PROGRAM IS OUTLINED
FOR OPENING FRIDAY
OF KOKOMO CLUBHOUSE

Extension service officials Wednesday announced an outline has been prepared for the official opening of the Kokomo 4-H clubhouse Friday.

State-wide interest in the opening of the clubhouse, described as the first ever built in Texas
through National Youth Administration auspices, is reflected in the acceptance of many officials to the formal opening.

Members of the program committee are Mr. and Mrs. L. R.
Higginbotham, Mary Norris and Neil Eaves, all of Kokomo. The clubhouse is valued at $1,800. It is 22 feet wide, 35 feet long, and inside dimensions are 20 by 30 feet. Rock for the building was quarried from hills near Kokomo, and native timber used in the house was sawed by a mill owned by the Agricultural and Mechanical college of College Station.

Various companies over the state have contributed to beautifying the interior. The clubhouse has a rock floor. A fireplace is a feature in the inside of the clubhouse.

Lunch will be on a National Youth Administration park and grounds of the community. The park has two barbecue pits, four small furnaces, one large U-shaped table, smaller tables and benches.

Officials and others who have been invited, several of whom ac-

Cotton Council
Launches Work

By United Press
MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Cotton men who formed a national council to get the industry out of the red, develop new uses and expand the domestic and world markets, have outlined five objectives:

Find proper and greater markets for cotton.

Maintain research activities for new uses.

Obtain favorable legislation.

Advertise extensively the known uses of cotton.

Increase foreign cotton shipments.

At an organization meeting in June, which was attended by several hundred farmers and traders
from seven southern states, Oscar Johnston, Mississippi delta planter, was elected president of the National Cotton Council.

First Unified Group
In accepting the post, Johnston pointed out that previously there had been no group to speak for the industry in obtaining legislation and working for new markets and uses.

"There is no one in Washington accredited and authorized to speak for cotton," Johnston said.
"There has been no concentration of effort in behalf of cotton producers. When legislation affecting them comes up in congress, legislators have no one to consult to get the real views of the producers."

Johnston said the council would perform that function. The organization, he said, will have national headquarters in Washington, state organizations in cotton-producing sections, county subdivisions and community groups.

Not Confined to Legislation
"When we do this we will have the voice that we need so badly
not only in legislation but in other affairs. The voice of cotton has been as soft as its lint and as low as its price. We must speak through a megaphone if we are to be heard."

Johnston is former head of the cotton division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

He said lack of foreign markets
was the most serious problem facing cotton farmers and added that the crop would stage a comeback
"only through the development of reciprocal trade relations by which consumers of each nation may freely trade upon an economically sound basis."

The cotton council, he said,
will serve as the voice of the cotton farmers. It will urge congress to continue the reciprocal trade policy and will oppose tariff walls
"which thwart trade."

RUSSIA WINS
BIG VICTORY
FROM JAPAN

By United Press
MOSCOW, Russia, Aug. 10.—
Japanese forces suffered "great losses" in a battle over a hill on the Siberian frontier, according to an army communique tonight.

By United Press
Japan and Soviet Russia hammered at each other within arms
length of a major undeclared war
today on the Steerian frontier.

Renewed fighting, reported from the disputed border sector of Changkufeng would be real warfare almost anywhere in the world except the remote Manchukuo-Siberian border, and an 11-
hour battle ending at dawn brought additional military forces in apparent preparation for a greater conflict.

There was still hope, almost determination, in Tokyo, that the conflict would be settled peaceably.

All night long Soviet artillery
showered the Japanese lines with high explosives and got a similar response from Japanese guns. Two battalions of Russian troops attached the Japanese lines on Changkufeng hill and were repulsed, according to the Japanese.

Meanwhile, on other fighting
fronts:

China: Japanese apparently putting fresh troops into the offensive against Hankow, sought to speed up the war. Chinese continued stiff resistance about 100 miles from Hankow.

Spain: Loyalist forces cut the main highway between Balaguer
and Lerida in a surprise offensive which threatened nationalist communications along the western Catalonian border.

Czechoslovakia: Many thousands of Sudeten Germans planned
a "martyr's funeral" for Wenzel Bayerle, slain in a political argument yesterday.

Moscow: The new supreme Soviet began its second session in a militant atmosphere, sharpened
by fresh attacks on Japan. Delegates of the eleven union republics were warned by the official newspaper "to keep Russia's powder dry."

Let Crystal-Gazers Keep Their Fingers Crossed

One of the big features of the coming World's Fair in New York is to be an exhibit called "The World of Tomorrow." Here the eager citizen will be able to lift the veil of the future and have a gander at his land as it may look when all the troubles and imperfections of the present day have been straightened out.

Probably it will be very popular. In a land which supports uncounted fortune tellers, astrologers and other seers, a full dress glimpse into tomorrow's world ought to do a landoffice business.

Yet this is a chancy time for the human race to be indulging in prophecies. For while it is quite true that tomorrow's world ought to be a fine and dazzling place, what with all the inventions, plans and gadgets which are going to be available, it looks more and more like an open question whether the race is going to get down to tomorrow in any kind of shape to enjoy these marvels.

From Europe comes news, for instance, of a new kind of demolition bomb, which is being dropped on divers Spanish towns with great success. It has a long spike at its nose; when it hits the ground it hits spike-first, and explodes before it gets below the surface of the earth. As a result, instead of making a big hole in the ground it blows down every house, tree, fence and human being within a wide radius, and so is far more destructive than the old type of bomb.

Now when you stop to think that every great nation on earth will presently be equipping itself with such bombs in carload lots, that planes to carry them farther and faster than ever before are coming off the production lines in dizzying numbers, and that the will to use the things steadily mounting, you can see that this race of ours might very well keep its fingers crossed when it does any looking to the future.

The plain fact of the matter is that our path to the future is darkly clouded by our own folly. We can make a very glittering and fancy world for ourselves in a comparatively short time, if we can just manage to keep from annihilating ourselves while we are doing it; but we seem to be developing our destructive instincts faster than our constructive instincts, and if we once start turning those spike-nosed bombs loose in real earnest this "world of tomorrow" is not going to be anything anyone would pay good money to have a look at.

There is not really any need to be too pessimistic—for the remedy, after all, lies in our own hands. But there is a great deal of need to look all of the facts in the face, and to admit that tomorrow's world is apt to be a sorry place unless we really get down to the job of intelligently planning for it.

Sneezing Season Comes On... And, Per Usual, Little's Done to De-Kerchoo Gentle Zep

By NEA Service
HAY-FEVERISHLY counting the days until August 15, "official" opening of the hay-fever season, millions of victims are turning streaming eyes toward their city fathers and saying sternly, between sneezes, "What are you going to do about the weeds?"

Unfortunately, in many cities weeds are still in the class with weather, about which everybody talks, nobody does anything. The American Public Works Association queried 83 cities. Of these, 37 replied that their street-cleaning departments, being least busy at this time of year, were charged with weed removal. The remaining 46 reported that the job was up to the health department, or other city agency, or nobody.

The cost of removing the sneezemakers is in most cities met from general funds. Only a few levy a special assessment for cutting weeds. Some serve notice on owners of unimproved lots that they'd better cut their weeds. A few even do something about it if the property-owner fails to come through.

The hay-fever vote has never been well enough organized to move the administration to action in most cities, and the Public Works Association finds great unevenness in the effectiveness with which the job is done. Too often the job is so loosely assigned to health, street, or public works departments it becomes "nobody's job," the association reports.

As August 15 nears, the cry rises from every corner of the country that "something ought to be—aa-a-n-a-choo!—done about it!"

It's evident that the breezes are wafting their first bits of rod and ragweed... and the first agonizing sneeze Ira Collins, above, of Lima, O., and millions of others are being across the land.

Two medium oranges, 1 lemon, 3 dozen fresh peaches, sugar.
Cut unpeeled lemon and oranges in pieces and put through food grinder. Peel and slice peaches. Combine fruit. Measure and add an equal amount of sugar. Place in a shallow pan and bake 2 hours in slow oven (300 degrees F.). Stir occasionally. Cooking time may be shortened somewhat by making this jam on top of stove in preserving kettle. Cook slowly and stir frequently to prevent scorching. Cook to jam consistency. Turn into jars and seal.

Four pounds ripe apricots, 3 oranges, 1 lemon, water, sugar.
Grind or shred very fine the unpeeled oranges and lemon. Measure and add 6 times as much water as fruit. Boil in uncovered kettle 1 hour or until reduced about one-half. Add apricots, which have been peeled and cut up halves. Cook until of jam con-

Best Children Appear To Be In Model Nursery School In Ranger

the happiest, best fed, and usually the most active group in Ranger is composed of 47 children between the ages of 3 and 6 who attend the nursery school sponsored by the Child Welfare club and Progress Administration. Edna Moad is supervisor.

At 9 o'clock they are given their morning cereal and then play outdoors until 10 o'clock. At 10:15 they are given tomato juice or orange juice and at 10:30 they have a period of indoor play, followed by a shower.

At 11:20 they prepare for lunch, washing their hands and faces and at 11:30 they have a period for music and stories. 11:45 to 12 noon is a period of relaxation and at 12 o'clock they eat again.

The menu for Wednesday's lunch consisted of salmon salad, baked potato, buttered English peas, milk, whole wheat toast and butterscotch ice cream.

After the lunch the children prepare for bed, and from 12:30 to 2:30 they sleep. On awakening they dress in their own clothes, hang their play suits on its proper rail, which is labelled with a picture so they can find the place for their clothes, and are then ready for an afternoon lunch, consisting of milk and graham crackers.

By 2:30, after a full day, they are dismissed and start back to their homes.

Once each month the children are weighed and the weights checked with those of a month before.

fore. "The doctors of the city have been very considerate in aiding us in checking the health of the children," Miss Moad stated Wednesday. "All the children have been given diphtheria serum and have been given treatment whenever necessary."

Miss Moad stated that the children were unusually clean when they reported to the school and that the health of the group had been unusually good.

"There is a need for toys, though," she said. If anyone has any discarded toys that they can play with we would appreciate getting them. The only toys they have now are some of the firemen made and a few blocks.

But they seem to be very happy as they play with what toys they have and the only quiet period is when they are all asleep.

"Do they ever fight?" Miss Moad was asked.

"Occasionally," she answered. "In fact I believe that is one starting now," she continued as the noise in the playroom increased.

"I really think this is the most worth while project on the whole WPA program," Miss Moad said as she concluded the interview. "and I believe if any one would spend a little time visiting the nursery they would agree with me."

Youths Can Get Part-Time Work to Aid In Education

AUSTIN.—Boys and girls who cannot otherwise continue their education in high school or college will be provided with an opportunity to earn a part of their expenses on NYA jobs during the 1938-39 academic year, J. C. Kellam, state director of the National Youth Administration, announced.

Students desiring to earn a part of their expenses on NYA jobs should communicate with the head of the institution they wish to attend, in order that their eligibility for the jobs may be determined. To be eligible, a student must be 16 but not yet 25 years old and must furnish evidence to the satisfaction of officials of the institution that he cannot enter or remain in school without this assistance. He must be of good character, and must be able to do good school work in at least three-fourths of the normal curriculum of the institution.

Mr. Kellam said that quotas for Texas colleges and universities held part-time jobs under the NYA student aid program, their earnings enabling them to buy lunches, pay for their board, buy books, or clothing, or pay tuition, according to their individual needs, Mr. Kellam said.

Mr. Kellam has been advised that a federal allotment of $1,038,915 has been made for Texas students who want to work their way through school, this representing a 20 per cent increase over the quota allotted to the state last year.

of 9.3 per cent of the enrollment of full-time students between 16 and 24 years of age on Oct. 1, 1936, and that each college will be furnished appropriate application blanks just as soon as the blanks are available.

The quota for each participating secondary school will be determined by the state youth director on a basis of youth need and availability of school facilities. The director will be assisted by recommendations of the county school superintendent and an advisory committee of local school officials in each county.

Students employed part-time under the college aid program may earn an average wage of $15 a month while students working under the school aid program may earn a wage not exceeding $6 a month.

During the last school year more than 17,300 Texas students held part-time jobs under the NYA student aid program, their earnings enabling them to buy lunches, pay for their board, buy books, or clothing, or pay tuition, according to their individual needs, Mr. Kellam said.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Rambling With The Rambler

BY WAYNE WALLACE

Many doctrines are being propagated today, fallacious in the extreme, that are becoming accepted in their entirety as dogmas of truth by the people of the world in general. It is easy for us to see this tendency towards false teachings in our foreign neighbors, but for the most part, we are blind to their existence in this country. Never-the-less, they are flooding these United States. Most of them are pronounced as modernism and anyone who does not accept them are told they are not up to date and apt to fall out of the social swing. The effect of this is really startling and has played a leading part in bringing about the condition the world is in today.

It is often difficult to distinguish just how pernicious such doctrines are since the truth is so interwoven with the false that they all seem reasonable for the most part. It is only after a careful study has been made of them that we can arrive at a conclusion as to their deceptiveness. Any extreme radicalism may be branded as unsound. Staying in the middle always offers the safest course to follow.

Without doubt any sect or group of people who teach that everybody and everything is out of step but themselves can hardly be right. They are the type who destroy and tear down without offering anything but empty promises in return. Past history proves that they are hardly conducive towards better government. They offer unrest and disorder for peace and tranquility. Bloodshed follows in their wake.

On the surface of things it seems hard to understand how people allow themselves to be so easily fooled. Nor are the victims always people who have had little opportunity of an education; often as not they are well educated men and women. Yet the promise of some future Utopia, the glittering appeal of untold wealth, the obvious desire to be ultra modern has a tendency to throw most of us off balance. All these things appeal to our emotions. We want them so badly as to allow our reason to become stifled and suppressed. And those who advocate such radical changes never once mention the suffering and misery such changes inevitably produce. Even when some such change seems necessary; a chaotic condition always follows. History proves as much.

No government has ever been conceived by man that was cap-

Things Don't Seem to Have Improved Much

able of satisfying his ever wish end desire. And it is safe to say that no such government ever will be. Man is a creature subject to trial and error in his process of reasoning and thus the products of his mind must of necessity fall short of perfection. A thing can never be greater than its creator. Yet with all, when any government is based on a solid foundation, one that does not conflict with the underlying principles of man's nature, such as freedom, the right to live, etc., then when such a government slips into error, would it not be better to correct the fault rather than abolish the entire system? One of the greatest mistakes made today is the belief that education means safety. Yet a little consideration on our part will show that it means graver responsibilities. Certainly the proper kind of education should go a long way in abolishing crime, wars and other evil inclinations of man, but just because we know a thing is wrong does not mean that we will not do it. Some of our most brilliant men are criminals; in fact there are many of them outside prison walls today simply because they are smart men. Frequently it is men such as these who are at the head of organizations devised to overthrow existing government, not because such men believe their theories are right but because they see in it a means of acquiring wealth and power for themselves. And we cannot say that they are not smart because they do have intelligence enough to put their ideas across. We may censure and revile them, but we cannot in justice say they are stupid.

Also, it is well to note that ideas which appeal to and inflame the imagination, go a long way in covering up the lack of truth contained in them. The most notable example of this is propaganda during time of war, but there are other examples as silly and absurd. I am reminded of an example that occurred within the past two years. A student in one of the prominent universities in the East conceived the idea that all men in danger of being drafted in a war should receive their bonus money before going to war in order that they might spend it before they were killed. The suggestion met with instant popularity and was published in the majority of newspapers in this country. In fact, the students became so serious about it that they sent a representative to Washington to have Congress enact it as a law. Since man does not know the time of his death he could hardly guarantee that he would be alive to take part in one such war, even though he was already paid for his services. Without such a guarantee such a contract would be a big risk for any government. Of course, the whole thing was absurd, and shortly after its popularity lessened, was forgotten. Most stupid ideas come to this end, but frequently only after severe damage has been done.

"The Dressing Room was exquisitely neat and clean"

The cleanliness of the ladies' restrooms in Humble Service Stations is proverbial throughout Texas. Service check cards commenting on this are received from every part of the state—north, south, east and west. But let Humble customers tell the story.

A gentleman writes, My wife always insists on stopping at the Humble stations. Cleanest restroom of all, says a lady. Nicest on a 3,000 mile trip, comments another. A public health nurse says, This is the most sanitary. Neatest, cleanest and best equipped restroom . . . in 11 states, writes another woman customer.

We could fill this page with similar comments from customers who have discovered for themselves that Humble Service Stations are designed, equipped and maintained to make travel by automobile more comfortable. See for yourself. Next time—stop for service where you see the Humble sign!

DO YOU KNOW— that the oil royalties paid to Texas farmers a little exceeds the total of taxes and mortgage interest paid by all the farmers in the State?

Service check cards for the voluntary comments of Humble customers are available at all Humble Service Stations. Literally thousands of them are received by the Humble Company each year. They tell their own story of Humble service and Humble products . . . The names of the writers of the cards quoted in this advertisement will be furnished any interested inquirer on request.

Mr. Kenworthy gazed accusingly at Kinks, then back to Sally.
"He can't do that," he declared.
"Not unless you agree. Such are the terms of the will. Nothing can be done without the mutual consent of both beneficiaries."

KINKS whistled. Six hundred dollars? In his present unemployed state $600 seemed like a fortune.
"Who holds this mortgage?" he inquired.
"Mr. Kenworthy made a grimace of distaste.
"Who might as well say that old Spencer Ames does," he said.

elderly man. By his side was an ample and imperious female of advancing years. And the back of the car was literally crawling with suitcases, boxes and namper of all descriptions.
The imperious lady beckoned Kinks. Obviously she mistook him for some of the village talent.
"Young man," she said, "can you direct me to a quiet, inexpensive hotel?"

"Hotel, Madam?" said Kinks politely.
"I said 'hotel,' young man," declared the imperious lady. "And, mind you, it must be quiet. Papa, here"—she indicated the mouse-like man—"has been ill. We started on a motor trip, but it's too much for him. We've decided to put up somewhere and rest."
"Why, I don't know . . ." said Kinks.
"There aren't any hotels around here," Sally cut in.

Case of Nerves Is Result of Pranks

NILES, O.—Charles Ramsey can "take it" when he is the victim of one or two practical jokes, but a never-ending series of pranks is wearing him down.

Ramsey has been suffering from nearly the whole bag of tricks of a practical joker. The perpetrators of the jokes are unknown to Ramsey.

Here is a partial list of Ramsey's troubles: A multitude of florists' delivery men have brought him flowers which he never ordered.

More than a hundred people have entered his store and said that they had received cards in the mail notifying them to appear at his store and collect a $25 prize.

Out-of-town contractors have traveled miles to submit bids to Ramsey. The bids have been on projects that Ramsey never had any idea of undertaking. Furthermore, he never wrote to the contractors about any other projects.

Police are checking the cards and all of the victim's phone calls.

It's the little humble things that make a house a HOME

THOSE careless marks of his baby fingers ... could any one buy them from you now? The knee-high smudges on the door! The pencil scratches on the wall that showed his growth from two to a little man of six! The nicked nursery bed where you two watched for hours one night until a sprawled, feverish form slipped into healing slumber!

Yes, a home is seasoned with smiles and tears, mellowed by memories and flavored with hopes. Each room has well-loved articles that have grown dearer with the years. And there are new things that you are working and planning for. It may be an occasional table for the living-room. New drapes for the breakfast nook. A summer rug. Porch and lawn furniture.

The advertisements in this newspaper bring you news of furnishings to freshen your home. Study them and save shopping steps and budget dollars. They will help you add to the gracious charm of your home ... that little world which is your very own!
