Matchsticks, Cotton, Pans, Gas, and Belts

Japan's matches are going to be shorter, hereafter—shorter by exactly 29 one-thousandths of an inch. Furthermore, Japanese housewives are going to have to get along without iron frying pans; cotton clothing will no longer be on sale, and Japanese motorists will be able to buy no more than two gallons of gasoline a day.

These odd little items are part of a new win-the-war drive. Japan gets most of her raw materials from abroad, and subduing the wily Chinaman leaves little cash for outside purchases. So the pennies have to be pinched. Shortening the matchsticks, for instance, will mean a saving of some $290,000 a year.

All of this comes under the general heading of tightening one's belt.

That's an easy phrase to use—tightening the belt. It creates a not-unpleasant vision of a dauntless athlete settling down to a long cross-country race. What we don't see, until we stop to think about it, is the great mass of patient, uncomplaining people enduring discomforts and major privations, putting up with a lower standard of living, permitting themselves to be shut off from the good things of life.

Yet that is precisely what it does mean. It is a part of war, of the "drive for empire" that ambitious nations indulge in.

During the last 20 years men have come to accept the idea that any one nation can prosper only at the expense of its neighbors. It must have raw materials, colonies, room for expansion, trade outlets, markets; it can get them only by taking them from someone else. Consequently its people must make great sacrifices in preparation for the struggle—at the end of which, of course, they will be rewarded by an abundance of the good things they have had to go without.

This theory might make sense if the good things of this world were strictly limited. But they aren't.

As a matter of fact, they are embarrassing by their abundance. The world burns coffee, grain, and other food-stuffs, shuts down mines, lets factories lie idle, limits the production of its fields and its forests—and then doggedly goes ahead and "tightens its belt," does without things, and looks ahead to the day when military triumph will make these things available once more.

Some day people will look back on this present era as a time of collective lunacy. They will find it hard to believe that stories like this one out of Japan could really have been true.

But there will be plenty of wars and rumors of wars before that day comes.

Plays Double Role

Pretty Pauline Betz, above, hopes she doesn't play the role of hostess too perfectly at the National Public Courts Tennis Championships in Los Angeles, beginning Aug. 15. The reason is that she would like to win the women's singles. She became the hostess-contender in earning the right to represent her home town by winning the Los Angeles city public courts singles. More than 75 cities are sending their civic titleholders.

Taster of Soap Likes His Work

By United Press
MILWAUKEE—John Hanser has had his mouth washed with soap daily for 40 years, and he has grown to like it. Unlike youngsters who have their mouths washed when they say naughty words, Hanser puts the soap into his mouth himself and gets paid for it. Hanser is a soap taster by profession. He tastes it to determine its alkali and fat content. Along with three other men who work at "freak" jobs, he told of his work at a Kiwanis club meeting. "You can get a taste for soap just as you can for spinach or anything else," Hanser said. "It's always fun to blow bubbles." John Gaar showed the Kiwanians how to be a human worm. With a special "gun," he explained, he makes worm holes in manufactured "antiques." Lionel Sorrell, 21, spends about six months of every year roller skating for a living. Each work day from May to early November he dons skates about once an hour for a short "spin." His job is testing roller skates for a firm which manufactures them here. He says he averages about 1,000 miles of skating each season. The job makes him a little "seasick" and jittery from dodging automobiles, he admitted. Joseph Egerer said he had blasted the old theory of success. He told the Kiwanians he had begun at the top about 21 years ago and has been working downward ever since. He is a well digger.

Play Spot Entrepreneur Makes Bonanza of Back

Jimmy Fede, Newark, N. J., had shown ministering to several of his younger patrons, is coming these days as a playground proprietor. Jimmy charges his 25 customers 10 cents each for the play in his back yard, and throws in a snack of hot corn, bologna and cheese sandwiches. No roughhouse stuff goes in Jimmy's resort (his ma frowns on it), so he teaches the boys to make the girls bring their sewing. Jimmy says rising food costs may force him to increase to 15 cents, in which case he will add meat balls and spaghetti to the menu.

CHAPTER IV

ALLY PENNINGTON gaped at him. Fortunately she was too dumfounded for speech just at that moment. The elderly woman and Kinks, who was feeling as if she must have felt on the opposite bank of the Rubicon.

"The Pennington-Parker Restaurant," she repeated. "I never heard of it."

"No," said Kinks. "You couldn't know. It—it only opened today. It'll be the first—ah—pairons."

The old gentleman behind the desk spoke for the first time.

"It wouldn't do any harm to have a look at the place, Mother," said Kinks.

"Now, Papa," said the woman, a hush-hush tone. Then she addressed Kinks again: "What are your rates?"

"Six dollars per day," flashed Ally.

The woman in the car took time to think for a moment.

"Very well," she said, at length. "I'll take it. Kinks and I will look at the place. And I hope you have electricity."

"Mr. Harkness likes to putter with electricity," Sally told Ally.

"All right," said Mrs. Harkness. "Just follow our car," said Ally grandly.

"You've done it," said Ally, as she headed the ancient car toward Mrs. Preston's house. "What on earth possessed you?"

"I'm tired, sleep 'em and let 'em utter with the electricity. At six cents a day per person. Why, in about 50 days we'll have earned a mortgage interest. Parker's right idea saves old homestead. That do you think of that?"

"I think it's nuts," said Sally. "The mortgage is due in two weeks. And even if we did this, the money wouldn't be clear profit."

"Something else will turn up," said Kinks confidently. "Just like we Harknesses did."

MRS. PRESTON'S house was as charming inside as out, save for the presence of a superfluous mounted animal heads in the dining room. While Sally, dithered slightly, showed the bedrooms the Harknesses, Kinks inspected a collection of mounted specimens, so strangely at odds with

Mrs. Clipstack

But she was deaf as the well-known post.

"This is Mr. Parker, Mrs. Clipstack," said Sally, raising her voice.

Mrs. Clipstack put her hands on her hips and her eyes gave Kinks a thorough going over. Then she removed a hand from a hip and cupped it behind her ear.

"Eh?" she said.

"I said," shouted Sally, "this is MR. PARKER."

"What say?" said Mrs. Clipstack.

"Parker," shrilled Sally. "Tough going just here, isn't it?" murmured Kinks.

"Parker, hay?" Intelligence swept over the Clipstackian visage. "Then—then he's Mrs. Preston's nephew?"

Sally nodded.

"Well, young man," said Mrs. Clipstack severely, "I hope you ain't no improvident scapegrace like your father was."

KINKS looked blank for a second. "My father? Oh, I get it. She's heard that from my aunt. Tell her I'm not a scapegrace, will you, Sally?"

"Tell her yourself," said Sally. "My throat won't work any more."

Kinks told her at the top of his lungs. He also beamed upon her. But Mrs. Clipstack looked skeptical.

"Who broke my winder?" she demanded, at last.

Sally pointed to Kinks.

"There!" said Mrs. Clipstack, triumphantly. "I suspected it all along. He is a scapegrace."

"You'll have to square yourself with her for that window," Sally laughed, when they were back in the living room. "You can go into Winstock tomorrow, find a glazier and pay for the work, too. But right now, I've got a job for you. Out you go and bring in the Harknesses' luggage."

"Who, me?" said Kinks.

"Yes, you. What do you think you're going to do, just pose around here?"

"Okay, Mrs. Legree," said Kinks and departed.

When he returned laden with luggage Sally was at the phone in the hall. She hung up as he was crossing the living room.

"Was that somebody else inquiring our rates?" Kinks said jokingly.

"Don't be silly," said Sally. "That was Wilton Ames."

"Wilton Ames? Who the devil is Wilton Ames?"

"Oh, nobody very much," said Sally negligently. "Just the man I'm probably going to marry."

Poverty Report On Youths Is Made By a University

By United Press

MONTREAL—Malnutrition, unsanitary living conditions and irregular domestic arrangements are gravely menacing the present and future health of unemployed youth here, the McGill University department of social research reveals in a statistical study on nutrition.

The survey was made by Dr. Leonard Marsh, director of the department, in collaboration with Ivan Grant Fleming of the Faculty of Medicine and Dr. C. F. Blackler, formerly social research assistant at McGill.

The report declares that 50 per cent of the unemployed youth of Montreal is undernourished and urges a fuller investigation into the effects of poverty upon youth.

"Growing boys need adequate food if they are to maintain growth as well as vigor, while the effects of undernourishment are likely to have more serious repercussions during youth than its occurrence later in life," the report states.

"Using the same standards as for the adults, the nutritional status of 55 per cent of the boys was judged to be below average while nearly a third were classed as poor or definitely malnourished."

The report states that not only was there definite malnourishment found but also other detrimental factors in a large proportion of the youth of unemployed families. Among the other factors, "most important is the fact that poverty means overcrowding, which in turn frequently means loss of sleep, unsanitary living conditions and irregular domestic arrangements."

"Unsatisfactory housing, fatigue and malnutrition interact on each other and all of these on the general state of health," the report adds. "It is clear that a fuller inquiry into these important aspects of juvenile life and labor is badly needed."

MISS A fish can have its salad days. So can sausage and red meats. In a delightful book called "Salads and Dressings" by the irrepressible Miss Mary, the varied life of the salad and pungent herbs unfolds before you.

Here are three of the three hundred recipes.

Swedish Fish Salad
Conservely flake any firm cooked fish, add an equal bulk of cooked shrimps, and half the quantity of cooked young peas, rinkle with minced tarragon or parsley and dress with the following sauce.

Sauce
Two hard-cooked egg yolks, 1 w egg yolk, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup whipped cream, salt and pepper, 1/4 cup milk.

Press cooked egg yolks through sieve, season with raw egg yolk and then with milk and stir with lemon juice. Then fold cream. Mix with fish, garnish with chopped egg whites, sliced peas, wedges of lemon and lettuce leaves.

Salami Salad
One cup finely diced salami, 2 cups shredded cabbage, 1/4 cup

Newlyweds Go On Bicycling Tour

CLEVELAND—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Runyan pedaled along on a bicycle honeymoon.

Runyan, 29, of suburban Lakewood, O., and the former Miss Helen Patterson, 25, of Plain City, O., were married in Plain City. They then strapped a suitcase on the rear of the bridegroom's racing bicycle and turned their wheels toward Washington.

They decided on a bicycle honeymoon after riding around Sylvan, O., this spring.

Runyan said that on their numerous bicycle jaunts they had averaged from 30 to 40 miles a day.

Runyan coaches football in Sylvan high school. His wife teaches Latin and French in the same school.

They have three months of vacation. In that time they expect to pedal 2,500 miles.

On a two-hour stretch they can attain a speed of 14 miles an hour, but they will keep their speed down to 10 miles an hour on a longer trip, the bridegroom said.

Mrs. H. H. Vaughn and family have had as their guest her sister, Mrs. Bill Plumb of Houston. Mrs. Vaughn and children and Mrs. Jimmy Jones motored to Fort Worth today, where they will visit Louise, and Mrs. Plumb will visit for a while before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Beck returned to Dallas this morning after a visit in the home of her mother, Mrs. Alice Davenport.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henry and daughter, Alice Louise, left this afternoon to visit her sisters, Mrs. C. J. Rogne, of Port Arthur, and Mrs. D. N. Craddock of Houston. They will return home in two weeks, bringing their daughter, Dorothy, who has been visiting her aunt in Port Arthur.

BRIDGE CLUB IS DUFFY
By United Press
WEST WARWICK, R. I.—An unusual bridge club is that of "the eight duffy girls," sisters whose ages range from 38 to 65 and who live here and in Holyoke and Andover, Mass. Only one of the sisters is unmarried. They meet for bridge about once each two months.

New Casing Made With Rayon Cords

Goodyear Double Eagle in Major Advance in Tire Construction
Use of a new material in passenger car tire construction has made possible production of a deluxe casing that far surpasses anything previously offered motorists, according to Lee Russell, local dealer for The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Goodyear has just announced a new Double Eagle tire built of Rayo-twist instead of the conventional fabric used in other casings," Russell explained. "Rayo-twist is a silktype cord spun from rayon filaments, and is considerably different than ordinary commercial rayon fabric.

"Big advantage to Rayo-twist is that it is lighter, stronger and cooler running than ordinary cord, and therefore the new Double Eagle is lighter, stronger, and resists heat, fatigue and bruising. The lightness and flexibility, in addition to enabling Goodyear to put the best tread compound on the tire it has ever made, also

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and poisons in your blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day of about 2 pints of waste.
Frequent or easy passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatoid pains, leg pains, loss of grip and energy, general up-sets, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 13 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Last Election Is Given Nickname of 'Corrigan Primary'

By United Press
AUSTIN, Tex.—They are calling the recent Texas election the "Corrigan primary" about the statehouse. It was an election in which the candidates started one way and ended up in a different direction.
W. Lee O'Daniel started out to sell flour and found himself headed for governor.
Pierce Brooks didn't even know what office he was going to run for when he decided to make his second campaign tour. He finally decided to shoot at the office of lieutenant governor, and probably as much surprised as anyone else to find he was leading the ticket. An entry into the runoff was the best he could have hoped for.
Jovial Bill McCraw says he started out running for governor and found he was overwhelmingly gives the new product less rolling resistance. This is of utmost importance to the motorist, because less rolling resistance means that a considerable saving in gasoline is effected.

"In addition to its sturdy performance (which on actual tests has been much greater than any other tire on the market) the Double Eagle is extremely modern in appearance, and many car owners have declared it to be the smartest looking tire they've ever seen," he continued. "In either the ordinary black sidewall or the dressy white sidewall, and in either rib type or with a new arrangement of the famous Goodyear All-weather Tread diamonds, the Double Eagle represents what we believe to be the greatest advance in passenger car tire construction in 40 years."

Others found the result equally surprising.
Incidentally, McCraw says the election was a great vindication for him. "If anybody thought I was a 'politician,' I believe the result of my campaign ought to assure them I am anything but that," he said philosophically.
Another queer quirk of election day was revealed when Lonnie Alsop, blind legislator from Carthage, visited Austin this week. His county went for O'Daniel and yet Lonnie won his race for the House of Representatives by more than 1,600 votes, tallying the people all the time that he was not for $30 pensions for all over 65.
Alsop is one of the "country boys" in the House who is strong for election of R. Emmet Morse of Houston for speaker.
"It may sound strange for a country boy like me being for a big city man for speaker," Alsop said, "but Morse has always been fair, he's a thorough parliamentarian, and I'm for him."
Many people believe that Morse would have been elected speaker of the house before if Walter Woodul had not been lieutenant governor. Not that Woodul, personally, stood in the way, but Morse and Woodul both live in Houston and some members thought no one city ought to have the presiding officers of both House and Senate.
