The Market—A Barometer That Changes the Weather

It is quite usual to think of the 1928-29 era as a time when everybody was buying stocks; there were jokes about bootblacks taking a flyer in the market.

We think of that as a bygone time, as a strange phenomenon which flared up and died away.

That is why it comes as a surprise to see Barron's financial weekly asserting that there are today more stockholders in the country than ever before.

The result of a survey made by the magazine indicates that there are probably 25,000,000 holders of common and preferred stock in the country today. Allowing for duplications due to those who hold several stocks, the estimate is that somewhere between seven and eight million Americans own stocks, half of them being stockholders in the 1000 leading corporations.

Now that is a very large number of people. It is four or five times as large as the American Legion, which exerts a very considerable influence on national affairs. It is probably as big as the whole organized labor, both A. F. of L. and C. I. O. taken together. It is equal to the whole population of great states like Illinois, Ohio, or Texas.

Of course it is not an organized pressure bloc, and probably it should not be, for it cuts across many other lines. For instance, at least 2,000,000 stockholders are employees buying stock in their own companies, which means they are workers.

And, despite the disillusionment of 1929-33, despite eight long years of depression, the stockholding group is found by Barron's to be growing rather than declining. Further than that, it has been growing recently at a faster rate than it did in the days before the depression.

Thus it is small wonder that the recent flurry in the stock market caused a thrill along the whole business community. It is all very well to say that the stock market merely reflects or discounts in advance business conditions. But with seven or eight million people directly interested in stocks, the psychological effect of the course of the market is bound to be great. Thus "the market" not only is influenced by business conditions, it is in itself an influence on those conditions.

Whether you deplore it as a new martialing of lambs for some future pearing, or welcome it as evidence of more people having a direct stake in the national economy, the bare fact that more people than ever before are stockholders is a significant one which ought not to be left out of the calculations of all political and social soothsayers.

Comes news of a group of Australian aborigines who walked several hundred miles to civilization to see a moving picture. After they'd seen it they went back.

Quaker Oats Opens Advertising Drive In Local Paper

Selected to participate in the new national advertising campaign on Quaker Oats, this paper today prints the first of a series of eight advertisements that are being run in support of this product in the local market.

Other advertising media chosen by the Quaker Oats company for this new campaign include 400 daily newspapers, a large list of Sunday newspaper rotogravure sections and two magazines widely distributed with newspapers, "The American Weekly" and "This Week."

Local grocers are cooperating with this extensive drive to publicize the health benefits and economy of Quaker Oats as a year-around cereal. Oatmeal is nature's richest economical food source of Thiamin (Vitamin B-1) the food element that is essential for sound nerves and good digestion. In fact, scientific research has shown that without Thiamin good health is impossible. Thiamin is not stored in the body. This means everybody should have fresh daily supplies, say dietetic authorities.

Mothers who have been impressed by the healthy growth and sound progress of those world-famous young Canadian Misses, the Dicine Quins, will be interested in learning that Thiamin is richly contained in oatmeal. Throughout the critical growing period, oatmeal has been an important part of the Quins' diet. In fact, Quaker Oats is the brand of oatmeal given full approval by authorities in charge of the Quins' care and feeding.

Describing the process involved in making the new Jefferson nickel, a mint official explains it takes about three weeks to make a master die. But his ideals, he should have added, live forever.

THIEF SMASHES OUT
By United Press
LAWTON, Okla.—A broken inside lock on the rear door of a burglarized Lawton grocery puzzled officers. Finally they concluded that the thief had hidden among the store merchandise and had been locked in at closing time. He had to smash the lock to get out. Seven dollars in pennies were in his loot.

Will Hayes Urges Movie Industry To Take More Ads In Newspapers

Every kind of business must step up its advertising as quickly as possible to take the country out of the recession, Will H. Hayes, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, told the third annual awards luncheon of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers in New York.

Mr. Hayes called upon the motion picture industry to do its part by advancing its advertising campaigns.

"We need more, not less, advertising," he said, adding that "newspaper advertising is essential to this end."

"You who direct motion picture advertising richly deserve the appreciation and congratulations not only of the industry, but of all who are interested in the improvement of the screen," he said.

"It has been said that business, like a wheelbarrow, does not get anywhere unless it is pushed. Advertising is the pusher."

"Much is being done by business and by government to bring us out of this recession. It is neces-

As Floods Struck West Texas

This was a typical scene in West Texas as the San Saba river roared out its banks after torrential rains to drive more than 500 persons from their homes and do upward of $300,000 property damage. An almost completely submerged farmhouse is shown in the river's grip near San Saba, Texas. Many were rescued from house-tops.

seven innings and also knocked them out of their undisputed position at the top of the standing column.

The defeat of Hanlon left them in a tie with TeePee for first position, both teams having lost two games.

Three hits were registered by each team and one error was marked up against Hanlon. Bill Ramsey did the tossing for Carbon and Puryear, Hanlon's ace twirler, was on the rubber for the Oilers. Not a man on either team got a free trip to third by the walk route.

To make the game even more exciting the lone tally was registered in the last of the seventh, after six and a half innings of scoreless and flawless ball.

Speer, Carbon center fielder got a single to start the seventh and Williams at short muffed Shirey's grounder to give both men a lift.

Speer stopping at third, Wilson came through with another single and scored Speer, though Shirey was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second base. The out was useless, however, as the game was automatically over when Speer scored.

In the first game of the evening Hanlon defeated Elks by a score of 11 to 3. Both games were seven innings because of the double bill.

Simple Method of Increasing Quail Is Worked Out

AUSTIN, July 28.—A method so simple that it scarcely seems worth writing about has been found to be one of the most effective means of restoring bobwhite and quail in depopulated ranges, the game department announced today.

It is the establishment of fenced areas which offer the birds abundant food and cover in which to build their nests and hide from their enemies.

As described in a bulletin by Valgene W. Lehmann, field biologist, and just published by the game department, the plots should be about a half-acre in size and properly planted so they will be well-stocked with food. They may be square or rectangular in shape.

"There are many quail ranges in Texas that produce few quail because they are overgrazed by cattle, sheep and goats, or cultivated so intensely that little food or cover is left for the birds," Lehmann writes.

He added that experiments with the fenced shelters had been made in Wharton county. They did not interfere with normal farm and ranch operations, and resulted in an increase of the quail population. Fourteen of the 16 plots established, he said, held coveys of quail the following fall and winter.

In some instances the shelters were located on the open prairie fully two miles from territory where quail had been known to winter before, and Lehmann found they attracted and held coveys.

The fenced shelters, Lehmann found, can be established at little cost, and can be made to produce quick results.

Two types of shelters are recommended, one for regions having native cover and the other for regions where no native cover is present and must be created artificially by brush piles. Crops found, can be established at little cost, and can be made to produce quick results.

Hurricanes to Be Studied By Means Of Small Balloons

WASHINGTON.—The weather bureau asks public cooperation in its 1938 program for determining what goes on in the air during a hurricane. Into the area of the United States most likely to be hit by violent tropical storms the bureau has sent 210 automatic weather recorders—"meteorographs"—to be released on balloons inflated with hydrogen or helium when—and if—a hurricane passes over one or more of seven of its stations—at Raleigh, N. C., Columbia, S. C.; Macon, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Meridian, Miss.; and Houston, Texas.

The meteorograph's tiny penpoints, moving in response to changes in pressure, temperature and humidity, record these changes on a small plate of smoked glass as the instrument rises from 10 to 20 miles above the earth.

When the carrier balloon bursts the meteorograph, with its record, drops down to the ground, its fall eased by the framework around it—three 4-foot bamboo sticks crossed at right angles. People living in or near the path of a hurricane can help the bureau's hurricane study by keeping an

H. W. Cook Named As Wabash Agent

Appointment of H. W. Cook as general agent freight department for the Wabash Railway Company in the Dallas territory, succeeding C. M. Brown, has been announced.

Cook started his railroad service eye out for fallen meteorographs, which are easily recognized by their bamboo frames with strips of red cloth attached to make them more conspicuous.

The bureau pays three dollars for the return of each instrument as directed on a tag tied to the case.

as a stenographer with the Texas & Pacific Railroad in Dallas. Subsequently he served in like capacity with both the Santa Fe and Frisco, later becoming chief clerk in the Kansas, Oklahoma & Gulf office, and in 1921 joined the Wabash as chief clerk. Since 1923 he has been traveling freight agent in the Dallas territory.

Brown, with 48 years of continuous railroad service, is, at his own request, being relieved of active duty and responsibility pending his retirement under the Railroad Retirement Act on January 1 next. In the meantime Brown remains with the company as special traffic representative.

Jack P. Jacobson, the present chief clerk in the office is being promoted to traveling freight agent, succeeding Cook.

Clarke Motor Co. To Have Open House

W. H. Clarke, proprietor of the Clark Radiator and Body Works, has been appointed exclusive agent for the Chrysler and Plymouth Automobiles for Ranger. Tonight at 8 o'clock at their new location on Main and Marston streets the new models will be shown and a party is being given by Clarke in which all Ranger is invited to participate. Clark says that he is changing the name of his Radiator & Body Works to Clarke Motor Co.

The public is given an invitation to be on hand tonight at 8 to see his new place of business as well as the new automobiles.

SERIAL STORY MYSTERY AT THE LAZY R BY CLARKE NEWLON

Copyright, 1938 NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS NIKKI JEROME, a 20-year-old blond, popular, is engaged to Steve...

Yesterday, death is narrowly averted on the trail when Sarto's horse plunges into Fiske's, Steve saves the day.

CHAPTER VIII

UNCLE JIM strode over to where Sarto still sat astride his trembling, frightened horse. "What in burnin' blue blazes did you do to that horse?" he almost shouted, his voice blurring with anger.

"Did you kick him or hit him back there? What made him jump like that? Mister, he's been riding this trail for years and he never done nothin' like that before."

"How do you get that way?" He was snarling. "Who do you think you're talkin' to? I don't know anything about horses. How should I know what happened?" Uncle Jim examined the girls.

Bancroft's quiet, purring voice broke in. "Mr. Sarto isn't accustomed to horses and mountain trails," he said. "Perhaps I shouldn't have insisted that he come along."

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

"Maybe I was a little hasty," apologized Uncle Jim, but he reformed the line and put Sarto just behind Rance, Bancroft next and the others trailed them.

JUST before dark they reached the cabin where it squatted among the trees at the edge of the timberline on a plateaued ridge of Squaw Mountain.

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

cooking was done outside over an open campfire and the hunters squatted around this same fire on their heels to eat from tin plates and to drink coffee from tin cups which unquestionably were hotter than anything else ever devised.

Within a few minutes of their arrival Woody had a big fire going. A few minutes later the satisfactory hissing of searing steaks accompanied the mysterious night sounds of the mountains that always begin the moment the sun has set.

"Steve dear, please be careful. I'm going to tell you about Bancroft and Dad and all just as soon as we get a minute alone. But will you please be careful in the mean time? And don't get into any trouble with Bancroft, or Sarto, either. Will you promise?"

"Sure. But nothing's going to happen to me. How about a little promising on your account?" "I'm all right," she assured him. "Except that I'm getting a little bit scared."

"Scared of what? You're not letting that little accident this afternoon frighten you? Wait a minute. You don't think Sarto deliberately tried to push Fiske off the trail?"

"I don't know, but that's why I want you to be careful. I can't tell you any more. Here comes Rance."

"WELL," said Rance. "How'd you stand the trip? Feel any the worse for your dive this afternoon, Steve?"

"Not a bit. Feeling fine." "That's good." A frown wrinkled Rance's forehead. "I can't understand how it could have happened. We've brought 20 parties up here and that's the first accident. I know that equipment was all right. I saddled Sarto's horse myself this morning."

"Rance is grand," defended Nikki. Steve laughed. "Sure he is honey. I didn't mean anything against him. I like the big towhead."

Just then Woody called and they went over to get their plates and cups and have them filled. They ate hugely and after their camp supper sat quietly over cigarettes.

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

"I didn't intend that anything like this should happen. I think he will get along better when we get to the camp."

and watched the eddying flames as the night wind explored the embers.

Nikki rose from her cross-legged position and walked slowly past the edge of the clearing and out of the light cast by the fire thinking Steve would see and follow. But he was busy engaged with Woody in a discussion over whether a deer or an antelope was the most difficult to hunt.

"You look lonely out here." "I wasn't," said Nikki. Bancroft stepped nearer. "I've never seen anyone as beautiful as you are tonight. I don't usually tell women they're beautiful. If they are, they know it. But you're different. Do you know what I think about you?"

"I know what I think," said Nikki. "I think we'll go back to the others."

"Not yet," said Bancroft. "We won't go back until I tell you something. I'm going to see you when we get back to New York. I'm going to see you plenty. And maybe you won't be so sorry to see me, either."

"You know I'm engaged to Steve Mallory," said Nikki, wishing his voice didn't make her shudder inside. "What makes you think I would be glad to see you?"

"You asked me the other day if I knew your father. Maybe I do know him. And maybe he knows me—pretty well. Maybe he'll be glad to have you going out with me." He took another step closer and one hand rested on her shoulder. Nikki felt paralyzed.

"Listen, baby. The things we couldn't do to New York, you and me. The things—"

THERE was a loud crackling as a clumsy foot trod on a fallen dead branch. Bancroft drew back as Sarto burst full upon them. He stopped and stared, open mouthed. He started to say something when Bancroft beat him to it.

"You blundering, meddling fool. What are you doing here? Why don't you stay where you belong? I ought to break your neck for what you did this afternoon. Now you come stumbling out here. You fool!"

Lashing himself into blind anger with his own words, Bancroft struck out furiously. His fist caught the smaller man on the side of the chin and he fell stumblingly backward. Bancroft stood over him a moment, rubbing the knuckles of his right hand, his hand breathing audibly.

Nikki fled back to the campfire. (To Be Continued)

WASHINGTON.—The Italians, following the lead of German Nazis, are now declaring that they are of the Aryan race and that Jews are not.

THE huge United Automobile Workers' union, threatened with disintegration by long and bitter factional strife among its leaders, is suffering mostly from the fact that it has failed to produce a leader of sufficient size and ability to weld the union together and command it.

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT, youthful radio magnate in Fort Worth, Tex., who endorsed Congressman Fritz Lanham for re-nomination after the President pointedly had failed to refer to Fritz as "my friend," is no pet of the New Dealers who surround his father.

Not so much because of the Lanham incident as because of Elliott's commercial broadcasts, which have been reported critical of administration policies. He was indicted on a charge in his 15-minute commercial broadcast which preceded the President's Texas radio speech.

O. G. Lanier, Jr., Celebrates His Eighth Birthday
O. G. Lanier, Jr., celebrated his eighth birthday with a party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Lanier, Sinclair avenue, from 5 to 8 o'clock Thursday evening.

He greeted the guests at the door and received the lovely gifts presented him. From here they went to the lawn and played games, after which refreshments were served in the dining room. The table was laid with a white hand-made crocheted cloth over pink. The birthday cake was iced with white icing and decorated with pink candles carrying out the color scheme of pink and white. Candy and multicolored balloons were used as favors. The house was decorated with garden flowers.

Those present were Nancy Lee Barnett, Dicky Sue Barnett, Patsy Williams, Neil Williams, Dorothy George, Harold Green and Sharon Head.

Mrs. Fay Fox of Montgomery Ward Company Wins Prize

Mrs. Fay Fox of Montgomery Ward company won a prize for having the largest increase over her quota for the past three months. It was a certificate of award signed by the president of the company with headquarters in Chicago. The certificate was framed and a gold emblem to wear was sent with it.

Of the five hundred stores only eighty employees received a similar award. This was the first time an award had been won by an employee of the local store.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Williams are leaving today for Clovis, N. M., after spending two weeks in Ranger with relatives and friends. Mr. Williams is associated with F. W. Woolworth Co. Miss Norma Jean Rose and Miss Tommy Strong will accompany them back to Clovis and spend the week-end.

Ivo Novakovich of Oklahoma City will arrive in Ranger this afternoon for a week's vacation with his mother, Mrs. N. J. Novakovich of 311 Walnut street. From here he will continue his vacation to Denver, Colo., then to Carlsbad, N. M., where his family will join him.

Mrs. W. S. Adamson of Eastland visited in Ranger today.

Mrs. Saunders Gregg and son, Lewis, and Mrs. John Thurman, have returned from Las Vegas, N. M., where they have been on a trip to the mountains near there. While on an outing Mrs. Thurman had the misfortune to trip and fall breaking an arm. She was taken into the Las Vegas hospital where she spent the night and received medical attention.

Jack Palmer underwent surgery at the West Texas hospital this morning for appendicitis. He is resting well.

Mrs. W. A. Hotman of Fort Worth is spending the day with her sister, Mrs. Blanche Murray, 912 Strawn road. Her son, and wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hotman of Breckenridge, will meet her here, bringing their son, Bill, with them, who will go to Fort Worth with his grandmother for a visit.

Officials Find Texas Roads Are Becoming Safer

Texas streets and highways are definitely safer for the motoring public as shown by a steady decline in fatal traffic collisions, state police at Austin reported to county authorities.

Final tabulations of casualties in June revealed that 115 persons were killed in 1,026 accidents, a saving of 44 lives if compared with June, 1937, a total saving of 130 lives during the first half of 1938 compared with the same period last year. There was a sharp drop in the number of crashes recorded in June compared with 1,417 reported in that month last year, when Texas' final death toll reached the unprecedented high mark of 2,043 fatalities.

A selective enforcement program—the placing of state patrolmen at strategic points where surveys show the largest number of fatal collisions taking place—which was put into effect recently, is the reason for the diminishing death rate, safety officials believe. With 300 mounted officers patrolling death stretches of highways there are authoritative predictions that Texas will rank as a safe state of the nation by the end of the year.

Encouraging to the recorders was the continued decrease in the number of pedestrians who met death under the wheels of vehicles, in most instances when pedestrians crossed streets at places other than intersections. The pedestrian death toll has steadily declined from 40 in January to 21 in June. The fatal smash-ups involving bicycle riders brought a sharp warning from Captain Homer Garrison, Jr., assistant state police director, who pointed to the four death crashes of this type last month as examples of carelessness.

ness. He urged that riders of cycles carry lights and abide by traffic regulations that guide motorists. In addition to the four deaths there were 27 bicycle riders severely injured in collisions.

An analysis to determine the primary causes of 1,026 of the fatal and more serious crashes in June revealed that 99 involved drivers and pedestrians who had been drinking, 94 drivers ignored laws governing right-of-way, and 78 were driving too near the center of highways or on the wrong side. Speed ranked fourth as the principal contributing cause in 72 of the 1,026 collisions.

Regarding the 1938 traffic situation, Col. H. H. Carmichael, director of the safety department, commented: "In urging Texans to bring to their state a national record for traffic safety, we would like for every driver to take personal inventory of his driving faults, and correct them. None of us are perfect drivers, so there is an urgent need for individual responsibility." Police can prevent many collisions but too often they have to assist at inquests over dead traffic victims—all unnecessarily killed."

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to thank each and every one of our friends for their kindness and sympathy in our hour of sadness in the death of our son and brother, Frank O'Neal. May God bless you all.
MR. AND MRS. DAVID O'NEAL AND FAMILY
