southern Dominions.

Many novel features are incorporated in the vessel's design. There is only one mast, as the swimming pool leaves no room for a second one. There is air conditioning in the dining saloon and cabins, which are equipped with telephones.

The cargo capacity is 700,000 cubic feet, of which 500,000 cu-

Cheating Death in the Mountains

Painfully threading their way downward through jagged rock chinnies like the one seen above, rescuers are shown as they brought Roger Carney to safety from the 10,000-foot top of Mt. Olympus near Salt Lake City, Utah. Carney had fallen into a 15-foot ravine and lay 18 hours with a compound fracture of the lower leg before rescuers found him. Then they rigged the cradle-like stretcher shown above and laboriously carried Carney downward, sharing in shifts the back-breaking and nerve-trying race against time and imminent danger of infection.

The Diesel engines has been calculated at 19 1-2 knots, the trip requiring 35 days. This is despite the fact that the route to be taken is longer by 3,000 miles than that followed by other vessels.

It is planned for the Dominion Monarch to call at Madeira or Tenerife, Capetown, Durban, Fremantle, Melbourne, Sidney and Wellington. The average speed

This is how COMFORT COOLING works

A glance at the cut-away illustration above shows how a Comfort Cooling System brings air in through windows, and out through openings in the gables or eaves. Comfort Cooling installations are designed to fit each home, and to change the air in the home every minute.

Coclair Comfort Cooling engineers pioneered the home cooling and ventilating field. Many of these systems have been operating quietly, economically and without mechanical trouble for over ten years.

There are four homes and one dry cleaning plant using this system right now in Ranger. Home units operate for 1c an hour or less. We will be glad to demonstrate the use of this system if you are interested in one of these low cost and economically operated systems.

Model 2A

This Model 2A is a water evaporation cooling unit; and is installed just outside the window, filtering and cooling the air as it passes through the excelsior mat. This mat is kept wet by water dripping through it. This fan is a special built Emerson, and will last as long as it is properly cared for. All materials used are rust proof. Excelsior mat should be replaced each summer at small cost—less than $1.00.

Price of complete unit—for one room is less than $50.00; large ones in proportion. Either kind of cooling system may be purchased on easy payment plan.

STARS that glitter in the July dinner should be observed well. Chilled cream vichyssoise is becoming an American hot meal habit. It nourishes, delights and does not overheat.

Cream Vichyssoise (cold)
(Serves 6 to 8)

Six leeks, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 potatoes sliced raw, 1 quart chicken broth, 1 pint cream, salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped shives.

Finely mince the white part of the 6 leeks and put into a saucepan with the butter. Stir gently over a low fire for 15 minutes, then add the sliced raw potatoes and chicken broth. Season with salt and pepper to taste, and cook gently until potatoes are tender. Strain and set aside to cool.

Add the cream, season again to taste and place in refrigerator to become thoroughly chilled. Serve in cups or cream soup dishes. Garnish with the finely chopped shives. Crisp cheese crackers make a nice accompaniment for this soup.

Raspberry Delight

Four egg whites, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup fine granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon water, 1 teaspoon vinegar.

Tomorrow's Menu

Cooling System is Keeping Cleaning Plant Cooler Now

The Coolair comfort cooling system which has been installed in the Ranger Dry Cleaning plant, according to S. P. Boon, changes the air in the plant once every minute, taking out the heat from the steam-heated equipment and bringing in cool air, reducing the temperature from 8 to 15 per cent and making a nice breeze at all times.

Boon is convinced this cooling system will not only make it very comfortable for customers who come in the plant, but will enable the workmen to do much better work in summer because they are very comfortable while at work, making for higher efficiency.

Boon has always been at the head of the parade in his line of business, always keeping up with improved methods, and he keeps his equipment up to date at all times, and this cooling system installation is in line with his progressive steps to give his customers the best in his line.

Mr. and Mrs. Houser Jay have returned from their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hicklin have returned to Ranger where they will remain temporarily. Mr. Hicklin was transferred to Alamosa, Col., recently by Montgomery Ward Co., but was unable to stay on account of the high altitude not agreeing with him.

Mrs. Saunders Gregg and son Lewis, and Mrs. John Thurman left Sunday for a trip to the mountains near Las Vegas, N. M. Soon after their return home Mrs. Gregg and Lewis will visit in Houston.

Miss Mary Allen Lanier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Lanier, is spending her vacation with her aunt, Mrs. Paul Bray in Big Spring, Texas. Mrs. Bray was recently a guest in the Lanier home. She will also visit Mr. M. B. Hare, who formerly taught in the Ranger high school, while there.

Texas' Wildlife Reports Are Made by the Game Dept.

AUSTIN, Tex.—A game preserve established in Limestone county in 1926 produced some tangible results, according to a survey conducted recently by J. G. Burr, one of the field men of the game department.

The county had few quail when the preserve was established, but now they are found virtually in all sections, Burr reported. The birds came from a foundation stock of 200 quail placed in the preserve by the department. The preserve also was stocked with about 30 deer, a few wild turkeys and 200 pheasants, the latter brought from Oregon. A few deer survive along the Navasota. The wild turkeys have disappeared. So also have the pheasants. Through experiments in various parts of the state the department has learned that pheasants, while they do well in captivity, seldom survive in the wild over most of Texas because of adverse environmental conditions.

Although Texas is not listed in the breeding range of the woodcock, a school teacher, C. M. Ferguson, of LaSalle, reported to the game department that the birds had been seen in the vicinity of both LaSalle and Kosse in Limestone county. Ferguson said a few woodcocks nested near LaSalle. The game department will investigate the report.

If you plan a vacation trip to the Guadalupe Mountains in extreme western Texas, watch out for porcupines.

Few people have seen porcupines in Texas, for they are very rare in this state. The other day, however, Bob Snow, field naturalist of the game department, killed one in the Guadalupe north of Van Horn. They are not protected by law.

The needle-skinned animal and his companions, if any, were believed to have migrated south from Arizona and northern Mexico, where they are common.

Snow also reported seeing several black bears.

The problem of keeping deer out of gardens and fields is being tackled by some Hill country ranchers with an electric deer-proof fence, according to reports to the game department.

The electric fence is yet an experiment and will not be recommended until additional tests are made, officials said.

One in Kerr county, near Kerville, is said to work to perfection. An electric wire was strung inside the regular fence on three sides of a large grain and truck field. During a period of one week, no deer molested crops from the three sides. Deer entered from the fourth and unprotected side, however, and had their fill.

The experiments are being watched with interest by many ranchers who have suffered heavy crop losses while conserving their deer.

INTERNE TROUBLE

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE
COPYRIGHT, 1938, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
TRAN DEARBORN—A 27-year-old student nurse. She ran into love and trouble when she met DR. BOB BENCHLEY—hero, handsome young interne. He had trouble, too, keeping up with brilliant DR. STEPHEN SARGENT—head surgeon. Dr. Sargent's problem was something else again.

Yesterday in a moment of hilarity, Tran prepares a farcical nursing care report concerning Dr. Sargent. Everything turns black before her when he begins to read it. How did he get it?

CHAPTER X

TRAN was never to forget the horror of the 10 minutes that followed.

In one sickening flash she had realized how this thing had come to happen to her. The morning before Beula Tagg had volunteered to carry her nursing care report to Miss Armstrong's office. And on her desk with it had lain, forgotten, that farcical report on the case of the mythical "X."

Now Dr. Sargent's clear, fastidious voice was reading it to the end, smoothly, gravely, inexorably, while Tran sat rigid.

"As I believe I told you," he said, "the case is not one that has come under my professional care—nor, so far as I know"—he coughed—"under that of any of our staff. Therefore I may perhaps be permitted more frankness in my comments than I might otherwise use in discussing the medical handling of a case."

The class, fully aware that there was more to this than met the naked eye, exchanged furtive glances. Tran measured the distance to the door, but sat still from sheer motor paralysis.

"I read it to you," Dr. Sargent went on blindly on, "because of several unusual aspects of the report. The first—his lips twitched slightly—is the scrupulous reference to the text with which the nurse interlards her remarks and explains her own reactions. The second is the amazing fact that after 10 years of observation, the case was still lacking a diagnosis, when any police court magistrate should template a radiant god—even if only from a remote distance—one had no time for lesser beings like the Bob Benchleys of the world."

The situation might easily have proved difficult when, early in Tran's second year, she was assigned to duty in Emergency. For young Dr. Benchley had been retained at Saint Vincent's as an assistant to Dr. Sargent; and it was he who was most frequently called to Emergency in an advisory capacity when the internes found themselves beyond their professional depth.

But young Dr. Benchley seemed to have retired with definite finality to distances of his own. He was brisk, businesslike, and im-most commonly used in such cases. . . . Miss—er—she glanced at the class list before him as if selecting a name.

But Tran knew before he spoke whose name he was going to call. "Miss Dearborn?" he said. "Perhaps you could tell me?"

So he was going to play cat and mouse with her, was he? Tran cleared her throat, but knew that if she cleared it a dozen times her voice would not come. Before he could pursue the matter further, however, the bell mercifully ended the period.

Tran would have scurried out of the room without a backward glance, but Dr. Sargent called, "Oh, Miss Dearborn—just a minute, please."

"Have you ever thought," he asked then, "that fiction writing might be more exciting than nursing?"

For a moment Tran's heart stood still at the ominous implication of his words.

"I thought you might like to destroy the evidence," he went on, putting the paper into her hands.

Why, Tran thought, but—he's really laughing—inside. He doesn't mind at all. . . . Oh, I'll never be afraid of him again.

"Oh, Dr. Sargent," she choked out, "I—you—oh, I think you're simply swell!"

Then she did see, because all of a sudden she realized that she adored Dr. Stephen Sargent.

Of course she knew he would probably never even give her another thought. But that didn't really matter. All that mattered was that he should be alive and here where she could see him sometimes, striding around with that look he had of knowing that the world was his oyster, and exactly what he was going to do about it. . . . Only that now everything would be entirely different, because she understood now that he knew how to laugh, and how to be kind. . . . And some time she was going to work with him.

Naturally, when one might contemplate a radiant god—even if only from a remote distance—one had no time for lesser beings like the Bob Benchleys of the world.

The situation might easily have proved difficult when, early in Tran's second year, she was assigned to duty in Emergency. For young Dr. Benchley had been retained at Saint Vincent's as an assistant to Dr. Sargent; and it was he who was most frequently called to Emergency in an advisory capacity when the internes found themselves beyond their professional depth.

But young Dr. Benchley seemed to have retired with definite finality to distances of his own. He was brisk, businesslike, and impersonally courteous when their paths crossed. No recollection, apparently, of the days when they two had clung together, rocking in silent mirth, or danced surreptitiously in a deserted service room to the music of a hurdy-hurdy outside—or even of the day he had begged her to marry him.

Tran told herself that this was all very gratifying and exactly as she would have chosen; but she could not help feeling a little piqued by his punctiliously professional manner.

At any rate, it made it much simpler to follow the Spartan road of self-discipline to which she had dedicated herself.

It would be gratifying to record that Tran developed overnight into a perfectly controlled young nurse who met all situations with assured poise. But of course, since she was Tran, that could not be true. The occasions were still too frequent on which she had to bite her cheeks to keep from giggling. After helping at her first operation she was humiliatingly sick at her stomach. And there was the historic day when—unable to find a seat in the operating amphitheater where Dr. Sargent was to do something very daring in the way of laparotomies—she climbed to a point of vantage in a tree that gave on one of the windows. It should have been an instructive afternoon but for the fact that Tran placed too much confidence in a rotten limb, and awoke to find herself in bed with two broken ribs, which, it seemed, Dr. Benchley had already set and strapped.

When she tried to thank him, he snapped with a brief return to the Bob Benchley Tran used to know. "Oh, Aggilly, if you would only stop being such a precious little idiot. If—"

Then he turned crimson, broke off abruptly, gathered up the stethoscope he had been using, and stalked out of the room.

But that hadn't meant anything, after all, it appeared, for a day or so later Beula Tagg told Tran that everyone in the hospital was talking about Dr. Benchley's affair with Mrs. Maitland, a pretty young widow who had been a patient.

Not that it mattered, for three times in the last month Tran had been alone with a patient when Dr. Sargent came in. Once he had even smiled at her and said, "Thanks. That helps a lot," when she had moved a light to a better position for him without being asked.

It was one stormy afternoon late in Tran's second year that the terrible thing happened which threatened to change Tran's world completely.
